zens who did good and rapid work, the lively stable building and the barn were eventually totally destroyed.
The lively building was the property of J. W. Johnson. Loss $500; no insurance.
A. M. Elliott, proprietor of the liv-erly stable, saved all of his horses, harness, buggies, etc. His only loss was 700 pounds of hay and 15 bushels of corn. B. L. Moore lost a large barn, size 36x60, worth $500; about 200 bushels of corn; about 4,000 pounds of fodder, and 15 bushels each of peas and cotton seed. No insurance.
A. W. Strickland's house was saved after a vigorous fight, but was damaged at least $125. The household effects were slightly damaged in the hasty removal.
Cause of fire unknown.
The above hurried account may possibly contain inaccuracies, but it is as near correct as we could get at this time. One fact, however, we can give of which we are positive, and that is that Columbiana has a valiant army of fire fighters, who never fail to do effective work. But for heroic labor
A. W. Strickland's residence, and all that part of town would now be in ashes.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money.
Lots of buying is done with a long face. The selling man offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection. It gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating you customer to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good

Boils

It is often difficult to convince people that their blood is impure, until dreadful carbuncles, abscesses, boils, scrofula or salt rheum, are painful proof of the fact. It is wisdom now, or when ever there is any indication of blood, to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and prevent such eruptions and suffering. "I had a dreadful carbuncle abscess, red, fiery, fierce and sore. The doctor attended me over seven weeks. When the abscess broke, the pains were terrible, and I thought I should not live through it. I heard and read so much about Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I decided to take it, and my husband, who was suffering with boils, took it also. It soon purified our built me up and restored my health so that, although the doctor said I would not be able to work hard, I have since done the work for 20 people. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured my husband of the boils, and we regard it a wonderful medicine." Mrs. A. J. PETERSON, Latimer, Kansas.

SUFFERING IN SILENCE.

Women are the real heroes of the world. Thousands on thousands of them endure the dragging torture of the peculiar to womanhood in the silence of home. They suffer on and on—weeks, months, years. The story of weakness and torture is written in the drawn features, in the sallow skin, in the listless eyes, in the lines of care and worry on the face.

Inborn modesty seals their lips. They prefer pain to humiliation. Custom has made them believe the only hope of relief lies in the exposure of examination and "local treatment."

Take ten cases of "female weakness" and in nine of them "local treatment" is unnecessary. There is no reason why modest, sensitive women should submit to it. MCCLELLAN'S WINE OF CARDUI

Is a vegetable wine. It exerts a wonderfully healing, strengthening and soothing influence on the organs of womanhood. It invigorates and stimulates the whole system. It is almost infallible in curing the peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and painful derangements of woman. Year after year, in the privacy of home—away from the eyes of everybody—it effects a cure.

WINE OF CARDUI is sold for $1.00 a bottle. Dealers in medicine sell it. Five bottles usually cure the worst cases.

The Greatest Medical Discovery of the Age.

KENNEDY'S MEDICAL DISCOVERY.

DONALD KENNEDY, of ROXBURY, MASS., Has discovered in one of our common pasture weeds a remedy that cures every kind of Humor, from the worst Scrofula down to a common Pimple.

He has tried it in over eleven hundred cases, and never failed except in two cases (both thunder humors). He has now in his possession over two hundred certificates of its value, all within twenty miles of Boston. Send postal card for book.

A benefit is always experienced from the first bottle, and a perfect cure is warranted when the right quantity is taken.

When the lungs are affected it causes shooting pains like needles passing through them; the same with the Liver or Bowels. This is caused by the ducts being stopped, and always disappears in a week after taking it. Read the label.

If the stomach is foul or bilious it will cause sourness, feelings at first. No change of diet ever necessary. Eat the best you can get, and enough of it. Dose, one tablespoonful in water at bedtime. Sold by all Druggists.

FROM THE FORKS.

Wedding Stories from the "Confluence of the Streams."

Parson of Red Level Church Ties Up the Wrong Couple. Consequently There Were Two Weddings Instead of One—A Wedding Smashup.

Of all the weddings, and wedding smashups and trials and tribulations and confusions that have ever come to pass in this green and wicked old world—we had it right down here in the Rocky Creek settlement, in the run of the last two weeks. In the spring is the right and proper time, it rales seems to me, for young people to fall in love and go courtin' and git married and settle down to business. But yet still at the same time when the sap is up and the freshets fall and the creek slops over, there is trouble in the land and weepin' and wailin' in the lowgrounds of sorrow.

Tied the Wrong Knot. In the beginnin' the Reverent Josh Hanson got so bad rattled over at Red Level church one night, and made such a tremendous big break till bless gracious, he tied the wrong knot and mated off the wrong pair.

The news had went out that Rams Milligan and Miss Tempie Murdock had come to the conclusion that life would be a whole lot more brighter and happier with them if they would sail in and mix clothes for better or for worse, till death do them part. The show was set for Friday night at candle light, and most everybody in the settlement for miles around turned out and went over to Red Level church to see the sight, and hear the fatal words spoke. In the main time Bud Newton had agreed to play as best man for the concern, and Miss Mandy Singleton she had made engagements to stand up with him whilst the preacher tied the knot for Rams and Miss Tempie.

Now then, as to old Parson Hanson—well, the good Lord never pumped the breath of mortal life into a better man than him. But old man Josh is knockin' along into the vale of years and tears considerable, and in regards to eyesight he is rather dim and doubtful. And what is worse and more of it, he is jest naturally as nervous and skittish as a right young girl. So consequently he went to work years ago and fixed up his little wedding speech and got it by heart, and he don't have to do any readin' in orderment to tie the knot, and tie it so it will hold through thick and thin, henceforward and forever.

The church was crowded to standin' room only that night. Bless gracious, the people were jammed and pack in there so regular and so thick till I couldn't stirred em with a red-hot poker. They come by twos and in droves, in wagons, on horseback and afoot—which, you understand, the weather was pleasant and the moon was full and bright, and it seems like everybody thought it was a bully time of year for weddings.

At any rates—in the general hum and push and stir and excitement—old Parson Hanson lost his nerve and went rattled and got things all mixed and muddled up to a terrible extent. And finally at last when the time come to proceed with the proceedings blamed if he didn't pitch in, "sight unseen," as it were, and marry the wrong couple. Old man Bunk Weatherford was there and he riz up in the crowd and tried to stop the parson and switch him around on the right track. But the parson he was goin' it blind, in such a wild swish and swivel to get the dread off and the agony over, till it seems like nothin' could stop him till he was everlastingly too late. Then Bud Newton and Miss Mandy Singleton stood forth as man and wife, with all that tremendous big crowd for witnesses, whilst Rams Milligan and Miss Tempie Murdock looked like they had been sent for and couldn't come across. Old Miss Singleton—the mother of Miss Mandy Singleton, as she had been, but Miss Bud Newton as she now was—screamed and fainted on the spot. Rams and Miss Tempie turned white and red by fits and starts. Miss Mandy she cried a little around the edges, and when the old parson found out what a scandalous big mess he had made—unbeknownance to himself, as it were—he broke out in a cold sweat and wound up with a buckager.

The Storm Blowed Over.

It would seem like everybody got rattled and went to pieces that night—everybody exceptin' Bud Newton. The family records will show that Bud was born in the dead of winter. He was born cool. The higher the storm rises the cooler you will find Bud Newton. He takes things as they come and go, and jest naturally, "don't give a darn."

When it come Bud's time to give in his opinions in regards to what had happened to his loved he "didn't give a darn." He didn't go over there that night to git married and he never did ask Miss Mandy to have him, but if the game had to stand where it was and "the gal was willin'," it didn't make a continental darn bit of difference with him.

The parson said he was mighty sorry that he made the bad break, but the knot was then tied hard and fast and nothin' but death or the chancery court could cut it in two. He couldn't spile out and start over, but he could proceed with the proceedings, tie another knot and make Rams and Miss Tempie man and wife if they was still in the notion. Naturally of course Rams and Miss Tempie was still in the notion, and the parson then put in and spoke his little cut-and-dried piece to them, which made two souls happy and two hearts glad.

By this time Miss Mandy she was likewise also willin'. She had wept and went on at the thoughts of gettin' hooked up in double harness with Bud Newton when she went lookin' as it were, but she couldn't help it now and—well, she was willin'.

But the storm which it was high and furious at Red Level that Friday night—blowed over. Two weddings come to pass instid of one—four people got mated off for life instid of two. Everything that goes up must come down. The good old parson finally recovered. Rams and Miss Tempie come across at last. Miss Mandy she was willin', Bud Newton he jest naturally didn't "give a darn," and everybody went home happy. The sun shines, the birds sing, the flowers bloom, and the vain old world wags on in her usual way.

The Bridegroom Came Up Missing.

Now in them days it also come to pass—in less time than a week after the storm at Red Level church—that they had the most goneyest wedding smashup and scandalation ever heard tell of or read about, I do reckon.

The news had been goin' about for a long time to the general extent that Tim Logan and Miss Babe Skinner would soon fine their right hands and work out the sum wherein you add two together and it don't make but one.

If people in general thought as much of such as they do of horses—if they would put up a large reward for the best man at the best stall fair, I would enter Tim Logan for first money and hand the pile as smooth and easy as pickin' it up in the big road. Tim stands six feet two inches in his socks and pulls up the beam at 180 pounds, risin' weight! But, at the same time, he is straight and round and smooth as the butt cut from a hickory tree. His hair is black and curly, his eyes are blue and bright and his skin as white as milk. To anybody that don't know Tim Logan it is a thousand wonders that he didn't git married long ago. But to them that know him the wherefores and the whences thereof stands out as plain as a painted horse.

He is the weakest and most worryest man I have ever saw in regards to girls and women. He never could stand the very shadow of any livin' female human thing. From general apperintments and what little I have picked up around amongst the neighbors, it would seem like the wedding match which had been worked up between Tim Logan and Miss Babe went on as nice and smooth as battercakes and molasses up to the very last pluck of time, and then bless the heavens if the mainest man didn't come up missin'. The news was first bringin' me on the lips of a white man by the name of Lucas—Andy Lucas—and I can tell you to me it was give unto me.

"What makes the smashup so infernal hard and hurtin' on you, you understand, Rufe," says Andy, "I had put my own finger right tolerable deep into the wedding pie. I had went in like the blasted idiot, which I am, and worked things up to the stickin' point, as I thought, between Tim and Miss Babe."

"Now as you know, Rufe, whilst I do love to see the earth multiply and replenish, for a common thing I don't bring in any precious thing to speak of to bring on wedding matches for other people. But I knowed and everybody knowed that Tim was dead gone, heels over appetite in love with Miss Babe. He never had told her so, he never had told me so and he never had told anybody so. Hit was also plain as daylight that Miss Babe had some tender spring like feelins' for Tim. If Miss Mandy Singleton was willin' over at Red Level the other night, you understand, Rufe, Miss Babe was more than willin'. So I went to work and got up two or three picknicks and moonlight parties and let down the fences between Tim and Miss Babe, as it were, and then by doin' a whole lot of the courtin' myself I got things to swingin' right."

But the Hamstring Broke.

"We didn't go in for no stavin' big church wedding, with music and flowers and fancy trimmings," Andy went on. "I knowed blame well that Tim couldn't stand anything like that, and I didn't want him to pull on the bits right at the start. So we fixed it up to have a quiet little family weddin', with nobody there but me and the preacher and a few of the kinnery on both sides. And then thinks I to myself if the hamstringin' and the breechin' don't fly up there will be lappy times and plenty of good pickin' at the Skinner place when that weddin' day comes."

"So after supper last night I mounted my horse and rid on over to the Skinner place to shove up the chunks and see the thing well done. Everything was ready and waitin'. Miss Babe she was dressed out of sight and lookin' so fresh and sweet till by gattins it made my mouth water to look at her. Presently the preacher rid up and come in, and then everybody was there but the mainest man. Tim Logan come up missin'. We waited and waited till it want no use to wait. Miss Babe she cried, the preacher led in prayer, and I got so founch mad till I went out on the back porch and held a private cussin' match all alone with myself."

"Finally at last I couldn't stand it no longer. I then got on my horse and rode over across the creek to see what in the thunderations had went with the mainest man. I felt so creese fallen and furious till if I had met Tim Logan in the road that night I have no doubts but what a second-class funeral would be goin' on right now. But when I got to the Logan place and dismounted and went in Tim he was piled up in bed shakin' and tremblin' from head to foot, with his eyes bulged out till dauburned if you couldn't of took a stick and raked em off. Skeered? Man, sir, he was skeered in an inch of his life, and sweatin' great drops of cold perspiration as big as your fist."

"At first I put right in to give Tim my private opinions in rale strong United States language, but when I spoke the words 'Miss Babe' and 'weddin' he jumped under the cover, and blamed if it didn't look like he would shake the house down and die with the spasms. To start with I had some hopes that I might maybe rally him around the old flag once more, but he was all pluperfect vanity. Rufe, he jest naturally couldn't come to the scratch."

"Tim Logan never will live to git married, and if he does it will kill him. As to Miss Babe, I reckon the right man will come along some of these days, and I do hope she will be happy henceforward and forevermore. But in the main time, Rufe, there is one man in the settlement that has forever retired from the weddin' business, you understand, and his full name is Andy Jackson Lucas."

Rufe's Sanders.

Misfortunes and Crime.

"Ah! that was a sad case."

"What?"

"Why, poor Billings got in a tight place and defaulted for nearly $200,000."

Very sad, very sad. I wonder if they won't be able to compromise the case in some way."

"By the way, what was done with that fellow who stole a bucket of coal from your woodshed?"

"Oh! the infernal thief went to the penitentiary. I prosecuted the case right up to the end. The scoundrel has no sympathy with thieves."—Chicago Post.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

—A Bengali artist of Calcutta has prepared a map of the world according to the length and breadth of the land. No branch of the Association has garnered more plentiful harvests however than the Railroad Branch. The good influences that have surrounded and good examples that have been set the employees of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway by the Y. M. C. A. workers have done wonders in improving the morals of the men.

The thousands of delegates, members and friends of the Christian Endeavor Society who will go over the Chesapeake and Ohio road next July en route to Washington to attend the National Meeting will have ample opportunity to study the practical workings of the Railroad Branch of the Y. M. C. A. at Cincinnati, Covington, Ky., Hamilton, W. Va., and at Clifton Forge and Gladstone, Virginia.

Back about the year 1881 or 1882, the employees of the C. & O. were furnished with a reading room and sitting room at Hinton, W. Va., by the Company. The quarters were comfortable, there were good fires ready for the men to warm by, and an abundance of newspapers and magazines were always to be found as well as numerous games such as checkers, chess and dominoes.

Previous to the opening of these rooms by the Company when the train men came in for a run or had to lay over at Hinton they went to the saloons because there was no place else where they could go and have the advantages of heat for warmth and light by which to read the papers. This was particularly true in winter time, when the trains were added to a small monthly fee was charged the men which they cheerfully contributed.

When M. E. Jugals took charge of the Chesapeake & Ohio road as president he encouraged the work of the Y. M. C. A. in every possible way and in behalf of the Chesapeake & Ohio Company guaranteed to the Y. M. C. A. any deficit that might arise from the expenses of keeping up the rooms at Hinton, or those that might be established elsewhere along the line. Sleeping rooms were added to the building at Hinton, and the Company erected or furnished quarters at Cincinnati, Covington, Ky., Hamilton, W. Va., and Clifton Forge and Gladstone, Va. The quarters were all made as attractive as possible for the men. They were kept in the best possible condition, and the Company has been very successful in its work.

The train men no longer frequent the saloons, they are always in the best possible mental and physical condition and prepared to discharge their duties in so prompt and efficient a manner that passengers traveling over the C. & O. are sure to receive the best possible care and attention and are as safe as at home.

QUEER WEDDING.

A Woman Forced to Wed Before She Was Allowed to Leave the State.

A wedding of the most remarkable nature occurred on board the steamship Australia in the course of her recent trip to Australia. The bride was Miss Vira King, a native of the Hawaiian Islands, and the groom was Tom Cottrell, a colored carpenter of Honolulu. The former has been in this country for some months, traveling about making her living as a dancer in music halls on the Pacific coast, while the man was in this country on pleasure bent. He worked as ship's carpenter on board the Australia in return for his passage. The pair had not met each other when the ship arrived at Honolulu.

When the young woman attempted to land the surveyor of the port recognized her and vigorously objected. It seems she had in years gone by served three months in the Hawaiian prison for engaging in a row with some friends at a picnic, and under the laws of the islands she was regarded as an "objectionable character." Once having left the islands she was not to be allowed to return. Vira's friends began to work in her behalf, and it was discovered that the law could not separate man and wife, so it was agreed, if possible, to have her married at once. A volunteer in the person of Tom Cottrell, the colored carpenter, was found. The groom was obliged to work all day, and when he quit was not given a chance to prepare for the wedding. He was hustled down to the wharf in his shirt sleeves.

The galley was the scene of the ceremony, and a native minister; made Vira King Mrs. Tom Cottrell. The crew looked upon the ceremony as a huge sport, and when it was over gave three cheers that aroused the city. They simply showered the couple with rice. The wife dressed in the height of fashion, led the way down the plank, followed by her ill-attired husband. At the bottom of the plank Mrs. Cottrell turned to say something, but as she opened her mouth a leaden disk, with a well-directed throw, filled it with rice. She had closed the mouths of the officers who protested against her landing, however, and was happy.—Detroit Free Press.

Found the Cap of the Sphinx.

There is no end to the "finds" in Egypt. It has hitherto always been believed that as much was known about the sphinx as could be known; but now Col. Roum, an American, by digging around the base, has brought some very curious facts to light. At the back of the figure was found a shaft 25 feet deep, with two passages running out of it at the bottom. More important was the discovery of the long-lost cap of the sphinx, which was found 15 feet below the surface of the little temple or shrine between the paws. The cap is painted red and is adorned with the three lotus columns and the serpent. As the hole in the top of the head of the sphinx into which the cap was fastened is still undamaged, the cap should be restored to its place. We hope that Col. Roum's next find will be the fragments of the nose, broken off by an Arab iconoclast some 500 years ago. If these could be recovered and the nose restored the sphinx would be "the father of terrors" no longer, and we might see that look of benign calm which delighted the ancient world and made the Greek poet speak of the sphinx as "great Latona's servant, mild and bland."—London Spectator.

Pure Iron Values.

Strange as it may seem, remarks a writer on metalloids, chemically pure iron is of no use to the manufacturer. It being the impurities in iron which make it the most valuable and important of metals. These impurities are metalloids, and of particular interest to the foundryman are such metalloids as carbon, silicon, manganese, sulphur, phosphorus, and a good foundry pig iron should contain from 3.25 to 3.5 per cent. of carbon, from 3 to 3.25 per cent. of silicon and from 5 to 75 per cent. of manganese, though the phosphorus may run as high as 1 per cent., but sulphur not to exceed .05 per cent. The blast furnace that supplies the pig iron to the foundryman is supposed to analyze its iron, and the foundryman, if he carries on his operations according to modern practice, analyzes the iron with reference to carbon, silicon and manganese, and is satisfied to the nature of the metal it is desired to put into the casting.—San Francisco Scientific Press.

A Noble Work.

The Young Men's Christian Association has accomplished much good throughout the length and breadth of the land. The Chesapeake & Ohio's passenger equipment is the very best to be obtained by the most liberal expenditure of money. The dining car service is known as the best in the world.

The C. & O. passes through a territory not only noted for its beauty of scenery, but rich with historical incidents of two wars: the battlefields of the last one being especially visible. Hot Springs, Natural Bridge, Richmond, Newport News, Charlottesville, Gordonsville, and many other points of beauty and interest are all on the C. & O. line. The regular maintenance of the fast schedule is due to the proficiency and alertness of the trainmen and this is due to a very great extent to the efforts of the Railroad Branch of the Y. M. C. A.

Summer Homes.

In the Lake regions of Wisconsin, Northern Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa and Dakota, there are hundreds of charming localities preeminently fitted for summer homes. Nearly all are located on or near lakes which have not been fished out. These resorts are easily reached by railway and range in variety from the "full dress for dinner" to the flannel-shirt costume for every meal. Among the list are names familiar to many of our readers as the perfection of Northern summer resorts. Nearly all of the Wisconsin points of interest are within a short distance from Chicago or Milwaukee, and none of them are so far away from the "busy marts of civilization" that they cannot be reached in a few hours of travel, by the Chicago and North Western, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway. A description of the principal resorts, with list of summer homes, boarding houses, and rates for board, will be sent free on application to Geo. H. HEARFORD, General Passenger Agent, Chicago.

CURRENT TOPICS.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

LIV. CONGRESS.

(First Session.)

In the senate on the 18th, the resolution for the appointment of a select committee to investigate last year's election in Alabama and report whether a republican form of government exists in that state, was voted down. 41 to 6. House bill to regulate the price of gas in the District of Columbia was amended and passed. In the house, although it was suspended, the resolution for the session was taken up in passing 23 pension bills under unanimous consent. A few bills were passed under suspension of the rules, and time, until 4 o'clock on the 20th, was taken up for the consideration of immigration bills.

In the senate, on the 19th, almost the entire day was devoted to consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, which carries about seven million dollars, one-half to be paid from the treasury and the remainder from taxes collected by the District commissioners. The bill was amended and passed, 55 to 13. In the house much of the session was occupied in consideration of several bills to impose additional restrictions upon immigration, some one of which it is expected will meet the approval of the house. W. C. Owens (dem.) was elected to his seat from the Seventh district of Kentucky, contested by George Denny, Jr. (rep.), Messrs. Steele (rep., Ind.), Cousins (rep., Ia.) and McClellan (dem., N. Y.) were appointee visitors, on the 19th, to the house, to the military academy at West Point.

In the senate, on the 20th, a conference report on the river and harbor bill was presented and an effort made to get immediate action on it. This was resisted, however, and the report went over. The fortifications appropriation bill was further considered and passed. It carries nearly eleven millions of dollars, about five millions more than when it passed the house. In the house the McCall educational bill, together with the Corliss bill, to protect lake cities from Canadian competition, were passed. The annual inspection bill was rejected. An order from the committee on rules setting aside Thursday and Friday (privately) day under the rules for the consideration of bills was reported from the committee on labor was adopted.

In the senate, on the 21st, almost the entire session was occupied in action upon conference reports on various bills still pending final agreement, among them the river and harbor bill, the legislative bill, the Indian appropriation bill and the sundry civil bill. The conference report on the river and harbor bill, Mr. Butler (N. C.) moved that the senate proceed to consideration of his bill prohibiting the issue of government bonds without the consent of congress, but this was prevented by filibustering tactics of Mr. Tilden (N. Y.) and Chandler (N. H.). In the house the bill granting a pension of $500 a month to Francis Hoover, was passed over the president's veto—190 to 17. Consideration was begun of the Phillips labor bill under a special order. A resolution was agreed to directing the printing of 10,000 copies of the immigration bill passed on the 21st.

In the senate, on the 22d, a spirited debate took place on the bill prohibiting the issue of government bonds without the consent of congress. Mr. Hill led the debate against the measure, which was also denounced by Senators Sherman, Hawley, Lodge and Bacon, while it was advocated by Senators Mills, Teller, Stewart and others. The bill went over for one day. The final conference report on the river and harbor bill was presented and agreed to. In the house the day's session was exhausted by consideration of conference reports on appropriation bills. The partial report on the sundry civil bill was agreed to—190 to 182. The house voted to insist upon its disagreement on the sundry civil appropriations bill. The conference report fixing the pension rate to Brig.-Gen. John P. West, formerly United States senator from Louisiana, was agreed to.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

A WHOLE block of business houses opposite the Smithsonian institution in Washington city was burned, on the 18th, causing a loss of $200,000. During the progress of the fire the roof of an old building fell in without warning, burying the firemen of No. 8 engine. It was an hour before the flames had sufficiently subsided to permit of a search for the buried firemen. Then two were taken out dead, several fatally hurt, while others were known to be still under the debris and more were missing.

ARCHDUCHE CHARLES LOUIS, of Austria, brother of Emperor Francis Joseph, died in Vienna on the 19th. The announcement of his death created a feeling of sorrow throughout Hungary, where the archduke was very popular.

On the 20th, Howard Chartrand, a farmer, was killed by lightning at Mayfield, Kas. He was leading four horses from the field, and all of them were killed, while the one he was riding was uninjured.

The duke and duchess of Connaught arrived at Moscow from St. Petersburg on the 19th. The duke will represent his mother, Queen Victoria, at the coronation ceremonies.

AS FAST freight No. 63 on the Lake Shore railroad was pulling out of Air Line Junction, O., on the 19th, the air hose broke, setting the front brakes. As empty passenger train, in the middle of the train was crushed like a paper box, and of the seven trains who were riding in it, one, Edward Haven, of Washington, Ga., was killed, and five were more or less severely injured.

THE steam schooner Albion from Cook's Inlet arrived at Port Townsend, Wash., on the 18th, bringing no tidings of the brig Blakeley, which left Port Townsend for Six Mile weeks ago, carrying passengers, stock and freight and alleged to be greatly overloaded.

NUMBER 47.

QUAY AND MCKINLEY.

The Pennsylvania Senator Pays Respect to the Chairman—Is Cordially Received at Canton—A Close Conference—Facing Two Car Loads of the Finest Material Will Be Used in Adorning the Interior—Precautions Against Fire.

CANTON, O., May 23.—When the train bearing Senator Quay pulled in at the Fort Wayne depot yesterday morning there were several groups of expectant people craning their necks and opening their eyes to catch a glimpse of the famous Pennsylvania senator. He quietly walked in the crowd through the depot toward a waiting carriage.

As he entered one side of the waiting-room ex-Gov. McKinley came briskly from another direction and accosted the conductor of the train, shaking hands cordially, and at the same time making inquiry for the senator from the east.

On the 21st, after services at the Church of the Messiah, all that was mortal of the noted journalist John A. Cockerill was deposited in Elk's Rest in Bellefontaine cemetery, St. Louis.

Brain miners, who were at work 300 feet below the surface on the third level of No. 7 shaft of the Ashland mine at Ironwood, Mich., on the 21st, were entombed by the sudden falling of a body of ore. They were all rescued alive and but little the worse for their terrible experience by a party who dug through to the shaft from the No. 1 mine.

The Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen will hold its yearly regatta at Brockville, Ont., on August 6 and 7.

The supreme court, on the 21st, suspended the 19-year sentence of ex-City Treasurer Bollen, of Omaha, and fixed his bail at $5,000 pending a review of the case.

By the collapse of a building undergoing repairs in Buffalo, N. Y., on the 21st, more than a score of its 50 occupants were buried in the ruins. Rescuers were immediately put to work and soon recovered the bodies of two of the victims, a man and a woman, and dug out many who were more or less seriously injured.

A FEARFUL natural gas explosion, that made the earth tremble for blocks around, occurred in Coffeyville, Kas., on the 21st. Two fine two-story brick business buildings were reduced to a mass of ruins, one man was killed and a large number of people were more or less injured.

A DISPATCH from Canton, O., on the 23d, said that Senator M. S. Quay, of Pennsylvania, had arrived there, and was a guest of ex-Gov. McKinley. ADVICES from Diarbikar, in Asia Minor, say that massacres were feared there during the Moslem festival of Bairam, which began on the 23d.

The treasury gold reserve at the close of business, on the 23d, stood at $111,110,730. The day's withdrawals were $1,118,700.

The strike of the straw plaiters in the city and province of Florence, Italy, assumed an alarming phase on the 22d. Thousands of strikers paraded the streets and began hurling stones at passing carriages and tram cars. The police interfered and were also stoned by the mob.

The circuit court at Tiffin, O., on the 23d, overruled the motion for a new trial for Lee Martin, awaiting execution at Columbus for the murder of Marshal Shultz, of Tiffin. Martin shot Shultz when the latter attempted to arrest him.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

By an explosion of a gasoline stove at Chicago on the 24th a family of six persons was almost exterminated. Four are dead and a fifth one so badly burned that death is almost certain.

EX-GOV. LUCIUS FAIRCHILD, ex-commander-in-chief of the G. A. R., died at Madison, Wis., on the 24th.

An explosion occurred at Hartford City, Ind., on the 24th at the glass factory through a defective blast in the big tank. Several persons were badly burned.

MAYOR W. W. WATERS, of Hot Springs, Ark., on the 23d killed Harry Martin, a doctor's drummer, on the street by cutting his throat with a pocket-knife.

GEN. JOHN ECHOES, receiver and general manager of the Chesapeake, Ohio & Southwestern Railroad, died on the 24th at the home of his son, State Senator Echoles, in Staunton, Va.

FAILURES for the past week have been 227 in the United States, against 207 the same week last year, and 23 in Canada, against 23 last year.

EX-SENATOR WALLACE of Pennsylvania died at New York on the 23d.

The first daily cycling paper ever published in the English language appeared in New York on the 23d.

The statement of the condition of the treasury on the 23d showed available cash balance, $266,651,808; gold reserve, $112,274,711.

The appellate division of the Supreme court of New York on the 22d denied a motion to confirm the report of the special commission on rapid transit appointed by the Supreme court. This defeats the underground railway plan adopted by the commission.

The schooner Sunrise was sunk by a collision with whaleback barge Hundred Thirty-Three, in tow of the steamer W. H. Orstwick, in mid-lake about 60 miles from Chicago on the 22d.

A TERRIFIC cyclone passed over the Osage Reservation on the 21st, devastating farms and ranches. Over a score of houses were wrecked and hundreds of head of stock killed.

The secretary of the interior has made a requisition on the treasury for $10,210,000, to be used in quarterly pension payments next month.

CHARLES GOODYEAR, the inventor and philanthropist, died at New York on the 21st.

Matthew Stanley Quay.

The railroad man indicated the direction Senator Quay had gone, and there was a slight look of piquancy on his face as he passed through the ladies' waiting-room after the fleeing senator.

Gov. McKinley was attired in a close-buttoned Prince Albert coat and wore a shining tile on his head. He walked with more than his usual business-like air, and he was in a seeming hurry.

Senator Quay had just reached Gov. McKinley's private carriage, which was in waiting, when he was overtaken by the major. Both extended their hands.

Quay and McKinley took the rear seats of the carriage and were at once driven to the McKinley residence. Attorney J. A. Brown, of Lancaster, Pa., accompanied Senator Quay and took a place on the front seat with the driver, the assistant private secretary of Mr. McKinley.

Mr. Brown, however, did not remain at the McKinley home, but was driven to a hotel. To a reporter he said he did not know what Senator Quay's mission was in Canton.

Quay and McKinley were in close conference from the time the senator arrived until the time of departure, something more than two hours.

To representatives of the press word was passed that they were busy and could not see anyone, and that the call was one of friendship only.

Nothing more. Senator Quay was accompanied by Mr. McKinley, and afterwards was driven to the train in the McKinley private carriage, accompanied by the major.

William McKinley.

"When the senator boarded the 1:21 train for Beaver, Pa., there was a hearty grasp of hands and cordial good-bye from both sides. Indeed Maj. McKinley smiled as he gave his parting salute.

Attempts to get either Senator Quay or Maj. McKinley to talk on the occasion of the senator's visit have been futile. They would only remark that the weather was fine. Senator Quay gave a score of complimentary words about Canton and said he would go back to Beaver, but on other matters he was as silent as a sphynx.

EX-GOV. McKinley left last evening for Cleveland, where he will be the guest of Mark Hanna till Monday.

Among the other callers on Mr. McKinley yesterday were Hon. E. S. Conway, of Chicago, and George Alfred Townsend, "Gath."

Senator Quay Looks Happy, but Refuses to Talk.

BEAVER, Pa., May 23.—Senator Quay was seen at his home last evening shortly after his arrival from Canton and was asked to say a few words about his visit, but no amount of persuasion could induce him to discuss it, though he seemed in a happy frame of mind and conveyed the impression that he must have something to say later. He expects to be in Pittsburgh to-day.

AID FOR CUBA.

An Appeal for Purchasers for Bonds of the Cuban Government.

BALTIMORE, Md., May 23.—Circulars are being received by Baltimore bankers from the fiscal agent of the Cuban insurgents asking subscriptions to a bond issue to be put out by authority of the independent government of the island. The circulars contain a plea to Americans to purchase these bonds.

The bonds are to be issued in denominations from $50 to $1,000 and are payable in gold and to bear interest at six per cent., payable semi-annually.

THE BIG HALL READY.

To Receive Its Decorations for the St. Louis Convention—It Is the Most Complete Ever Erected for the Purpose—Two Car Loads of the Finest Material Will Be Used in Adorning the Interior—Precautions Against Fire.

ST. LOUIS, May 23.—The big convention hall is practically complete. Only the finishing touches remain to be added to the great auditorium in which the republican party in convention assembled will name its candidates for president and vice-president of the United States. The contractor will turn it over to the local committee of the Business Men's league on June 1. By that committee it will be formally turned over to the republican national committee, or a sub-committee representing that body, on the day before the convention opens.

It is believed to be the most complete convention building ever erected. It will have an actual seating capacity of 13,500 people, besides the chairman and other officers of the convention. The most interesting part of the whole thing is the way in which the auditorium will be decorated, which will be on the most elaborate and costly scale that has ever been seen in this city.

It will require two car loads of flags, bunting, fringes, pictures, etc., to cover the interior walls of the building. The material will be of the finest quality. There will be none of the gaudy, cheap material so commonly used. The entire paraphernalia is composed of the finest silks, plush, gold bullion fringe, hand-painted scrolls on silk for the ornamentation of the speaker's stand, and national flags of every description, done in the most elaborate style. All the flags in use in the army and navy will be brought into play, and every kind of banner authorized by congress, from the president's flag, which must be saluted by American ships wherever unfurled, and by foreign vessels as an act of courtesy, down to Old Glory in his every-day bunting clothes of stripes and stars.

The estimated value of all the decorative material required in carrying out the contract is between $15,000 and $20,000, and if it were bought outright in the market it is probable that these figures would be doubled. It is not likely that the entire assortment could be duplicated on short notice, as many of the flags that will be displayed are not in common use, and not a few of them will be seen here for the first time when the convention hall is dedicated.

In all 12,000 yards of bunting will be used in trimming the hall and covering the bare spaces. It will take 3,200 yards for the cross beams, 1,400 yards in the top of building, and 1,000 yards between the windows. Not a square inch of bare wood will be allowed to show. The speakers stand will be fairly buried under silk flags and banners of crimson plush and hand-painted white satin banners. From the roof, 48 flags will fly from as many flag-staffs, and the entrances will almost be hidden from view under bunting and flags.

The building is well protected from fire. Assistant Chief Haynes has opened an engine house under the seats in the south end of the building, with six firemen in charge, and there are four boxes in the hall, from which an alarm can be turned in that will call out the entire department. There are also 200 feet of hose in the hall, eight Babcock fire extinguishers, and a chemical engine, which is stationed in the north side, under the seats, where it can be quickly used in case of emergency.

THE LAURADA REPORTS.

Just Returned From a Successful Trip to Cuba.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 23.—The steamer Laurada entered the bar Thursday, and was met at quarantine by J. A. Huan, agent of the Cuban junta, and a number of friends of Cuba. The Laurada's captain reported that he had landed safely on Cuban soil nine-tenths of the munitions. When about to land the last load smoke was seen on the horizon, and fearing it to be from the funnels of a Spanish man-of-war, the steamer pulled up anchor and started northward. After communicating this information the Laurada headed seaward, ostensibly for New York.

The Three Friends cleared from this port yesterday with arms and ammunition consigned to Key West. The revenue cutter boat Well has been ordered to see her across the three-mile limit.

ANOTHER SPANISH VICTORY.

But the Rebels Continue to Advance Toward Havana.

HAVANA, May 23.—Col. Delgado reports that his command has had an engagement with 1,000 rebels under Aleman and other leaders near Cruces, in the Cienfuegos district. According to the official report the rebels were dislodged from strong positions and compelled to flee in disorder, leaving 18 men dead on the field. The troops lost 22 men wounded.

It is said that the forces of Gen. Gomez continue to invade the province of Matanzas and that they are approaching the province of Havana. Three trains were sent to Artemisa to bring troops from the trocha, but they were unable to reach that point, the rebels having destroyed the tracks.

THE SITUATION IN CRETE.

Very Serious and Daily Becoming More Threatening.

ATHENS, May 23.—The situation in Crete is very serious and daily becomes more threatening. A detachment of Turkish troops at Yoxaris has been besieged by the Christian populace for two weeks, and in the fighting that has occurred 18 men have been killed, and in a fight at Dragu 10 men were killed.

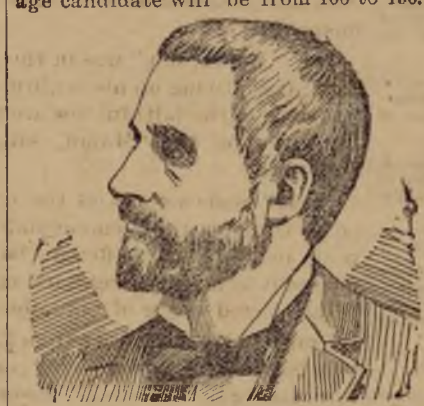

The success of the insurgents has caused a panic among the Turkish rural population.

ALTGELD'S NEW IDEA.

Free Silver, with the Ratio to be Fixed by Congress—Southern and Western Democracy Expected to Dominate the Chicago Convention—A Free Coinage Candidate Will Secure the Entire Vote of the Populist Party.

CHICAGO, May 23.—A Washington special says: Some agency is circulating a report here that Gov. Altgeld advocates a platform at Chicago declaring for free silver, reserving to congress the right to fix the ratio.

With the exception of a few administration democrats, the result at Chicago is now conceded as a certain victory for the advocates of free coinage. The most radical of the silver men declare that the majority in favor of a free coinage platform, and a free coinage candidate will be from 100 to 150.

Gov. Altgeld of Illinois.

The sound money democrats insist there will not be margin of 50 votes between the two wings of the party. They are not prepared to concede that the platform declaration of the convention will demand free coinage at any specified ratio, and are already working for a compromise which will prevent a declaration of this character. Such a modification in the platform, it is hoped, will prevent a bolt of the sound money wing of the party, a bolt already threatened by a number of democratic leaders.

The growing certainty of the control of the Chicago convention by the southern and western democracy and the assurance that the demand for the remonetization of silver will be fully recognized by that body is causing predictions on the part of the leaders in the free-coinage movement that the entire populist party, under such a condition, will cast its votes for the democratic nominee, and that it will be joined in such action by the free silver republicans of the west and their allies, who have been preparing to hold a convention at St. Louis and to place a free silver western candidate in nomination without regard to the platform, of the three other parties.

Senator Jones, of Arkansas, believes that under such circumstances the nominee of the Chicago convention will be certain of an election next November. There have been repeated conferences during the past few days between populist leaders in Washington and prominent democratic senators and representatives who advocate free coinage. Assurances have been given by the populist leaders to these democrats that with a free coinage candidate nominated at Chicago the populists will endorse such candidate or refuse to make a nomination at their convention in St. Louis, leaving their members free to vote for the democratic nominee. It is this assurance which has stimulated the advocates of free coinage in the democratic party to renew efforts during the past few weeks in Iowa, Illinois and Ohio. They have been urging upon democrats that the only chance for success in the coming election by which the tide for McKinley can be stemmed is a frank declaration for free coinage, which will make up for democratic losses on the tariff question by accession from the populists and free-coinage republicans of the west.

HARRITY HOPEFUL.

Of Democratic Success in the Event of McKinley's Nomination.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Wm. F. Harriety, chairman of the Democratic national committee, reviewed the democratic outlook in the country in a conversation with a reporter at the Fifth Avenue hotel this morning. The democrats said Mr. Harriety, "are by no means so hopeless as the republican newspaper picture them. On the contrary they are hopeful and growing more hopeful every day. With every advance of the McKinley movement the chance of the democracy has been improved. If McKinley is nominated at St. Louis, I am confident that democratic success next November will be not only possible, but extremely probable."

Salutatorian and Valedictorian.

Miss Charles Harrison, of Starkville, Miss., has been selected valedictorian at the Southern female college of West Point, Miss., and Miss Inez Walker, of Corinth, Miss., salutatorian. Commencement exercises begin June 4.

Chief-Justice Snodgrass Acquitted.

The jury in the case of the State vs. Chief-Justice of the Supreme Court David L. Snodgrass, charged with shooting John R. Beasley, returned a verdict of not guilty, at Chattanooga, Tenn.

The Prize Poem.

The prize poem, to be read at the opening of the Tennessee centennial exposition, will be written by Mrs. Virginia Frazer Boyle, of Memphis.

Ran Away From Home to Marry.

Miss Mary G. Dulin, of Parkersburg, W. Va., ran away from home and went to Pine Bluff, Ark., where she married Andrew Farman, of Little Rock.

Used a Razor.

J. A. Gillespie, vice-president of the Alabama Street Paving Brick Co., of Coaldale, Ala., cut his throat with a razor. He had been very ill.

One of the Founders of Birmingham.

Col. Thomas Garrett, one of the founders of Birmingham, Ala., died a few days ago, aged 82. He built many fine houses in Birmingham.

Smallpox Exterminated.

The smallpox has been exterminated at Ellenville, Miss., and the pest houses burned. Fourteen persons had the disease and all recovered.

Made a Good Haul.

Jesse Washington, colored, stole $2,130 from Mr. J. W. McLean at Jackson, Miss. He was arrested, sent for a preacher and confessed.

A Good Showing.

More than $30,000 was paid out in one day at Pensacola, Fla., recently for work during the week in loading lumber and lumber cargoes.

SOUTHERN GLEANINGS.

That Alabama Senator.

Sheriff Robert H. Kennedy of Dallas county, Ala., has been released after a tedious trial for murder.

Mardis L. Wood, of Dallas, is one of the most prominent politicians in Alabama. His brother, Percy, was a prominent attorney of Dallas. Wood now holds a $5,000 government position, with headquarters in New Orleans. For two years rumors existed that Mardis Wood was unduly intimate with the wife of Sheriff Kennedy, his most intimate friend. Last February, the woman deserted her husband, and went to Wood in New Orleans. Wood went to Montgomery to attend the state convention. His brother, Percy, came from Selma the same evening, as also did Sheriff Kennedy, the latter coming secretly.

Mardis Wood arranged to leave for New Orleans at five o'clock on the morning of the convention. The brothers went together to the train, and while they were standing together, Kennedy approached them from the rear and fired upon them several times with a shotgun loaded with buckshot. Percy fell, and died in a few hours. Mard

The frogs belong to a "swell" set.

J. A. Rountree has leased out the Alabama Enquirer.

Spain has come down. Tobacco in Cuba, owned by Americans, will come out.

A new form of excuse for coming home late is in order: "I punctured my tire."

When the fair sex get into politics we shall read: "The women are registering to a man."

It would cool off some politicians wonderfully if we could only get them
"snowed" under now.

Terrific storms have been devastating Iowa and Michigan with great loss of life and property.

Sheriff Kennedy, of Dallas county, was acquitted at Montgomery of murder in the killing of Percy Woods.

Sixty-seven contests have been filed involving the rights of 156 delegates to the St. Louis convention, republican.

The span of a bridge, at Victoria,
British Columbia, gave way, 28th.
Hundreds of people were precipitated into a bay 100 feet below. Sixty bodies recovered, last accounts.

It seems settled now that Underwood, democrat, will be bounced by the republicans in the house, Wash-ton, and that Aldrich, republican, will be seated, an Alabama contested election case.

The market was almost bare of green stuff, eggs and chickens, at Birmingham, on the 26th. Lemons were selling well. Eggs were firm with an upward tendency.

House measure, known as the "filled cheese" bill, came up before the United States senate last Tuesday. Its object is to discourage the manufacture and sale of an adulterated article of food by imposing a heavy license on manufacturers and wholesale dealers, and its supporters advocate its passage not as a revenue measure, but as a protection to dairymen and the general public.

HARPERSVILLE.

The berry crop will be good.

The political mill is grinding.

Mr. Bob O'Hara of Wilsonville was in town Saturday evening.

Candidates Smith and Nelson are looking up the dear people.

Miss Mary Davis of Easonville was among the visitors here Sunday.

Mr. Will Teague, of Florida, is visiting his sister, Mrs. Doctor Nelson.

Too much attention to politics is allowing many crops to get grassy.

The weather—Well, perhaps that subject has been written on before.

Harpersville beat will be all o. k.
for democracy at the August election.

Quarterly meeting last Saturday and Sunday was well attended, and Dr.
Newman preached two excellent sermons.

The "Majah, sah," was in this beat Saturday rallying up his faithful few, but some of the faithful few were terribly down on the "Majah, sah," so they say.

"Jake" made a guess on the cotton crop, through the Commercial Appeal, for the prize offered, but he missed it as far as Longshore missed being elected mayor of Columbiana.

Frank Bates came down from Eason-ville Saturday and registered just before midnight. He is at Easonville now "making faces" but Harpersville is his home. No better democrat exists.

It is very distressing to look at the fruit trees which were so promising two months ago. Hope for a good crop is blasted. Pear and apple trees are dying of thirst. Peaches will not be of much account. Ditto plums.

Drs. McClellan of Easonville, and Bell of Vincent, two young gentlemen who have just started out to enlarge the sphere of usefulness of the medical profession, attended church here Sunday as all good christians should.

We were pleased to meet on our streets, Saturday evening, Mr. Jones of Creswell. Although he has been living in our beat almost a year, yet this was about his second visit to Harpersville. He is a sound democrat and a clever gentleman, and we are indeed glad to have such men locate among us.

The registration book was closed as required by law. Some voluntarily disfranchised themselves by not registering. How lamentable that some take so little interest in state and county political affairs that they will not come out and register and have a vote in determining who shall hold the offices? Fence-straddlers are to be despised. Manhood only is what goes now. Be a democrat or a republican, but don't be a 0.

"Drifted with the tied." In the Methodist church here, last Sunday morning, Rev. Mr. Corley officiating,
Mr. J. H. Bailey and Miss Diley
Bishop of near Vincent were united in matrimony. Quite a large number of persons witnessed the ceremony.
Mr. Bailey, it will be remembered, was once a "performer" on the stage;
now he is tickling the bosom of Mother Earth and doing various things while he is resting, as other farmers do.

A very quiet marriage took place at Vincent last week. The contracting parties were Dr. Gray of Sylacauga and Miss Etta Freeze of Vincent.
Dr. Gray is highly recommended by the good people of his town as a gentleman and physician, and Miss Freeze is one of Vincent's loveliest girls and has the admiration of all who know her. May sunshine always brighten their path. May happiness always be their lot, and may a long life be allotted to both, is the wish of "Jake" and Miss Freeze's many friends at Harpersville.

THEY SAY THAT:

That the clippers could improve the looks of several.

That a young lady is just gone completely on Haich's broad collar.

Flies—horse-flies, house-flies and shooflies (politicians)—are thick.

That less discussion about the value of a dollar and more work to obtain it would be better for many.

Those three sermons preached here last Saturday, Sunday and Sunday night, by Dr. Newman, were fine.

Some of our boys want to marry awful bad and would not object to being assisted from Columbiana.

That Longshore may go to the legislature but that if he does it will be to take Ruff Desha's grip from the depot to the hotel.

That King Crab and General Green with their mighty army have arrived and war has begun in earnest between them and the farmers.

J. AKE.

STERRETT.

Sickness is prevailing some.

Mrs. C. H. Bradshaw is convalescent.

J. B. Skinner has removed to Van-dover.

Sickness has been afflicting Calvin Falkner.

Postmaster L. H. Dyke has been sick, but is improving.

Farmers are about up with the green stuff and praying for rain.

Joel H. Falkner and Mrs. D. J. Bilbrey, of Vincent, visited their father,
W. H. Falkner, Sunday.

Mrs. Elsie Green, of Branchville, is visiting the family of her father, R.
J. Byers.

Rev. T. K. Trotter, of Lincoln, Ala., is to preach here next Saturday and Sunday.

Registrar W. H. Falkner has enrolled 105 voters for beat 15, and thinks there will be a goodly number for democracy.

Rev. W. J. Ray has accepted the care of Buelah church as pastor. He preached two interesting sermons, one Saturday and the other Sunday.

We failed to see the long-faced democrats spoken of in last week's Advocate, by their correspondent at this place. The democrats of beat 15 expect nothing but success in the August election.

SLY JERRY.

LIBERTY.

Fishing is the favorite pastime.

Farmers are chopping out their "five-cent" cotton.

Some who go "fish"ing come back with a frog or two and a mud-turtle.

T. A. Nivens enjoyed a leap year visit from his best girl. Result unknown.

J. K. Adams went turkey hunting last week. He brought in a fine bird.
It was a 'possum.

Andrew Blackerby and family of Wilsonville, spent a few days week before last with J. F. Crane's family.

S. W. Blackerby is enthusiastic about orange blossoms now. Which minister will officiate is still undetermined.

Misses Carrie Holcomb and Velva Jackson went fishing recently. They got some bites right off; the skeeters were active.

R. H. Blackerby and wife, and baby, spent the tail end of last week with his wife's sister, Mrs. Bob. Mahan, near Bessemer.

J. F. Crane and wife, and his youngest daughter Madie, spent a day and night with Mason Baldwin's family, near Harpersville, week before last.

The curious want to know who "Kate" is. She is human and expects eventually to become divine.

KATY.

WILSONVILLE.

Mrs. H. L. Sanders went to Calera
Monday.

C. Butler made a business trip to Anniston last week.

Rev. O'Hara of Columbiana, spent a few days with us last week.

Miss Belle Barnett was in our village last week shaking hands with old friends.

Miss Elva Greek of Columbiana, was one of our most cheering visitors last week.

Misses Ida O'Hara and Lucy Smith, of Columbiana, visited friends in our city last week.

Misses Edna Nelson and Eva Davis spent several days in our city last week. We are always glad to have them with us.

The cheering face and twinkling eyes of Mr. Averett of Shelby, were seen at the Teachers' Institute last Friday evening.

The latest style of courtship practiced now by our society young men is to walk behind, pensively, about fifty yards or thereabouts.

L. R. Hobb, formerly of this place, after a six years sojourn in Arizona, returned home several days ago, but on account of his failing health has taken his departure for Atlanta, Ga.

E. Williamson was so unfortunate as to leave his keys in his room, last Friday or Saturday afternoon. He, of course, was compelled to go back after them. Don't suppose the little girls understood.

We have at last organized a baseball team and will be in the field, to challenge the world, anytime after June 13th. Our playing will be fine, as all our good players will be present this summer (if we have any).

Don't forget the picnic at Shelby Springs next Saturday, May 30th.
The young people of our place are anticipating a very pleasant day, and we trust that our neighboring towns will co-operate with us. We will get reduced rates on the local trains.

Wilsonville was illuminated with a highly skillful chirographist last and the week previous. A large number of both sexes availed themselves of the opportunity to learn how to pen a good phist, and, hereafter, their letters will not only be legible but also voluntuous.

The Teachers' Institute was held here last Friday, Friday evening, and Saturday. I hope some good has been done, some seed has been sown that will bring forth good fruit for free graded schools in Shelby county. We can get them if we push in the right direction.

The Wilsonville school closes next Thursday, May 28th, followed by a school examination in the evening, and a musical entertainment at the residence of J. F. Pope, Friday evening. These entertainments are expected to be something grand, and if they are not it will be the first failure ever experienced by Prof. Kilpatrick.
All are cordially invited.

The S. P. L. League assembled last Thursday evening at the residence of J. F. Pope. The program was well executed, with a few "Please excuse me," etc. The following were elected:
President, Justin C. Jackson. Vice-President, E. Williamson. Secretary,
Miss Juddie Kilpatrick. Finance Committee, Misses Georgia Pope and Mary Bolin (for the next two months).

YELLOW LEAF.

Chiggers are playing havoc with the poultry industry.

The beaming countenance of one of Columbiana's most handsome young widowers is visible on our public highways, frequently. It is business, of course, that brings him here, but it is mighty pleasant business, isn't it, if one feels that way?

On Sunday last, Rev. Cary delivered a very impressive discourse at Mt.
Chapel. It was listened to attentively.

Harmon Thomas visited his sister in Montgomery on last Sunday and reports a jolly time.

Candidates, grasshoppers and book agents are very numerous.

"Amn!" to the movement for free schools. We must, we can and we believe we shall have them.

BON SLICK.

CRESWELL.

We need a good Sabbath school.

Rev. Warren is for better singing.

Miss Classie Lowe was here recently visiting.

Miss Arabella Baggett smiles with us again.

Ada Cooper of Cobb, has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Belle Chancellor.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Wallace, and little daughter Ada, visited their son, G. F. Wallis and family, at Laniers a few days ago.

G. W. Wallis, Jr., and Miss Sallie Ingram had a narrow escape from drowning in Bates pond. Silly mule.

The Ingram family have the sympathy of the community in their affliction, and the extension of the helping hand.

[Creswell correspondent will favor us greatly by sending in correspondence as soon as possible. We cannot handle long letters at a late hour.

day afternoon.—Ed.]

Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama, Shelby County. Fronie
McClellan, Complainant, vs. S. R. McClellan, Defendant.

In Chancery, Sixth District, Northeastern
Chancery Division.

In this cause, it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of W. T. Johnson that the defendant S. R. McClellan, is a non-resident of Alabama and resides in Denison, Grason County, Texas; and further, that in the belief of said affidavit, the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered, by the Register, that publication be made in the Chronicle, a newspaper published in the County of Shelby once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him the said S. R. McClellan to plead, answer or denounce to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 3rd day of July, A. D. 1896, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office, in Columbiana this 26th day of May A. D. 1896.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Batemans Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?
Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher.
That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word
"Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

Read Walls on political duplicity.
Ladies hustled around too, at the fire last week.

Think of packing around a grip such weather as this!

General Rumer is in the city. He is stopping about promiscuously.

The City Venerables have been in session and gone for the county by the nose.

"I am in the hands of an eminent tutor." "What does he teach?" "The bike."

City chickens are laying eggs on county property and the kids are on to it.

If any one lays The Chronicle on a chair be careful and not sit on it. It is full of sharp points.

The city is going to carry one of the small county buildings into court. God help the court.

Lawn parties and lemonade sociables are in line now with the fashionable doings of the season.

The market being drained, Spencer wired this week for more lemons. The first thing he got was the bill!

Merchant Fox enjoyed the mutton chops so much he got on his last visit to Birmingham he is now as gentle as a lamb.

Our merchants have evidently vivid recollection of "that tired feeling." There is not a business house in the city but is well provided with seats outside.

Tuesday afternoon there was a brief windstorm, which made the dust fly vigorously. Many feared that one of Major Pitts' editorials had escaped and that the city was endangered.

M. Dreyfus of Montgomery, came up here last week to stretch his legs and wholesale some goods. Being of a pious disposition, he remained over Sunday at the Colonial, to worship with Col. Hall.

When all's still for a while, the flies get on the bikes in front of the headquarters at Spencer's. Some rest on the saddle, others on the pedals, and they all look sad when they think how short their legs are.

The printing of the minutes of the spring meeting of the Presbytery of North Alabama was completed this week at the Chronicle office, and, at once, Stated Clerk Sinnott commenced sending them out.

Lemons run entirely out last Saturday, or in other words the customers run entirely out with the lemons, and became scarce. It will never do to try and squeeze through this summer without plenty of lemons.

HOW DO YOU LIKE THIS FOR AN AD SCHEDULE?

There must be some great ecclesiastical body in session here permanently there are so many about wearing white neckties, or else it is an evidence that the wearers having become extremely good, contemplate studying for the ministry.

Attorney J. T. Leeper received a handsome Victor bike on Tuesday afternoon. All the most eminent worshippers in the heart of the city turned out promptly to give the god a cordial reception. It looked at one time as though a mass meeting was in progress.

The Columbiana Mercantile Company is out this week with a big ad announcing that everything must go at once regardless of cost and giving the reasons therefor. Manager Fox says he will not stop at anything, even to marrying off all the clerks and selling the cat.

Attention is called to the program of commencement exercises of the Shelby High school, published elsewhere in this issue. The famous lecture of Prof. Whittle will be a grand treat. Columbians should turn out in large number and go over there and hear it. It will pay them to do it.

Two young clerks who never had the distinction of being put in jail visited that institution here last Sunday and were promptly shown in by the jailer to look around. They had a good opportunity to do so, as the jailer went off to family prayers and left them there until he got through with his devotions.

Mine host, E. D. Hall, of the Colonial hotel here, has just completed the most attractive residence in the city. It is a five-room building and elegantly finished both inside and out. F. M. Comer, of Shelby, did the carpenter work, and Mr. Hall himself attended to all the other details of construction. The building will be occupied by J. O. Farmer, of the Allen N.

We had an interesting call, the latter part of last week, from Major Pitts, who came in full regalia for the purpose of borrowing the bellows which is kept in stock for undusting the cases. He did not state the object he had in view in obtaining possession of such a treasured article but we ascertained afterwards it was for the purpose of writing a series of editorials for the Advocate. When Manager Fox of the Columbiana Mercantile Company heard of what was about to happen, he hired a large gang of workmen to guy the building (and not guy each other) to prevent it from being blown away in the event of one of the major's editorials breaking loose from its environment. All the wind-storm houses, or dug-outs in the vicinity, have been carefully examined and put in readiness for immediate use, and everything has been done to insure the safety of the city in general.

CAMPAIGN PORTER WORK DONE AT THIS OFFICE WITH ELECTRICAL PROMPTITUDE.

Beat one leads the county this year in increased registration. In 1894 up to this time 565 registered in this beat. This year the book closed with 596 names inscribed therein. Beat four of which Montevallo is the capital, fell off considerably, having 565 in 1894, and only 529 this year. Apathy among the democrats and disgust among the pops contributed to this result. Taken as a whole, the registration in this county will not exceed that of two years ago but very little.

How lovely it is to hear Marshal Cromwell, as he winds his way towards the Southern depot every Sunday afternoon, with one eye to the right of him, another to the left, and the rest fore and aft, humming sweetly:

"Gather them in,
Gather them in,
Yes, we'll gather them in."
And you can rest assured he'll do it, if he finds any transgressors of the law within the range of his optics.

Monday, county court, negro plead guilty; three cases; 4 yrs. pen; $25 fine. N. T. Lucas, Montevallo, carrying concealed weapons; acquitted. Frank Kroell, same, acquitted. P. O. West and others; breach of peace. On Wednesday afternoon.

Shoemaker Neely saves "soles." He thinks some of this world and also of the "upper." Men who patronize him are always well "heeled." Don't talk politics to him the wrong way or he'll give you a "welt." The end (wax).

Besides resident legal lights, the following attorneys are in attendance upon county court this week: J. M. Reynolds, W. S. Cary and E. S. Lyman, of Montevallo; W. R. Oliver, of Calera; and Hon. R. W. Cobb, of Helena.

The meeting tomorrow of the county democratic executive committee is one of importance, and every beat in the county should be fully represented.

Arrangements will be made at the proper time to enlarge the size of the contribution boxes in the churches when free silver materializes.

Frank Nelson, Jr., of Anniston, was in town Saturday and Sunday on a visit to his family and relatives.

Miss Essie Mason returned home Wednesday from Tuscaloosa, where she has been attending school.

Prof. Greek and daughter Elva attended the Teachers' Institute last week in Wilsonville.

P. B. Harrell and Frank Spears, two prominent Shelbyites, were in town a few hours Tuesday.

W. J. Cannon and little daughter, Suna, visited in our town Tuesday and Wednesday.

J. F. Pope, Wilsonville's hustling merchant, transacted business here yesterday.

Will Teague, of Florida, formerly of this county, is on a visit to relatives here.

Miss Lucy Smith attended the Institute at Wilsonville Friday and Saturday.

Frank Kroell and C. W. Cary, of Montevallo, are attending county court.

Misses Edna Nelson and Eva Davis visited Wilsonville Friday and Saturday.

Attorney W. F. Thetford presided pro tem. in a case in court this week.

E. F. Seale, short-route candidate for sheriff, was in the city yesterday.

Marriage license issued Tuesday but names kept secret.

A good many are here "court"ing this week.

Sunrise, 5; sets, 6:54. Other sons rise later.

Our bikers can make it from here to Shelby in twenty minutes.

CARD OF THANKS.

This notice is a small token of the deep gratitude, I feel toward the many friends, who rendered such noble and heroic work in my behalf, during the fire. I have rented the stable belonging to Mr. Hall, for the present, and solicit the kind patronage I have always received.

A. M. ELLIOTT.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dinwiddie, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitancy in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church, at Rives Junction, she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption, and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

THE ENDEAVORS.

Program for Next Sunday Afternoon.

The Sunday school committee of the Endeavor society, has prepared the following for the meeting next Sabbath in the Methodist church, commencing at 4:30 p. m.: (Everybody invited, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance so that the society will be encouraged in their good work.)

Song (voluntary). Prayer. Song. "The relation of the Sunday school to Columbiana," I. D. Mason. Song. "Obligation and relation of the church member to the Sunday school," Judge D. R. McMillan. Song.

"The most effectual way to secure the attendance of the children upon the Sunday school," Hon. A. P. Longshore.

Essay, "What is a mother's duty to the Sunday school?" Mrs. L. Armstrong. Song.

"As the Christian Endeavor Society is one of the arms of the Church, can we be true to our pledge and not be enthusiastic Sunday school workers?" J. K. White.

Essay, "What is the duty of the school teacher to the Sunday school?" Miss Lucy Smith. Song. Prayer.

CARD OF J. P. CHRISTIAN.

I learn that the report is being industriously circulated that I do not want the sheriff's office for myself, but that I am running to get it for some one else. Some say "Grant," others say Slaughter, while a few others are guessing. Now, in contradiction of the above, and for the gratification of my friends, I wish to say that if I get the nomination (which in my case will be equal to an election), I will make the bond, fill the office, and do some of the hustling myself.

I have never made a promise of any kind, to any person; nor have I ever said one word intentionally that could in any way be distorted into a promise of any office, deputyship, reward or hope thereof, from me, in any way, to any living man, and I defy any one to bring, or try to bring, proof to the contrary.

I intended to have canvassed the county, but sickness in my family has until now prevented me from doing so.

J. P. CHRISTIAN.

IN MEMORIAM.

Robert, little son of Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Niven, died May 27th. He was a sufferer the greater part of his life, being a cripple. Though given to his parents and the family but a short time, the light reflected by his brief life will not soon be dimmed but will ever throw its rays heavenward. The bud of beauty nipped by death has been borne where no rude wind can impair the loveliness of a flower of paradise.

Grieve not with helpless sorrow,
Jesus has felt your pain;
He did thy lamb but borrow,
He'll bring him back again.

REPUBLICAN APPEAL.

The Late Dark Closet Dicker and Brace Game Again Vigorously Denounced.

TO THE REPUBLICANS OF SHELBY COUNTY: I am requested by the leading republicans to say that after the St. Louis convention there will be a full ticket in the field. It will be in line with the regular platform of our Party and Principles.

Why should we submit to such a trick as Mr. S. S. Holbrook did when he traded us off to the populists? The fact is he learned early in the morning of the day of that famous convention, that our party wanted Eugene Williams for county superintendent, and when he found out he would be defeated, he then got a few of his friends, locked them up in the court house and had himself nominated. Shall we go back on ourselves, party and principles, which date back to the day our liberty was proclaimed?

NO!

We are not that kind of metal. And to the colored voters I ask: in the name of all common sense and justice can you go back on Abraham Lincoln and the many union soldiers who lost their lives fighting for the principles that set you free? Now I ask you, in the name of those dead soldiers who sleep the sleep that knows no waking, and in the name of Old Glory itself, the flag of our country that waived triumphantly over Sharpsburg, Gettysburg, Vicksburg and Appomattox Court House, are you going to so far forget those days of danger and SELL OUT, or give out, your manhood and the principles of the greatest political party that ever existed on earth, and that when we are on the eve of getting a republican president? What will the think of us when he reaches the white house? Do it, and put the populists in power, and you will never see another negro route agent in Alabama!

Where did the populists come from? Are they not of the democratic family, who became dissatisfied because they could not get office? Yes, who are they? They are hardly known outside of Alabama.

Now, I ask you ALL, both white and colored republicans, to stand firm on the PRINCIPLES OF THE PARTY, and when you see Old Glory, which has been sustained by the blood of the old whigs (now the republicans), floating over the capitol in Washington, you will stand a better chance to get the pie.

I am as ever yours,

A true republican,

W. W. WALLS.

ALWAYS IN THE LEAD! FOLLOW THE PROCESSION!

The purchasing public knows by experience if they go to the COLUMBIANA MERCANTILE COMPANY'S STORE they will get value for their money. We are up to the times. We are not going to carry any Spring or Summer goods over. Ours are bought to sell, not to keep. If not at our price, then at yours. To make things move, we will from to-day on, sell you anything you may want in Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes, Notions, Fancy Dress Goods, etc., at ACTUAL COST. We expect to be in our new building by the first of September. We want to open with an entire new stock, and we know our prices will sell the stock on hand now. Bring us chickens, eggs, or anything you may have to sell. If we can possibly use it, we will buy it. This Fall we will have as large a stock, and at as low price, as can be found anywhere else in the State. We are here to stay and will do you all the good we can.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

That

Extreme tired feeling afflicts nearly everybody at this season. The hustlers cease to push, the tireless grow weary, the energetic become enervated. You know just what we mean. Some men and women endeavor temporarily to overcome that feeling by great force of will. But this is unsafe, as it pulls powerfully upon the nervous system, which will not long stand such strain. Too many people "work on their nerves," and the result is seen in unfortunate wrecks marked "nervous prostration," in every direction. That tired

Tired

Feeling is a positive proof of thin, weak, impure blood; for if the blood is rich, red, vitalized and vigorous, it imparts life and energy to every nerve, organ and tissue of the body. The necessity of taking Hood's Sarsaparilla for that tired feeling is, therefore, apparent to every one, and the good it will do you is equally beyond question. Remember that

THE LITTLE OLD GRAY.

A Homely and Thrilling Story from Rocky Creek.

How the Fiea-Bitten Gray Earned His Feed with Sweat and Blood—
Got on the Rockin' Road—Spring Freshet.

You talk about big rains and high waters and spring freshets and close calls and tight places—that's what makes me tell you what I do about a woman—another love, and the little old gray horse which has now got the run of the woods pasture.

I am not more than a long day's drive from the poor roadhouse, and sometimes I couldn't say for certain right where I will stand when the storekeeper opens up. But so long as we both live the little gray can get anything that I have got that he wants.

"One of Your Has-Beens."

There ain't no particular style about that horse, as you will notice, and he ain't got no git-up-and-git to speak of now. But at the same time he is a member of the Sanders family, which family can do most in generally—always count on me to do the talking and hustling for the necessary fixings. He is now free, white and 21, and I give him all the slack in the reins when it suits him.

He has been dead on his legs and off of his feet for 10 to 15 years, and consequently he don't have to make a track nor fling a shoe except on only when he feels like it. There are other horses on the place that's younger and stronger and better looking than him, and we let them run the wagons and the plows and do the saddling and the driving for the concern. The old gray has seen his best days long ago, and he is now on the pension rolls—drawn his rations and taken his rest for the honorable service. He is just what you might call one of your has-beens.

But I took my seat with pen in hand to tell you that the little old gray has had his day, and in that day he was yonder the best piece of horse flesh that ever flung a shadow in all this skirt of woods. I bought him of old Squire when he was nothin' but a three-year-old, and a tremendous shabby one at that. When he was four I started him to holdin' the stirrups and wearin' the collar tolerable regular and frequent, and then he shed his baby teeth and commenced fillin' out and roundin' up all around. But he had got stunted in the start, and there is nothin' like a good start, when it comes to handlin' horse flesh. He never could git over the bad start in takin' on his form and general appearances. He was always slip-slided and sway-back and rather awkward in his makeup. All the same he had some of the stuff in him which makes goers and stayers, and he showed up with it in the day and hour of trial. Big leg bones, and high withers, and short back, and droopin' rump, and thin deep chest, and long, strong limbs. By gattins, there was muscle on that horse's arms and legs which looked like young kittens under the skin, and but for the hard road he had traveled I have no doubts but what they would be full-grown cats by now.

Iron bound and copper bottomed and supple jointed—he could git over the ground like a bird, and hit a straight, regular lick all the day long.

The Weather Was "Franky."

But, as I was goin' to say, we and the little old gray have had some hard rubs and pulled through some mighty close places together in our day and generation, and while we both live he will find corn chops in the trough and fodder in the rack every time he goes to the stable.

He was in the spring time, and away back there in the 70s, if my count ain't wrong, and we was farmin' then down on the Conecuh river bottoms. The rains had come tremendous heavy and frequent. The river was full to the brim, but she was sloppin' over any to speak of, and travellin' was considered plumb safe. Our little Mary was nothin' but a spring pullet then, and we had started her to school to one of the Cross girls over the river a mile and a half, or maybe a little better, from home.

When we got up that mornin' the sky was clear as a bell, and the sun was shinin' and the birds singin' and the bees a hummin'. It had then been a clean 21 hours since any rain had fell on our place, and it looked like nothin' but fair weather ahead. And little Mary she was most crazy to git back to school, sayin' how she was now in her A-B Ahs, and fische missed another day she would have to go foot and spell up, whilst the other scholars would laugh and poke fun at her.

"I am awful skittish about lettin' our Mary off to school this mornin', Rufus," says mother to me after breakfast, and then she would like to know my private opinions about the general circumference of the surroundings.

"Let the little one go to school," says I. "She is all wrapped up in her books, and it would most break her heart. I reckon, to go back and spile out and start over."

She is as smart and handsome as her mother, and proud and high headed as her daddy, and by the livin' and dead, she shall have all the schoolin' she will take.

"But I am not feelin' right easy in regards to the water and the weather," mother went on. "Sposin' the river takes a spurt and gits out of her banks. I And that ain't all. It mout rain to-day for all I know. My cerns are hurtin' awful this mornin', and the weather is so pranky, Rufus."

"This ain't my time of year for sposin'," says I. "Life is too short, and time is too skeerce. Let the little one go to school."

Then mother loved it would have to be so, she reckons, bein' as I was the general boss, but still she couldn't help from feelin' a little bit jubbis in regards to the river and the weather.

The River Run Mad.

So after breakfast I straddled the little gray and lit out to see Will Tom Pickets, 13 miles up the river. A big political affiliation was to be held up there that day, and I like to be wanted to see Will Tom touchin' a land trade which me and him had put in soak together.

The horse went off in a good swingin' fox trot, and then presently broke into a long gallop. We made bully time over the level sandy road and had put some nine miles behind us when all of a sudden the little gray stopped in his tracks like he was shot, pricked his ears forward and gave a low snort.

Somethin' wrong somewhere, says I to myself. The little gray wouldn't break his gaites up that way, with his good training off there want some trouble in the woods.

A high wind was now blowin' strong and full in my face, but I urged him on to a little clearer line some 50 yards ahead. And then, white people—then I looked on a sight that will stay with me to my dyin' day. The river was all spread out over the woods and fields, chin-deep it looked like to me, and comin' right down on us like a mill race with the dam busted. I could hear her roarin' and stompin' and stompin' like a drove of wild steers stampin' of a cnebreck. I knowed in a minit what was up and what it meant. There had been a cloud burst, or water spout as we called em, somewhere in the up country, and the river was then runnin' mad as a March hare through the swamp lands. My hair stood up, and a funny sort of hurrin' come into my throat. I glanced up towards the sun, and then this little calculation run through my head quicker than you could say seat with your mouth open.

"It is past eight o'clock now. Our little Mary is just about fixin' off to school. Will she clear the swamp before the freshet runs down to the big road crossin'?"

A Long and Terrible Heat.

A second more, and the little gray had wheeled in his tracks like a top and swapped ends for home. I give him all the slack in the reins, dug my spurs deep into his flanks, and went off on the back trail like he was shot out of a cannon. There was squally times then, ladies and gentlemen, and I was terrible bad rattled, but I leant down on that horse's neck and talked to him—talked to him like he was folks.

"Untie them legs, young fellow," says I, "and use em now for all they are worth. No monkey work, no jockeyin' and no foolin' now. It is a long and terrible heat ahead, but the stakes!—the stakes are worth a hundred men and horses like you and me! By gollys we must win this race and beat the fresher to the big road crossin' if it snaps every nerve and strains every muscle and breaks every bone in your body. Git out of the woods and go!"

As we shot down through the swamp I took notice of the slous and branches and lagoons fillin' up with back water, which the little gray cleared them at a single leap, one by one, and still my spurs was plavin' deep into his bleedin' sides. But he was game—dead game—game to the bone, and never floundered nor flickered nor finched. Seemed to me like he kept squatin' and gettin' closter and closter to the ground as he went plugin' and tearin' along like a storm on wheels. Presently we shot out from the swamp and onto the sand ridge, and I knowed that six miles of that awful race was run. Right alone there the river made a little bend and we gained half a mile by the straight road.

And do you know—sometimes when I look back and think about it—I'll be dog-goned if I don't believe that horse could tell what was up and what had to be done as well as I could, if not some better, cause I was mighty nigh crazy. I was hoarin' at the horse and plavin' up his flanks with the steel rods of my spurs, feelin' like I would choke to death, and sweatin' great drops of perspiration as big as your fist. Away he went down the ridge with the speed of the wind, his long slab sides bloody as a beef and smokin' like a steam engine.

When we hove in sight of home mother she was out in the garden pickin' vegetables for dinner. Takin' off her fly bonnet and raisin' her hand so, she looked at me and the horse comin' down the road, and seems to me like she was sayin' to herself: "Sakes alive! Is he drunk or crazy?"

Would you reckon on that horse wanted to stop at home? Nary time out. He run by the wood lot gate like a rifle shot and went a splittin' on down the slope towards the river. Mother she was wavin' her hands and gesturin' and callin' to us, as we dashed by, but I couldn't say nothin', my face was set to the river and the little gray was headin' for that point.

Well, we found our little Mary down there in the swamp—jest across the bridge. She was tackin' along at her own gait, pickin' flowers and shootin' the butterflies out of the path as she went. I stooped down, caught her by one arm, and lifted her to my saddle bow, then wheeled the horse and made for the up-hill.

When we got out on the brow of the hill past high water mark, I slowed up, and there we met mother comin' at full tilt, quarrelin' to herself and wantin' to know what in the round created world was the matter. I set the little one in her arms and slid off of the horse to the ground; remarkin' that there want anything in partier the matter exceptin' that a spring freshet was comin' down the river like a thousand o' bricks, and I didn't want to lose our little Mary in that way.

Then I got weak and tremblin' in my knees and set me down by the road to rest myself a little. Tareely I saw the river loomin' up and sloppin' over and sloshin' out of her banks. And in less time than it takes me to tell it I saw that spring freshet rippin' and roarin' through the tops of the alder bushes and playin' hide and seek with the corn tassels.

Mother loved she told me so, and cried, womanlike, when the danger was all over, and I laughed a little round about in spots. But, of course, we was both monstrous glad. Little Mary was powerful sorry she didn't git to school that day, but loved she was awful glad her daddy want drunk and neither crazy.

MYSTERY OF A METEORITE.

Journey That Would Take Seven Million Years to Cover.

When a meteorite strikes the earth it ends a journey of 7,000,000 miles, began centuries before the Christian era. This is on the basis that it came from a star, for it would, according to astronomical calculation, require the full time given to make the trip from star to earth.

Just what these meteorites are and from whence they come are things that even those who have spent their lives in studying the stars can yet do barely more than conjecture.

An article on this subject, from the pen of Camille Flammarion, the great French astronomer, has just appeared in Paris, and is of especial interest, as it gives hitherto unpublished details regarding the great aerolite that burst over Spain the month before last.

"The sun was shining brightly in the blue sky, when at 9:29:30 o'clock in the forenoon of Monday, February 10, the people of Madrid suddenly saw a flash of blindingly brilliant light in the sky above them, which seemed to set the whole heavens aflame. It appeared to emanate from a white cloud, which hung like a puff of smoke high up toward the zenith, having the form of a semi-circle, with its convex side toward the east, and tipped with a crimson hue at its outer edge."

M. Flammarion says that a projectile sent from the earth with a speed of 11,000 meters (nearly 37,000 feet) per second—allowance being made for the resistance of the air—would never fall back to the earth.

A projectile sent with a speed of 10,000 to 11,000 meters (a meter is about 2.33 feet) would fall only after hundreds of thousands of years. A projectile launched with an initial velocity of from 9,000 to 10,000 meters per second would fall after thousands of years.

"Therefore, it seems," says M. Flammarion, "that a certain number of meteorites must come from these different sources. Without doubt some of them may be the dust of defunct worlds wandering in space. But their analogy with the interior rocks of the terrestrial globe would seem to indicate that many of them come from our own planet. Those which arrive with a small velocity may have the moon for their origin, but the great speed with which some of them strike the earth indicates that they come from some star. Is the nearest star to the earth is a journey which would take a meteorite no less than 7,000,000 of years to make."—Chicago Journal.

IDOLIZING THE FAVORITES.

Silly Antics of New York Women on Parading with Operatic Stars.

The scenes enacted by the hero-worshipping feminines of this town are simply sickening. The scene at the Theatre pier when Paderewski sailed the other day was bad enough, but the came sisters acted worse at the Metropolitan at the conclusion of a recent performance. They marched to the footlights 500 strong. They compelled the De Reszkes and Melba to walk across the stage 18 times. After half a dozen calls the sensible beings in the audience left the house, but their friends were not going to let the singers off so easily. The lights were turned out, but the women did not mind that. They shrieked and stamped and whistled until three singers appeared again, and then, thrusting their gloved hands across the footlights, tried to touch Jean's feet. Mme. Melba had some flowers in her hands, and these she threw to the crowd. While the women were scrambling for them the singers escaped through the side door. But the howl of the silly mob brought the singers back again. One woman leaned across the footlights and, catching hold of Melba's skirt, tried to pull a bit of the lace off her petticoat. This was too much of a good thing. Melba looked furious, and turning upon the woman, exclaimed, as she waived her hand: "Shoo! shoo! Go home, go home!" Then a fat woman picked up a small child and tossed it deliberately on the stage. The child made a dive for Jean De Reszke, but the tenor had seen it coming and fled. Then the child—a hideously ugly tot—got hold of Melba and put her face up for a kiss. Melba made the best of a bad bargain. Again the lights were lowered, but the crowd stayed in. Finally, Melba managed to make herself heard, and then she firmly informed the feminine errands that she wouldn't sing "Home, Sweet Home" if she had to stand on the stage until morning. She was hopping mad by this time, and the foolish freaks finally "tumbled" and slowly filed out of the house. If the foot-killer ever comes to New York the man-milliners will lose a lot of customers.—N. Y. Cor. Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Wealth of Medical Men.

The following is a list of the sums left by a number of prominent medical men, mostly knights or baronets, who died last year. The estates range in value from nearly $500,000 to about $40,000.

Sir William Savory, who died at the age of 68, left an estate worth over $93,000. Dr. John S. Bristowe left an estate worth $15,734, and the late Dr. Tuke an estate of about $30,000. It is estimated that the average of the personal estates of 67 physicians and surgeons whose wills were noticed during six or seven years was $50,614. This is a vastly greater sum than could be credited to a similar number of eminent American physicians, and it is not unlikely that most of these gentlemen inherited or obtained through some other than medical practice the fortunes which they left.—London Medical Press.

A Nest Compliment.

The following pretty little song took place between a very delicate lady singer and a celebrated composer, who is by no means addicted to flattery:

BACKACHE.

From the Press, New York City.

Few people have suffered more from pain in the back than Mrs. Lillie B. Newell of No. 2213 Second Avenue, New York City. For several years she was so afflicted with this distressing malady that she was hardly able to get around, and could do little to cure for her children which made her suffering all the harder to bear. Her husband, Charles Newell, who is a well-known New York optician, tried in every way to find a remedy for his wife, but no medicine seemed to have the power to remove her pain.

Mrs. Glynn, a sister of Mrs. Newell, is a professional nurse, and was familiar with the symptoms of her sister's sickness. Mrs. Newell was away on a visit when a reporter called upon her, but Mrs. Glynn, who lives at No. 416 East One-hundred-and-twentieth Street, told the story of her sister's recovery.

A doctor was called when Mrs. Newell's condition became serious and he prescribed small pink pills which, in a short time, relieved the woman's pain as no other medicine has done. "After awhile," Mrs. Glynn told the reporter, "we learned that the medicine the physician was giving my sister was nothing more than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Knowing by experience how excellent a remedy these pills were, Mrs. Newell bought some at a drug store and continued taking them. The effect was most gratifying, for in six months my sister was perfectly well and the pain in her back was nothing more than an unpleasant memory. Both she and I have recommended the Pink Pills to other people, who have not failed to find them all that is claimed. All doctors my sister had been treated by, before taking the pills, had done her no apparent good."

Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose form by the dozen or hundred) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. The price at which these pills are sold makes a course of treatment inexpensive as compared with other remedies or medical treatment.

The city hospital is almost totally destroyed and 75 persons are said to be buried in the ruins; work of rescue is now going on.
The house of Good Shepard has been thrown open for the accommodation of the patients that escaped.
Dozens of them are now at the dispensary being cared for as best can be.
It is impossible to give any estimate as to deaths now.

St. Louis, May 27, 10 p. m.—An extra Post-Dispatch, just issued, contains the following double-column cyclone heading: "Hundreds Slain by a Terrible Storm—St. Louis City Hospital is in Ruins, with Patients Dying—Seven Fine Steamboats Blown Away—One Span of the Eads Bridge Destroyed by Fire—Death and Desolation Everywhere," and it is feared that daylight and later details will more than verify the dismal caption.

Facts gathered at random by reporters who stumbled in the dark at every step over wreckage of destroyed or damaged buildings, roofs, awnings and signs, are presented below, and doubtless constitute but meagre details of the most destructive cyclone that has ever visited this country.

At about 5:10 o'clock p. m. a storm, presaged by half an hour of increasing darkness that had now become as black as night itself, burst upon St. Louis. The sky was yellowish. The wind began to whistle ominously and staunch buildings began to rock, and a few minutes later those who were in buildings that withstood the fury of the storm were terrified by crashing sounds of falling buildings and collapsing roofs and chimneys in the immediate neighborhood, and many a person unused to prayer sent up an involuntary "God spare and deliver us!" The destructive work of the storm king was soon accomplished and breaking light in the east brought relief and hope to beating hearts, and before the rain which fell in torrents had ceased thousands ventured forth to satisfy their curiosity or to hasten to the presence of loved ones of whose safety they would be assured.

At 6:30 a second storm came up, though of less intensity, apparently. The waning day grew almost into night again. The sky, which for a short time had lightened up, became again that ominous yellow which once seen is never forgotten. The streets were full of people, vainly trying to get home. All the trolley cars were stopped and work people, many of them living from five to seven miles distant, had the uninviting prospect of a walk through darkened streets under drenching skies to encounter.

The Olive-street cars were the only ones running, and they were utterly inadequate to transport a tenth of the west-bound crowds surging through the streets. When the storm broke the second time the people hurried from the street into adjacent stores, and many showed symptoms of decided alarm.
But the second storm was soon over, although it must have added to the intensity of the alarm, which by this time had permeated hundreds of thousands of people in St. Louis.

AN AWFUL RUMOR

Cigarette Factory Wrecked and One Hundred Persons Buried in the Ruins.
A report was widely circulated at different parts of the city that the roof of the new cigarette factory of the Liggett & Meyers Co., had been knocked in and that at least 100 men and women had been buried under the wreckage and that it would be impossible to get them out for several hours.
The rumor came from several different places and was reported to the police and several calls were sent to the city dispensary for ambulances to go to the cigarette factory.

The new factory is located at Park avenue and Manchester road. It was stated by one man, who said he had seen the roof fall, that at least 100 persons were buried.

AT THE CITY JAIL.

A Big, Broad Road to Liberty, but the Prisoners were Too Terrified to Accept It.

A twenty-foot section of the western wall of the city jail blew down, exposing the interior.
It was during the exercise hour and nearly 200 prisoners were in the "bull ring." They were too frightened to run although escape would have been easy. Instead they set up a concerted yell of terror, and many voluntarily sought shelter in their cells.

Jailer Wagner was on the scene in a moment, and with the aid of a number of policemen and detectives, soon had the noisy crowd behind the locks. A special detail of police was hastily summoned, and will be on guard all night.

The Four Courts were otherwise badly damaged, and Judge Harvey's court was adjourned in confusion.
A big fire was raging at the poorhouse at 6 p. m.

AT THE UNION STATION.

Two Women Fatally Crushed Under Fallen Walls.

As the storm cut through the railroad yards back of the Union station it turned over any number of freight and passenger cars and carried away the southwest corner of the Union depot grain elevator.
This elevator is one of the largest in the city, and as the wreckage came down it crashed through the roofs of a half dozen deserted shanties. So far as could be learned no one was injured there.

But as the storm came on in its fury it struck the saloon at Twenty-first and Clark avenue, owned by a man known to the policeman on the beat as "Steve Brodie."

The whole east wall of that three-story brick structure was carried away, but as it fell it caught the heavy lines of electric wires and snapped them each in twain.

Then came the crash which buried the two women. Next to the saloon is Mrs. Gunn's grocery store. She and Gertie McKenna were there along, and as they were standing speechless under the fury of the storm the west wall of "Brodie's" saloon came down through the roof of the grocery store. There was no scream from the women; they were being crushed and smothered.

Patrolman Bart Keany was a block away and he started for the place. As he was making his way through the awful torrents of rain every telegraph pole on the street came down with a crash, and the wires came with them.
But Keany got into the wreckage and after a half hour's work had gotten to where the impaled women could be seen. After the worst of the storm had subsided the women were taken out.

The girl was so badly bruised and crushed that a physician said nothing could be done for her.
Mrs. Gunn was cared for in the saloon, and there the same physician said she could not live.

The storm carried away the fronts of the brick dwellings at 2035, 2037, 2039 and 2041 Clark avenue, but none of the occupants were injured. The houses were occupied by Mrs. Fay, Mrs. Barry, Mrs. King and Mrs. Hogan.

Every tree was blown to the ground from Twenty-first street to Jefferson avenue.

Over on Chestnut street there was consternation. A series of poles supporting heavy telegraph wires fell to the street.

As they fell one of the poles shot through the side of car 56 of the Market street line and knocked one man out the back end. His skull was said to be broken, and he was taken to his home on Connecticut avenue. The car was wrecked.

Another man was injured in the same accident, but he left before the ambulance came.

STORM MISCELLANY.

The Eads Bridge Seriously Damaged.
The eastern abutment of the Eads bridge on which the ticket office is located was blown down. The wood and stone work fell upon the railroad tracks below, suspending traffic.

Tons of masonry are to be removed. Hundreds of people trying to get across the river are held up as there is no communication between the cities. Scores of fires started in East St. Louis as the result of falling buildings. All of Bloody Island was swept.

Another Account.
The driveway of the Eads bridge from the lower to the first pier on the East St. Louis side is a crumbled mass of mortar and gravel lying thick on the railroad tracks. Parts of the tower and of pier No. 1 were also torn away.

All along the bridge the iron rods are twisted and much of the railing wrenched from its fastenings.

The bridge station windows were all smashed to smithereens and in some places the wooden blocks were torn up by the wind's fury.

The wreckage represents thousands of dollars and is the most disastrous that ever happened to one of the great bridge structures in the United States.

Luckily a heavily loaded freight was stopped in transit or it would have crashed into the wrecked C. & A. train and crushed the life out of the 50 passengers aboard of it, but who had so far escaped serious injuries.

A trolley car loaded with passengers bound for the west side is missing.

It was nearly to the first east-side pier when it began to crumble and go down with a crash. Whether the car was blown into the river or is under the wreck is not known.

It was so dark and the confusion so great that people didn't take time to inquire.

A horse attached to a buggy was blown off the driveway and fell alongside the demolished C. & A. coaches.

What became of the driver and buggy maybe the murky river can tell. Both are missing and not among the wreckage.

Factories Destroyed.

The tanks of the Waters-Pierce Oil Co. on Gratiot street blew up, illuminating the clouds with a wonderful light and spreading devastation on every hand.

Three stories of the Coe Manufacturing Co.'s building, Ninth and Gratiot, and nearly half of the Wainwright brewery were blown down.

The Summer high school, Eleventh and Spruce; T. E. McDermott's saloon, Eleventh and Chestnut; the Hotel Emmet, on the opposite corner; Jerry Sheehan's livery stable, Eleventh and Walnut, and Dr. Enno Sander's Mineral company, 125-129 South Eleventh street, were unroofed.

The engineer at the Aetna iron works, Twenty-first and Papin streets, was almost instantly killed. The walls blew in and he was scalded to death by steam. His name is unknown.
The Consolidated wire works, Twenty-first and Papin streets, was almost totally wrecked.

One of the boilers blew up and the cylinder did the rest. Seven people are known to have been injured seriously, and a workman who accompanied them to the city dispensary, states that many more were crushed by falling walls. The great plant was almost wholly demolished.

Part of the roof of the Exchange is on Third street.

There is a telegraph pole sticking through a window of the old post office on Third street.

A man was mashed almost to death at the Levee and Locust street. A mass of bricks fell on him as he was fleeing to shelter. An ambulance was summoned and he was sent to the city dispensary in an unconscious condition. His name is not known.

During the second storm the rainfall was so terrific that some of the streets down the levee were impassable from the force of water.

The broken telegraph poles and brick forced into narrow gorges the rainfall, and made it irresistible on Locust street.

The front of the five-story building at the southwest corner of second and Vine streets, containing the printing establishment of Rishin & Smith and the Crossman Printing Co., was blown into Second street. She skylight was also blown away, and the building was flooded. Nearly fifty persons were in the building at the time, but no one was injured.

The east wall of the saloon at 600 Carr street was blown on to B. Colman's bakery. A driver was seriously injured.

At Seventh and Chouteau avenue a cabman was blown from his cab and almost instantly killed. He was carried to Brun's drug store on the corner, but it was too late to help him. His name was not learned.

Costly Flames Caused by Lightning.
The St. Louis Refrigerator and Woodenware Co.'s factory, Second and Park avenue, was completely destroyed by fire caused by lightning about 6 o'clock.

The fire department could get but four lines of hose to work. The flames soon consumed the entire building. The loss is estimated at $300,000.

At 6 p. m. the fire had spread to the lumber yards near by and a tar factory and a general conflagration in that quarter seemed unavoidable. The fire department is well nigh helpless to stay its progress.

ON THE RIVER.

Seven Steamboats and The Crews Thought to be Lost.

Frank Matthews, C. Edwards, Charles Bennett, Fred Rodgers and Ed Chaplin were the only men saved on the steamer Pittsburgh.

The Pittsburgh is a Diamond Jo boat. She was tied at the wharf at the foot of Washington avenue.

"The storm came from the east," said Matthews, "and the boat plunged right into the river and began spinning around like a top."

"A beam hit me and I jumped into the water. Four other men followed me. Then the boat went right to the bottom."

"The fire swam around for three-quarters of an hour and were finally picked up by a man named Johnson, who was out in the river with three skiffs."

"The rest of the men, I think are all drowned, unless it Capt. Bowles."

"I saw the Dolphin coming down the river. As she tipped up I saw a man leap, but a beam struck him across the back and he never came up. The Monroe passed us going like the wind. I could see the frightened passengers and then the boat was lifted clear out of the water."

The towboat Dolphin is a wreck, lying bottom up in midstream at the foot of Olive street.

The City of Vicksburg, the City of Providence and the City of Monroe disappeared in the storm.

They are thought to be lost.

The Providence had her crew on board, but she had up steam, and it is barely possible that she made lee-way and saved herself from being crushed on the east shore.

The Vicksburg's boilers were cold. Engineer Breecher, who had just left her, says there was no one on board but the watch crew of about three men. She is almost certainly lost, with all on board.

The Dolphin had three men on board. She was moored just below the bridge.

No one knows whether the crew got off or not.

Through the darkness the frightened crowd on shore saw the boat lifted up out of the water till her hull was exposed, then topple over.

She was covered momentarily by the waves, when the bottom of her bow was seen.

She seemed aground.

Her crew are supposed to be in her. The Providence and the Vicksburg were moored at Olive street.

The hawser and stern lines of both snapped like burnt tow, and they drifted away—nobody knows where.

The city of Monroe was preparing to leave the Anchor Line wharf. She was blown straight across the river.

It is believed she was beached on the east side without loss of life. She had a good crowd of passengers and her full crew.

Just as the storm cloud lifted a barge was seen tossing on the waves.

On board were a man, two mules and a wagon.

The man was making signals of distress just as the barge was lost to sight. It probably sank.

A. D. Taylor, a soda boy on the Vicksburg, was the last one to leave the boat. He said that the boat plunged for the river, and the crew made a rush for the levee. Some of them escaped, and the rest went whirling down the river, God knows where.

Two men are now hanging to the center pier of the big bridge. They were on the Dolphin No. 2. She was tied to the bridge, but the wind tore her loose and hurled her against the pier. She tipped over, and as she did so the two men caught the pier and hung on, with the black waters swirling around them.

Two men are said to have been killed on the City of Quincy. She lay above the bridge, but no one knows where she is now.

She May Be Found.
The City of Monroe was seen across the river, on the east shore, apparently safe, but badly dismantled. Grave fears are felt for the Grand Republic, which was on her way from Alton here when the storm broke.

She took a big load out this morning.

The Henry Sackman, the Providence and the City of Monroe are also safe on the Illinois side, opposite Chouteau avenue.

On the Levee.

The full force of the storm was felt on the levee.

From Broadway east the devastation seemed to increase.

Roofs of houses, piles of brick and mortar, splintered signboards, and masses of tangled wire obstructed every street leading to the river.

Commercial alley, between Second and Main street, from Olive to Chestnut is impassable. It is full of roofing and walls of buildings. No one house was leveled, but few escaped with whole walls.

The levee sidewalk is covered with debris.

Thousands of men are crowded down to the river front, wild with excitement.

Men are looking for the boats on which their friends and relatives were, and here and there in the crowd are anxious women wringing their hands.

The Mississippi Valley Transportation Co. barge was blown away as was the Eagle Packet Co. wharfbarge and that of the Diamond Joe line. Nothing is known of their whereabouts or condition. The Anchor line wharfbarge is the only wharfbarge safe on this side. The steamer Henry Laurey is also safe.

IN EAST ST. LOUIS.

Death and Destruction—Many Fires Raging.

There is death and desolation in East St. Louis.

The Tudor mills were blown down and two men were killed.

Wicher's hotel was destroyed. There are 15 people in the ruins.

The 5:30 Chicago & Alton accommodation train, with fifty passengers aboard, was crossing the bridge when the storm was at its worst. A watchman signaled Engineer Wm. Swannett to stop; but he heard a crumbling noise overhead, and opening the throttle valve, the train fairly jumped for life.

As he passed under the first pier the timbers came tumbling down and he had just passed the lower piers when the train was blown over.

No one was killed, but a number of ladies were badly cut and bruised.

The Vandalla freight house is on fire.

The houses, factories and workshops along Front street, East St. Louis were cut to the ground and present a sad sight of ruin and wreck.

How many lives were snuffed out under the wrecks it will take time to find out. That there are a number of people killed is known.

The three-story frame hotel of William Wicher, in which there were fifteen or twenty people, went down with a crash. How many or whether any of the guests were saved is not known.

One of the ferryboats approaching the east bank was driven high upon it and is a wreck. It is said that the passengers and crew escaped uninjured.

SWEEP TWO STATES.

Loss of Life and Personal Injury in Missouri and Illinois—A Death List of Over Sixty People and at Least 125 Persons Injured, Many of Their Fatality—These Are Independent of Casualties at St. Louis and East St. Louis.

Greater Than at First Supposed.

AMBLER, Pa., May 30.—The destruction wrought by the cyclone Wednesday is greater than at first supposed. Below Ambler and Jarrattown, where the storm was the most severe, no less than seventy-five barns, houses and other buildings are either partly or completely destroyed. The loss will amount to $100,000.

The loss will fall heavily on the property owners, as many of the buildings were not insured against storms.

IN EAST ST. LOUIS.

A Day Devoted to Burying Victims of the Great Cyclone.

St. Louis, May 30.—East St. Louis was yesterday and will be for several days to come a city of funerals. In St. Peter's, St. Henry's and the City cemeteries, as well as the cemeteries of adjoining cities, graves are being prepared for the victims of Wednesday's disaster. And all yesterday solemn corteges of sad-faced people traversed the streets of the devastated city, following their loved ones to their last resting places.

We Chronicle for all—$1 a year.

LAST week we had in a little article advising the democrats to remember that the "price of success is eternal vigilance." "The world is theirs who take it" that they must put their "whole soul" in the work before them.
But, doing the latter, is not by any means all of it; it is how you do it, also. Illustrated: "A good sister was told miracles could be accomplished by the power of faith. She knew she had dead loads of it and so she resolved to leave the world ahead of the ordinary course of nature. She would go there on the wing-dy. A table and chair having been placed on the lawn in front of her house, her friends assembled to see her ascend by the power of faith. She ascended" to the top of the table, with the aid of the chair, flopped her hands and jumped off but gravitation was too much for her. She didn't go; but, undaunted, she put her whole soul in the operation and tried again and again, always with the descending result. At last, one of her neighbors inquired: "Nancy what do you think of your faith now?"
"Laws-a-me," she replied: "My faith is all right. I've just as much faith as I ever had; but I can't get the flop."
The democrats have the flop. Let them use it.

THE M. E. general conference north stayed down somewhat heavily on the Epworth Leaguers and Christian Endeavors a few days ago. It held that these organizations must not be encouraged too freely because they are becoming so powerful the church cannot handle them as it wants to.
Those crafty denominationalists should be impressed with the fact that they have not a monopoly of saving souls and that all moral organizations are valuable and should be encouraged.

COUNTY DEMOCRATIC EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

The county democratic executive committee met here last Friday, a large majority of the members being present.

Vacancies were filled as follows:
Beat 4 E. T. Peter
Beat 5, James Johnson and C. Berton
Beat 6 Robert Marshall
Beat 11 O. S. Lybrand
Beat 15, J. P. Kinnett, R. E. Cosper
Beat 18 P. L. Holcomb

The committee ordered a primary election to be held on Saturday, June 20th, said election to be held by the committees in each beat, and the same to be governed throughout by the Savre election law.

The county convention was fixed for Wednesday, June 24th, at Calera.
It was also ordered by the committee that the names of all the candidates to be voted for in primary election be handed in to the secretary, J.
R. White, by June 10th, in order that the tickets may be printed and sent to the different beats in ample time for said primary.

COLUMBIANA CITY COUNCIL.

Important to Holders of Farm Land Within the City Limits.

City Council met in the council chamber Monday morning at 9:30,
Mayor Brown in the chair, and Aldermen Albright, Nelson, Page,
Mason and White present.

Minutes of last meeting read and approved.

Council met for the purpose of acting on the proposition to repeal the exemption of farm lands within their jurisdiction, from taxation. After discussion, proposition was voted on in the manner required by law, and carried unanimously.

Several owners of the land within the area under consideration, had an informal interview with the councilmen and stated that they were favorable to the council's action.

Reports of city officers were received and placed on file.
Adjourned to July 6th, when the matter of electing teachers for the city school will be acted on.

he did Miss Mattie Smith. This all happened in one day. May all their troubles only be "little ones."

"JAKE."

WILSONVILLE.

C. Butler went to Childersburg last week on business.

H. L. Sanders made a pleasure trip to Calera last Saturday.

Will Evans spent last Thursday and
Thursday night in our city.
Ben Lilly of Louisville, Ky., was this place, was in town last week.

Misses Ethel Kidd and Vincent, of Vincent, were the guests of Miss Purnie Pope last week and returned home
Monday.

Justin C. Jackson has been toying with the muses. Let us "flea from the wrath to come."

Quite a number of our Harpersville and Vincent friends were present last Thursday night to witness the closing exercises of the Wilsonville school.

The long contemplated picnic came off last Saturday at Shelby Springs.
The entire attendants were young men and ladies of this place and Colum-biana. From what I can learn they had a pleasant time, and something worth remembering.

Messrs. Protector of Widows Terry and Widows Benefactor Lee, life insurance agents, were in the city last week. I am informed that Mr. Lee is a single man and has been trying to play "lachel" (kortin').

The electrical current passed swiftly over us, the clouds came, the wind blew and the rain descended but, nevertheless, there was a large gathing Thursday night at the Wilsonville institute to witness the closing exercises, which were enjoyed heartly. The comic dialogues "brought down the house." "Our clown" appeared for the first time in gorgeous uniform, and played his part naturally.

Another trick riding bicyclist made known to the public. He was running very rapidly, and very unexpectedly collided with a little boy who was running very fast himself. As they collided the rider went

As a demon is hurled by an angel's spear,
Heels over head to his proper sphere;
Heels over head and head over heels.
Dizzy from his wheel he fell.
"Well, old boy, how do you like flying?"
Asked a young man with much delight.
"Well, I like flying when well done,
But there's not such a thund'ring sight
Of glorious, pleasurable fun
When you come to alight."

Alas! alas! how sad was the parting hour last Monday afternoon, when Miss Maude Williamson boarded the train for her lovely home at Coatsopa,
Ala., accompanied by her brother,
Miss Maude has won many friends in our city, and is a cheerful young lady.
She has left many warm hearts, grieved hearts, wounded hearts, loving hearts aching hearts and perhaps a "sweetheart" to mourn and weep for her presence. She does not know at present whether she will attend school here or not. Mr. Williamson will return in a few days.

Last Thursday was passed seemingly as an hour at the Wilsonville Institute. The grand oratorical lecture given by Mr. Fuller Myatt, of Howard College, was something grand. At noon the tables were spread with—oh shoo!—the finest that could be obtained in the community. In the afternoon came the "tug of war" with the students, but it seemed that every student was naturally adapted to the study in which they were examined.

This goes to prove that we have two energetic teachers, and that their motto is "teach thoroughly what they pretend to teach." I trust that this community will be honored with them for years to come, both as friends and teachers.

The musical entertainment, held at J. F. Pope's last Friday night, was an affair that is indelibly stamped on the minds of those who were so fortunate as to be present. The instrumental music given by the music class was simply grand; and so was the vocal music rendered by Misses George Pope, Sallie Bollen, and volun-taries by two young ladies of Vincent, whose names we cannot recall. Recitations followed by Misses George Pope, Laura Weldon and Juddie Kilpatrick, that were as interesting as the young ladies themselves. A fine time was had after the entertainment with visitors from Harpersville, Vincent, Childersburg and Columbiana.
It affords us great pleasure to have the young people of the neighboring towns visit us. Let me congratulate Miss Rosa Wallace on her success in teaching music.

Lipsey, Auther and Miss Scottie Logan, E. M. Cosper and Miss Jennie Bates, A. A. Logan and wife attended the Sunday school convention at Laniers last Sunday.

Miss Annie Spear, of Stewartville, and Mrs. Bettie Nivens, of Sylacauga, are visiting their sister, Mrs. W. S.
Lowe, this week.

Mrs. J. H. Coleman has been on the Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama, Shelby County. Fronie
McClellan, Pro and Complainant, vs. S. R.
McClellan, Defendant.

In Chancery, Sixth District, Northeastern
Chancery Division.

In this cause, it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of W. T. Johnson attorney of record for the said complainant, that the defendant S. R. McClellan, is a non-resident of Alabama and resided, when last heard from, in Indian Territory, and further that, in the belief of said affiant, the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered, by the Register, that publication be made in the Chronicle, a newspaper published in the County of Shelby once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him the said S. R. McClellan to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 3rd day of July, A. D. 1896 or, in thirty

Summer Homes.
In the Lake regions of Wisconsin, Northern Michigan, Minnesota, Iowa and Dakota, there are hundreds of charming localities pre-eminently fitted for summer homes. Nearly all are located on or near lakes which have not been fished out. These resorts are easily reached by railway and range in variety from the "full dress for dinner" to the flannel-shirt costume fed every meal. Among the list are names familiar to many of our readers as the perfection of Northern summer resorts. Nearly all of the Wisconsin points of interest are within a short distance from Chicago or Milwaukee, and none of them are so far away from the "busy marts of civilization" that they cannot be reached in a few hours of travel, by frequent trains, over the finest roads in the northwest—the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway. A description of the principal resorts, with list of summer hotels and boarding houses, and rates for board, will be sent free on application to Geo. H. Hafford, General Passenger Agent, Chicago.

RUFUS SANDERS.

The Sage of Rocky Creek Reports a "Family Rucus."

An Old Speckled Hen, a Spotted Hound Dog and Two Plain, Old Female Women—Story of a Loaded Musket.

One old speckled hen settin under a brush heap down by the cow pen gate

—one spotted hound dog with a comin appetite for eggs

—two plain old female women who talk a whole passle because they have got some-thing to talk 'bout

—two contented old men, a s-o-c-r-o-w-s and a n-c-o-n-t-r-y till if they was to fall in the creek and get drowned they would float up stream for pure cussedness—a general mixtry of pizen human nature and variegated meanness—and there you are, as the man says in the play.

A Bad "Family Rucus."

About the most marvelous thing in this round created world to me is to take notice of what a tremendous big mess some people can stir up out of mealy little troubles and tribulations.

For the good name and honor and glory of Rocky Creek I do rally have to tell it. But the truth is mighty and bound to leak out, and here lately we have had the daddiest and most gonesty family rucus and confusion-makin goin on in the settlement that ever went down into ancient history.

If somebody's dog had but only sucked the egg that brung forth the chicken, which is now old Misses Clancy's speckled hen—or if the railroad train had but only run over the spotted hound dog which broke up the speckled hen's nest down by the cow pen gate—the Clancys and the Wigginses might be good friends to-day, and the whole entire settlement would be better off.

But in them days it came to pass that old Misses Clancy had set her speckled hen on 16 eggs down by the cow pen gate. That very night old man Billy Wiggins' dog spotted hound dog—which he could "run forever and then turn to buckskin," to hear Billy Wiggins tell it—was perusin around in the still and solemn hours, and then when the risin sun painted a bobtail flush across the eastern sky, as it were, the old speckled hen she was settin down there by the cow pen gate on a hatful of shells but narry egg.

Consequently old Misses Clancy went down to the cow pen that mornin singin some lively little snatches from "Amazin Grace" and "Abide with Me." Put on her return back to the house she come weepin and wailin and smassin in her teeth. She was mad, white people—ravin, bilin, foam-in, furious mad—mad with everybody in general and anybody in particular that would own a sukeegg dog. Yet still she didn't go down there and tie any strings to the speckled hen to break her from her nest. Instid of that, when the sun went down and the gold of evenin met the dusk of night once more, you understand, that speckled hen was holdin forth at the same old stand—down there by the cow pen gate—settin on one egg, "and hit chock full of Rough on Rats."

"It don't make a blessed bit of difference with me who owns the dog, I will put the mortal fixments on him to-night," says old Misses Clancy that evenin in tellin mother about the general circumference of the calamity. "Sixteen fresh eggs ain't noverthes a hungry dog, but when he makes it seventeen I'll lay he will have a plenty and some to spare."

Bright and early the next mornin old Misses Clancy she lit out and went down to the cow pen gate to see if it had come to pass. It had. The speckled hen was settin on narry egg. The dog was dead.

"I loved he would have a plenty and some to spare when he counted seventeen," says the old lady in talkin around amongst the neighbors. "He didn't tote the last egg more than 20 feet before he was took down with a mighty hurtin. I'll be blest if he didn't throw up everything but his tail, and made it fit tremendous loose."

Well, that spotted hound dog belonged to the Wigginses, whilst the speckled hen belonged to the Clancys. And between the two they brung on that bad family rucus.

Their Double-Breasted Compliments.

The next time them two plain old female women met up together it was at a singin match over at Bark Log church. Naturally, of course, they brung up the question of speckled hens and spotted dogs, the faster they talked, and the hotter they got.

In the general run of that furious confabulation Misses Wiggins called Misses Clancy everything she could lay her tongue to except a gentleman and a scholar, and the old lady Clancy she returned the fire with her double-breasted compliments.

About the next news we heard was to the extent that two yearlin boys had got up the question of speckled hens and spotted dogs at school one day. It would seem like Gus Wiggins had finally at last jumped on Fats Clancy and give him one of the most severest chastisements that a white boy ever toted out of these woods.

Whereas, when Gus Wiggins come by the Clancy place that evenin on his return back from school the speckled hen had quit her nest, but old Misses Clancy she was settin down there by the cow pen gate—settin, bless your life, and settin for Gus.

I am sorry I didn't come along there in time to see the twification between the old lady Clancy and Gus Wiggins. But life as we live it in this vain and fleetin world is full of sorrows and disappointments. At any rates, from all I can pick up amongst the neighbors, when Gus got home that night he was o-bad scratched and tore up till he looked like he mought have rode a thrashin machine through a hurricane.

Up to this time old man Billy Wiggins and old man Uriah Clancy had walked the chalk line of law and order, and kept the peace and dignity of the state like friends and fellow citizens. But the family rucus had went on from it. The day and hour had come and now of it. They couldn't stay out of the game no longer.

Over there on Little Wolf creek old man Clancy runs a water mill. And down the creek a mile below the mill old man Clancy runs a farm. The next mornin after Gus Wiggins went home wearin on his youthful countenance such a scandalous disfigurement, old man Billy he put out and went over in the woods' paster, where him and old man Uriah had joined fences 15 years ago, and out loose henceforth and forever. In less than three hours, and before old man Uriah could hear the news, 27 head of cattle, four mules and a big bunch of goats had invaded into the Clancy farm and licked up three or four acres of young corn.

Did old man Uriah shed any tears to speak of, or lose a lick of sleep, or miss a meal of victuals? No. He blowed the horn for his hands and built a new fence. That night he lowered it was him about the right time of year for him to cut his mill dam and let off the water. By the first crack of day he was down there with his hands at the mill. They cut the dam, and when old man Billy Wiggins went down to his creek farm, where he had 20 acres of swamp corn—"and hit a bunchin for the tassle"—there was water, water everywhere, and not a blame thing but water.

Now you mought maybe think that by this time them two cantankerous old men have met up together somewhere along the big road and had a bloody fight. But they haven't—not as anybody knows of. And my own private opinions are that they never will. From general appearances I think one of them is right tolerable bad skinned and the other blame glad of it. They put me in mind of Jule Nabors when he went out through the settlement lookin for work, and prayin to the good Lord not to let him find any.

Old man Billy has now took out and quit the Methodist church on the grounds that he can't fellowship with the Clancys, and old man Uriah has left the people's party because he don't see how the Clancys and the Wigginses can vote the same ticket.

There ain't no tellin for certain where the family rucus will stop. But in the main time we are not lookin for any second-class funerals, and the country is safe.

The Thing Was Loaded.

Old man Josiah Jernigan has got one of these long, tall army muskets, which he could "run forever and then turn to buckskin," to hear Billy Wiggins tell it—the first settlement of the country. It is one of them guns what you read about. You ought to hear Josiah tell about it. He can spin some of the half-raslin yarns perhaps as to how his great-grandfather use to shoot bear and panthers and kill wild Indians with that same old army musket.

One night last week it would seem like Wade Turner had went over there to the Jernigan place to spend the night with the boys. And after supper old man Josiah took down the old musket and unwound himself in regards to the war history and the fight in records of the Jernigans. In his own wild peccurious way he told some tremendous bloody yarns, and consequently the boys they saw things in their sleep that night.

Next mornin Wade Turner and Sol Jernigan—both of them nothin but yearlin boys—they went in kersnooks together and fixed up for a wild turkey hunt. Wade loved he would take the old army musket and go out after the fresh meat. Sol was to meet him at the big spring down in the woods and play turkey. When Wade found the game and leveled his gun and pulled the trigger and the cap popped—so far as they knewed that old musket hadn't been fired off since the last war—Sol he was to jump up and keel over and flop like a wild turkey gobbler with a headful of buckshot in his head. Everything was fixed up and laid off to a nat's bristle, and the boys went forth.

Sol hid out in a clump of gallberry bushes, and when Wade slipped up in sight with the old army musket he stretched his neck and gobbled loud and clear and sassy. Then Wade he brought down the old musket, took aim, pulled the trigger—and well, the blamed thing was loaded. It was so hard on trigger till Wade pulled it up and missed his mark. But it give out a regular Fourth of July report and kicked Wade ten feet down the hill. In the tremendous roar and confusion Sol forgot to jump up and keel over and flop like a regular shot turkey. He lit out and run off down the branch and clum a tree, and there he stayed till old man Josiah and all the family come and told him that nobody was hurt and the war was over.

But the old army musket, which hangs on the wall, ain't gone nowhere.

RUFUS SANDERS.

THERE WERE FISH.

But It Took an Extra Quarter to Find Where They Were.

"The most taciturn people in the world live in western North Carolina and east Tennessee," said a department clerk to a Star reporter.

"I went fishing near Elk Park, and in some of the streams down there is the finest trout fishing in the world. There were four of us in the party, and we went up one of the mountain creeks for about three miles. A native passed us, and I asked:

"Are there any trout in this creek?"

"Yep."

"We threw our lines and fished every hole in the creek for two miles without getting a bite; then walked back toward town with empty baskets. Meeting the native again, I said:

"I thought you stated there were trout in that creek?"

"That is."

"Well, we didn't get a bite."

"I loved you all wouldn't when I seed you try."

"Why not, if there are fish there?"

"You didn't ax me ef there war trout whar you was fishin'."

"What did I ask you? I inquired, getting angry."

"Ef there war trout in the creek, an' thar is, heap of 'em."

"Where are they?"

"Still in the creek."

"What part of the creek?"

"In the middle, 'cept them as at the sides. 'Thar ain't none on the banks."

"I gave him a quarter, and he said:

"They don't never come up this far. 'Bout two mile down the creek thar's plenty."

"We went down the creek, and the native was right. I never saw better fishing."—Washington Star.

A TIME FOR REFLECTION.

The McKinley Boomers Have Reached a Critical Point.

Among the most sagacious of Mr. Platt's remarks about McKinley and his canvass, is his suggestion that after the noise of the preliminary booming is over there will be an interval before the St. Louis convention long enough for the delegates to cool off and do some calm and serious thinking.

The republican conventions just held will complete substantially the roll of delegates; and unquestionably McKinley's nomination will be proclaimed by his boomers as a foregone conclusion.

On the face of the returns of delegates there is every reason to believe that it will look that way. At any rate, his nomination on the first ballot will be made to appear inevitable, in the hope of silencing all opposition to him as futile and a political blunder in those who venture to make it. The plan from the first has been to rush him through; and so far as concerns the state conventions it seems to have worked pretty successfully. If the St. Louis convention were to be held this week or next week it might go through to the end not less satisfactorily. But will the booming continue to boom during all the weeks still remaining before the actual assembling of the body that is to make the nomination?

That is another matter, as Mr. Platt suggests. The delegates and the republican party will have time to do some thinking about the wisdom of going into the canvass with a candidate as to whom the sober sense of the whole union has the gravest doubts. The hysteria of the booming will give place to sane reflection.

The same may be said of the Chicago convention. It is still far enough off to enable the democratic party to get into a reasonable frame of mind before it is called to order. The silver crowd have often before startled the party with their boasting of the tremendous demonstrations they were about to make in conventions and elections; but when the time comes for the fulfillment what has been the result? Instead of making progress and winning victory, the silver faction has gone steadily backward and downward and has encountered only defeat. Every day's delay before the Chicago convention will increase the probability that the silver democrats will then be overcome finally. They are fighting for a humbug which will not stand calm discussion.

It is the same with the McKinleyites in the republican party. They are trying to put up a humbug to be run in a campaign of duplicity and false pretense.—N. Y. Sun.

A MATTER OF GAIN.

The McKinley Enthusiasm Springs from Selfish Instincts.

The enthusiasm for McKinley is a matter of neither brains nor heart. It is not based upon admiration of the man's ability or upon affection for him as a personal friend. It is purely a matter of the pocket. It is based upon the belief among the masses that McKinley's election in 1896—or, for that matter, Cannon's, if Cannon had been appointed chairman of the ways and means committee in 1899—will give them constant work with easy hours at high wages. In short, it rests upon the theory that the tariff is the most important thing in the country, and that the government can mark wages up or down. It is due to the spreading among the ignorant of the idea that prosperity is to be determined by votes.

The success of a campaign based upon an unreasonable enthusiasm of this sort must be followed by a disillusionizing and a disappointment which will provoke a tremendous revolution in public sentiment. Thoughtful republicans view with the greatest apprehension the prospect of McKinley's election. It is not simply that nobody knows where he stands on the financial question now, or how week-kneed a person would stand if he should become president. It is still more because, even if he were sound on this issue, he could not possibly satisfy the extravagant expectations that are entertained of the effect of his election. The enthusiasm for McKinley is due to the belief by the masses that he will usher in the millennium at noon on the 4th of March, 1897, and their indignation when they shall find how they have been deceived is something that is dreaded by many a republican who does not dare to resist the tide.—N. Y. Post.

REED'S LATEST.

The Maine Man Again Shows His Contempt for McKinley.

Speaker Reed's disappointment in his canvass for the republican nomination has given a keen edge to his natural sharpness of tongue. He made McKinley chairman of the ways and means committee of the house which framed the so-called McKinley bill, and made the Ohio man a presidential possibility. Now McKinley has unmade him as a candidate.

Reed feels that the fates have been unkind, and that McKinley has been unjustly favored.

Reed spoke a day or two ago about McKinley being a straddlebug, referring to the latter's attitude touching the money issue. Later Reed told a reminiscence with as much pertinence. McKinley had been advertised as the "advance agent of prosperity." What Reed thinks of this is made plain in this story:

"Advance agent of prosperity," said he. "Humph! when I was a boy the advance agent of the circus would go through the country and cover the sides of barns and the fences with the most gorgeous posters of what the circus would be. There would be a long procession of knights in gold and silver armor, and ladies bedecked in silks and diamonds, mounted on beautiful Arabian steeds. There would be huge elephants, tigers, lions, camels, hippopotamuses and such, enough to stock a wilderness."

"When the circus came it was the usual little old one-ring affair, with one measly, top-eared, slab-sided elephant, a mangy lion and a one-humped camel. 'It never came up to the show bills, but there was always at least one first-class acrobat who could ride two horses at once.'—N. Y. World.

The gentlemen who are arranging McKinley's cabinet for him should read and digest the old warning against counting chickens before they are hatched.—Detroit Free Press.

Mark Hanna can do Maj. McKinley a great deal of good by keeping slightly more in the background.—Iowa State Register (Rep.).

OPPORTUNITY FOR DEMOCRATS.

McKinley's Triumph Will Help the Tariff Reformers.

CAMPBELL'S IDEA.

He Strolls in Wall Street and Comes Out and Talks.

FREE SILVER, WITH RESTRICTIONS.

Invite the World to Participate, and If the Offer Is Declined, Then Fix a Date, and When the Time Comes, Go It Alone.

New York, June 6.—Ex-Gov. James E. Campbell, of Ohio, spent several hours Friday in Wall street with Col. Gurley, of his state. When he returned to the metropolis in the afternoon he expressed himself in favor of free silver, but with a restriction, to which he said even Wall street would not seriously object.

"The leaders of the silver movement in the democratic party are conservative and will work earnestly to prevent any such catastrophe. The idea I would like to see adopted is this: 'Declare for free silver.'

"Demand that the government at Washington, through the president and congress, issue a call to the commercial nations of both hemispheres to meet in conference with us at Washington for the one purpose specified in the call, of devising a method of putting silver on a par with gold as money of the world.

"The purpose occurring, we would agree with such nations as we could. To such as agreed with us we could offer special tariff favors on the reciprocity principle. To such as did not we could turn a tariff cold shoulder. We are every nation's best customer—all would at least be best to agree.

"Should none agree with us, I would have this nation declare for free silver in its sole responsibility and fix a date, as for instance, January 1, 1899, when silver and gold would meet at our mints for coinage on equal terms. This would leave an open time of two years in which trade would adjust itself to the new conditions.

"All conferences so far have merely been child's play. This one would be different. France and Germany now are on the verge of adopting silver. They need only a slight incentive to push them over the line. With France, Germany and America in the field, England would be actually compelled to come in. We could make things so warm for her tariff and reciprocity treaties that she would accede to the terms adopted. When this country is in earnest England yields every time. That has been repeatedly shown, particularly of late."

GRANT'S STATUE ATTACHED.

Sculptor Partridge, of New York, Tired Waiting for His Money.

New York, June 6.—William Ordway Partridge, the sculptor, has attached the equestrian statue of Gen. Grant, recently erected in front of the Union League club, Brooklyn, to satisfy a claim of $6,085 against the city and the club, for material and labor. Mr. Partridge designed the statue under a contract jointly with the city of Brooklyn and the Union League club. The club paid Partridge $20,000 on account and promised to raise the remainder by subscription. The sculptor got tired of waiting for his money, and filed a mechanic's lien on the statue and its pedestal.

TO BE MADE A NUNCIO.

The Washington Catholic Mission to Be Advanced in Rank.

Boston, June 6.—In connection with the specifications as to the departure of Cardinal Satolli from the United States, chiefly on the ground that it is not in keeping with the cardinal dignity to fill a mission to a country where there is no higher representatives of the papal see than an apostolic delegate, the news comes from Catholic circles that this obstacle will no longer exist, as the Washington mission is to be raised by the pope to the rank appropriate to a nuncio, or at least an internuncio.

Down to Death.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 6.—While Cyrus Moser and Alex Kidd were at work on top of a 30-foot scaffold at Lipps & Sutton's silk mill this morning, the scaffold collapsed and the men were precipitated to the cellar below. Moser was instantly killed, his neck being broken. Almost every bone in Kidd's body was broken. He was removed to the hospital in a dying condition. Moser was 60 years of age.

NUMBER 49.

OTHERWISE UNNOTICED.

James McKinley, of Kansas City, Mo., is said to have cornered potatoes. A big silver meeting was held at Indianapolis, at which Gov. Matthews and free coinage were indorsed.

The Missouri Press association left St. Louis Friday evening on the steamer Grand Republic for Memphis.

A unique swindler victimized St. Joe (Mo.) residents by representing himself to be a state stove inspector. The Illinois republican committee is trying to secure the republican national headquarters for Chicago.

The North German Lloyd Steamship Co. will begin direct service between Bremen and Galveston September 20. The house of representatives seated Martion, a South Carolina populist, who contested Congressman Lookhart's seat.

Joe Goddard and Steve O'Donnell have been matched to fight in Johannesburg, South Africa, in October, for $5,000.

The police of St. Louis picked up three runaway boys from Texarkana, who wanted to see the results of the tornado.

Masked men held up a station agent and two others at Monroe City, Mo., and locked them in a freight car, after robbing them.

Gov. Stone of Missouri will attend the Arkansas Democratic convention at Little Rock in the interest of Bland's presidential boom.

The body of Morrison Fisher, a tornado victim, was taken from the river at St. Louis and shipped to his late home at Hardin, Ill.

All of the McKinley representatives who are already in St. Louis seem to be convinced that Reed will be the vice presidential nominee.

The Emergency club of Des Moines, Ia., has been formed, its object being the care of sufferers from tornadoes and similar public calamities.

Congressman Downing, of Illinois, was unseated on the report of Elections Committee No. 1, and his place given to the contestant, John I. Rinalker.

Gen. Grosvenor, McKinley's Washington manager, is quoted as saying that a compromise plank will be adopted at St. Louis on the financial question.

A storm at Atlantic, Ia., Friday, did about $10,000 damage by hail to the window-glass and crops. One woman and two children had narrow escapes from drowning.

Central Kansas, within a radius of 50 miles of Salina, was deluged by a fall of water during Thursday night and Friday morning varying from five to eight inches. Immense damage was done.

The section of the new liquor tax law in New York which forbids the free lunch counter was declared to be constitutional in an opinion handed down by the appellate division of the supreme court.

The corner-stone of the Illinois asylum for the incurable insane was laid at Bartonville, two miles south of Peoria, by Gov. Altgeld. A grand parade a mile in length, headed by the governor and his staff, preceded the ceremonies.

James Graham, editor of the Journal at St. Mary's, Kas., criticised the practice of licensing the whisky saloons in that town, and unknown men entered his office, broke his press with a sledgehammer and threw his type into the Kansas river.

Miss Sa Lees Kennard, eldest daughter of Samuel M. Kennard, president of the St. Louis Business Men's league, has been formally chosen to represent the state of Missouri as sponsor at the reunion of ex-confederates at Richmond, Va., June 30.

George E. Smith, better known as "Pittsburgh Phil," backed Sir Walter to win the Brooklyn handicap at odds ranging from 7 to 1 down to the post quotation. He cleaned up, all together, somewhat more than $35,000 as the result of Sir Walter's victory.

SUSPECTED SUICIDE.

Herman Erler's Body Found in the River at St. Joe, Mo.

St. JOSEPH, Mo., June 6.—The body of Herman Erler, of this city, was found by a boatman floating in the Missouri river Friday morning in the southern part of the city. Erler had been missing since Monday morning, and it is believed that he committed suicide by drowning. He was 42 years of age, and had lived in St. Joseph the greater part of his life. For 15 years he held a responsible position in the Buell woolen mills of this city. He leaves a widow and three children.

Bad Fire in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, June 6.—Three buildings at Park avenue and Schenck street owned by Howard & McDermott leather manufacturers, were destroyed by fire. The total loss is $150,000, covered by insurance. Five hundred persons are thrown out of employment.

Evidently Not a Silver Man.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Representative S. S. Turner of the Seventh district of Virginia, in an open letter, declines renomination. He prefers retirement to renomination on a silver platform.

Age and the Naval Academy.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 6.—It is believed that the board of visitors of the naval academy will recommend the age of admission be changed from 15 to 18 years, instead of from 15 to 20, as now.

SOUTHERN GLEANINGS.

For Southern Rivers.

The river and harbor bill, which was recently passed over the president's veto, provides as follows for the southern Mississippi tributaries:

Boeuf river, Louisiana, continuing improvement, $60,000; Bayou Bartholomew, Louisiana and Arkansas, continuing improvement, $1,000; Bayou Bourdeaux, relieving raft, $2,500; Sun River, Mississippi, improvement, 5,000; Noyaboe river, Mississippi, for maintenance, $3,000; Sagoula river, Mississippi, continuing improvement, $4,000; Pearl river, between Ealingburg and Carroll, Miss., $200,000; Carthage and Jackson, $2,400; below Jackson, $10,000, which shall be expended in work, beginning at the head of Holmes' bayou, up to Monticello, Tallahatchee river, Mississippi, $1,000; Yazoo river, Mississippi, $20,000, of which whatever is necessary shall be expended in removing the bar at Yazoo City; Chickasaw river, Mississippi, from mouth to railroad bridge near Buxatuna, $2,000; Leaf river, Mississippi, from mouth to Bowie creek, $2,500; Yazoo river and harbor of Vicksburg, Miss., in addition to balance unexpended contracts may be made to be paid as appropriations may hereafter be made, not to exceed in aggregate $800,000.

Following is the appropriation for the Red river, Louisiana, Arkansas, from Dulles, Ark., to the Atchafalaya river, $100,000; Buffalo bayou, Texas, $20,000; Trinity river, Texas, $5,000; Cypress bayou, Texas, $5,000; Sabine river, Texas, $5,000; improving Brazos river, Texas, from Richmond southward by moving snags and trees, $5,000.

It appropriates for the gulf ports as follows:

Mouth and passet of Calcasieu river, Louisiana, $80,000; ship channel, Galveston bay, Texas, continuing improvement, $50,000; dredging bar at Galveston, $50,000; channel, West Galveston bay, continuing improvement, $50,000; Passet Pass, Tex., continuing improvement, $75,000; and contracts may be made for material and work to complete the present project, to be paid for as appropriations may hereafter be made, not to exceed in the aggregate $1,200,000, in addition to the $75,000 indicated.

Government's Tea Garden.

Another tea garden has been established near Somerville, S. C. The United States consuls stationed at tea ports have been ordered to obtain samples of seed, and valuable information has been given by the so-called "tea tasters," the men who make their living by tasting tea so as to discover its quality. The government now owns gardens of Japanese, Chinese, Formosa and Assam tea. It is not certain yet whether tea can be raised in the United States. As to compete with tea raised in Asia. In such a race the cost of labor must be considered, and this is labor much less in Asia than in the United States. Some ten years ago a similar experiment was started. It was unsuccessful.

Killed His Son-in-Law.

Bad feeling of about a year's standing caused a domestic tragedy in South Charleston, Tenn. David Halliburton shot his son-in-law, T. B. Hite, for a spatter, who came from Nashville, killing him instantly. The cause which led up to this tragedy was the elopement last summer of Hite and Halliburton's 16-year-old daughter, Annie, Hite being more than twice her age. The girl had attended church with her mother, but stole away with Hite during services, and the couple were married in a carriage at ten o'clock in the evening. Halliburton attempted to kill Hite on the night of the elopement, shooting him in the back of the head.

Alabama Colored Teachers.

The Alabama State Association of Colored Teachers met at Anniston in annual convention. The address of welcome was made by Mayor Francis M. Hight. The response on behalf of the teachers was made by Prof. Booker Washington, of Tuskegee, who has been president of the association for six years, and who is at the head of the big negro school at Tuskegee.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

The boiler in the mill of the Jordan Lumber Co. at Mobile, Ala., exploded, injuring half a dozen colored laborers and two colored women. One of the women was sitting within ten feet of the boiler when it exploded, with her ten-year-old infant in her arms. The mother was fatally injured and the child escaped.

St. Louis and Vicksburg.

The portion of St. Louis visited by the eye of the great tornado appeared that the city of Vicksburg did after the terrific bombardment by the Yankees. The area covered in St. Louis was greater than at Vicksburg, and the property interest at stake was many millions more.

Preferred Death to Marriage.

Eli Reed, an industrious negro, 11 miles from Selma, Ala., preferred death to marriage. Several weeks ago he became engaged, but the day before the time set for the marriage he went to a creek and committed suicide by drowning.

For Loss of a Wife's Affections.

Suit has been entered in the circuit court at Knoxville, Tenn., by John A. Groves vs. B. A. Connolly, a wealthy tanner of Jellico, for $25,000 damages. The alienation of his wife's affections is given as the cause by the plaintiff.

Died in Louisiana.

Mrs. Elizabeth Rush, aged 78, of Philadelphia, Miss., died at Alexandria, La., recently, where two of her daughters reside. The deceased had been a respected citizen of Mississippi since 1842.

Died at His Sweetheart's Feet.

Arthur Herrin, aged 21, at Mount Vernon, Ky., shot himself and fell dead at the feet of Mrs. Adelle Clifford, a young widow, who would not marry him.

Proposed Cotton Mill.

Warren county, Miss., is to have a cotton factory, to be built by Connecticut mill men, three miles east of Bovina, on the Queen & Crescent route.

Fatal Disease Among the Cattle.

A very fatal disease, known as murra, is raging among the cattle near Selma, Ala., and many are dying. Dairymen are great sufferers.

YANKEES OF THE EAST.

Hon. Robert Porter Talks About Japan and Her Trade.

GREAT INCREASE IN MANUFACTURING.

They Use Modern Machinery and Cheap, Docile Labor—Children Work All Day for One or Two Cents—A Momentous Problem.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Hon. Robert P. Porter, ex-superintendent of census, has returned from Japan on the steamer Fern.

Mr. Porter's trip to the empire of the mikado was for the purpose of investigating the industrial conditions of that country with regard to the effect of Japanese competition upon American property, being a continuation of the trips he has made to various countries of the world in the study of labor problems and tariff systems.

A MOMENTOUS PROBLEM.

After investigating actual conditions in Japan, he deems the question of Japanese competition one of the momentous problems that the American nation will have to solve, but he thinks its danger lies not so much in the present competition in the undeveloped state of Japanese resources as in the enormous rapidity of the growth of the Japanese output in all lines of manufacture which they enter.

"The whole Japanese trade," said Mr. Porter in an interview, "including bullion and everything, ten years ago amounted to $78,000,000. Last year it had increased to $300,000,000. The exports of textiles alone have increased from $511,000 to $23,000,000 in ten years."

WHERE THEY SEND THEIR GOODS.

"Where do they send these goods?" "They supply the home demand. Formerly they bought yarn in India. Now they do not. Some of the finer wools they still have to buy in England. They supply the home demand for cotton cloth, and they also send some to England. Of course that business can increase largely without interfering with us.

"Last year they bought $2,500,000 worth of American cotton. As they improve in manufacture they produce finer yarns; and as they make better cloth, they must use our cotton. In order to get any portion of the trade that England now has with China, they must use more American cotton."

"In view of this there was a Japanese syndicate formed while I was there, with a capital stock of $5,000,000, to run a new line of steamships from this country, from Philadelphia, New York and Portland, Ore. They hope to ship cotton from Philadelphia, but they may start a line from San Diego. They must have our cotton."

TREMENDOUS INCREASE IN TRADE.

"It is not a mere question of tariff, but a question of the future. Here is a trade increased from $78,000,000 to $300,000,000. Textiles $500,000 to $6,000,000. Ten years ago they made $60,000 worth of matches and sent very little out of Japan; last year $4,700,000, nearly $5,000,000, and all went into India. We did not receive more than $20,000 worth."

"The same with matting and rugs. Ten years ago the amount was infinitesimally small—only $885—of matting exported. Rugs were not mentioned in their reports. Last year these two items amounted to $7,000,000."

"They do this with a combination of modern machinery and the most docile labor in the world. They have no factory laws, and can employ children at any age. Children work at seven, eight and nine years of age the whole day long, for from one to two American cents per day."

"The relative position of English and American trade to Japanese are illustrated by the fact that England sold to Japan last year $26,000,000 of products, and purchased $7,000,000 worth, while America bought from Japan $34,000,000 worth and sold her only $9,000,000 worth, 65 per cent, being our sample products."

"If we are to keep up this large volume of business with them they should buy from us, and we should make them see it to be to their interest to do it. This would be on the line of reciprocity."

Porter spoke very highly of the Marquis Ito.

Japan Granting Steamship Subsidies.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—S. Asam, of Tokio, who is at the head of a new Japanese syndicate with $5,000,000 capital to start a new line of steamers between the principal ports of Japan and Portland, has arrived here. Under a law lately passed by the government a subsidy is to be paid by the government for all vessels of over 6,000 tons burden. The idea of the company, which has already been organized, is to have all its vessels of over 9,000 tons.

The vessels therefore will be of enormous size. Mr. Asam is here to see what terms American ship-builders can make him on building the vessels.

It is given out from a reliable source that the subsidies guaranteed by the Japanese government will go far to foot the cost of the vessels. Mr. Asam is very friendly, as are his countrymen generally, to Americans. He thinks his ships ought to be built here.

The idea of the new syndicate is to do a very large business and cut the freight and passenger rates to a low point. They have even in view the furnishing of a passenger rate as low as nine dollars between Japan and the coast.

Why Rosebery Goes Abroad.

LONDON, June 6.—The Birmingham Post asserts that Lord Rosebery's present tour abroad is a prelude to his resigning the leadership of the liberal party, owing to ill-health.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW.

The More Favorable Features Are Found in the South.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Bradstreet's weekly review says:

General trade continues depressed in almost all lines. Demand is smaller than a week ago, and request for and offerings of commercial paper have decreased. Mercantile collections continue complained of, and the tendency of prices, particularly of cereals, sugar, coffee, pork products, cotton and cotton goods and iron and steel, continues downward. At the south the more favorable features are in evidence. The cotton crop in Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi is now clipped. In the face of this, Portland, Ore., wires that about 4,000 tons of wool will be handled at the Dallis this year, and that it has begun to move, but that eastern buyers have not put in an appearance. Makers of cotton for export are doing relatively the best business. Over-supply of cotton fabric continues to depress prices. Exports of wheat (that of four included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States this week have been the largest since the third week in January—3,209,000 bushels—against 3,964,000 bushels last week. 2,997,000 bushels first week of June, 1895; 2,742,000 bushels in the corresponding week of 1894, and as compared with 3,834,000 bushels in the like week of 1893.

The total number of business failures throughout the United States this week, as reported to Bradstreet's, is 234, compared with 27 last week, 224 the week of June 1, 1896; 207 in the corresponding week of 1893, and 203 in the like week in 1895. Twenty-nine business failures are reported throughout the Canadian Dominion this week against 23 last week, 27 in the week a year ago, 37 two years ago and 38 three years ago.

IT IS NOT TRUE.

The Four Leaders of the Johannesburg Reform Committee Have Not Been Released.

LONDON, June 6.—The dispatch from Pretoria, published in the Pall Mall Gazette, announcing that the four leaders of the Johannesburg reform committee—George Farrar, Lionel Phillips, Col. Francis Rhodes and John Hays Hammond—whose sentence to death was recently commuted to imprisonment for 15 years, had been released on parole, proves to have been untrue.

A dispatch from Pretoria, which was sent from that place last evening and reached here this morning, says, upon the authority of the Diggers News, that a decision in the case of the reform committee leaders had been postponed to June 11, owing to the objections raised to the casting of a proxy in the executive council for Mr. J. M. A. Wolmarans, a member of the council, who is absent from Pretoria.

JOHN BULL

Wants Uncle Sam's Opinion in Regard to Madagascars.

LONDON, June 6.—In the house of commons Sir Charles Dilke asked the secretary of state for foreign affairs and the government of the United States would give their assent to the view that the more conversion of the island of Madagascars, from a French protectorate into a French colony, put an end to commercial and other engagements between Great Britain and the United States and Madagascars.

Rt. Hon. George N. Curzon, parliamentary secretary to the foreign office, replied that Great Britain would give attentive consideration to the question. "We are not informed of the views of the government of the United States," he said, "since the annexation of Madagascars by France."

Suicide of a Young Englishman.

MONTREAL, Can., June 6.—S. T. Cartwright, a wealthy young Englishman on a holiday in Montreal, England, committed suicide in Mount Royal park last evening. Cartwright, who had many friends here, arrived Friday from New York on a fishing excursion and registered at the Windsor hotel. Shortly afterward he went to Mount Royal park and shot himself dead. The cause of the suicide is not known. An inquest will be held.

Weekly Bank Statement.

NEW YORK, June 6.—The weekly statement of the associated banks shows the following changes:

Reserve, decrease.....$3,774,375
Loans, increase.....1,622,700
Deposits, decrease.....467,500
Legal tenders, decrease.....3,630,400
Deposits, decrease.....1,064,100
Circulation, increase.....130,200

The banks now hold $18,486,300 in excess of the requirements of the 25 per cent. rule.

Deplore the Outrages.

MILWAUKEE, June 6.—The executive committee of the street railway strikers, in view of the outrages by firing on cars Friday night, have issued an address deploring such outrages, asking all strike sympathizers to refrain from any unlawful conduct.

Three Battleships.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The naval conferees have decided on three battleships. The limitation as to the price of the armor has been raised from $350, as fixed by the senate, to $425 a ton. This concludes every item over which there was any dispute.

Served as Congressman and Governor.

FLINT, Mich., June 6.—Ex-Gov. Josiah W. Begale died here. He served a term in congress and was elected governor on the fusion ticket in 1882. He was a democrat.

His Health Was Poor.

DAYTON, O., June 6.—Wm. Hoff, well known and wealthy, father of 11 children, bank director and thirty-second degree mason, shot himself. Ill health the cause.

Mistaken for a Burglar and Killed.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 6.—Paul Greene shot and instantly killed Josh Walker, colored, a family servant, mistaking him for a burglar.

GROVER VETOED IT.

The President Hits the General Deficiency Bill

'WHERE THE CHICKEN GOT THE AX.'

He Sends His Regrets Along With the Message—His Reasons—The House Sustains the Executive By a Vote of 40 to 169.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The president has sent a veto message to the house of representatives on the general deficiency appropriation bill.

He explains briefly the criticisms of his exercise of the veto power, and says he has hurried the preparation of the message in order that congress may take action in the matter without delay. The ground for the veto is the provision relating to the payment of the French spoliation claim. In his message the president says, in part:

"It is difficult to understand why, under the constitution, it should be necessary to submit proposed legislation to executive judgment and invite independent legislative action."

"The unpleasant incidents that accompany the use of the veto power would tempt its avoidance if such a course did not involve an abandonment of constitutional duty and an assent to legislation for which the executive is not willing to share the responsibility."

"I regret that I am constrained to disapprove an important appropriation bill so near to the close of the present session of congress. I have, however, by immediate action on receipt of the bill, endeavored to delay as little as possible a reconsideration of this proposed legislation, though I am thus obliged to content myself with a less complete explanation of my objections than would otherwise be submitted. This bill is in many of its features far removed from a legitimate deficiency bill, and it contains a number of appropriations which seem to me to be exceedingly questionable."

Sustained By the House.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—The house, by a vote of 40 to 169, sustained the president's veto of the deficiency appropriation bill.

The Advocate's elasticity of imagination is immense.

The pop organs are like other organs now: they are full of stops (my paper).

It is evident W. W. Walls regards the Advocate as a fine work of fiction.

Many autographs are commanding a high rate. Ours can be had for $1 and The Chronicle for a year.

Winn's people meet, they simply communicate with each other. When The Chronicle comes out, it talks to thousands.

Hanna figures prominently in republican, national politics. There is nothing the matter with Hanna that we can find out.

McKINLEY will not be in St. Louis when the convention meets. The convention proceedings will be wired to him at Canton, Ohio.

An Iowa editor's reputation has been ruined by a compositor leaving "u" out of window where the editor was trying to explain he had slept too near it.

NO MATTER how the supreme court may look upon what is in the briefs and abstracts that come before them, they must admit that the print of those from The Chronicle office is "clear."

THERE is agitation to take the tariff out of politics and create a non-partisan tariff commission, whose duty it shall be to pass upon the details of all tariff schedules and report upon the same to congress.

THE Talladega Mountain Home expresses its high regard sweetly, for amiable, beautiful and intelligent woman but it most emphatically comes down on her when she proposes to ascend into the pulpit. Is this the effect of the She-talk-qua?

THE friends of Col. W. T. Smith announce him as a candidate for the legislature, in this issue of The Chronicle. Col. Smith is a gentleman of acknowledged force of character, and has once before represented the county with marked ability and entire satisfaction to his constituents. His views on the silver question are in hearty accord with the present state platform and there is no doubt of the fact that he would add strength to the ticket if nominated by the democratic party.

The following items appear in the order in which we give them, in "Our Mountain Home," Talladega, 3d inst.: Gov. Oates is expected in Talladega today to attend a meeting of the board of trustees of the state schools, located here.

For heaven's sake, gentlemen of the press, please let up a little on those long-winded editorials on finance and politics generally. The people know as much on those subjects as you do and, collectively, more. But, if you will persist in the obnoxious course you have the satisfaction of knowing that each article is read by one person at least—the writer.

THAT DECOY DUCK AGAIN.

W. W. Walls Takes the Floor to Explain. I will state to the TUCK Republicans of Shelby county (not to those who have recently joined the populists, or rather who Mr. S. S. Holbrook traded off to Mr. Deans) that I am acting in conjunction with the Republican Party of Shelby county, and that we have not had anything to do with the Democratic Party. We made arrangements with The Chronicle office to have our printing done and paid for same. Now, Mr. Advocate, if there is a decoy duck in the pond, it must be in Yellow Leaf creek, near the bridge, anchored out by the populists to decoy the republicans into the populist snare. Now, as to making a trade with the democrats, I fully believe if we were to make a trade, they would not go back on their bargain as the populists did. Can, or will, anybody deny that the leading populists came to me and asked me to get the republicans together and they would take Mr. Longshore down and let the republicans head the ticket? and did they not agree to do so in Calera at a former meeting? and did they stand to their agreement? No! The fact is Mr. Deans wants to go to the senate and he had to get Mr. Longshore out of the way. Also, Mr. Holbrook wanted to be superintendent of education and the two men got together early on the morning of the 9th and made the deal, ignoring every promise they had made.

Now, as to me asking the populists for the nomination, I never did it. It is true I was left off in 1892 by Bob Mosley, and did run in the primary for the nomination, as it was understood in a caucus in Columbiana that out of the two evils, they, the populists, would take the least, and said let Walls run in place of Mr. Hardy. Mr. Holbrook will tell you, as well as all others with whom I talked on the day of that famous convention, that I cared nothing for the nomination, but as it seemed it would be forced on me, I concluded to make the race. I also told Mr. Holbrook that if there was any opposition to me not to press my claim; that all I asked was for a republican at the head of the ticket; that I would vote for him if only a "yaller dog," so the nominee came from our family. Can anybody truthfully deny it? No.

I will not trouble the newspapers with any more letters but will meet all the issues you can bring on the stump, at the proper time, with a full republican ticket in the field. I hope the Wilsonville correspondent, with his gigantic brain, will be merciful to me, a poor little, cast-off republican, when he comes to the throne; and while I admit that Henry Clay is no more, yet his spirit lives and is the guiding star that leads all true republicans today.

W. W. WALLS.

AN OUTING FOR FISH.

Prof. Greek, J. P. Spencer, M. W. McGraw, J. T. Leeper, A. M. Elliott and C. C. DuBose constituted a party who left here Monday to go fishing. They first went to Browning's mill, five miles east, and offered Mr. B. $10 to turn off the water of the pond, which he declined to do, on the ground that the notice was too short, but he said that he would do so the latter part of this week or the first of next, if desired. Messrs. Elliott, Leeper, McGraw and DuBose remained there having a good time, notwithstanding the rain, and returned Tuesday evening. The great city scales being out of order the fish they brought in were therefore not weighed and the number of tons not ascertained.

"NO GENTLEMAN."

An amusing, and at the same time an annoying case of mistaken identity occurred here the latter part of last week. An elderly gentleman was bowing very politely and smiling his sweetest every time he met a lady whom he had mistaken for another lady who resides a short distance out of the city. The lady here must have thought the old gentleman either supercilious or a little eccentric, at least. Yet he had some foundation for his mistake: the two ladies are related and both are married women. What puzzled him was that the lady never spoke to him, as he expected she would; and if he had not discovered his mistake, he might have been tempted, for the supposed breach of etiquette, to have said to himself: "Madam, you are no gentleman."

There is serious trouble ahead about the colored delegates to the St. Louis national republican convention. None of the hotels, and also none of the better class of boarding houses, will entertain them. Threat of prosecution has had the effect of developing a thorough organization among the hotel and boarding house men against the negroes. An attempt even to get a large steamer, on the river, for their accommodation, proved a failure when the owners of it found out what it was wanted for.

Health good. Will-Full still survives. Miss Edna Galoway and Mr. Temple have been visiting here.

Mrs. H. T. DeBardelaben left recently to visit home folks in Atlanta, Ga.

Miss Annie Blisby, who has been visiting at Verbena, has returned home.

E. H. Wingate and H. C. Fulton transacted business in Birmingham this week.

Miss Alice Anchors, of Columbiana, is visiting her sister, Mrs. W. A. Walburn, of this place.

Dr. M. W. Leonard can be seen both early and late wending his way to the residence of W. C. Benton.

Congratulate J. A. Fulton on taking to himself one of Columbiana's charming belles. 'Rah for John!

Rev. L. F. Goodwin was an honored guest of our town a few days ago. Standing invitation to come again.

Dr. Nation of Birmingham, preached a most excellent sermon at 1st M. E. church, west side, Sunday evening.

Misses Walker have been doing a wholesale "pleasure" entertaining foreign and domestic young gentlemen of prominence. 'Nough said.

J. R. Dixon, bookkeeper of the Saginaw Lumber Company, has gone to Birmingham, where he will take charge of the Birmingham ice factory.

Miss Mamie Brown of Nebraska, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Brinkhoff, finds ample entertainment at the establishment of the Ganadurque Mercantile Co.

The recent Sunday school celebration at Elliottsville is remembered with pleasure. The program was very interesting. The closing remarks of Rev. Goodwin were both practical and impressive.

WILL FULL.

LIBERTY.

General health is not remarkably good.

Hon. Rufus A. Lester, of Columbiana, was in our community last Sunday.

Ticks are active; pay strict attention to business and "go in head first."

Lonon Powell and E. D. Martin of Pelham attended the funeral services here last Sunday.

Rev. J. D. Martin of Pelham preached the funeral sermon of J. B. Nivens at Liberty, last Sunday, to a good congregation.

T. A. Nevins and J. R. Adams, two pleasing young gentlemen, passed a part of last Sunday with the family of J. F. Cram.

This is a scientific community, and now we have under consideration the possibility of raising a strain of "frizzle-headed girls." Further details later.

T. A. Nivens and S. W. Blackerby gave a very select courting bee last Saturday night. These entertainments are very popular. The young ladies are considered quite interesting. "A girl of beauty is a joy forever."

We sniff an approaching wedding on the air. (Wouldn't tell for the world. "Best man" will soon be hunted up and the bridesmaids are already studying what they shall wear. I am studying up all the technicalities of a wedding report to give a full description.)

S. W. Blackerby and Miss Carrie Holcomb, and C. W. Blackerby and Miss Emma Holcomb are going to publish a book, with illustrations, of the haps, mishaps, adventures and escapades on their recent berrying expedition. It will be for private circulation only. No agents need apply.

It must be startling to be aroused out of a profound slumber and be told that your best fellow is sitting in the parlor as perpendicular as a ramrod awaiting the glow of your genial look to light up the sacrum of his heart, but such an occurrence did happen here last Sunday. The young lady came to quite rapidly and went to the young man the same way.

The Chronicle covers a "multitude of mystery," and a new use has been found for it which should run its circulation away up into the high figures. An innocent looking couple, with two hearts that beat as one, get a copy of the paper, retire to some cozy nook, and as each holds one side of the paper and it all before them, leave it to the other belle and beau to guess whether they are reading each others thoughts or one of the pieces in the paper. It would be sacrilege to invade the privacy of the situation to try and satisfy mere curiosity.

WILSONVILLE.

W. R. Smith went to Columbiana last week.

Miss Bessie Nimmo spent a few days in Alpine last week.

Miss Purdie Pope is visiting friends and relatives at East Lake.

Misses Blossom Densler and Juddie Kilpatrick spent seemingly two weeks (but perhaps only four days) in Columbiana last week.

A. G. Weldon made a business trip to Columbiana last Saturday.

The Wilsonville base ball team will probably cross bats for their first time this season with Harpersville on June 16th.

Quite a number of young people went to Shelby last Monday evening to hear the grand lecture, which far exceeded our expectations.

The regular quarterly conference of the Methodist church was held last Saturday and two excellent sermons were preached by the presiding elder Sunday.

Mr. Widows Benefactor Lee, was again noticed in our city Sunday. The climate, pure water, the fine architectural buildings, the most beautiful shades in the country, or something about this place must be very attractive indeed to him.

A shooting took place at the colored Baptist church last Sunday; five guns were fired but no one seriously hurt. The negro who begun the shooting was arrested and placed in the hands of three other darkers who were unfortunate enough to let him escape.

The S. P. L. League met at the Wilsonville institute last Friday night. The program was brief but well executed. It was carried that the league shall meet every Friday evening in the future; and I trust that each member will do his or her duty assigned, and not flood the house with excuses. If each member will do his duty combined with some other improvements that have been made we think that our league will undoubtedly progress more rapidly than it has ever done before. We cordially invite all gentlemen and ladies to attend our league and will promise to have a quiet and peaceful time in the future.

"LIFE IS WHAT WE MAKE IT."

WRITTEN FOR THE CHRONICLE.

[Time, similar to "Sweet Marie."] In the golden days of youth, when ev'ry thing seems truth,
We're as careless and as merry as a clown,
All our life is filled with joy, it's a beautiful bright day,
As certain as the sun goes down.

As the years go gliding by, we are forced to heaven's sigh,
And discover that all nature has a frown,
That the sweetest joys of life have the bitter side called strife,
As certain as the sun goes down.

Let us lead such gentle lives in the path where wisdom thrives,
The reward which comes in time will be a crown;
And in the world beyond, when the spirit form we've donned,
No regretting that our sun went down.

WHITE HOUSE, CLARA LOUISE, Columbiana, June 10, 1895.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS CLOSED.

The Frisky Students Are Now Free to Oozeze Themselves and Lay a Good Physical Foundation for Next Term's Arduous, Mental Work.

The first term of the Columbiana Graded school closed last Friday, with eclat. Last year, there was what was denominated a "Fitting school," and previous to that the ordinary mixed school.

There were three regular teachers and one assistant, during last term. These taught primary, secondary and High schools. The grammar school work was done by the assistant High school teacher.

The highest enrollment during the term was over two hundred. The pupils were about equally divided as to sex. The ages of the oldest girl and boy pupils were over twenty years. The law limits the age of the youngest to seven years, but there were some pupils in the primary department not over four years old.

The attendance was good every day until the first measles scare came in. After that there were other scares, but as a matter of fact, while some of the school children got the measles, none took them in the school, rigid sanitary precautions having been taken to keep them out.

There are patent desks, and as far as the school furniture goes, it is good in every room but the primary.

A look about the building, reveals that the windows are in bad shape, and were left that way by the builder. The doors don't work good, either. The city council, as the board of education, will have to attend to this matter. The outside door don't lock, affording opportunity for tramps to rest in there over night and say next day they had the opportunity of sleeping with the city in their knowledge box.

The outbuildings must be looked after before next term. This is imperative. Grading and leveling should be attended to. The well is not "well enough;" it is out of shape.

The teachers during the last term were all experienced. The principal had held the position three years.

CLOSING EXERCISES. The forenoon of the four previous days were devoted to public oral examinations. The afternoons were given to preparatory work.

Friday, commencing at 9 a. m., the program was carried out as advertised, without a break. The audience commenced gathering early. The stage was nicely adorned with plants and flowers, and the motto of the school, "Not how much, but how well," was conspicuous.

Invocation was made in an impressive manner by Rev. T. M. Wilson, of the M. E. church.

Both the vocal and instrumental music throughout was fine. There was a school choir, a quartet and string band. Quartet: Mrs. Gordon DuBose, soprano; Miss Kate Huyett, alto; W. B. Browne, tenor; J. P. Spencer, bass. Columbiana String band: E. W. Chapman, 1st violin; W. F. Thetford, violoncello; J. M. Spencer, mandolin; Clem Greek, guitar; Ed. Spencer, guitar; J. T. Leeper, guitar.

"Course of Science," an address, by George R. McNeal, Ph. D., president of Isbell college, Talladega, was both instructive and interesting, and listened to throughout with close attention.

All the pupils did well, showing that the term work had been both practical and thorough. The salutatory, by Will A. Weaver, and valedictory, by Ethel Greek, were all the occasion called for, and produced an impression.

At the proper time, Principal Greek came forward and made some closing remarks. He was pleased to see so many out; it showed they took an interest in the school. He had taught school for many years, but this was the first time when, and place where, the merchants had closed up their stores, and the entire city had put on gala attire, to do honor to an occasion of this kind. It was encouraging and another bright star in the firmament of the progress of education.

A high-flyer drummer lit here Monday arrayed in tan shoes and carrying a white grip. He would have nothing to do with the hotels or their representatives at the deppo. When Wilhelmj Marphij approached him with one of Mr. White's information cards he waived him aside with: "Take it away; my eyes are sore with reading." Then he packed his own grip up town. It is not often so economical a drummer comes along. This drummer was a shoeman, representing a New Orleans house. He did not sell a bill of goods in town.

CRESWELL.

After spending some weeks with her father's family here, Mrs. Georgia Smith left Monday for Irondale, where she will join her husband for a few weeks, who has charge of the floating gang on the railroad.

Rev. W. J. Ray, formerly one of our "boys," but now a Howard student, will preach at the Baptist church next Sunday. Let all come out and give him a good congregation. Will is a fine fellow and we wish him success.

The heavy rain which fell on Monday of the 1st instant, was accompanied in places by a heavy hail, which did great damage to the crops, and in other places by a severe wind which did much damage to the oat crop. The rain continuing at intervals, some of the farmers are getting very badly behind with their crops. Some have but little cotton chopped, while others are up and have their crops in good condition.

Wonder who will be the next to marry. Don't all speak at once, but as Mr. Bailey started the ball to rolling it should be kept going.

Misses Sallie Martin, Stella Posey and Meedda Kidd, also Earl Martin, attended the closing exercises of the Columbiana school last week and report a delightful time.

Our miller, L. M. Moore, is having some trouble with them chills. One thing that is certain about his mill whenever it mashes one grain of corn it starts on another.

The hail did considerable damage to growing crops last week on Spring Creek above Vincent. Some of the farmers lost their entire oat crop and corn and cotton were damaged considerably.

The Baptist people sent a large quantity of meal, hams, etc., to their pastor, Rev. Mr. Giles, last week. Who would object to being a preacher when such favors as these come in at such a critical time?

Our ball team are to play Childersburg Saturday evening, so I have been informed; then Birmingham next.

There was not any preaching in town last Sunday, nor won't be next Sunday. Wonder what is the matter with our preachers?

Two Mormon elders passed through our community last week, and judging from the literature they sent to W. B. Hubbard, they have made him their agent at this place.

We are reliably informed that Mr. David Whitfield, a life long republican and one of the best citizens of Vandiver beat, says that he cannot and will not support the fusion ticket under no circumstances. It is under consideration to have a large and appropriate celebration on the 22nd by having several lodges unite in the work.

The County Matrimonial Bureau, in charge of Cupid Horace Hammond, does a good average business, although it does not advertise very extensively. Whether he is prepared to furnish a buxom young lady, a well preserved old maid or a dashing widow with each license, is still in the realm of the mysterious. Cupid has on file a license which was issued, paid for but not used. The young gentleman who took it out had the misfortune not to bring down his angel; he merely winged her.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Cailloute, Druggist, Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you find as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

THE invention of a new calculating machine in France has demonstrated its triumph by practical work. One of the remarkable results achieved was when 6,232,333,444 was multiplied by 6,888,111,224. The answer appeared on the register in less than three seconds.

It appears from statistics just published that there are about 2,500 newspapers and periodicals printed in Paris every week, more than appear in all the rest of France. Of these 107 are political, 106 illustrated, 108 devoted to fashions, 190 to medicine, over 200 to finance and 60 to sport.

BUTTER-MAKING in one minute, with economy and with many valuable safeguards from disease, as compared with the old-fashioned churning system is something that Consul O'Neill at Stockholm tells of in a report to the state department. This is done by a simple machine known as the radiator. It makes the butter directly from sterilized milk. The machine promises to revolutionize butter-making.

THE newest fad in jewelry is an engraved diamond and a prominent Parisian jeweler has turned out a bicycle scarfpin made out of two single diamonds. The result is an exact representation of a bicycle in miniature, made entirely of diamonds. Hitherto it has been considered impossible because no tool could be found hard enough to cut the stone. The use of electricity, however, renders this possible.

GEORGE SIMPSON, aged eight; Robert Simpson, nine; Charles Larson, ten; John Fitzgerald, ten, and Edward Fitzgerald, nine, were locked up at Chicago recently on charges of burglary. The children were the confessed leaders and senior members of a gang of infant burglars to whose doors have been traced several robberies. So skillfully was their work executed that the police inclined to the belief that it was the work of experienced crooks.

EDWARD M. BENTLEY, of New York, has just patented an electric plow, which runs back and forth across a field and turns up the soil in a fashion that would have made pioneer farmers of a hundred years ago stand dumb with amazement. His invention calls into use the most recent developments in the line of transmission of electric power. A power house in a centrally-located village can furnish motive force for all the farm work to be done within a radius of many miles.

A gigantic project, that of building a second pipe line from the Indiana oil fields to Whiting, Ind., has just been made public. The new line will be 160 miles in length, beginning in the fields of Wells, Blackford, Jay, Adams and Grant counties and extending northwest through Huntington, Wabash, Miami, Kosciusko, Fulton, Cass, Marshall, White, Pulaski, Starke, Laporte, Jasper, Porter, Newton and Lake counties to Whiting, where immense refineries are to be erected at an outlay of several millions. Work on the right of way is being pushed rapidly.

In the North American Review Mr. M. B. Morton says that no intelligent man has had opportunities for observation can doubt that the "agricultural problem" is the most vital in American politics to-day, though it has been thrust aside by issues that are at most only corollaries to the main proposition. The situation is anomalous and unparalleled. The country has had profound peace for 80 years. There have been no famines. In fact this period has been one of wonderful productiveness. Yet every year the farmers as a class have become poorer.

"Fifty years hence not a big town in the southwest will be without a tornado trap," says Prof. H. A. Hazen, of the weather bureau. "The hazard has arrived when serious attention must be given to finding means of defense against these whirling storms." His belief is that any town would be rendered safe against tornadoes by a series of look-out stations, so as to interpose a barrier on the west side, from which the revolving storm invariably comes. On seeing a funnel cloud approaching the operator would simply touch off some dynamite bombs, which would blow it to smithereens.

THE railroad systems of the country are about to be revolutionized and it will be no strange thing if we are able to rush about at an unconceivable speed within a few months, writes a Washington correspondent. To New York in two hours from the capital; to breakfast in Gotham and lunch in Chicago, and take our next breakfast in view of the promised waters of the Pacific, are what is placidly said. The latest invention, is what is known as the Great Rapid Transit Bicycle railway. It combines the principles of the most improved electric motors and the track is constructed with a single rail.

HON. CHAUNCEY DEPEW

Gives His Ideas in Regard to Some of the Leading Factors

IN THE POLITICAL BATTLE JUST BEGUN.

Silver Sentiment in the West, He Says is Very Strong, But There are Other Issues, and the Western Republicans are Protectionists.

St. Louis, June 13.—Mr. Chauncey M. Depew was asked by a United Press representative if he thought any bitterness that might be engendered by the New York contests would operate to the detriment of the republican success in the state next autumn. He replied: "With a gold plank—I don't mean literally gold in the platform, but as the phrase is understood in commercial circles—a substantial sound money declaration which will satisfy our people in the east, we can carry New York state for the republican candidate by 150,000 majority. There isn't any doubt about that."

Hon. Chauncey M. Depew.

"Do you think Mr. Platt will bolt the convention if the contests in the New York delegations are decided against him?"

"I have just arrived," replied Mr. Depew, "I haven't seen Mr. Platt. I can't say anything about that."

"Are the republicans likely to carry the old republican states in the west where the silver sentiment is now very strong, in the event that a gold platform is adopted?"

"In April last," replied Mr. Depew, "I made an extended trip through the western states. I passed through a number of states. I found the silver sentiment very strong. The people told me that they wanted free silver at 16 to 1. But they said, at the same time, that they were protectionists, and they assured me that they did not intend to give up the substance for the shadow. In other words, there will be other issues in this campaign besides the money question, and the tariff is one. I think that the western republicans will be loyal to the ticket without regard to silver."

It has been repeatedly reported around the hotel during the past few days, it was suggested to Mr. Depew, "that the silver republicans and populists would endorse the free silver candidate if one be nominated at Chicago. Would not that greatly weaken the republicans in the west?"

H. Clay Evans.

"I have discovered from a long experience," said Mr. Depew, smilingly, "that the atmosphere which localizes around the convention, and which is intensified by men meeting each other constantly, is not the actual sense of the country."

Gov. Morton's positive refusal to permit his name to be considered for the vice-presidency, it is said, has greatly strengthened the chances of H. Clay Evans, of Tennessee, for nomination for that office. It was asserted this morning by one of the McKinley managers that Mr. Evans would be nominated by acclamation, and practically without a competitor."

Ex-Gov. Foraker of Ohio.

Ex-Gov. Foraker, of Ohio, is one of today's arrivals. He is staying at the St. Nicholas hotel. About 11 o'clock he drifted into the Southern, where most of the politicians are located. From the moment of his appearance at the main entrance he created a sensation. The loungers at the great portico on the ground floor at once recognized the Ohio man and crowded about him to give him a cordial greeting. Everybody seemed to know Foraker, and he in turn, apparently knew all those who addressed him, in most

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Business is Awaiting the Action of the National Conventions.

New York, June 13.—Bradstreet's weekly review says: "There is little or no effort to push business at present, so much uncertainty as to the precise terms of the financial plank to be adopted by the great political parties in national convention. The general merchandise movement continues as dull and conservative as heretofore, with few exceptions, buying only for immediate necessities. Money collections continue slow and unsatisfactory, and there is no gain in the cotton, woolen goods, iron or steel industries."

Western speculators are buying wool above a parity with prices offered from the east. There is little likelihood of higher prices for wool while so much machinery is idle. Nearly all branches of dry goods are somewhat depressed. The contest continues between iron and steel consumers."

General trade in central western states remains quiet. No improvement is reported from Chicago, as compared with the unsatisfactory records of recent weeks. Improved demand for staples at St. Louis is among dealers in paints and drugs. Kansas City and Omaha report relatively the best demand among western jobbing centers, notably among wholesalers of dry goods, shoes and hats and agricultural implements."

Reports from southern distributing centers announce an almost uniformly quiet trade, although good rains in the territory tributary to Charleston and New Orleans have improved the crop outlook and wholesale trade. In Texas corn is suffering for want of rain."

Exports of wheat (four included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States amount to 2,920,000 bushels, against 3,376,000 bushels last week, 1,761,000 bushels in the week one year ago, 2,234,000 in the week two years ago and 3,834,000 three years ago."

The total number of business failures throughout the United States this week is 234, compared with 236 last week, 222 in the second week of June, 1895; 227 in the corresponding week of 1894, and as contrasted with 303 in the like period of 1893."

There are 33 business failures reported from the Dominion of Canada this week, compared with 29 last week, 31 in the week a year ago, and 30 in the week two years ago."

RODNEY FISKE, The Spendthrift Millionaire, Dying Penniless in Boston.

New York, June 13.—A Recorder special from Boston says: Rodney Fiske, the famous young millionaire from California who started Wall street a few years ago by his wild speculations, and who disappeared mysteriously a few years ago, after squandering his original legacy of $1,200,000 and the millions he added to it, is dying in this city, penniless, and dependent upon the hospitality of comparative strangers."

The wrecked Napoleon of finance is harbored in the humble residence of Otis Cunningham, and only disclosed his identity when informed that death was near."

Young Cunningham became acquainted with Fiske at the Candee rubber works in New Haven, where the broken-down millionaire was working as an ordinary factory hand. They roomed together, and when Fiske became ill Cunningham brought him to his home in this city."

Fiske tells an interesting story of his wanderings all over the face of the earth, with his "roll" steadily diminishing, and he sinking lower and lower."

HON. CARL SCHURZ Thinks the Political Outlook is Very Uncertain.

New York, June 13.—Mr. Carl Schurz, who has been identified with the dominating issue of the campaign, and conspicuous in all that the Honorable Money league has done in relation to the financial question, said, regarding the coming campaign:

"The outlook seems to me very uncertain. The silver movement is apparently stronger than has been anticipated. There are indications that the silver forces will unite upon one ticket, with the hope of carrying enough states west of the Alleghenies to win the election."

"The gold men ought not to be overconfident. The success of the silverites will largely depend upon the management of the campaign. Those make a very serious mistake who think that they can sidetrack the money question by an attempt to bring any other issue to the foreground. It would be downright folly to overlook the fact that the money question is at present altogether uppermost in men's minds. In fact it is almost the only thing people think of."

JUST BY CHANCE The Youngstown Delegation Captured the Canton Major.

CANTON, O., June 13.—Five sleeping cars containing the Youngstown delegation to St. Louis passed through Canton via the Pennsylvania railroad. Maj. McKinley was at the depot to meet friends. He did not know the delegation was there. The latter discovered McKinley as he was about to drive away and they made a break for his carriage, which was soon surrounded by several hundred people. McKinley stepped from his vehicle and shook hands with the crowd, the train being held some minutes. The steamer on the train bore the words: "Youngstown delegation; we have voted for McKinley for twenty years, and will continue to do so."

EX-GOVERNOR FOSTER AIRS HIS VIEWS.

He Favors the Indiana Plank, With the Sixteen to One Clause, Which He Believes to an Interpolation, Eliminated.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Business is Awaiting the Action of the National Conventions.

New York, June 13.—Bradstreet's weekly review says: "There is little or no effort to push business at present, so much uncertainty as to the precise terms of the financial plank to be adopted by the great political parties in national convention. The general merchandise movement continues as dull and conservative as heretofore, with few exceptions, buying only for immediate necessities. Money collections continue slow and unsatisfactory, and there is no gain in the cotton, woolen goods, iron or steel industries."

Western speculators are buying wool above a parity with prices offered from the east. There is little likelihood of higher prices for wool while so much machinery is idle. Nearly all branches of dry goods are somewhat depressed. The contest continues between iron and steel consumers."

General trade in central western states remains quiet. No improvement is reported from Chicago, as compared with the unsatisfactory records of recent weeks. Improved demand for staples at St. Louis is among dealers in paints and drugs. Kansas City and Omaha report relatively the best demand among western jobbing centers, notably among wholesalers of dry goods, shoes and hats and agricultural implements."

Reports from southern distributing centers announce an almost uniformly quiet trade, although good rains in the territory tributary to Charleston and New Orleans have improved the crop outlook and wholesale trade. In Texas corn is suffering for want of rain."

Exports of wheat (four included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States amount to 2,920,000 bushels, against 3,376,000 bushels last week, 1,761,000 bushels in the week one year ago, 2,234,000 in the week two years ago and 3,834,000 three years ago."

The total number of business failures throughout the United States this week is 234, compared with 236 last week, 222 in the second week of June, 1895; 227 in the corresponding week of 1894, and as contrasted with 303 in the like period of 1893."

There are 33 business failures reported from the Dominion of Canada this week, compared with 29 last week, 31 in the week a year ago, and 30 in the week two years ago."

RODNEY FISKE, The Spendthrift Millionaire, Dying Penniless in Boston.

New York, June 13.—A Recorder special from Boston says: Rodney Fiske, the famous young millionaire from California who started Wall street a few years ago by his wild speculations, and who disappeared mysteriously a few years ago, after squandering his original legacy of $1,200,000 and the millions he added to it, is dying in this city, penniless, and dependent upon the hospitality of comparative strangers."

The wrecked Napoleon of finance is harbored in the humble residence of Otis Cunningham, and only disclosed his identity when informed that death was near."

Young Cunningham became acquainted with Fiske at the Candee rubber works in New Haven, where the broken-down millionaire was working as an ordinary factory hand. They roomed together, and when Fiske became ill Cunningham brought him to his home in this city."

Fiske tells an interesting story of his wanderings all over the face of the earth, with his "roll" steadily diminishing, and he sinking lower and lower."

HON. CARL SCHURZ Thinks the Political Outlook is Very Uncertain.

New York, June 13.—Mr. Carl Schurz, who has been identified with the dominating issue of the campaign, and conspicuous in all that the Honorable Money league has done in relation to the financial question, said, regarding the coming campaign:

Charles W. Fairbanks.

"I am of the opinion that the convention will declare unequivocally for sound money. I should not be at all surprised to see it adopt the financial plank of the Indiana platform."

"With the ratio clause left in."

"No; I rather expect to see the ratio clause stricken out if the convention adopts the plank. As it stands now, the plank pronounces emphatically against the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. My opinion is that if the convention sees fit to adopt that plank it will simply obliterate the words 16 to 1. That will place it squarely against the free coinage of silver at any and every ratio."

CHAIRMAN CARTER.

Wisdom of His Calling the Republican National Committee

TO MEET A FULL WEEK IN ADVANCE

Clearly Demonstrated by the Amount of Work the Committee Finds on Its Hands to Perfect the Preliminary Organization.

St. Louis, June 13.—When the members of the national committee were assembling preparatory to a fourth day's siege in the matter of the contesting delegations, there was an informal exchange of opinions regarding the advisability of holding one or more sessions on Sunday. It was admitted that the work of the body was badly in arrears, and that unless means could be found of expediting it, the temporary roll would be still in abeyance when it became the duty of Chairman Carter to call the convention to order at noon on Tuesday. When the senator from Montana originally issued his summons for the committee to assemble at this place a week in advance of the date fixed for the convention there were considerable criticisms of his course, and it was said that the committee ought to get through with the business before it in a couple of days. The developments have demonstrated the wisdom of the national chairman's course. Although the committee has been in session for three days, sitting until midnight and later, scarcely more than half of the contests have been acted upon, the most important remaining to be heard. Chief among them are the contests from New York. It has already been informally agreed that the time limit will not be enforced against the New Yorkers, and the expected occupy at least one, if not two sessions of the committee. Notwithstanding the state of the calendar, however, it was apparent that strenuous objections would be offered to any proposition looking to the transaction of business Sunday, and some of the committee men went so far as to say that they would cease to participate in the deliberations at the stroke of midnight, no matter what the pending questions.

LATEST GENERAL NEWS.

The republican national convention opened in St. Louis on Tuesday last. There was a vast attendance. J. D. Lawson, of Alabama, was appointed on the committee on permanent organization; H. A. Carson of Alabama, on committee on rules; Nathan L. Alexander, committee on credentials; H. V. Casbin of Alabama, committee on resolutions. McKinley boom ran high. Morton men were opposing McKinley. The free silver men were organized for a fight. Free Cuba was at the alumni banquet, Tuscaloosa, Tuesday, 16th, Vice-president Stevenson's address was universally complimented.

The following are extracts from the summary of the weekly weather crop bulletin of the agricultural department:

Alabama.—Montgomery: Rains of the week retarded work, but subsequently dry and cool weather, while checking growth, allowed rapid advance in crop clearing; cotton is becoming lousy and making too much stalk, but fruiting well; corn fine and practically half by; cane and minor crops flourishing.

C. Butler's mother-in-law, Mrs. Arnett, after several days severe illness died at the residence of Mr. Butler's last Friday afternoon. The funeral services were held at the M. E. church and the remains buried in the Wilsonville cemetery. The bereaved have our sympathies.

W. J. Weldon and sister, Miss Mattie, have returned home from Howard where they have been attending college since September '95. But nature compels us to look forward to the autumn months, very sadly, when they will leave us to share our loneliness for months and months again.

June, oh lovely June has come. With all she's brought that's sad; She's brought dear John and Mattie home. For which we're awfully glad.

Mr. Editor, strictly obeying your "dots" to your country cousins, I will not mention the sermon nor the preacher that preached here last Sunday. As I was feeling very "miserable, miserable" consequently have forgotten the choicest themes that he gave, and I am afraid to undertake to quote the text, as I am not very good in direct quotation. I think you are too severe in this respect anyway, suppose the preacher didn't have any "choicest themes" then we would be "left."

THE OLD KOLB HORSE.

What horse is that that Goodwin's on Making so much clamor To run the race for Governor Of old Alabama?

He looks much like the horse I saw In eighteen and ninety; And then in ninety-two and four, When he took the scenery.

Kolb rode that horse almost to death. Thought he was a racer, But when the third time he got left 'Twas him a deceiver.

Kolb rode him twice with Jones you know And once with William Oates; But never could with all his crew Secure the white house votes.

So Kolb, he gave it up at last And turned the old horse loose To live as best he could on grass For he couldn't do the Oates.

It was supposed that he was dead, Nor now he shows his old gray head Under A. T. GOODWIN.

His pedigree's not right, He's a black republican, His skin's a poplar.

You never can tell where he'll be For he will not stand hitched, And every race he runs you see He's completely ditched.

And now he's old and blind and stiff, And has the sweeny too; He'll fall and break good Goodwin's neck Before this race is through.

That poor old horse, he's now quite gray, And all over flea-bitten. He never yet had a race, Nor never will I'm certain.

Among the many things that's wrong, He's a bad stump sucker— He wants to leave on every stump, Be it sound or rotten.

Surprising thing it is, to see This horse back on the track. He's lame behind, stiff in both knees And awful sore in his back.

He has the epizootic now, With it a mighty cough; He gets along about like a cow, His ears are badly flopped.

This horse may live on through the spring. Possibly through harvest, But he's a tired and scolded thing He will die in August.

And when he's surely dead and gone, We'll hear him grunt no more! He'll be laid in the tomb By Adams and Longshore.

This horse and rider once sold out For fifty thousand sure; This was to break the solid South And negro votes secure.

And then they opened wide their mouths From whence came fire and smoke; With wrath and spleen and groans and froth, Mixed with threats severe.

The two great men that's stumped the state On this old horse before, Are his old sure back again, Both Adams and Longshore.

They have tried to "rouse the darkies Against the Democrats; Have preached to them like anarchists, And almost worse than that.

They would sink loved Alabama, A thousand feet below To make good Goodwin Governor And down with him to go.

There's Crow and Bowman and Adams, Colored men and black and white, Who are whooping up the darkies Just as they did before.

Colored brethren don't believe them, They only want your votes; And make us a good Governor, And so did Mr. Oates.

Then why not vote for Johnston Joe, Whose record's clean and bright; He's trusted, tried and always true, You know he will do right.

Then Democrats of Alabama! Stand firmly for our Joe, And when the day comes he a MAN And vote for him you know.

Oh! Brother Goodwin don't you know You'd better clear the track For Johnston's now too far ahead, And riding Democrat.

That same fast horse that cleared our state Of scawagash rule; That promised all the colored folks A forty and a mule.

My colored friends of Alabama Believe these tales to be a lie; They're only told by such men As Bowman and Longshore.

Behold and see Tom Democrat On which Joe Johnston rides— He's smooth and sleek and fairly fat, With sprightly step he glides.

He makes 'bout forty miles a day; The old Kolb horse but ten. He's just as sure to win this race As five and five make ten.

Then three loud cheers for Joe Johnston, Next Gov'nor Alabama! One of her best and bravest sons— In the full sense a MAN.

A. T. Goodwin perhaps may be As harmless as a sheep, But I don't like the horse he rides Nor company he keeps.

So I shall vote for Joe Johnston And stand right to his back, For he's a tried and honest man And a true DEMOCRAT.

BOURNEON.

LEWIS.

Mrs. Jno. Ray is on the sick list this week.

Amos Adams has been quite sick but is now convalescent.

Lewis and Four-Mile are unfortunately afflicted with fleas, flies and crab-grass.

Messrs. Lyons and Powell of Four-Mile attended services at Mt. Tabor Sunday.

The many friends of Prof. J. A. Spearman will regret to learn of his illness.

Gleaves Jackson is a constant visitor to Lewis.

Our young people are anticipating a nice trip to Union, the fourth Sunday in this month.

Have you noticed The Advocate's local writer from Beeswax? He will certainly be left in August.

J. L. Riddle's threshing is in operation and he is able to give general satisfaction to the public.

George Powell, after two months stay at Childersburg, returned to his father's, on Four-Mile, Tuesday.

Horace Hammond and his pleasant sister Miss T., passed through here Sunday en route to Yellow Leaf.

Miss Anna Jackson of Lineville college, is at home spending the summer vacation, much to the delight of some of our "boys."

Rev. Ben Hughes filled the pulpit at Four-Mile, Sunday, and delivered a very able and interesting sermon to a small congregation.

Died, on 30th of May, at this place, Radolph, little son of J. R. Ray. His suffering was of short duration but severe. Aged 6 years, 7 months.

The way some of our young men visit around reminds me of an anecdote. A chap called at Mrs. McGinty's. He rapped and Mrs. McG. came to the door. "Good afternoon, Mrs. McGinty," he said with superabundant cordiality; "I'm so glad to see you," extending his paw. She drew back and eyeing him archly she said: "Glad to see me? You are? Ah judge! It's me darter Mary Ann you want to see. Come in!" He came.

W. W. ALBRIGHT,

COLUMBIANA, ALA.

Register's Sale.

The State of Alabama, Shelby County. American Mortgage Company, of Scotland, Limited, Complainant, vs. H. R. Wells, Administrator et als, Defendants.

In Chancery, at Columbiana, Alabama, Sixth District, Northeast Chancery Division.

By virtue of a decree rendered at the Spring Term, 1896 of the Chancery Court at Columbiana, Shelby County, Alabama, in said cause, I shall proceed to sell to the highest and best bidder, for cash, at public auction, in front of the court house door, in the town of Columbiana, Alabama, within the legal hours of sale, on Monday, the twenty-ninth day of June 1896, the following described property, to-wit: w/4 of sw/4 of section 2, w/4 of section 3, the e/4 of n/4 of section 4, all in township 24 range 12. Also the w/4 of sw/4 of section 8 and the n/4 of w/4 of section 14, all in township 24 range 13, containing in all six hundred and forty acres, more or less, to satisfy said decree.

GORDON DEBOSE, Register in Chancery.

Non-Resident Notice.

The State of Alabama, Shelby County. Front McLellan, Pro and Complainant, vs. S. R. McLellan, Defendant.

In Chancery, Sixth District, Northeastern Chancery Division.

In this cause, it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of W. T. Johnson attorney of record for the said complainant, that the defendant S. R. McLellan, is a non-resident of Alabama and resided, when last heard from, in Indian Territory, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered, by the Register, that publication be made in the Chronicle, a newspaper published in the County of Shelby once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him the said S. R. McLellan to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the 3rd day of July, A. D. 1896, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office, in Columbiana this 26th day of May A. D. 1896.

GORDON DEBOSE, Register.

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You KNOW

that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Dr. H. Pitcher is on every wrapper.

As the Chinese actually produce an alcoholic drink from mutton, that is probably why mutton is so scarce here.

No detective work is required to discover where to buy cheapest when merchants come out and publish prices.

Miss Myrtle Swain returned home last week from Livingston, having graduated at the Alabama Normal college.

Bro. Doolittle is in town. He left his country seat and came here because the seats are more pleasantly situated.

We want more brain food; bring in some fresh fish for sale. A big string is wanted immediately at the Advocate office.

John Brown, who is canvassing South Alabama for a Kentucky nursery, spent Sunday here with his sister Mrs. Cruce.

W. J. O'Hara came home last week from Howard College to spend a portion of the summer vacation with his father's family.

Elihue Green and Miss Lizzie returned Saturday from Danville, where Miss Lizzie has been teaching and Elihue attended school.

Miss Annie McMillan returned Friday from Livingston, having completed a post graduate course at the Alabama Normal college.

The church people say it is sinful, and illegal, to shoot off bikes but think of the number who shoot off their mouths every day!

"In our boyhood we learned something besides addition and subtraction at school."—Longshore. Anything afterwards, politically?

Prayer used to be: "Lord, give us our daily bread." Judging by appearances it is enlarged to include the other necessity of life now—the bike.

Manager H. Fox went to Bessemer Sunday and returned Monday night accompanied by Sam Lefkowitz, one of the firm of the Columbiana Mercantile Co.

A. P. Longshore in Alabama Leader: "How many wealthy white men would pay the expense of educating one poor white child in a primary school?"

Ed C. Parker came home Friday from East Lake, being now a full-fledged graduate of Howard college, and is now ready to enter active business life.

The way the doctors are flying in and out of town it must not be distressingly healthy in the surrounding country or else the census is increasing rapidly.

The longest day in the year (sunlight) will be next Sabbath, but the younger school children thought the longest was the one preceding the closing of the term.

The Columbiana base ballists have probably discovered at last that games are not won by main strength alone but that it also needs persistent practice to attain perfection.

Ye miserable dyspeptics "go to the dogs" for an appetite. A dog's stomach contains six times as much pepsin and twice as much hydrochloric acid as the stomach of a man.

The case of Len Cottingham, colored, recently tried and convicted in the county court here, having been appealed to the supreme court, it has reversed and remanded it.

Tonsorialist Chapman does not "draw the long bow" while he is shaving you but he draws the rosinod bow when he makes his bow among the bucks (beaux) who impressario the orchestra.

The White House will not use the horse-pistol on dead-beats. The office now possesses a stomach pump, as this is the most painful instrument that can be used on the impecunious.

Mrs. Nettie Leeper, of Anniston, came down on a visit to her son, last week, and enjoyed a few days outing and rusticating at The White House amidst the willow rockers and the trees.

Owing to an error of Tax Collector Smith in not giving the required number of days notice to delinquent taxpayers, the day set for issuing decrees has been postponed until Monday, July 13th.

Every democrat should vote in the primary election Saturday, both for the candidates and for delegates to the county convention to be held in Calera the following Wednesday, (June 24th).

Notwithstanding the rain, "Ben Hur" was given with one hundred and nineteen illustrations (stereoscopic) in the court house, Tuesday night. The lecture was written by Rev. Oscar Haywood of the 1st Baptist church Huntsville, Ala. Capt. J. A. Rider delivered it. The captain is suffering severely from asthma.

Dress warm when you go fishing, ladies. Men provide themselves with an antidote against cold, chill, rheumatism, etc. Perhaps they will favor you with the recipe, or a dose in an emergency.

Literature is commencing to come in from abroad relative to the Fifteenth International Convention of Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, Washington, D. C., July 7th to 13th.

It is expected the new brick, now under construction, will have the walls up, and probably the roof on, in about two weeks. The work is getting along finely.

Miss Lloyd, a sister of the famous sage of Rocky Creek, Rufus Sanders, who has been teaching school at Danville, Ala., is on a visit to her friends the Misses Green.

"Why don't the farmers sing on their way to the fields, as they did a few years ago."—Longshore. Some of them have lost their voices, and others having caught a little "colt," are a little "horse."

It is the belief among the legal fraternity that the negro confined in jail here for wife murder stands a fair chance of being discharged eventually under the highest interpretation of the law, or technicalities.

The co-operative campaign committee have "hired a ball" that is to say they have a room here. There is a skeleton in the closet. It was brought down from the court house, where the mysterious convention was held.

The interest taken in the ball game Monday afternoon was manifest when the merchants were seen late at night attending to their store work and the bank was lighted up brilliantly while the posting of the books was in progress.

When the distinguished visitors from Shelby rolled in on their bikes, and came in buggies, Monday, to attend the base ball services, it gave the city a very lively appearance. It looked as though a state fair was in progress.

Fox has made the buying of feathered live stock quite an extensive business here. A few days ago he gave three hundred chickens an excursion to Bessemer, where they were to remain until courtmartialed and Weylered (assassinated).

The following cases were submitted to the supreme court, last week: J. H. Gunn vs. J. B. Hardy; Alabama Mineral Railroad vs. Mary Jones, administratrix; A. M. R. vs. R. L. Marcus; Thomson Grocery Co. vs. M. T. and Mary Mitchell.

Fox is going to turn the building he is at present occupying into furniture, hardware and country produce departments, and concentrate the clothing, shoe, notion, dry goods and millinery departments in the brick now under construction, and run both stores right along.

The tickets for the democratic primaries, next Saturday, 20th instant, were printed last week at The Chronicle office and sent out last Friday and Saturday by Secretary White. The county convention will be held in Calera on Wednesday, the 24th inst.

There was a surprise party at the White House last Friday night, in which Ethel Greek, Mary Wagner, Miss Greene, Pearl Norris, Anna Milner, Nellie Parker, and others, participated. The string band furnished the music, with piano accompaniment.

Among the drummers here this week were two selling soap, two clothing, and groceries, saddlery, shoes, life insurance, drugs, hats, jean pants, flour, and tobacco, one each, exclusive of P. M. Rowland, groceries, and W. R. Buchanan, snuff, both of Anniston.

The marriage licenses taken out during the past week show that R. F. Gunn has taken unto himself a wife and that in the course of human events we may expect a little son of a Gunn. One Dollar has got married, and if they are silverites, we look for 15 to 1. The Sams of Roberson are in it, too.

One of our wisacres was saying this week that "advertising does not attract attention. We offered to publish FREE: "Dog wanted immediately. Five dollars. Bring to," etc., but he objected on the ground that he did not want the store overrun with dogs if the vaccine took.

Dr. Sheldon H. Talcott, the medical superintendent of the Middletown State Insane asylum, New York, recently started the theory that nothing conduced so much to insanity as early rising. Many, particularly young men, are practicing here to show he is right. They will never become insane.

Kroka stood no-show when the base ball teams met this week. Ditto checkers. The stores were almost deserted during the progress of the game. A lone clerk could be seen occasionally. The Chronicle office would have been closed entirely but that the foreman had the gout. He couldn't go (o)ut.

"Bottle fishing" is to take a bottle (empty—be sure it's empty) and after seeing that it is tightly corked put it in the pond with a line and baited hook attached. The movement of the bottle tells when the piscatorial meanderer has lunched. Row out, take a puff (at the line, of course) and bring the fish in.

A citizen who was formerly in business here, says he stands ready to open a daily market for the sale of fresh meat, fish, fruit and vegetables as soon as the city council will guarantee protection against the peddlers by imposing a tax on sales within their jurisdiction.

Misses Myrtle Swain, Pearl Norris, Ethel and Elva Greek, the two Misses Greene and Mary Wagner, and Messrs. George Mason, Thetford, Leeper, Williamson, Smith, Weldon, Greene and Tinney were among the flock who settled on Farmer Hall's place Tuesday night and gave the family a surprise.

Rev. Dr. Teague's theme last Sunday in the Baptist church was: "The woes and wants of humanity." He showed how great were the blessings of Christianity at a time like this, when there was so much disquietude and uncertainty in temporal affairs.

The sermon in the evening was on "Unostentatious religion."

E. D. Hall will have ripe water-melons in about two weeks. Some are of considerable size already. He has had his friend, Herr Krup, send him from Germany a beautiful, curvilinear cannon which fires with great accuracy around the corner of the house. Farmer Hall now does chores and pulls weeds while he is resting between meals.

Licentiate Wm. Murphy preached to a congregation of about two hundred colored people at Talladega Springs, last Sunday. During his absence his brother, Prince, unsettled the universe, with the bell, at the hotel and got the grip on the drummers' luggage. Hotels generally entertain princes, but in this instance a Prince helped to entertain the guests.

Watty Wallack, relating his experience at Childersburg, tells how he mistook a gorgeously arrayed drummer with his hair parted in the middle, and his brain departed entirely, for Mine Host Seabrook, the genial proprietor of the hotel. He got a rebuff that was paralyzing, for supposing that the commercial tramp was a mortal. Desiring "persecution," Watty wanted some soap to take a bath.

Rev. T. K. Roberts' booklet, antagonizing dancing, is among the books on the center-table at one of the hotels here, and is picked up and scanned by the drummers. Their comments are widely divergent and sometime emphatic. An Atlanta tobacco man said Monday: "Oh pshaw! the writer of that book is off. No gentleman hugs a woman when he is dancing with her; there is only a nice, little, gentle squeeze. It is the cream of life. It is elysium. The author is evidently unsophisticated and never got in the 'squeeze.'" The portly appearance, the suave manner and oleaginous voice, together with the smart attire of the drummer, all surmounted by a merry twinkle in the eyes, indicated he is unquestionably a fit meteor to get in many of them.

When Wilsonville young ladies come over here for a change of ozone it is evident from recent Wilsonville correspondence that they should not leave their best young men behind to endure a four days agony of loneliness that seems to them at least two weeks in duration. The heartless practice of young ladies going off and leaving no substitutes to take their place is one of such a frightful and heart-rending character it is beyond description. In other words, it is appalling.

Tax Assessor J. H. Hammond met with an accident last week that will probably lay him up for some time. He had gone over to the vicinity of Wilsonville to see a friend, was standing on a stump talking with his face turned from his horse, raised his wooden leg to get on the horse, but the horse having moved slightly away without his noticing it, he came down heavily on the other leg, and that being injured too, sustained very painful effect. The bones of his ankle were shattered.

The biped with the cultivated auricular who does the music act for The Chronicle made a mistake when he said, last week, that Prof. Leeper manipulated a guitar at the public school closing term exercises. The professor's forte is the triangle, and he held that forte on that occasion.

Prof. Leeper always had a taste for triangles, and therefore, in acquiring a thorough musical education, used up a large quantity of oil, and several nightgowns, in the study of trigonometry and triangulation.

Watty Wallack, who was here the first of this week, is a "globe trotter." He has been around the world and gave a dramatic entertainment in Columbiana several years ago. Mayor Browne and many others remembered him. He still wears a magnate plug hat. The pictures for the Ben Hur exhibition Tuesday night cost over $400 in Europe. The light is 1,500 candle-power, and not quite as large as an ordinary green pea. Yet it is so brilliant, it is blinding. The exhibition went from here to Calera.

The string band struck some fine cake while out serenading last Saturday night and hereafter when they sent newly made fine cake they may be expected to alight there after the daylight has disappeared and the bewitching hour of midnight has come on. The taste which they have now cultivated for cake is unconquerable; no hope for them, and no cake-cure to which they can be sent. It is deplorable. Their music takes the whole confectionary, and subsequently, some of them may be expected to return and take the girls.

Rev. T. K. Roberts, of Montgomery, is a guest at the White House. He is here simply on a visit. Tom, as we like to call him for we have known him intimately from youth, has been peculiarly blessed in his revival work and he can be counted on to use all the zeal and energy at his command in that line. He will preach here to-night (Thursday) is able physically.

The casualties at the ball game Monday were numerous. Jo M. Spencer got the hand he uses to walk with his girl injured severely; one of our doctors, a spectator, was hit with the ball while a considerable distance from the players, and the umpire, attorney Thetford, got a severe shock from a ball on that member of the legal profession most useful in addressing juries. No alarm having been turned in, the ambulance corps were not called out, and no restoratives were administered.

Eug. L. Spencer had only one wing Monday morning. His wife had gone to Talladega Springs. He looked timid. Suppose a burglar had got in the house the night before, and no one to get up and show him around? Besides, he didn't know where the pie and cake were. Saturday night he came over to The White House, and Mrs. White condoled with him on his grasswidowship and made him as comfortable as possible with some vivacious vocal soothing syrup. He has the sympathy of the entire community, as also have the other married men who will soon be in the same fix. A home ought to be established for these half orphans during the absence of their protectors.

The case of Walter McAdams, now in jail here charged, tried and convicted of murder more than a year ago in the circuit court, is a peculiar one. He was sentenced by Judge Cobb, before whom he was tried, to be hung until dead, but the judge neglected to fix the time for his execution. The case has been twice before the supreme court, and lately was stricken from the file for the above reason. At the next term of the circuit court Judge Brewer will be called upon to again pass sentence upon the prisoner and fix the day for his execution, and then the case will be carried for the third time to the supreme court. Rather a striking illustration of the delays incident to the trial of cases in our courts.

Competition for the principalship of the academy here is becoming intense. Over fifteen applications were on file last Monday morning for teacherships. One came in that day from Indiana. The applicant inclosed his photo; 24 years of age and good looking. It is expected now that Professor Greek will file his presentment so that the council can make a wise selection from the photos. We certainly must have a very handsome man for principal of the academy next term (one who will interest the ladies) and as it is the unanimous opinion of the connoisseurs of beauty that Prof. Greek grades high among the beautiful men in the city, his reelection is assured.

PROBATE COURT.

HON. D. R. McMILLAN, JUDGE.

Proceedings were had on Monday by Robert Carter to have Mrs. Mary A. Armstrong declared non compos mentis for the purpose of having a guardian appointed. Jury disagreed; mistrial entered. Case will probably be brought up again.

NECROLOGICAL.

MRS. H. C. REYNOLDS.

This estimable lady departed this life at Montevallo last week, much to the profound regret of her relatives and a wide circle of friends. She stood high as an example of christian character. It is understood the incipient cause of her death was cancer, from which she had suffered during a long time past. The remains were interred impressively, and followed to their last resting place by a large concourse of mourners.

County Matrimonial Bureau.

Cupid Hammond's weekly report is as follows:

B. F. Gunn and Tella Collier, who reside near Shelby Springs.

George Butler and Niele Swiney, of near Montevallo.

Eliza Cunningham and Kettie Dollar, of near Montevallo.

Henry Roberson and Ola Sams, of Shelby.

Summer Homes and Resorts.

The Southern railway is the first of our great railway systems to give information to the public and to fix low excursion rates for a summer outing good for return until October 31st, by issuing, with usual promptness, its Summer Home and Resort Book.

It is handsome in design and artistic in every respect, having thirty-two beautifully illustrated pages containing the most complete and conveniently arranged information calculated to answer fully and satisfactorily every question likely to be propounded, such as routes and distances, hotels and boarding houses, names of proprietors how to reach them, rates of board by day, week and month, etc.

The Southern offers a choice of mountain and seaside resorts, the surf bathing and sea breezes of some of the most delightful resorts on the Atlantic Coast or the cool mountain breezes of Swannanoa, Asheville. Lookout Mountain and others 2,600 feet above the sea level.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection. It gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating our customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—no grief. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

Notice of Application to Sell Real Estate

PROBATE COURT, MAY 11, 1896.
THE STATE OF ALABAMA,
Shelby County.

Estate of W. L. Dickerson, deceased.
This day came Sarah D. Hall and W. T. Hall, administrators, with the will annexed of said estate, and filed their application in due form and under oath, praying for an order of sale of certain land described therein and belonging to said estate, for the purpose of division, upon the ground that same cannot be equitably divided without a sale thereof.

It is ordered that the 22nd day of June, 1896 be appointed a day for hearing such application, at which time any parties in interest can appear and contest the same, if they think proper.

WILLIAM MCKINLEY, OF OHIO.
GARRETT A. HOBART,
OF NEW JERSEY.
The Nominees of the Republican National Convention

For President and Vice President of the United States—The Platform Declares for the Gold Monetary Standard.

The Nominations Made After a Continuous Session Lasting Over Nine Hours.

St. Louis, June 18.—The battle has been fought in the Republican national convention. William McKinley, of Ohio, is the nominee of the party for president and Garrett A.
Hobart, of New Jersey, for vice-president on a platform distinctly declaring for a gold monetary standard.

The only really sensational feature of the convention was the withdrawal of some of the western silver leaders, headed by Senator Teller, of Colorado, an event that had been discounted by a previous declaration of intention. The proceedings, as a whole, were of the cut-and-dried order, the results being practically as they were mapped out by the McKinley managers; so that while there has been a certain amount of enthusiasm manifested, it has been as nothing compared with other historic republican conventions.

Following is a synopsis of the proceedings:

FIRST DAY.

Convention Proceedings.

At 12:20 p. m. Senator Carter, chairman of the Republican national committee, called the convention to order. The chaplains—Rabbi Salt—opened with prayer—the whole assemblage standing.
At the conclusion of the invocation Senator
Carter said the delegates were assembled in compliance with the terms of a call issued by the national committee on the 14th of December, 1896, "which he requested the secretary to read."

Chairman Carter then said: "Gentlemen of the convention: By direction of the national committee, I present for your approval for four temporary chairmen, Hon. Charles W.
Fairbanks, of Indiana."

The selection of the committee was approved without a dissenting voice.
Upon taking the stand temporary Chairman
Fairbanks delivered an address touching upon national prosperity, the significance of the democratic administration, the financial record of the republic and the free silver heresy. An allusion to Blaine produced a genuine demonstration, the delegates rising and cheering repeatedly.

The roll of states was accordingly called and the members of the various committees named.
At the conclusion of the call Powell Clayton, of Arkansas, sent up a resolution relating to the determination of election contests, which he asked to have read and referred; but objection being made it was referred without being read.

A resolution from colored people of Illinois affecting their rights as a race was treated in a like manner.
After an announcement of the places and times of meeting of the four committees the convention, at 1:47 p. m., adjourned until Wednesday morning at ten o'clock.

SECOND DAY.

St. Louis, June 17.—The convention was called to order at 10:45. Prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. William G. Williams.

Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, from the committee on resolutions, reported that the committee had recommended that the convention asked further time, which was unanimously granted.

The committee on credentials was called upon for its report and not ready.
The committee on permanent organization made similar report.
A motion to take recess until 8:10 o'clock was rejected.

The report of the committee on permanent organization was submitted and adopted.
A committee was appointed to conduct Permanent Chairman Thurston to the platform.
On motion of Gov. Bushnell, of Ohio, the convention adjourned until 2 p. m.

At 2:40 p. m. the convention was opened with prayer by Bishop Arnold, of Wilberforce college, O.

Mr. Madden, of Chicago, presented a gavel made from wood which formed a part of the homestead of Henry Clay, father of protection.

The report of the committee on credentials in favor of seating the Higgins delegates from Delaware and the delegates at-large and the delegates from Texas, on the list headed by John Grant was presented. The report also recommended that the roll of delegates and alternates of the convention be taken from the states and territories, as prepared by the national committee for the temporary organization, be approved as the permanent roll of this convention.

Mr. Hepburn presented a minority report recommending the seating of the Adkins delegation from Delaware and of the Coney delegation from Texas, and that the other contested cases acted upon by the national committee be referred to the credentials committee for full investigation.

The majority report was, after some discussion, adopted: Yeas, 568; Nays, 339.
The chairman of the committee on resolutions was recognized and reported that the platform would be ready at 3 p. m.

Discussion was then commenced under the previous question on the majority and minority reports, each side being allowed 30 minutes.

After the close of the discussion the majority report of the committee on credentials was adopted without dissent.
Gen. Bingham, of Pennsylvania, submitted the report of the committee on rules, which was promptly adopted.

The convention then, on motion of Gen.
Grosvenor, adjourned until 10 a. m. Thursday.

THIRD DAY.

An All Day Session.

At 10:35 the president, Senator Thurston, announced that the divine blessing would be invoked by Rev. John R. Scott, of Florida.

Mr. Foraker read in a clear voice, with distinct enunciation. He gave a pointed emphasis to the indorsement of President Harrison, which was received with cheers.
The reading of the platform as a whole was listened to with marked attention, and at the close it was greatly cheered. The reading occupied 25 minutes.

Mr. Foraker moved the adoption of the report as the republican national platform for 1896.

Then the chair, amid the breathless attention of the convention, recognized Senator Teller, who sent to the secretary's desk and had read the following minority report:

We, the undersigned members of the committee on resolutions, being unable to agree with that portion of the majority report which treats on the subject of coinage and finance, respectfully submit the following paragraph as a substituted therefor:

"The republican party favors the use of both gold and silver as equal standard money, and pledges its power to secure the free unrestricted and independent coinage of gold and silver at our mints at the ratio of 16 parts of silver to one of gold."

Mr. Teller, of Colorado, then moved the adoption of the foregoing resolution, which was received with a shout of approval.

Mr. Teller then advanced to the front and commenced to address the convention in explanation of his course. He denied that his advocacy of free silver was in any manner controlled by the fact that he represented a state which produces silver. He contended for it because he believed that no country could prosper without it, and because he believed that it was the great weight which was now weighing down the country. Professing tolerance from those who differed from him, he said his decision had been arrived at after many years of deliberate thought. The great contest whether there should be one flag or two in this country was not more important than the contest for the first time in the history of this glorious party of ours with the danger of a financial system which in our judgment would be destructive to the country. They were called upon to decide whether to adhere to it or reject it.

He asked the convention to pardon him if he closed with some personal allusions. He had formed his opinion on the subject of silver to such an extent that this became blinding on his conscience. He believed the morality, the civilization—nay, the very religion—of this country were at stake in this contest. Men in distress were neither patriotic nor brave. This was what made him a republican, because he believed its principles were calculated to build up and sustain the unfortunate and distressed.
He did not believe this could be done on the gold standard. With this solemn recognition upon him he must sever his connection with the political organization with which he had been so long associated.

He recognized the jibes and sneers that would follow him, but he was used to them.
Before the republican party was organized he stood for the doctrine of free silver, free homes and equal rights. [Cheers.] There were few men in the party who had been so sincerely attached to its principles than he, and he could not go out of it without heart-burning and regret. "If I go out of the republican party," he said, "I go out with the conscience of a man who has sacrificed his political life for what he believes to be the good of his country. I go out with a feeling that I maintain my consistency and manhood, and my conscience approves the sacrifice, for sacrifice it is."

Mr. Foraker, of Ohio, chairman of the committee on resolutions, moved to lay Senator Teller's substitute on the table, which motion was seconded by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, prevailed: Yeas, 519; Nays, 1054.

Mr. Foraker was recognized to demand the previous question on the passage of the resolutions.

Senator Dubois, of Idaho, rising in the body of the hall, asked that a separate vote be taken on the resolution to lay the plank.
Cries of "No."

The previous question was ordered with only a few feeble noes. Mr. Dubois demanded a roll-call of the states, and the roll was called.
The roll-call was ordered, resulting: Yeas, 519; Nays, 1054.

The platform as a whole was then adopted by viva voce vote.

Mr. Frank Cannon, the youthful senator from Utah, moved that the reading of the platform be deferred until the morning, which motion was seconded by Mr. Foraker, of Ohio, and the motion prevailed.

When Mr. Cannon had nearly finished the reading of the platform, the reading was interrupted by a shout of "No; let him finish," which was received with a shout of approval.

The chair again appealed for respectful attention to the protest, which he said was nearly finished.

The names of the signers to the protest, as read by the secretary, were greeted with cheers, and a vote in the rear called out "Good-by, my lover, good-by," as Senator Mantle and his associates flung out of the hall, marking the end of the main state.

At the accompaniment of the band, and shouting till they were hoarse. The chair, when the tumult had in some measure subsided, said in his slow, deliberate way:

"I desire to say that a majority of the delegation from the state of Montana has not yet been received. Under the circumstances surrounding this occasion, they were justified in actually going out of the convention. [Applause.] But,
Chairman, I am bound to say, in deference to the opinions and wishes of the majority of the republicans of the state of Montana, that we can not give our approval or our indorsement to the financial plank this day adopted."

Senator Brown, of Utah, speaking from the platform, said:

Mr. Chairman—The delegation from Utah

does not bolt. [Cheers.] We do not believe that the republican party is the oppressor of the people, but the guardian of liberty and the protector of honest government. [Applause.]
Three cheers for the platform, and I am here to express our sorrow at their departure.
Senator Brown concluded by asking that the three alternates he had named be allowed to sit in the convention in place of the delegates who have left.

The chairman said unless objection was made this would be so ordered.

No dissenting voice being raised, the three alternates, Lindsey Rogers, Web Greene and Joseph A. Smith, were seated as delegates from Utah.

Washington.
The next recognized Mr. Burleigh, of Idaho, speaking from the platform, said the young state of Washington yields her place for patriotic devotion to loyal allegiance to this government, and the tenets of this party to none. We did not come here, he said, for inspiration on the silver question. We brought our inspiration with us.
We believe in the gold and silver standard because we believe that the money which pays the banker in Wall street his interest is none too good to pay the laborer in Montana. Then he added that with protection, reciprocity and the chosen standard-bearer, Wm. McKinley, Washington would give a good account of herself in November.
This was the first time McKinley's name had been publicly mentioned in the proceedings,
and it was received with cheers.

The states were then called for their choice of members of the national committee, and the names were sent up.

Nominations Begin.

The president then directed the call of states for nominations for the presidency. The first state to respond was Iowa, when Mr. R. M.
Baldwin, of Council Bluffs, came to the platform and nominated Senator W. B. Allison, of Iowa.

The next state to respond was Massachusetts, and Senator Lodge, of that state, came to the platform and nominated Thomas B. Reed, of New Hampshire.

When the state of New York was called, Mr.
Sutherland, of Rochester, rose and said that his decision had been arrived at after many years of deliberate thought. The great contest whether there should be one flag or two in this country was not more important than the contest for the first time in the history of this glorious party of ours with the danger of a financial system which in our judgment would be destructive to the country. They were called

Chairman, I am bound to say, in deference to the opinions and wishes of the majority of the republicans of the state of Montana, that we can not give our approval or our indorsement to the financial plank this day adopted."

Senator Brown, of Utah, speaking from the platform, said:

Mr. Chairman—The delegation from Utah

does not bolt. [Cheers.] We do not believe that the republican party is the oppressor of the people, but the guardian of liberty and the protector of honest government. [Applause.]
Three cheers for the platform, and I am here to express our sorrow at their departure.
Senator Brown concluded by asking that the three alternates he had named be allowed to sit in the convention in place of the delegates
who have left.

The chairman said unless objection was made this would be so ordered.

No dissenting voice being raised, the three alternates, Lindsey Rogers, Web Greene and Joseph A. Smith, were seated as delegates from Utah.

Washington.
The next recognized Mr. Burleigh, of Idaho, speaking from the platform, said the young state of Washington yields her place for patriotic devotion to loyal allegiance to this government, and the tenets of this party
to none. We did not come here, he said, for inspiration on the silver question. We brought our inspiration with us.
We believe in the gold and silver standard because we believe that the money which pays the banker in Wall street his interest is none too good to pay the laborer in Montana. Then he added that with protection, reciprocity and the chosen standard-bearer, Wm. McKinley, Washington would give a good account of herself in November.
This was the first time McKinley's name had been publicly mentioned in the proceedings,
and it was received with cheers.

The states were then called for their choice of members of the national committee, and the names were sent up.

The next state to respond was Massachusetts, and Senator Lodge, of that state, came to the platform and nominated Thomas B. Reed, of New Hampshire.

When the state of New York was called, Mr.
Sutherland, of Rochester, rose and said that his decision had been arrived at after many years of deliberate thought. The great contest whether there should be one flag or two in this country was not more important than the contest for the first time in the history of this glorious party of ours with the danger of a financial system which in our judgment would be destructive to the country. They were called upon to decide whether to adhere to it or reject it.

He asked the convention to pardon him if he closed with some personal allusions. He had formed his opinion on the subject of silver to such an extent that this became blinding on his conscience. He believed the morality, the civilization—nay, the very religion—of this country were at stake in this contest. Men in distress were neither patriotic nor brave. This was what made him a republican, because he believed its principles were calculated to build up and sustain the unfortunate and distressed.
He did not believe this could be done on the gold standard. With this solemn recognition upon him he must sever his connection with the political organization with which he had been so long associated.

He recognized the jibes and sneers that would follow him, but he was used to them.
Before the republican party was organized he stood for the doctrine of free silver, free homes
and equal rights. [Cheers.] There were few men in the party who had been so sincerely attached to its principles than he, and he could not go out of it without heart-burning and regret. "If I go out of the republican party," he said, "I go out with the conscience of a man who has sacrificed his political life for what he believes to be the good of his country. I go out with a feeling that I maintain my consistency and manhood, and my conscience approves the sacrifice,
for sacrifice it is."

Mr. Foraker, of Ohio, chairman of the committee on resolutions, moved to lay Senator
Teller's substitute on the table, which motion was seconded by Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, prevailed: Yeas, 519; Nays, 1054.

Nominations Begin.

The president then directed the call of states for nominations for the presidency. The first state to respond was Iowa, when Mr. R. M.
Baldwin, of Council Bluffs, came to the platform and nominated Senator W. B. Allison, of Iowa.

SENATORIAL CONVENTION.

By direction of the Executive Committee of the Democratic party, for this, the Fifteenth Senatorial District of the State of Alabama, a convention of said party is hereby called to convene at the court house, in Wetumpka, Alabama, at 12 o'clock m., on Thursday, the second day of July, 1896, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for senator of said district, to be voted for at the next August election. The basis of representation in said convention has been fixed by said Executive committee as follows, to-wit:

Shelby county.....21 votes
Chilton county.....15 votes
Elmore county.....21 votes
This June 22nd, 1896.

H. L. WILLIAMS, Chairman.

The populists of Fulton county, Georgia, in which county Atlanta is situated, have resolved not to make any nominations until after the democratic national convention meets in Chicago. If a free silver man is nominated and a free silver platform adopted, they will not put out any ticket at all but support the democratic nominees; evidence that the disintegration of the pops has commenced. Dissolution has set in.

A. P. LONGSHORE'S poem in last week's Alabama Leader, headed "Free Soup," is exquisite and stamps Poet Longshore as one of the finest creators of the present century. It shows him to be a man of deep penetration (even into the dark recesses of the court house) and that what he don't know about being "in the soup" is not from lack of experience.

TENNESSEE has a bicycle corps in the national guard. They will never go out of the state except in case of invasion—of the state. And the rapidity with which they will make their exit will depend entirely on the rapidity with which the invading force comes in.

A WRITER in "Our Southern Home," Livingston, says: "It is only a matter of regret that the 'proper use' of the water is so little known in many sections of our country." A Calera gentleman who was in Columbiana this week, says they use it there to wash in.

A MOVEMENT is on foot to select twelve of the most eminent men of Alabama to represent the state abroad in a proposed great enterprise. There should be no difficulty in getting them at once. Columbiana can furnish the whole number.

SOME inmortals never give out more of their views than they think can be understood by the common herd. In this regard they are very considerate to themselves. It accounts for reticence that would otherwise be inexplicable.

The Anniston Hot Blast is fastidious. Its highly perfumed editor delicately refers to an article which ladies wear nights as "the slumber robe." We would like to know when and where he will present it.

The first scare heading in last week's Alabama Leader announces: "If the Devil Threw His Net?" He did here, recently, but it didn't scoop all the republicans.

New daily, "Anniston Republic," will be served up red hot (and read all over), 101 = in the shade.

To be a good politician now you must have a manager.

CONVENTION.

The Democracy of Shelby County,
Through their Regularly Accredited Delegates,

MEET IN CONVENTION AND HOIST
THE BANNER

That Will Be Carried to Victory in August.

"I know thy name full well, Lord James, and honored may I be.
That he who fought beside the Bruce, should fight this day for me.
Then take the leading of the van and charge the Moors again.
There is not such a lance as thine in all the hosts of Spain."

Special Correspondence of The Chronicle
CALERA, June 24, '96.

The Democratic county convention convened here for the purpose of nominating men, to fill the county offices, at noon today. Executive committee-man Martin called the meeting to order and nominated Hon. R. W. Cobb for temporary chairman; C. C. DuBoise and J. W. Wilder secretaries.

On motion, the temporary officers were made permanent.

A committee of one from each beat was appointed to cast up the ballot of the primary, which resulted in the following nominations: [See county ticket at head of this column.—Ed.]

This was one of the most enthusiastic and harmonious conventions ever held in Shelby county and from the talk indulged in by the delegates, to your correspondent, the banners of democracy will be carried to victory in August.

Calera furnished a large barrel of ice water (last winter's ice) in the ante-room for the benefit of "dusty" delegates and thirsty visitors, while ham sandwiches were offered on every corner for the refreshment of late comers.

Calera was much pleased to have the convention held with her, and the committee of arrangements, with Col. John P. West at the head, had perfected all arrangements for the comfort of the guests.

Come again gentlemen. We are pleased to gaze on your happy features, and to commend your gentlemanly appearance, for you are the representatives of the virtue and intelligence of the grand old State of Alabama.

NOTES.

Sheriff Nelson and would-be-sheriff Christian, Daniels and Nelson were seen promenading arm and arm.

Uncle Lija Fulton was on hand with a smile and a hand-shake for all. "Just let me sit down on a pop will you please." Weight 275.

"Pops" Longshore, Pitts and Deans were gazing around gazing with delight on the sturdy veterans of democracy.

Capt. Will C. Teague of the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West Ry., was in attendance upon the convention.

Capt. Walter Meroney of the Southern Ry., took in the convention and enjoyed himself among the delegates. Maj. Jeff Christian, who was a close second in the race for sheriff, had more fun than any one at the convention. Come and see us often Jeff, we enjoy your hearty laugh.

Walter Duran, the "fat man" of the Anniston Lime Co., was here this morning shaking hands with his friends and talking about his "new son."

LATEST GENERAL NEWS.

A suit in New York develops that Jason Gould was a gay deceiver in his youth married a country girl and deserted her and her babe. Heaterwards became famous as Jay Gould.

A dog fell recently in California and broke his leg while climbing a ladder to go to work on a steamer. He was a regular "workman" of the Union Iron Company and went in and out of small holes with tools, etc.

This from an Anniston ad: Men and boys in Indiana straw hats, 5 cents; boys' leghorn straw hats, 8 cents; men's leghorn straw hats, 10 cents; boy's malaga straw hats, 9 cents; men's malaga straw hats, 10 cents.

A dispatch from the City of Mexico says: The news of McKinley's nomination and the bolt of the silver delegates excites great interest. Public opinion here, while strongly for silver, is also apprehensive of the United States going on a silver basis, as that would insure ruin to Mexico's growing manufacturing industry. Mexico fears her present prosperity would be imperiled by competition from the United States were it on a silver basis.

STATE OF CROPS.

Following is from the weekly weather crop bulletin of the Agricultural Department:

Alabama. Montgomery—Cool and cloudy week; heavy and, in places, damaging rains suspended work; hail doing damage in Coosa and Chilton counties; cotton grassy, making too much stalk and being injured by lice; corn and candor doing well, but all crops need warmth and sunshine.

FRUIT of the Press—Chronicle, 1 year, $1.00.

The Chronicle is no back number and don't have any outside the file.

Most editors are careful in the selection of enemies as well as friends.

CHRONICLE platform—$1.00 a year, spot cash. Ten cents a month during the campaign.

The insurgent Cuban army ought to fill up rapidly. It has several companies of women in it.

The confederist is a singular animal; it has the head of one variety and the tail of another.

The x rays have been perfected so far to showing the beating of the heart. If they could be utilized by the politicians to see the beating of the public pulse, the boon would be inestimable to them.

OUR COUNTRY COUSINS.

HARPERSVILLE.

Hogs continue to die.
Crops are growing finely.
Watermelons will soon be ripe.
Prof. Florey is visiting Womack Hill.

The Chronicle list continues to grow.
Eighty-two votes were polled here last Saturday.

Miss Meeda Kidd is visiting relatives at Woodlawn.

Dr. Stone of Easonville, was in our community last week practicing dentistry.

Two Misses Woods of East Lake are visiting their aunt, Mrs. Dr. Nelson.

John Kidd, wife, and their little daughter Anne, attended preaching here Sunday.

We are glad to state that H. G. Self, who has been so very sick, is on the road to recovery.

Mack Self of Texas, Rev. Jim of the Greensboro University, and Mr. and Mrs. Casper of Woodard, Ala., are visiting at H. G. Self's.

Parson Kirkland is carrying the mail now from here to Vincent, and Wesley Wallace, colored, has the contract, commencing July 1st.

The democracy of Shelby county are not under any more obligations to vote for one man any more than another, provided he is competent and a democrat.

Henderson Wallace, colored, a democrat, and blacksmith at this place, died very suddenly last week. He had so worked, and conducted himself that he had won the respect of all the whites as well as the blacks among whom he lived, and we are all truly sorry that he is dead and will greatly miss him.

Lampkin Vandiver, the Napoleon and Chief Justice of Bear Creek, spoke at the negro school house near here last Saturday evening. I have been informed that the news present swallowed it, head, feathers, tail and all.

The learned and eloquent Mr. Giles filled his regular appointment here last Saturday and Sunday. His text Sunday was in Zacharia and subject was "Light." I have really forgotten all he said but, anyway, it was that he preferred light rather than darkness, and, of course, we all did in he made me think very strongly how bad some people were in the dark politically.

The ball team gave an ice cream supper at the academy last Friday night, proceeds to go towards paying for their uniforms. After supper was over, Baptists and Methodists, and those who do not belong to any church, all alike joined in a regular dance.

How bad, how lamentable it is for church members, who know that they are violating the rules of their respective churches, to indulge in such an amusement! The world is getting to be fast, and the young people are getting to be faster, and their parents, in this lovely land of ours, should all rise up, as one mighty phalanx, and put a stop to all such amusements. These remarks are not intended for any one, particular individual but for all those collectively whom the shoe fits. And now, in conclusion, let me say I sincerely hope that the young people of this country, whom we love and have much respect for, will not do so again.

"JAKE."

"Here endeth the first lesson." It pleases us to know that our correspondent really does love the young people, but it is still a mystery here whether he loves the male or female portion the most. About Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase) awoke, it will be remembered, from a sweet dream of peace, and an angel, making it electric bright, waving phonetically in a cloud of light. Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhem bold. So he inquired: "What writest thou?" The angel replied: "The names of The Chronicle subscribers and their greatest virtue respectively, so that I may properly reward them." "Then put me down," said Abou, "for another year's subscription and here's the dollar, and say I love my fellow man the most." The angel went off, presumably on her bike, and when the return came in of the truly good, the grand and noble old Abou Ben Adhem's name led all the rest! The dollar in advance did it. It always does.—Ed.]

WELDON.

Prof. J. P. Kinnett of Sterrett, visited Weldon last week.

The health of this community is reasonably good at this writing.

That cotton blossom found in J. H. R. Carden's patch must have been on his "pet stalk."

Old Mr. G. H. Moore and wife are helpless on account of age, both of whom are about 80 years old.

Crops are fine but there has been too much rain of late, and there is some complaint of rust on cotton.

Miss T. Hammond, one of Columbiana's most charming belles, was a pleasant visitor to Weldon the first of last week. None of the "boys" have looked so disconsolate since her departure it is evident they would be delighted to have her come again soon.

There are many items of a strictly personal character that I could give, but knowing the delicacy of the situation and the sensitiveness of the young people, I will be merciful and not go into details. And yet I cannot refrain from saying that when a young man goes to see his girl and afterwards becomes bewildered, and is next discovered roaming through a watermelon patch, there is food for reflection. "And further deponent saith not."

We cannot see where the pop-reps saved expense by co-operating. One of the leading pops was heard to say a few days ago that they would have to appoint a committee to keep things straight. Then it was said another committee would have to be appointed to keep the other one down to a trot.

JOSHE.

WILSONVILLE.

Franklin Edwards is spending a few days in Anniston.

A. A. Daniels made a trip to Columbiana last week.

H. A. Jackson went to Columbiana Monday on business.

J. R. Kilpatrick went to Columbiana last week on business.

John Daniel of Anniston was in our city last week on particular business.

E. Williamson and O. W. Tinney boarded the southbound train last Sunday and said their destination was Columbiana. They report a very pleasant trip, and quite a lengthy "trip" (as well as expensive) coming home through the mud at a late hour that night.

Embrow Weldon and M. P. Jackson are absolutely "carried away" with Harpersville or some sweet attraction in that locality. They spent three hours there last Sunday, as shown by their watches, but paw! it seemed only a few moments to them, according to their report.

Our "long looked for" Walter McGowan, who has been attending college for several months past, has returned home. His return has gladdened many hearts amongst the young people, the old people, single people, married people, and other hearts and sweethearts generally.

The Wilsonville base ball club was to cross bats with Harpersville last Friday afternoon, but the continued rain kept the boys "snowed under" until last Monday at 3:30 o'clock when the game was called, and all kinds of ball was played. In the absence of one of our best men, we were obliged to play a game of one-up with Harpersville, who had come to witness, or inspire the game, if called upon. We appreciate the kindness and good playing of Mr. Spencer. The score was 9 to 16 in favor of Wilsonville, while the score would show very careless playing on both sides. It was only this way for two and one-half innings. The Harpersville boys were closed out every inning but three or four, and the larger part of this work was done by the almost professional work of the pitcher and catcher of our club.

This was our first attempt for the season, and some of our players had not played ball in three years.

The S. P. L. League congregated last Friday evening as usual. The matter of meeting every Friday night was reconsidered. Voted and carried that we meet only semi-monthly. The program made two weeks previous, being too brief, we thought it well to have some voluntary recitations, which we were fortunate enough to get. Miss Mattie Weldon, though not a member, was so kind as to recite a beautiful piece. Miss Georgia Pope gave us the full history of "how she killed the mouse." This recitation was very comical indeed; nothing furnished the audience with more pleasure and hearty laughter. This in addition to the regular program made it a pleasant entertainment for all present. The program for next meeting is a debate exclusively; subject: "Resolved that the hope of the future affords us greater pleasure than the memory of the past." The entire league participates in this debate and I see no reason why it should not be very interesting.

Mrs. C. J. Christian, of Bessemer, is still visiting her father, W. R. A. Milner.

Compressed air is a good fire extinguisher.

The confounders have been assayed. Result: 0.

This being a dry town we have no "elevators."

Dandruff is due to an enfeebled state of the skin.

The Endeavors are wearing their new badges.

Special medicine for cyclers (!) is now advertised.

Many cyclers avoid intense thirst by chewing gum.

E. S. Lyman, of Montevallo, spent Tuesday in town.

Jacksonville Advertiser: "Sell'm low and let 'em go."

"Price pruners" are at work in the stores—for spot cash.

There is a cry-sis when you can't keep the baby quiet.

D. C. Glenn, of Shelby, was among the callers Tuesday.

Stoves go off occasionally now but they are for "cooking."

The garden hose hasn't had a chance to squirt for some time.

Compressed air can be used for refrigerators instead of ice.

Less carelessness while smoking or we shall have more fires.

W. R. A. Milner made a flying trip to the Magic City Tuesday.

Columbiana is a good distributing point for political rumors.

James Reynolds, of Montevallo, spent last Friday in our city.

Temperance interpretation of it: "Come in and get your beer."

The bikers are disgusted with the weather. Too much moist road.

Mrs. R. B. Haney, of Poplarville, Miss., is visiting at J. P. Spencer's.

Mrs. I. W. Bailey, from Calera, is visiting home folks at the Central.

Rev. Aiken is a fine preacher and every one should attend the services.

Mrs. A. M. Elliott, Sr., of Anniston, is on a visit to her son, A. M. Elliott.

By working in harmony with nature's laws we get to understand them.

E. W. Chapman is a great hunter. He is after the hare (hair) all the time.

Austin Daniels, of Wilsonville, was a visitor in town the latter part of last week.

A combined belt and skirt holder has been invented for ladies. It is cheap.

Misses Lottie and Alma Duran, of Calera, are visiting relatives in our town.

Miss Rosa Graham, of Wilsonville, is visiting her friend, Miss Oza Hammond.

We are all liable to err but to do so on the base ball ground calls for autothema.

How to seat the auditorium in the public school building is under consideration.

As the procession of the days pass on, the focusing of definite political action nears.

Columbiana is well supplied with linens, embracing those from Ireland and Germany.

J. F. and A. H. Avery, two prominent Shelbyites, transacted business here Tuesday.

Miss Eloise Kifer, of Shelby, was a guest of her friend Miss Essie Mason, Saturday and Sunday.

The straight-touts characterize those who have gone over to the pops not as converts, but as perverts.

When the cadets wear only their gray pants they can be mistaken for free delivery postal men.

So many military uniforms are on the streets the Cubans must have a recruiting station hereabouts.

There are a few plug hats around that have evidently been handed down from generation to generation.

Hermann Ginsler, one of Fox's most efficient assistants, went to Birmingham this week on a short visit.

Blue Bells of Scotland, Sweet Marie, White House Bouquet and Beau d'Espagne, are advertised perfumes.

There is considerable demand for fine madras zephyr gingham and beautifully printed corded dimities.

Mrs. T. A. Rhodes of Montgomery and her little grandson are spending a week at Mrs. Laura C. Armstrong's.

Livernan A. M. Elliott has been grinning at the bikers who cannot get around pleasantly in moist weather.

Advertisements appear now in large cities: "Boy wanted; one who can ride a bike." It will soon be the same here.

It is not all to become the father of a baby; soon afterwards you have to become the father of a baby carriage also.

Frank Norris, foreman of the Leader, Longshore's Anniston paper, was in town this week with home folks.

Columbiana has been affected with the twice, recently, due to carelessness connected with smoking on the premises.

G. W. Cressett, one of Shelby's most prominent merchants, dropped in and gave us a nice order for job work Tuesday.

The greatest "fad" of the season is the coat suit. A checked skirt with a coat of solid color is considered just the thing.

I. D. Mason and wife left Saturday for Atlanta. Mr. Mason returned Tuesday. Mrs. Mason will remain some time.

Hop smoking is one of the latest fads of some end-of-the-century society women. The hop smoking will skip this town.

A big tally-ho is on the tapis for the "fishing grounds" when the weather becomes settled and will permit of camping there.

Mrs. Baggs with her charming daughter Miss Susie Baggs, now of Shelby Springs, were guests of Mrs. Hayett Tuesday.

Marshall Cromwell attended the protracted meeting not only to get religion but also to get any of the boys who might not behave.

Preserving manias are now looking around for fruit jars, jelly glasses, jar rubbers, sealing wax, preserve kettles, stone jars and skimmers.

The spasms of rain have retarded the brick work on the new building but it is expected it can be roofed by the latter part of next week.

Tom Ellis, of Birmingham, spent last week with his sister, Mrs. Farmer. Mr. Ellis passed quite a while here last summer. Friends were glad to see him again.

Now that school vacation is on, parents have a lengthened responsibility of taking care of their children themselves, and a monopoly of corporal punishment.

Merchants say "owing to the weather" prices are "melting". Pretty white dress fabrics can be bought cheap. Lawns are offered low. The patterns are many.

Notwithstanding the rain Sunday, Sheriff Nelson became the father of a bouncing young democrat, standard weight. Monday he was doing as well as could be expected.

A. B. Butler, the "station(e)ary" drummer of Selma, who is always "moving" around, was "on the town" Friday. He got some of the goose dinner at The White.

It is not the paper with the largest circulation that is the best to advertise in. That paper is best which circulates among those who have money to spend and who read it.

C. S. Leeper wheeled from Birmingham to Columbiana Monday morning and encased his legs under The White mahogany for dinner at the invitation of his brother.

Thursday, July 2nd, is set for the democratic senatorial convention according to the telegram received here Wednesday from Chairman H. I. Williams of Wetumpka.

Fox has got a new clock from Europe. It strikes the time in both German and English and is a very simple and neat affair, and shows how ingenuity and taste can be combined.

The Ben Hur exhibition took in $4 the first and $6 the second night. The rain knocked it out. Otherwise, there would have been a large attendance, including visitors from surrounding towns.

Licentiate Wm. Murphy will preach next Sunday, morning and evening, at the colored Baptist church in Columbiana. Many white persons contemplate attending church there on that occasion.

Calendar clocks, with barometer and thermometer attachment are highly valuable, and ought to be in use here extensively. When the barometer is going down we want to know it so we can get after it.

In colored dress goods, 40-inch all wool fancy mixtures; 42-inch all pure wool, in beautiful colorings (good wearing fabrics), 38-inch fancy figured beiges, and navy blue all wool serges, are sought after.

It was a coincidence that a doctor was the first elector to vote at the primary on Saturday and Dr. J. Reed Morgan cast the last vote. The medical fraternity were evidently in "attendance" on the primary.

The base ball team will not, for the present, put up a high fence around the diamond but will invite their lady friends to come and sit around on the outside of the players, wearing high and broad tortoise shell combs.

The way the luxuries of life were precipitated on the managers of the primary Saturday it was evident storekeepers regarded them as possessing well developed appetites and a penchant for fine flavored segars.

There was a patent suspender drummer in town this week. He had one of the best articles for holding up pants put upon the market. He was an eastern man, talked like a preacher and favored us with a good deal of it.

After close of campaign, the outs will go back to where they left off and continue their remarks on the psychophysiological indeterminate nongo, homogeneous heterogeneity and the latent mysterious psychical powers in man.

Miss Eva Weaver is very sick with fever at The Central. She had been afflicted before and becoming convalescent was one of the spectators at the recent base ball game. She exposed herself prematurely, which caused the relapse.

Boys who cannot resist talking in church should learn the deaf and dumb language. Besides, they should remember that the congregation lose the benefit of their conversation when they carry it on while the minister is preaching.

Ladies will be pleased to learn that linen note paper is offered at 10 cents a pound, which gives them an opportunity to write a letter at a cost not exceeding 40 cents, exclusive of the postscript, which would make the cost only 60 cents.

The Chronicle turned out this week printed in pamphlet form, the official proceedings of the Shelby Springs (colored) Baptist Sunday school convention held in Aldrich recently. There was no cutting of rate, and prompt pay-besides.

Fire broke out in one of Marshal J. T. Cromwell's outbuildings last Friday 11 a. m. The rain prevented extensive damage. Total loss, about $50. The fire was caused by carelessness while smoking. It is believed on the part of a colored man.

It is a fact there are many more boys than girls in Columbiana. Therefore, boy stock is at a premium. A finely developed young man, with a bright countenance and all the attractiveness of youth, "commands" a girl with alacrity. He is always on a rising market.

J. T. Leeper and brother left 5 a. m. on Tuesday biking it to Anniston. They were very attractive in their short pants and bikers' hose. The question will arise before long whether an attorney-in-short-pants can jump off his bike, rush into court and rush through a case in that costume.

The largest stock of stationery ever received in Shelby county, and embracing the greatest variety also, was received at the Chronicle office this week, thus enabling the establishment to compete in prices, style and quality of stock with any other concern in the state. Our stock of envelopes is absolutely immense.

Rev. T. K. Roberts, of Montgomery, preached at the M. E. church Thursday night to a fair congregation, notwithstanding the unpleasantness of the weather. Text—Matt. 16: 26: "For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul, or, what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"

An authority says: In choosing a milk supply for the baby it is better to select that furnished by ordinary cows, and not by Jersey, Alderney or any other highly bred animals. Ordinary cows are less liable to disease. The highly bred animals are generally delicate, and it is among them that tuberculosis is especially found.

The Chronicle is getting out the annual catalogue for the Wilsonville Male and Female Institute. It will be neatly printed on fine paper, with an elegant cover. There was lively competition for the work but The Chronicle got it, without cutting rates, solely on the merit of the typography and presswork done here.

There has been talk of throwing the second floor of the new brick building now in course of erection, into a nice, cozy little hall that would hold all the people who generally attend exhibitions here and other gatherings; provided however, that positive action is taken that the court room in the county conservatory of law cannot be secured to come in competition with the new enterprise.

It will interest Sunday school workers here to know that on last Tuesday the eighth triennial session of the International Sunday school convention assembled in the Mount Temple, Boston. Two thousand delegates were present. The convention closes tomorrow. The time is occupied in speech making, reports, discussions and plans for advancement in Sunday school work and Bible study.

While preaching was in progress last Sunday night at the colored Baptist church, Rev. Burton Hays officiating, Ella McMichael, a young colored girl fainting, The occurrence created considerable excitement. She remained on the floor of the church, wholly unconscious, for quite a while, the people gathering around her and expecting every moment she would revive. As she did not do so, she was removed from the building and laid on the ground in the open air. But that did not cause her to come to, so she was taken over to the home of Prince Jacobs, and a doctor was sent for. Up to that time she was still unconscious. She did not recover consciousness until about ten o'clock the following morning.

The subject of having a daily meat market here is discussed quite lively, and soon, frequently. There seems to be a wide diversity of opinion. Some hold that if the poodlers were taxed they would not trade here but go to neighboring towns. Others hold that the benefit and "concomitant" to the citizens who could get fresh meat daily is a consideration of importance. And thus the matter stands at present.

Persons here who want to protect their property can use the following fire extinguishing powder: Eight parts common salt, 6 parts sodium bicarbonate, 2 parts Glauber's salt, 2 parts calcium chloride, 2 parts sodium silicate. Also, common salt, 60 per cent; sal ammoniac, 60 per cent; sodium bicarbonate, 80 per cent. 3. Sal ammoniac, 100 per cent; sodium sulphate, 60 per cent; sodium bicarbonate, 40 per cent.

Sam Lefkowitz, of the Columbiana Mercantile Company, who came down from Bessemer to oozene and stretch his legs, returned the latter part of last week with his dinner belt left away out to the last hole. Ere his departure, being shown over the poultry farm, he expressed the great desire to have fat ducks in season, and the remarkable resemblance between him President Cleveland jibe exactly. Both of them are great (united) statesmen.

When the sound of planks was heard the middle of last week, next to Johnston & White's, the rumor went forth that the democratic party had at last decided to have a free (silver) lunch counter for the further development of sound democratic corporality. This is certainly a great step in a high order of civilization and will afford a fine opportunity for savory detective work. It will now be in order for the confusionists to open a pop-pery in the vicinity of the Advocate office.

There was a very recherche dinner at The White last Friday. The Lord Mayor of Columbiana presided and other eminent persons were present: the speeches generally in as good taste as the rich viands were palatable. One of the toasts was: "The women—God bless 'em; may their sleeves never grow less," which is just a shade off from the great Turkish expression: "May your shadow never grow less; Turtle was served a la mode; and one of Manager Fox's favorite geese was in the roast.

Judge McMillan, in going through the records of the probate court, has found several cases where there has been no accounting, or any other proceeding known to the court, for years. Citations have been issued to ascertain what has been done and close up administration as rapidly as possible. This work is elaborate and entails much labor in research. One party was cited this week who took out letters of administration four years ago and has never been heard from since. Other cases run back 15 years without settlement or report.

The following is for the benefit of those who occupy seats under the shade trees: Brain workers should arrange their hours of eating so that vigorous brain work should not come to a halt by the digestion of a hearty meal. While brain workers may require as much food as those who work with their muscles only, they should choose their food with special care so that it may be more readily digested, than where there is active exercise to assist the process. A good diet for brain workers is brown bread, cream, fresh butter, eggs, fish, oatmeal, cheese, a moderate amount of meat and fruit in abundance.

The competition for the principalship of the public schools here continues lively. The mayor and all the aldermen have been approached on the subject, individually and many applications have been filed, some of which are from abroad. There are also many applications for second position and the teachers generally. Prof. Greek is looked upon as a very desirable gentleman to re-elect but as he insists on an increase of salary over what it was last term, the council are in a quandry how they can comply with his proposition and thereby retain him. The whole matter comes before the council next week, Wednesday, July 1.

We had an illustration here last week of how the church is availed of to further purely selfish ends. The Ben Hur exhibition was an illustration of this kind in a very small way. The underlying object was not to aid the public schools primarily but "primarily" to give the owners of that exhibition an opportunity to avoid paying for a license to exhibit. This racket by which word quite brainlessly with other Ben Hur exhibitions, and as Ben Hur has a religious sentiment and connection running through it, it affords the exhibitors opportunity to play successfully on the religious emotion of churchmen and the pious generally.

THAT MURDER CASE.
In view of the case of the negro now in jail here, charged with wife-murder, the following is appropos:

"When a judge and jury have tried an offender and reached a verdict, the appellate court proceeds to try, not the prisoner for his guilt, but the trial judge for his procedure. Unless the latter can show that throughout the long and wearisome trial he made no mistakes, the case is sent back for new trial, and the time the witnesses have generally disappeared. The consequences of prolonged discussions and voluminous judicial essays on such details as the enpaneling of a jury, the spelling of a juror's name, the initials of a witness, or the omission or misstatement of some legal fiction or antiquated phrase, tend not only to move punishment far off from the criminal, but to depreciate the dignity and usefulness of courts. The decision of the court that tried the case comes to be so small consideration in public estimation, what may be said often is reversed by some distant judge who never saw the jury or heard a witness. The court above, after many months of delay, often decides on minute points, sometimes of mere practice, which nonprofessional persons can scarcely regard except with hilarity. Hence frequency of appeal in criminal administration has a mischievous tendency to minimize the respect with which every community should regard its local courts, and to impair the prudent reflection with which the people should select their judges. For what signify the qualities or capacity of a county judge, if he is to be a mere conduit through which all cases where the prisoner has any money must flow on to more distant courts for the only real and final decision?"—L. J. Wistar in June Lippencott's Magazine.

ST. JOHN'S DAY.

Shelby, Wilsonville, Calera and Columbiana Masonic lodges will have a public installation of their officers on Thursday, July 2, in this city. Sunday schools of each place will participate in the celebration. Picnic and band music.

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY.

Polls opened on Saturday at 8:30 a. m., and closed 5 p. m. Managers: A. M. Elliott, J. O. Farmer and J. T. Leeper. Everything passed off harmoniously.

CARD OF THANKS.

Undersigned hereby return thanks to all who so efficiently assisted at the fire last Friday.

MR. AND MRS. J. T. CROMWELL.

PROBATE COURT.

HON. D. B. McMILLAN, JUDGE.

Tuesday last, on petition, trial proceedings to show that Mrs. Armstrong who lives near Shelby, is of unsound mind. She is a widow and 47 years of age. The proceeding was brought to have a guardian appointed, and as the verdict of the jury was in the affirmative, W. R. Carter, of Shelby, was appointed guardian.

PROPOSED MASONIC MOVEMENT.

It is under consideration here to organize a branch of the Eastern Star. There was recently held in New York a convention of the Order of the Eastern Star, which is woman's form of Free Masonry. And a very important organization it is, numbering 124,000 persons, constituting a secret society of women whose relations with each other are those of a sisterhood. They are pledged to perform acts of love, charity and religion, and a special object is the Eastern Star home, where members can live who have been overtaken by sickness, financial misfortune or old age. Meetings of the order are said to be exceedingly pleasing to the artistic sense, the grace and beauty of its members being augmented by the insignia they wear. The emblem of the order is a five-pointed golden star, studded with precious stones. The Order of the Eastern Star was founded about twenty-five years ago. Mrs. Jessie Ray, of New York, is grand matron of the society.

J. Milner has gone to Birmingham with fine, fat cows.

The broad smile, on their return, on the faces of the gentlemen who went to Calera Wednesday indicated everything was lovely and they got there with both legs up and a hoppin'.

The way drummers come in, and the orders they get, show present and prospective business lively, notwithstanding the weather.

GREAT SLAUGHTER SALE.

The Chance of a Life-Time to Get Married
In accordance with the custom, at this season of the year, to sell out below cost to make room for fall trade and stock, Cupid Hammond, ministering angel in charge of the Shelby County Matrimonial Bureau, has decided to make a sacrifice sale of marriage licenses in all shades, colors and designs; full weight; cut on the bias or straight; gored up the back; tucked; ruffled on the bottom or plaited on the sides, all a yard wide and warranted all wool, for the next thirty days. Come early and avoid the rush. These licenses are all guaranteed to wash (three times a day). No unmarried person should be without one. It is the chance of a life time. Don't forget the place. It is one of the two great monopolies in town; the other is the postoffice. Two dollars "in hand" to him paid," will secure one in a nice envelope with a beautiful and broad smile thrown in as a chromo.

PROTRACTED MEETING.

A protracted meeting was opened in the M. E. church here last Sunday. The attendance was good, notwithstanding the unsettled condition of the weather. Rev. T. M. Wilson preached morning and evening. The sermons were stirring and produced good and it is hoped lasting effect. Monday there were prayer meetings and preaching, Rev. F. S. Wilson, of Birmingham, assisting on this occasion. Tuesday great interest was manifested and some of the merchants closed their places of business in the morning and attended. Rev. Aiken arrived from Kynard Tuesday night and preached. All these ministers will be present and continue the meeting for several days yet.

Summer Homes and Resorts.

The Southern railway is the first of our great railway systems to give information to the public and to fix low excursion rates for a summer outing good for return until October 31st, by issuing, with usual promptness, its Summer Home and Resort Book.

It is handsome in design and artistic in every respect having thirty-two beautifully illustrated pages containing the most complete and conveniently arranged information calculated to answer fully and satisfactorily every question likely to be propounded, such as routes and distances, hotels and boarding houses, names of proprietors how to reach them, rates of board by day, week and month, etc.

The Southern offers a choice of mountain and seaside resorts, the surf bathing and sea breezes of some of the most delightful resorts on the Atlantic Coast or the cool mountain breezes of Swannanoa, Asheville, Lookout Mountain and others 2,500 feet above the sea level.

THE GLORIOUS 4TH.

HE church bells are merrily clanging. At the first red flash of the morn, And cannon are flashing and banging. And hoarse peals the ear-splitting horn: On the air floats the banner of glory— New stars its bright azure adorn— And all of the day tells the story When a nation to freedom was born!

All day, through the heat, Sounds the tramp, tramp of feet! 'Tis the rampant small boy, In a frenzy of joy, Over crackers—cracking, And the snappy whack-whacking Of pistols, torpedoes, and such— Ah, for him there is never too much! No pleasure can thrill him, No music can fill him With rapture so sweet As the popping of powder! (Now softer, now louder) And the rub-a-dub beat Of the drum, and the life-stirring scream of the fife. But night, with her mantle of peace, At last shutteth silently down Over country and village and town; For awhile in the air The bright, sky-rendering flare Of the rocket, the sheen Of the candle's tumultuous glare, Out-shining the starlight, are seen— Then quietly, one by one, Like the points down of the sun, The tumult, the glory, the surcease, And the day, that so noisily rose, Sinks down to unbroken repose. Unbroken? Hah!—Bang! bang! bang! bang!— Bang! bang! bang!— Bang!— And the world sleeping is.— C. O. Thomas, in Christian Work.

JASON'S DOUBLE INDEPENDENCE

[Original.] ON'T be much of a holiday to-morrow, I'm afraid," remarked the storekeeper of the prairie settlement to the company gathered in his little room.

"Because the cattle's comin'?" put in a settler from across the creek. "Little thing like that hadn't ought to prevent Lone Prairie's havin' a good time on Fourth o' July."

"We'll have too much to do. The herd's a big one, or Jason Moore would not come in with it."

"His first trip to town in six years, I'm told. A woman was in it—wasn't there?"

"Yes, his girl married another man, or something like that."

Two well-dressed gentlemen, sharp contrast to the settlers, entered. They were buyers from the city at the mouth of the river, come to inspect the big herd of Texas cattle to come in on the range.

"What did you say this peculiar herder's name is?" one of them, tall and dark, asked.

"Jason Moore, the best-known herder on the grazing ground—an' the best one, too, I reckon."

The stranger seemed a little startled, but he only remarked: "Good day for him to come to town—Fourth of July."

"But there ain't much going on that I know of."

There was something going on, and each member of the settlement found out what it was the next morning early when a small boy on horseback made the rounds, firing a large torpedo at every cabin door and announcing to the startled inmates that a flag-raising would take place at noon out at the schoolhouse.

"Guess we might as well go out and see the fun," remarked George Harlan, the dark-visaged stock buyer. "It's mighty dull hereabouts."

"All right," added his friend, and the two went across the level plains with the rest toward the tiny schoolhouse, set in the midst of the prairie five miles away. A few cottonwood trees were making a brave effort to shade the yard, but were somewhat bent by the steady south winds.

A considerable company of farmers, ranchmen, boys and girls, wives and sweethearts, were gathered and the teacher, pretty, blue-eyed Anna Leland, was busied of all arranging the programme and preparing for the raising of the silk flag which some friends in her old home in western New York had sent to the school.

"Now, Mr. Graham," to the storekeeper, "I shall ask you for a speech."

"Don't do it—I'll break down," yet everybody knew that he could talk longer than any speaker on Lone Prairie.

As the strangers rode up they were closely watched by the settlers and the assembled families. Harlan was a graceful rider, and not even the Texas pony on which he was mounted could unseat him. He was not in time to see the school-teacher, for she had gone inside the building.

the ranches we've been lookin' for, an' it ain't a mile away."

Silently they gazed. Then, as if a commander had come out of the midst of an army, a single horseman was distinguishable in front of the wall of dust and was evidently advancing on the schoolhouse group, gaining rapidly on the herd, now visible, plodding along behind.

"It's the boss herder, comin' in to pick a camp," remarked Graham.

He was right. In a few minutes a wide-hatted, handsome cowboy dashed up and dismounted, his big spurs jingling merrily as he walked.

"Well," he began, with a light smile breaking over his naturally stern features, "are you here to give me a reception?"

"Hardly," said Graham, coming forward; "we didn't expect you quite yet."

"We're here, just the same, and the cattle are coming fast, too. They're anxious."

He was right. The herd had advanced very fast and the settlers were all on the opposite side of the schoolhouse watching the approach.

As the herder stood there beside the steps, with the bridle reins hanging loosely to his arm, suddenly came a vision in the doorway. It was a young woman, dressed in a fresh pink gown; she had laughing blue eyes and a pleasant face.

But the face grew pale and the girl started back nervously. "Applaud!" said the herder, in a voice which told of deep emotion.

"Jason!" Her words were as strangely spoken.

For a moment neither said more; then the herder went on:

"Why are you out here?"

"Why shouldn't I be? We couldn't all live on that little Illinois farm, and wages are better out here on the prairies than there."

"But—but they told me you were married—to Harlan."

"Who told you?"

"It came from him, I think, and if I find him—"

"Hush—you can find him, for he is not far off. I saw him pass the window a moment ago. He, too, is a westerner and is buying cattle."

"I've been raising them, out on the Texas plains, an' I have almost forgot I had a country, so long has it been since I saw civilization. This is my first trip in from the ranch in four years or more."

"Well, you'll know you have a country on this trip, for to-day is the Fourth of July."

"Is that why all these folks are gathered here?"

"Yes, and I'm to have a flag-raising."

Jason's brown face colored and with a bow in which Anna thought she realized some of his old-time courtliness, he leaped in the saddle, pressed the spurs deep into his pony's flanks and was off.

Faster and faster until the pony fairly flew over the level sod, but the herder was also advancing. The stranger who lay on the ground looked pitifully at the destroyers. The crowd of spectators at the schoolhouse was intensely interested and excited and wondered what the outcome was to be.

Boldly Jason rode and well. He plunged in ahead of the foremost cattle and with a speed which kept him in the lead made a direct course for Harlan. The latter had half risen and was, bewildered, awaiting his destiny. As Moore drew nearer he was recognized and Harlan felt deep down in his heart that his case was hopeless. For the instant that the two men grazed into each others eyes the old fire of hatred shone—but Jason did not even tighten the reins. He felt for that instant how easy it would be to fall but he did not intend to.

Catching one spur safely in the cinch straps he leaned far over in the opposite direction until his brassy hand could sweep the grasses. The cattle were not ten feet away and a single slip meant a life.

But he did not make it. The trembling form of Harlan met the strong wrist and arm of his rival and Harlan was swung across the saddle bow. Then on and on like the wind, taking the precious lead to a place of safety. When he had reached it and the avalanche went roaring by, only to be stopped after miles of mad racing by the mere force of weariness, they rode more leisurely.

"Blessed if he ain't fainted," was Jason's first comment when he reached the schoolhouse and laid his burden on one of the long desks. But Harlan was not seriously disabled. Some water in his face revived him, an ex-physicsian among the settlers pulled a dislocated limb into place and he looked like himself again.

The rescuer, avoiding the crowd that came forward to praise him for his bravery, sought the blue-eyed woman whose heart he thought he now knew beyond a doubt.

"He's all right," Jason began. "Thanks to you, sir."

"I don't care to be thanked," bitterly. "I've sat up nights hating that man out there on the ranches—I don't hate him now, but I don't care to have too much glory out of this thing for fear I will."

Anna said nothing. She was a very clever woman. "Come," she called to the settlers. "It is 12 o'clock and the stars and stripes are waiting for the prairie breezes to kiss them." Several young people giggled.

In a moment all were seated on the grass in front of the building and the teacher stood before them. They sang whistle of a quail—anything sudden and strange. In this case it was a Fourth of July firecracker, and it did its work well.

"Bang!" A thousand heads were raised. Bellowing sounds came from the leaders' throats; forefeet stamped angrily and then came the start! With heads thrown back, a dozen steers started off on their wild career. Hundreds followed them, and soon the herd was in motion. It became a blind, unreasoning horde, carrying death to whatever living thing came in its way and controllable only by adroit side-riding of the cowboys.

Jason and the school-teacher stood watching the transformation. They saw, besides the hurrying herders, a stranger in a light suit riding fast in front of the herd.

"That," spoke the girl, "is Harlan." Jason strained his eyes, gazing at the man. Then he turned to watch his companion jealously. Did she feel an interest in Harlan? He could not tell.

Then something happened. In an instant, the twinkling of an eye, the horse Harlan was riding gave a lurch and fell headlong, his rider partly under it. Coolly Jason watched them. The horse was evidently hurt, for it did not rise—neither did the man, though he freed himself from the saddle.

But why need Harlan rise—a dozen rods away came the wave of flesh which was to make of himself and horse an indistinguishable mass hammered into the sod by thousands of hoofs.

Jason knew this and he felt conscience-stricken that his heart contemplated the catastrophe rather gladly than otherwise. What could he do anyway?

That he could do something was evidently the school-teacher's view, for turning to the boss herder, she spoke clearly and firmly one little word—but its speaking meant life or death. It was: "Go!"

Jason's brown face colored and with a bow in which Anna thought she realized some of his old-time courtliness, he leaped in the saddle, pressed the spurs deep into his pony's flanks and was off.

Faster and faster until the pony fairly flew over the level sod, but the herder was also advancing. The stranger who lay on the ground looked pitifully at the destroyers. The crowd of spectators at the schoolhouse was intensely interested and excited and wondered what the outcome was to be.

In a moment all were seated on the grass in front of the building and the teacher stood before them. They sang "America," and then Miss Leland came forward.

"There are two kinds of independence," she began, "one of country and the other of heart. This flag we are about to raise will teach us the first, and yet the other is of as much importance. To-day a member of this circle, strangely brought among us, has thrown away a needless slavery which has bound his heart. He has a new independence that will make him better and worthier." Then she told them how the flag was sent her, the scholar of the school read the Declaration and amid the racket of a dozen of the largest firecrackers, the silken banner was pulled up the pole and its folds floated proudly in the breeze.

While Mr. Graham made his speech, Anna went to the other side of the schoolhouse—and Jason followed.

"Did you mean that?" he whispered. "Mean what?" Anna was very innocent, as well as clever.

"That word 'needless'?" "Did I say that?—probably I meant it."

A small boy who peeped around the corner was greatly shocked to see the big-boarded cowboy kiss the teacher.

"I don't believe," remarked Jason, a little later, "that my independence did me much good. I seem to have lost it again mighty quick."

Anna did not argue the question. CHARLES MOREAU HARGER.

OUR INDEPENDENCE DAY.

The Inspiring Effect of Its Observance Upon the Minds of the Young.

The Fourth of July stands to-day as it has stood some hundred and twenty years, the nation's chief holiday. We sing of our flag: "It made and preserves us a nation." The same might be said and sung of this gay anniversary.

It is a significant and inspiring fact that the day is so hugely enjoyed by the young. One unacquainted with its exact import might be led to suppose it was some great holiday especially appointed for the delectation of the youth of the land. Inherent in their rollicking hearts seems to lurk and live the impression that the day with its racket and din was created for the boys and girls of the country—rather more particularly for the boys. Yes, it is inspiring to see them, inscribed on every many little crest seem to glare the words: "Verily, we are the people!" and who betide the mistaken stranger who might on this auspicious day essay to take the spirit of independence out of them. It makes the tears start very often, it must be confessed, in older eyes, when the smart little company in knickerbockers and paper feathers goes racking by, the latent patriotism discernible in the very tramp of the juvenile heels, and the awful law of the responsive tin horn. The inevitable outcome of it all occurs to the older mind, and the question flashes: will the boy later on be on the right side in the tumult of life? It has been told that a father was once forcibly reminded of the strength of his influence with his son, when on seating himself at a hotel table the waiter inquired of the lad what he would have to drink: "What-ever my father has," was the swift response. The unquestioning faith and assurance of safety in following his parent's example might well give rise to caution and prudence on the parent's part.

"My father says so," is what forms the grand ultimatum of proof or conviction in the loyal hearts of most of our boys; and so, "what father says" should be guarded with exceeding care. It is true everything goes toward feeding and adding to the natural enthusiasm awakened by our Independence day. The flag floating from the schoolhouse; the observances and orations of Memorial day; the firecrackers, cannon and fireworks of the Fourth of July. Recently, also, in some of our public schools the Declaration of Independence has been repeated in concert by the scholars until its time-honored paragraphs are ineffaceably placed in the retentive memories. And the marching high-school battalions are highly suggestive of the spirit of the times. This spirit of patriotism and independence is as irrepressible as the waves that beat along the shore. It comes from way beyond any teaching the child has directly received concerning such matters, and is as spontaneous and natural as the breath he draws. It is as undeniably and evidently a God-given instinct as is love of the little innocent heart for those who are its nearest and its dearest.

Instincts in human beings need training, and even spontaneous impulses are to be molded and guided by those looked up to as examples. In the excitement of a rather fierce debate bearing on political matters two gentlemen were awhile ago checked by the presence of a little lad whose interest in the discussion caused him to throw in a word or two on his own account. The disputants suddenly paused, laughed a little at the anxious concern of the listening boy, and straightway proceeded to discuss matters in less heated terms. It would be an excellently good thing if many properly inclined men could so shape their conversation on absorbing topics as to render it entirely fit for the ears of their attentive children. He serves his country most worthily who lives purely and uprightly, and who by both precept and example leads those committed to his care into paths of rectitude and right. Living and teaching thus, the true man and patriot establishes for himself and for his children a basis of real independence enabling them to recognize, to love and to defend the right. It has been men of stamp who have helped to upbuild our glorious republic.

"He serves his country best. Who lives pure life, and doeth righteous deed. And walks straight paths, however others stray. And leaves his sons as uttermost bequest. A stainless record which all men may read: This is a better way."

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

The Monetary Market Awaiting the Chicago Nominations and Action on the Silver Question—Many Cotton Mills Closing Down—Good Crop Reports Cause a Reaction in Wheat—Hoot and Shoe Industry Booming—Leather Lower, Etc.

NEW YORK, June 27.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their commercial review today say:

Figures for the week have been 27 in the United States, against 250 last year, and 24 in Canada, against 23 last year.

The monetary outlook is not yet clear to some. The strength shown in recent conventions by advocates of silver coinage and expectation that all the elements favoring that policy may yet be concentrated, incline men to a waiting attitude. The uncertainty retards improvement, notwithstanding the more widely prevalent feeling that the monetary action of the St. Louis convention will be sustained by the people.

But many mills have waited as long as they can with safety and signatures have been given cotton mills of Fall River to insure a temporary stoppage, it is said, the nature of which is under discussion in conference with the Providence manufacturers. Meanwhile the Pacific, of Lawrence, and the Naumkeag, of Salem, have closed for a time and practically all the southern cotton mills will be represented at a meeting on Monday with the same object.

Woolen mills are active without concert, but 14 are mentioned in dispatches as having closed this week. There is no similar movement in other industries, though the period of summer closing is at hand in many of them and important controversies as to the wages of iron puddlers and other hands make it likely that the annual stoppage in that industry may last longer than usual.

The weakness of wheat, which has declined 2.10 cents, and of cotton, which is an eighth lower for spots, though loss for futures, have full explanation in decidedly good crop prospects.

It may be doubted whether the boot and shoe industry has ever been in better shape on the whole, though manufacturers complain that an advance in price is necessary, which dealers are very reluctant to pay.

Leather is slightly lower for kinds not controlled by the Leather company, and at Chicago packer hides are steady, while country have advanced a shade with small receipts. Copper is held at 11.75 cents. Lead is hardening at 3.05 cents, and American tin plates are well sold at 15 cents below foreign.

The great combinations which, the iron age wisely reasons, tended to cause disastrously low prices for labor, still control the market, both for material and finished products of iron and steel, though it is reported that lower prices will be soon made for coke, owing to better utilization of products, and for nails, owing to heavy decrease in consumption. The billet pool reports no large sales, but middlemen or outsiders continue to undersell them.

The new demand for finished products is very light, and while quotations average a shade lower, most of them are cut to secure business.

Bessemer pig is a shade lower at $12.25 at Pittsburgh.

The textile manufacturers, as has been said, are generally devising curtailment of production, and the only change in prices is downward.

LANDLORDS' CLAIMS

Against the Tippecanoe Club of Cleveland, O.

CLEVELAND, O., June 27.—Landlord Miller, of the St. James Hotel, St. Louis, came to town yesterday and asked the Tippecanoe club to pay him a little over $4,000.

"The committee having charge of the pilgrimage to the convention," said one of its members, "agreed to send him $500 people. We sent five to him and they paid their own bills. We did not send more because the contract was cancelled."

"It was our intention to quarter a number of the colored delegates in the hotel. Mr. Miller sent us a written statement to the effect that he would not receive them. Then we notified him that we would not be bound by the contract."

Mr. Miller says he will bring suit if he does not get the money. The Lindell hotel, St. Louis has a claim for $3,000 against the club. The members say they have a good defense, but are not ready to make it public.

TERRIFIC EXPLOSION.

Which Cost at Least Two Lives, Caused by a Child.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 27.—A terrific explosion of blasting powder occurred at the Petros (Tenn.) railway station for state convict mines at Brushy Mountain, Thursday afternoon. It demolished the general store and hotel kept by Sam Joyner. Several kegs of powder which were in the building were evidently ignited by Willie Joyner, the little son of the proprietor, who was burned to death. A stranger named Maiden was killed, and a number of persons in the building seriously injured. Mrs. Elizabeth Schubert, manager of the hotel, was perhaps fatally hurt. A relief train with physicians was dispatched to the scene from Harriman.

A CRUSH AT CANTON.

Five Thousand Women Attend a Reception to Maj. McKinley and to His Wife and Aged Mother—Stirring Speech by Mrs. Alice Danno Jones, Which Brought Tears to the Eyes of Her Auditors—McKinley's Life Commended.

CANTON, O., June 27.—The reception by the ladies of Canton to Maj. and Mrs. McKinley and the venerable mother of Maj. McKinley, indicates that the candidate nominated at St. Louis appeals in some way with great power to the sentiment of the women of this community, for they came forth by the hundred and by the thousand, without regard to party or sect or color, to do honor to Maj. McKinley and the two ladies. For more than two hours an unbroken stream of women, two and sometimes three abreast, passed in at the front doors of the spacious Miller residence, thence to the receiving room and out by a side door. There were women of all ages and condition. Young girls of 12, grandmothers and great-grandmothers pushed in side by side. Substantial matrons of the city, wives of the great manufacturers were crowded between bevels of shop girls and typewriters. There were pretty girls, homely girls, stylish girls and girls plainly from the country and the country dressmaker.

It was a good-natured, smiling crowd, and it numbered 5,000. While the women walked through the house, the orchestra, concealed behind a great bank of ferns, palms and flowers played and the movement of 500 tongues did not wholly drown it. The house was a bower of bloom and verdure. Hundreds of roses, carnations and potted plants had been used with a happy skill by the decorators. The girl typewriters all said it was "simply elegant," and there is no doubt that the effect was a charming and satisfactory one. The flowers and palms were thickly studded with tiny electric bulbs. The light of day was excluded, and when the incandescent burners blazed forth amid bloom and leaves and from the ceiling, the spectacle was a radiant one.

The reception commenced with a speech. It was made by a Canton lady, Mrs. Alice Danno Jones. Mrs. Jones stood in the window of the reception room and spoke to the sea of bobbing parasols on the lawn. This was before the doors were opened and the assembling hosts of women had to listen to the speech or go away. None of them went, for the speech was good and is destined to have wide currency in the campaign. It was just the sort of speech the good people of Canton wanted to hear, and during its delivery many a woman indulged in the luxury of a furtive tear. Among other things Mrs. Jones said:

"Fourteen years ago, on the Sunday following his nomination, James A. Garfield walked into the old home church, bearing on his arm his aged mother, and on last Sabbath morning into the church of his early faith walked our future president, and with him walked his mother. With home anchorage such as this, we women have no fears that under the coming administration heartbreaks will burn dinner or counting rooms be closed. Our men may deal with questions of tariff and finance and political policy; we women believe that the importance of pure living is higher than all, and are satisfied that should you be called to preside over the destinies of the nation, we shall have a man at the head with a character so pure and a record so untarnished that any mother here to-day would feel proud to know that the steps of their little boys might be in lines parallel with his."

All the mothers with little boys felt the future glow with hope when the speaker uttered these words, and they applauded her vigorously when she finished.

Maj. McKinley in a dozen words thanked the ladies for their presence and took his place with his wife and mother to receive the women of his town. The reception to-day was the first formal expression on the part of the women of the liking they have for Maj. McKinley, and it was a very unique social and significant function.

WORKED FOR NAUGHT.

A Daring Attempt at Bank Robbery Cleverly Thwarted.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 27.—One of the most daring attempts at bank robbery ever perpetrated was discovered by the local police a few days ago, and the facts are just made public. A suit of mud-stained clothing was recently found in the rooms occupied by three noted crooks, which led the police to suspect that the trio were tunneling under some bank or safe deposit vault. Search was instituted, and it was discovered that the vaults of the First national bank had been undermined. A saloon, 100 feet distant from the bank building, was placed under surveillance and secret examination of the premises disclosed a tunnel two and a half feet square leading in a direct line from the cellar of the saloon to the basement of the bank. In the cellar was found a tub containing 31 sticks of dynamite and a quantity of gun powder. The tools used in digging were also found carefully concealed in the tunnel. The discovery was made none too soon, for another day's work would have sufficed to weaken the vaults enough to permit the use of explosives with certain success.

PROMPT JUSTICE

Meted Out to the Murderer of Elsie Kregle at Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Irvin Ford, colored, was hanged in the district jail for the murder of Elsie Kregle, a 16-year-old white girl. His execution marked the culmination of the quickest case on record where the death penalty was legally indicted for a capital crime in the District of Columbia. The murder was committed on May 4. Ford was arrested May 7, indicted May 11, tried and convicted May 18 and sentenced on the 27th.

TENSION RELIEVED

By the Release of Crown Surveyor Harris on Response to Mr. Olney's Request, Although Clearly Arrested on Venezuelan Soil—English Claim in England Against Venezuela Expected to Subside and Arbitration to Preval.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—Senator Rojas' dispatch announcing Surveyor Harrison's release relieved the state department and diplomatic circles of the tremendous tension they have been under for several days, notwithstanding the prevailing confidence that the blame would not be found to rest altogether with the Venezuelans.

The main question which is understood to have caused Secretary Olney the most concern was the exact location of Harrison's defiance of the written Venezuelan protest.

All doubts on this point were set aside when the geographical experts consulted decided that the proposed line of road from the upper Barima to the Cuyuni, where the surveying party was stopped, was clearly west of the Schomburgk line, and therefore in territory which the British had hitherto refrained from violating.

The Acaabari river and the Schomburgk line are identical at and near the Cuyuni, the Venezuelan district in which the arrest was made being named for the river.

A number of Englishmen and Americans are engaged in mining and other pursuits in this district, but they recognize Venezuelan jurisdiction and operate under Venezuelan licenses. The British Guiana police militia has not attempted to exercise authority in the district.

It is thought among officials that in view of the latest developments public clamor in England against the Venezuelans will promptly subside, and that in a spirit of fair play the authorities of the South American republic will be treated hereafter with much greater respect. Under such circumstances confidence is expressed that the incident will give a strong impetus to the movement in favor of settling the whole question through arbitration, instead of doing all that had been accomplished through Secretary Olney's firm and persistent demand that all boundary disputes on the American continent must be included in any general arbitration treaty between England and the United States. Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British ambassador, had an interview with Secretary Olney yesterday afternoon, presumably on that point.

YELLOW JACK IN CUBA.

The Drend Disease Has Made Its Appearance and Will Soon Become Epidemic.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—The most alarming report from Cuba with respect to yellow fever comes from Sagua la Grande, where the marine hospital service is advised by its last report that there are 41 cases and four deaths. It is expected that within a very short time the fever will become epidemic, and if it does not become virulent in the city of Havana all previous experiences will be set aside. The department has, however, received no advice to the effect that cholera has appeared anywhere on the island.

The present war and its relation to the sanitary condition of Cuba is referred to in the last annual report of Surgeon-General Wyman and the statements then made will represent the conditions of this summer, only in a more aggravated form. On this subject Gen. Wyman then said that the insurance had interfered to a great extent in the transmission of exact information from the disturbed provinces and the normal condition of health in the island had been largely modified by the presence of a great body of non-immune Spanish soldiers. These persons have taken the disease, and added to the natural number of cases annually prevalent in that island. The difficulties experienced last summer will be met with again this year. Accurate knowledge as to the number of troops stricken with the disease is denied by the Spanish government. The reports from Havana last year showed a total of 1,593 cases, and a mortality of 30 per cent.

This summer special precautions will be taken to prevent the introduction from Cuba into the United States of yellow fever. Each of the four revenue cutters patrolling the Florida coast carries sanitary inspectors to intercept fishing smacks and other vessels coming direct from Cuba with no intent to enter legally any port of entry, and also for the purpose of intercepting any returning filibustering expedition or refugees seeking to land surreptitiously.

"MARKED DOWN"—The confusionists.

THE confusionists are a two-headed monstrosity.

CAN it be that the "nigger" and the "buckra" have buried the hatchet?

THE straightout republicans are going to meet and lift the mortgage the pops put on their party.

IX August, the pops will weigh in at 1; repubs, 100; dems, 1,000.

THE Chronicle has no objection to a gold plank in its business platform.

THE silverites claim that sound money means "all sound" and little money.

Alabama Leader: "We are here for business. This paper cannot be run on wind." Other pop papers are doing it.

"NEVER put off till tomorrow what you can do today."—Proverb. Which applies to any one in arrears to this office.

WE see it stated that the western free silverites object to the new Jerusalem because its streets are paved with gold.

WE are sorry to announce that since the primaries several of the gentlemen who were candidates have got the lockjaw.

IT is evident Adam and Eve chawed, from the following: "Adam's Pepsin and Tutti Fruit Chewing Gum, all flavors, pkg, 4c."

POLITICAL lumber will go down after the great national conventions as then there will be a full number of planks in the platforms.

SOME of the general line of public speakers who will ascend the stump ere long have got their speeches well prepared and nicely packed in the form of compressed air.

AS now comes the assertion that says: "The cause of the hard times in most industries is owing to the bicycle." It takes a roll of greenbacks or its equivalent, to get a roll of bike.

ACCORDING to Leuwelock there are animalcules so small that 100,000 of them could be hidden under the finest grain of sand. If this is true the entire populists party of Shelby county could be completely hidden under one of said animalcules after the August election.

HARVARD COLLEGE has just conferred the honorary degree of Master of Arts upon Booker T. Washington, principal of the Tuskegee Normal & Industrial Institute. This is the first and only honorary degree ever bestowed by Harvard upon a colored man. A better subject among his race for such an honor could not have been selected.

HOBART.

The republican nominee for vice president may be unknown to the illiterate, but he can be easily located by us profound Latin scholars. He belongs to an irregular congregation and conjugation, whose present tense runs as follows:

Hobo, Hobamms,
Hobas, Hobatis,

HERE in Alabama we see the populists, who everyone of them claim to be for free silver, hobnobbing with the gold bug republicans to defeat the democratic free coinage candidate for governor. Presto! At St. Louis we see the populist national committee in secret conclave with the bolting free silver republicans and issuing a call to their party to unite with the bolters to defeat the gold bug republican candidate for the presidency. What sort of a party is it, anyway?—Opelika News.

HAIR-SPLITTING on a legal technicality has released another alleged criminal, this time in Minnesota. The crime alleged was forgery, and the indictment charged the defendant with having fraudulently and feloniously uttered and disposed of a forged instrument then knowing the same to be forged. That would appear to the lay mind to be sufficiently definite. But it happens that the statute, in defining forgery, makes the crime to be the uttering of a forged document "as true." The words "as true" were omitted from the indictment, and this, in the opinion of the supreme court, was a fatal defect.

THE confusionists machinery has slipped another cog, and the executive committee has been called to meet today to patch up the break, oil up the joints, and start the rickety old combination to moving again. The republican nominee for county superintendent of education, S. S. Holbrook, or more properly speaking, the republican who nominated himself for the above office, has suddenly awakened to the fact that his health will not permit of his performing the duties of the office if elected, so he very promptly sent in his resignation. It will now devolve upon the committee to find another victim from the republican ranks. Dollars to doughnuts it will be Eugene Williams.

BILL STEPHENS, colored delegate to the St. Louis convention, and now boss of the republican party of Alabama, was asked while in St. Louis by an enterprising reporter to give his views on the money question. The following is his reply which you can figure out at your leisure:

WE ought to have a sound currency, an honest dollar, three in one and one in three. I favor both gold and silver, with malice toward none and good will to all mankind. And we ought to have a far-reaching employment of the material wealth of our urgent occasion so far as is consistent with conscientious regard for ultimate valuations and co-ordinate circumstances basically considered and gently, firmly treated. If our platform shall declare some simple point principle as this, the ticket will elect itself without anybody voting for it.

IMMENSE crowds are visiting the late residence of Mr. Jeff Wallace, a prominent planter in the Killingsworth neighborhood, in Bibb county, twelve miles south of Randolph, who died a short while ago. Mr. Wallis had dropsy, and before he died strange black spots appeared on his body. After the funeral, when the room in which he died was scoured out, black spots were found on the floor under the bed, exactly corresponding to the spots on the dead man's body, and no amount of scouring would bring them out. The strangest thing is the spots came and go and move from place to place about the floor, and no matter where the spots stop they cannot be scoured out. If a plank is put down in the track of the shadow, as it moves across the floor, the shadow does not show on the plank, but jumps to the other side apparently. The phenomenon is causing a great deal of excitement, and people from three counties have visited the house and viewed it. There is no denying the facts and no explanation has been found for the strange spots says the Lurven Journal.

It May Do as Much for You.

Mr. Fred Miller, of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a severe kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure of all kidney troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle. THE POPS.

How They Talked About Fusion in Their Convention—The Bargain Four Years Ago to be Repeated.

The State Herald has had access to a full stenographic report of everything said in the populist convention at Montgomery on April 28th last, and gives extracts very interesting to democrats and populists. These extracts are the very words uttered:

Mr. Hobson of Tuscaloosa—"I feel it is my bounden" duty in view of the suspicion that exists * * * occasioned by the fact that there was a deal made in 1892 at Lakeview, unknown to the mass of the party, by which the entire electoral delegation of Alabama was to go to the goldbug Harrison.

Mr. Hobson—"The democrats of Alabama have adopted our platform in toto. Shall we let them crowd us out? Suppose the republican convention adopts a gold or straddle platform, as it will, and the national democratic convention declares for free silver? Gentlemen, where will that leave us? We will be tied (by fusion) to a goldbug party. They (the democrats) have also declared for fair elections. They can demoralize and disintegrate our forces if we put a republican on our ticket. They claim to be in favor of fair elections. What right have we to say they are not sincere? We thank the republicans for what they have done for us. We voted for their congressmen, we helped to elect their electoral ticket, and our debt of gratitude has been paid. We have 2,000 white men in Tuscaloosa. Put one republican on our ticket and we lose 1,000 of them. I don't want to lose a populist vote, and I know we would lose votes in Tuscaloosa county and they would vote for Joseph F. Johnston for Governor.

Sam Adams—No goldbug John Sherman republican is coming into this party to drive me out, and I want to say as certain as republicans are put on the populist ticket the very next demand is going to be to divide the electoral ticket, and if the republican convention adopts a goldbug platform at least half the populist ticket will be bound to stand by the nominee of that convention. There is more behind this than the mere question of the election in August.

Mr. Spear of St. Clair—"I have registered an oath in my heart never to vote for any man that belongs to a goldbug party.

Mr. Hobson—"We have had fusion in hundreds of instances. In every case it has proven disastrous * * * It has left a train of dissatisfaction in its wake; it has been as bloody as the battles of the Huns; it has disrupted the populist party in almost every instance. Nearly every populist paper in the United States opposes fusion.

Mr. Adams—"I think we had better re-organize the people's party in Alabama. It is about as good a time as we will ever get.

Mr. M. W. Whatley, Clay county—Mr. Grinnett says he is a republican and that he cannot afford to say he will not support the nominee of his party for president, no matter what the platform may be on silver.

Mr. Yearby, of Tuscaloosa—Mr. Grinnett said that the republican party was the party of his youth and he expected to vote for the nominees for president and vice president if nominated on a gold platform.

Mr. Longshore, of Shelby—He (Grinnett) stood by our ticket, but it is an utter impossibility in Alabama to elect a man on that ticket who says openly that he will vote for a goldbug.

The people where I live have declared they would not vote for any man who would vote for a goldbug. Mr. Grinnett has said he would support a candidate on a gold platform. It will lose him enough votes in North Alabama to defeat him, and it would be useless to put him on the ticket.

Dr. Crowe—"In 1892 when Chris McFee came to Alabama and persuaded the people's party to join with the republicans it made me sick at heart.

Mr. Oliver—"I asked him (Smith) if he was for free coinage of silver and he said he was, but was not a stickler for it.

Mr. Longshore—"And he said once positively that he would not endorse our platform.

Mr. J. H. Parsons, of Jefferson—"The populists aided in electing two republicans to congress. Didn't we know when we entered into the alliance with them four years ago what their views were.

Mr. Hobson—"It is better to lose the entire state and keep our organization intact, votes we will get in August than to drive off 1000 populists.

Delegate from Etowah—"We had a county convention on Friday and nominated a republican for tax collector. We called him before the convention and asked him: Mr. Stevens, are you a republican? He said he was. Then 200 of our men jumped up and said they would not support him, and furthermore, they said if that is to be the consequence we will vote for Joseph F. Johnston, and today if this convention puts men on the ticket who will vote for McKinley, Etowah county will be lost to us, and many other white counties up our way. I say today if we make the mistake of fusing with republicans we will lose more good populist voters than we will gain republicans.

Mr. Longshore—"Were there any men in that convention who would support Capt. Joseph F. Johnston? Delegate—"Yes, sir. They understand Johnston's situation exactly, but they have been democrats all their lives up to two or four years ago, and they say rather than support a John Sherman republican they will vote for Johnston.

WONDERFUL THINGS THAT ARE NEAR.

The Philadelphia Press says: "Flying is solved. The principle is known. A mechanical expedient is all that is now needed to make it successful. Practical flight is to-day not more than five or ten years off.

"A glowworm makes light with about one three-hundredth part of the force used in ordinary artificial light. When men know how to make light as cheap, streets and homes will be as light as day for a more fraction of what light now costs. This is near. Vacuum illumination without incandescence is already in full operation, and in a year or two should cut down the price of light to a sixth of its current cost, and in five or ten years light in a city may be, like water, turned on in every house at will.

"Compressed air has long been known to be the best way, theoretically, to store force for use in transportation. There is no waste and no deterioration. The need is a cheap and efficient motor to apply compressed air to city transportation. If this can be done, first the trolley poles and wires will come down, next the horseless, air-compressed motor carriage will do all the work of city delivery.

"When these changes come the only use for gas will be for cooking—if this is not done by electricity. Factories, also, before many years, will be run by transmitted electric power. This has begun to be done and in five or ten years will be completed, and the factory fire and boiler will be a thing of the past.

"The city of the future, and no very distant future, will have no trolley poles or wires and no horses. All movements will be on rails by silent air motors or by horseless carriages equally silent. All pavements will be asphalt. Unlimited light will be as cheap as unlimited water is today. No coal will be delivered at private houses and no ashes taken from them. With no horses, no coal and no ashes street dust and dirt will be reduced to a minimum. With no factory fires and no kitchen or furnace fires, the air will be as pure in the city as in the country. Trees will have a chance. Houses will be warmed and lighted as easily and cheaply as they are now supplied with water.

"A city will be a pretty nice place to live in when the first twenty years of the twentieth century are passed."

Low Rates for July 4th Over the L. & N.

"On account of the unusual preparation being made at Anniston for the fourth of July celebration the L. & N. R. R. has arranged for a special train service on that date, leaving Calera 6:30 a. m. in Columbiana 7:45 a. m. arriving at Anniston 10:30 a. m. Tickets will be sold at the remarkably low rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip. See agent at your station and get rate and time of trains as a good time is in store for all who attend."

Tickets will be on sale July 3rd and 4th, good returning until midnight July 25th, and these tickets will be honored on the regular as well as special trains."

A so't job—picking out work for the fool-killer.

Mrs. Chas. Sparks, of Shelby, visited friends here Monday.

After all, an aching heart does not hurt like a tight shoe.

The Commissioners court will meet in regular session Monday.

T. R. Wagner, of Syluria, transacted business here Tuesday.

A. F. Smith and wife, of Shelby, were visitors in town Sunday.

Miss Alma Duran, of Calera, is a guest of friends in town this week.

Robert Beavers, Esq., left Tuesday for a visit to his old home Vincent.

Frank Jackson, of Kynufga, spent Saturday with friends in our town.

Miss Mary Liles is spending the week at the Chautauqua in Talladega.

D. A. Cromwell, of Montgomery, spent Friday last with relatives here.

W. F. Thoford, Jr., left Tuesday for a visit to Talladega and Anniston.

Frank Spears and Robert Oliver, of Shelby, attended church here Monday night.

Mrs. S. L. Husbands, of Valdosta, Ga., is on a visit to her father, Rev. Mr. Liles.

Miss Georgia Leeper, of Birmingham is on a visit to friends in this her former home.

Miss Georgia Cromwell is visiting friends and relatives in Clanton and Maplesville.

The road to happiness like the straight and narrow way is apparently difficult to find.

J. S. Falkner spent Sunday with home folks at Sterrett, returning here Monday afternoon.

Representative N. A. Graham and wife, of Calera, spent Tuesday with Columbiana friends.

Miss Lucy Smith is in Talladega this week in attendance upon the meeting of the Alabama Educational Association.

Haller says that a single female house fly will lay 20,000, 320 eggs in one season. A partial explanation of the abundant crop this year.

Henry Milner has treated himself to a new bike, and by the way, it's a ladies bike. Does he hope to substitute it for a family carriage.

We are enjoying an abundant crop of blackberries this season, and our housewives are busy putting them up in various ways for winter use.

The protracted meeting closed Tuesday night, and the results are very encouraging. Twelve were added to the church, and great and permanent good, we trust, was done.

J. W. Dyke and Miss Emma Millstead, Geo. Mason and Miss Elva Greek, John Wilner and Miss Myrtle Swain, Horace Hammond and Miss Alma Duran, had a merry trip to Shelby Springs Tuesday afternoon.

Unintentionally the name of J. M. Babb, the democratic nominee for coronator, was omitted from the county ticket. However, as he will be the next coronator dead sure, he can readily forget the omission, and begin to feel good.

The matter of paying off the county scrip has repeatedly been brought before the commissioners court for action, and will be decided at the July term. There seems to be a strong sentiment in favor of favorable action by the court.

Another new building a certainty in the near future. J. G. Parker intends at an early day to tear down his present dwelling and put up in its stead a handsome five-room cottage residence. The plan is being drawn now, and in a short time the contract will be let.

The new watch is said to have a photograph cylinder hidden away, and at the hour and each quarter of an hour a tiny voice will be heard giving you the exact time. You will simply touch a spring, hold the watch to your ear, and the little fairy on the inside will whisper the hour.

Next Tuesday the city council will meet in regular session. The first important business to be transacted will be the selection of a principal and three assistants for the free school. There are quite a number of applications and a lively tussle for the positions is a certainty. We hope no mistakes will be made.

The masonic installation and Sunday school celebration to be held today in the grove near W. G. Parker's residence promises to be largely attended. Ex-Gov. Cobb will deliver an address to the Masons, and it is the intention of the committee on program to have several short speeches to the children by the superintendents of the various Sunday schools represented. Shelby, Calera, Wilsonville, and people from other towns near by will, we hope, turn out in force. A most enjoyable day is promised all who attend.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

John Latham, of British, and Della Albright of near Columbiana; Wright Elliott and Mrs. Francis Williamson, of Shelby, the latter couple colored.

French Nabors, aged 78 years, died very unexpectedly at his home in Montevallo Sunday night. True he had been in feeble health several months, but Sunday afternoon he was up sitting on the porch. He was a staunch democrat, an esteemed citizen, a kind, affectionate husband and father. Our sympathies go out to the bereft family.

It is current rumor on our streets that the postmaster at Calera is thinking seriously of resigning. He says a certain chronic loafer of the town who spends most of his time about the office, and who is too indolent to shoo the flies off when they light on him, has so demoralized his lies that it is necessary to take a club and actually kill the pesky things in order to get rid of them.

As a fitting tribute of high esteem, and as a mark of confidence the democracy of Shelby county have again called Hon. W. B. Browne to the responsible position of chairman of the county executive committee. He has demonstrated his ability in former campaigns and has always come off victorious. That he will do so again goes without saying. He is a certain winner.

The county democratic executive committee held a meeting here Tuesday. Only two or three beats were not represented. Encouraging reports were brought from every portion of the county of daily accessions to our ranks. The committeemen are active, zealous democrats, many of whom wear the scars of many hard-fought political battles, and they are ready now to again buckle on the armor of democracy and fight gallantly for victory in August. And they'll win, too.

Mrs. D. A. Cromwell, who has been with her sister, Mrs. Huyett, received a telegram last Wednesday stating the sudden death of her brother, John Fraser. Mr. Fraser was attending the Baptist picnic from Montgomery at White Hall, and seemingly, was in perfect health, having spent all the forenoon in playing with the children and contributing generally to the happiness of the day. After dinner he was throwing rope for the little ones, and all at once complained of feeling tired, when he turned to sit down and immediately fell dead. It is conjectured he drank too much ice water, yet the cause must have been heart failure. Mr. Fraser has been in the cotton business for years in Montgomery, was a man well liked and of many noble characteristics. Mrs. Cromwell's many friends here deeply sympathize with her.

Miss Alice Kinnett, of Woodward, came over Sunday to visit relatives and friends, who welcome her in their midst.

J. S. Falkner, of Columbiana, spent Sunday with home folks and —

The protracted meeting here will embrace the fourth Sunday in July. It is to be hoped that we will have a good meeting.

The Cahaba Valley Association meets here Saturday before second Sunday in September.

SLY JERRY.

LEWIS.

A heavy rain fell Friday night on Four Mile.

Geo. Powell and wife, of Butler's mill, spent Saturday on Four Mile.

Died, at his home on Four Mile, June 26th inst. Hugh W. Elliott. He has been an invalid for several years, aged about 60 years.

Died, near this place on June 26th inst., infant of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Powell.

Hurrah for beat 9, it has one candidate in the round this time, which is Mr. Daniels. That will make a good run. Of course he is the man for the office.

Jas. W. Horsley will leave tomorrow for Sylacauga, to be absent several days.

The favorite hymn among our young people is: "He arose."

Bright and early Sunday morning Messrs. L. B. and G. W. Riddle, Jno. Lyon and Gleeves Jackson rigged up their wagon and accompanied by Misses Myrtle and Alma Jackson, Florence Adams and Mattie Ray drove up to Union church about 5 miles north of here and witnessed a grand singing and happy occasion, of which all seem to be proud.

I am very sorry that the correspondent from Reeswax to the Advocate, has so plainly shown his ignorance to the public as to try to slur Nero, whom he know she cannot. He knows very well that it is not the man that boasts so much that gains the victory. I would like very well to buy Mr. X for what he really is worth, and then sell him for what he thinks his value is. As to politics he knows nothing of them. Mr. X may try to slur me again but you'll not find me a baby.

NERO.

Our farmers are laying by their crops as fast as they can.

Mrs. J. E. Crane who has been on the sick list, we are glad to say is improving some.

T. A. Nivens spent the latter part of week before last at Pelham, at the exhibition.

J. R. Adams staid in Weldon town last Saturday night and reports a fine time. Go again old boy.

Misses Luna and Velfa Jackson accompanied by T. A. Nivens and J. R. Adams went to the singing at W. A. Weldon's last Sunday night.

Miss Mary Weldon has accepted the position as school mistress, at Mt. Carmel high school.

Mrs. Nora Lester, who has spent the last two weeks with her many friends here, returned to her home in Columbiana last Saturday.

CRESWELL.

Miss Mattie Lowe, from the Kelley Creek neighborhood, spent last week with relatives and friends here, returning home Sunday.

G. W. Wallis, Jr., visited his brother, G. T. Wallis and family at Lawiers Sunday.

J. E. Stone, of Talladega, was down last week on business.

Mark the man or woman who see something good in everybody; there goes a magnificent soul. Also mark the one who seeks and sees something bad in everybody, there goes a dangerous soul.

Mrs. D. Fitch received a telegram a few days ago that her father at Birmingham was very low and she went over to see him. We are sorry to learn he is not improving any.

H. M. Judge came down from Birmingham Monday, to spend a few days.

May some of our beautiful young ladies be more thoughtful in the future and not talk and laugh so much in church especially during prayer and the preacher looking at them.

Rev. Mr. Warren will preach at the residence of Jack German (not Gorman) on Saturday night before the third Sunday in July. Let all go out and hear him.

A protracted meeting will commence at the Baptist church on Saturday before the fourth Sunday in July. Some have talked of making it a union meeting, and we hope they will do so. We are strong believers in union.

Rev. Mr. Sauls, of Childersburg, filled Rev. F. G. Mullen's place at the Baptist church last Sunday; but as the writer was neither here nor there we cannot give his theme, but all seem to be highly pleased with his sermon. So did Rev. Mr. Warren, Presbyterian, fill his appointment the third Sunday, and Rev. W. J. Ray filled his the second Sunday, both preaching good sermons to large congregations, but the writer being unavoidably late again failed to get their themes.

CHOCTAW.

WILSONVILLE.

Miss Willie Trennen, of Birmingham is the guest of Miss Sue Self.

Miss Mamie Taylor, of Talladega, is visiting Miss Lula Densler this week.

Come to the debate Friday night at the Wilsonville Institute.

Chas. Arnold was seen amongst the many drummers that were in town last week.

E. DuRamus is one of the Wilsonville bicyclist of the day. It is quite a sport to see him mount a twenty-eight inch wheel as it is almost as high as he is.

W. J. Tinney has accepted a position at the Pipe Works of Anniston, Ala. We were very sorry to see him depart for various reasons one of which is that he was our best ball player and it crippled our team very badly.

Rev. J. W. Cary has been assisting in a protracted meeting in Columbiana for several days past, but has at last returned home.

Messrs. Joe and Ed Spencer, Greeds, Thoford and H. C. DuBose spent last Friday and Friday night with us. There was an entertainment offered but on account of the heavy rain storm about dark it was a failure.

Prof. J. B. Kilpatrick preached two interesting sermons last Sunday. The subject or text, standpoint or golden rule or "simply," for morning was: "As a vesture shalt thou fold them up." For the evening same subject continued. We are always pleased to hear Professor preach and we never fail to give him a large congregation.

The "cross-eyed poet" (as I'm called by some of my Columbiana readers), will publish but few poems hereafter, the absence of these poems will no doubt meet the hearty approval of all the readers of my column. I know not who gave me the new name, but they, he, she or it, must be a poplite or some kind of "lights" in the upper story." My appearance might make them think that my eyes are crossed. But my tongue and words of rebuke are not continuously falling around their pathway.

The ladies (both young and old) of our city treated the Wilsonville baseball team to an ice cream festival, for the benefit of their financial standing. This festival was an entire success in every respect. In addition to the people of our town the two Mr. Aveyerts and Messrs. Spears and Mosely, of Shelby, were present. While the cream was being served and it became a thing of the past, the entertainment was grand. This occurred Tuesday night beneath the spreading oaks; tangled vines and in the midst of the — at Mrs. Densler's.

The ball team having received and accepted a challenge from the Shelby ball club, to play us on our ground Friday caused a great deal of unnecessary trouble and expense, as they failed to show up. Our club was on the ground ready to play ball at the appointed hour, with the majority of the young people of Wilsonville to witness the game, accompanied by some of our Columbiana friends. We are sorry indeed that they did not appear as promised. Strictly obeying the rules the umpire declared the game 9 to 0 in our favor.

BOURGEOIS.

Democrats May Control the Senate.

Washington Star (Ind.).

The silver bolt at St. Louis makes it among the probabilities that the democrats will be in a decided majority in the upper house next winter. The short session from December to inauguration day promises, therefore, to be one of the most exciting and interesting ever held in the history of the country. The effect of the bolt, however, goes further than the coming winter and appears to jeopardize the chances of republican success in the effort that the party has been making to control both branches of the national legislature in the 55th congress, the first congress of the coming administration. According to the computation the chances appear to be against the republicans in this endeavor.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else. Then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles sent by Dr. King's New Discovery drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

Cheap Rates to the Chautauqua.

In order to accommodate the people who desire to attend the exercises of the Alabama Chautauqua Assembly at Talladega, between July 2nd and 31st the Louisville & Nashville R. R. has arranged to put tickets on sale from all points in Alabama at one fare for the round trip. These tickets will be put on sale July 27th and will be good for return passage until July 31st. COMMERCE AND INDUSTRY.

The Brazilian sugar crop is reported to be an average one this year. Cedar wood is now being exported from Argentina to the United States by way of trial. The royal arsenal at Woolwich employs about 15,000 workmen, and has 40 miles of internal railways. There are 19,140,420 acres of timber lands in southern states, and the average yield of these forests is 3,000 feet per acre. The railway clearing house is one of the largest offices in Britain. It has a staff of 1,600 clerks and 450 out-of-door officers. The trade returns of Canada for the first nine months of the fiscal year show an increase in exports and imports of $11,826,817 over the corresponding period of the last fiscal year.

THE WORLD OVER.

Eleven thousand brass bands play for the Salvation Army. England imports about 400,000 packs of playing cards yearly. From the latest census it seems that there are 2,741,949 gypsies in Hungary. In England there is only one place of worship to about every 4,000 persons. A flywheel in Germany is made of steel wire. The wheel is 23 feet in diameter and 250 miles of wire were used in its construction. One of the best-informed deputies in congress in Argentina says that there is a unanimous determination to insist upon the Argentine contention concerning the Chilian boundary, and that if it means war this will be accepted and that there will be no arbitration as to that point.

"SIXTEEN TO ONE."

The "Mainest Thing" in the Rocky Creek Settlement.

A Follower of Fashion Who Bought Sixteen New Brides to One Poor Old Mule—Blev Scroggins Wanted to Move.

have got to do is to pack your wallet and come down into the most lovely strip of country in the round created world and mix and mingle around amongst the folks and live and listen and learn.

"Old Git" Sanders Now.

Now as for me, all I know—and you can stake your side whiskers and your Sunday boots I do know that for certain—is that at our house we most in generally always have about sixteen wants to one dollar. And it rales make but blame little difference with me whether it comes in gold or silver or paper so long as the feed bills and the store account stack up again us at the rates of sixteen to one. What shall we wear, what shall we eat, what shall we drink, and whereabout will we raise the necessary coinage—that covers all the ground for me.

Naturally, of course, I don't put my mouth up as anybody's prayer book, and there ain't no laws of compellment to make you believe everything I write and say. But I will bet sixteen good mules to one blind steer that I have got more than any livin' man in 17 states and territories. Every time I go to town it is daddly git this, and Rufus git that, and Rufe git somethin' else. Consequentially I have now took and changed my maiden name from Rufus to "Old Git." On my return back home the last time I went to town, when I first driv up I called mother and the children out to the wagon to help me unload the productions, and then I give out the new name and laid down the law. And I wouldn't be plum square and honest if I didn't own up to you that I used more plain United States language than Bible words by at least sixteen to one.

"By the seven stars and the Milky Way," says I to mother and the risin' generation of the Sanders race, "don't call me daddy and don't call me Rufus and don't call me Rufe any more. Dad blame it, that ain't my name nohow. By gattins give me a name that will fit the man and jest call me Old Git Sanders."

John Andrews Milligan is now out as a free silver candidate for the legislature, and he told me the other day if he wins his fight—which he thinks he will by a majority of somethin' like sixteen to one—he will work up and pass a law to make my new name stick.

"Sixteen to One" Connerway.

But let me write and tell you, white people, that old man Matthew Connerway—"Sixteen to One," as everybody calls him now—is way yonder the happiest as well as the most craziest mortal in all the regions round Rocky Creek this summer. He lives right over there in the hill country, and for the last three years—every day and every hour, wet or cold, hot or dry, at home or abroad, in sickness or in health—he has been preachin' forth the doctrine of free silver at the rates of sixteen to one.

And you, now, old man Connerway ain't the only sixteen to one free silver man in the settlement. You would have to burn the woods and sift the ashes to find sixteen men around here that ain't preachin' from the same text and fightin' under the same flag. But in the main time when "Sixteen to One" Connerway caught the disease he caught a tremendous bad case of it. And what was worse and still more of it, about the same time he was took down with a right hard spell of runnin' off at the mouth. He went forth into the highways and the hedges and talked free silver at sixteen to one so rapid and so constant, and preached the same old sermon from the same text over and over and over till now bless gracious he has went slap kerdab crazy on the question. He heft up under the strain right tolerable well till late along in the spring, when it come to pass that free silver was the winnin' card all around, and then it would seem like the old man couldn't stand it no longer. His head gearins jumped a cog, somethin' broke, and hereinafter after that "Sixteen to One" Connerway has been a standin' candidate for the Crazy Sileam.

To show you what a furious bad case of it the old man has got, the next day after we got the news that Tennessee had went a windin' for free silver he went to town, and I am all sorts of a liar if he didn't put in and buy sixteen new brides for one poor old mule. I took particular notice of the old man as he rid by our house on his return back home that evenin', and from general appearances I would judge that he had bit off about sixteen plugs of white whisky in one day.

Here we were last Luke Connerway's girl baby—which Luke and his wife live in the house with old "Sixteen to One," and they had three boys to one girl—she took sick with the slow fever and died. And whilst nobody would of thought it, the old man got up the next mornin' at first daybreak and took his spade and lit out and went over to the old Ebenezer graveyard. It was way up into the day before his folks could find him, and then, low and behold! he had dug sixteen graves for that one dead baby girl.

It is a real sad case if you think about it right sober like and serious, but, according to old man Connerway's present plans of government and money, and politics and religion, and life and death, everything in the whole discovered world must stack up and fill in and match out at the rates of sixteen to one.

A "Close Call" for Scroggins.

At the last regular meeting of the Rocky Creek Farmers' club Blev Scroggins—which you understand, Blev talks a whole passel sometimes jest simply because the good Lord, in the wisdom of His grace and mercy, give him somethin' to talk with—Blev he spit it out as his private opinions in the Connerway case that when the old man went crazy he didn't have no very dur long journey to make. "The mainest trouble with the old man," says Blev, "was about sixteen ounces of skull to one spoonful of brains."

Of course, that is none of my business, and it wouldn't be right for me to say whether Blev was right or wrong in a general way. But there was two of the Connerway boys in the meetin', and it took some monstrous fast and fancy work to keep down the sheddin' of human blood and stave off a second-class funeral in the settlement.

You will take notice that my friend and fellow-citizen, Blev Scroggins, ain't no sixteen to one free silver man. He don't even sort half way make out like he is, and since the cards have been runnin' the other way like a shot, Blev has got his bristles up considerable. He gives it out in a crowd over at Cool Springs church on the last meetin' day that he was goin' to yoke up his oxen and pack his wagon and move off down into the cow country amongst the gall-berry thickets and see if he couldn't find a little patch of earth where everybody hadn't went crazy for free silver at sixteen to one. I reckon, though, that Blev was only talkin' that day to see how his voice would sound through his new straw hat. At any rates, I don't know where he would go to find that "little patch of earth" which he is lookin' for.

"No Such a Place on Earth."

That puts me in mind of Josh Maynard and the way in which he got wound up when the democratic cyclone struck this country—along in the fall of 1892, if I don't remember wrong.

You see Josh Maynard he lives up there in one of the mountain counties of North Alabama close to the Tennessee line. For years and years he had been servin' the people and the state as high constable of Stump Hill Beat, and since way back there before the war the republicans had been havin' their own way in Stump Hill by a round and safe majority. But in that election the democratic flag floated in triumph over all the ground from the mountains to the wiregrass country. Stump Hill smashed the records and swung over into the democratic columns. Consequentially when the storm was over and the smoke cleared away John Frank Adkins, a little red-headed school teacher, and a screamin' democrat, was high constable of Stump Hill Beat, and if there ever was a man which had the livin' socks beat off of him Josh Maynard went home barefooted that night.

Anyhow Josh went home foamatin', furious mad, and give it out that he was then ready to move his washin' right away immediately, and sooner than that if possible.

"Tear down and pack up, Miss Gracie," says Josh to his wife, "for to-morrow we will move and shake the dust of Stump Hill from our feet forever. For the first time since the battle of New Orleans were fit Stump Hill Beat has gone devil bent for the democrats and the old flag trails in the dust of desolation and defeat. By hokey I can't live and raise our children in such a lost and ruin'd country. I jest simply can't stand it, and I'll be durned if I don't move off somewhere else and find some spot where freedom still lives and the people ain't all fools."

Then Josh he got on his horse and rid over to the railroad station to hear the election news, thinkin' he might maybe stand the pain somewhat better if he could but only hear from a few points where the republicans had held their ground and whipped the fight. But all the news that come was set to democratic music, and from what Josh could hear and pick up it looked to him like the democrats had swept the earth as with a new broom. So presently he remounted and rid on back towards home. In the main time Miss Gracie she was tearin' down and packin' up to beat six bits.

"Wait, Miss Gracie, don't do that," says Josh, as he come in and found his wife turnin' the clothes chest wrong side out.

"What in the name of sense is the matter with you, Josh?" says Miss Gracie. "Didn't you tell me to tear down and pack up and we would move off somewhere else to a spot where everything ain't gone devil bent for the democrats?"

"That's what I said, but I reckon we mought as well live and die in Stump Hill Beat," responded Josh. "I would love to move, Miss Gracie, but, dad blame it, there is no such a place on earth."

Owin to bad seasons there is a right smart talk around amongst the farmers to the extent that corn has been overshot. Andy Lucens says his corn must of overshot itself, cause if it shot at all it "missed the whole darn field."

But in the main time our Aunt Nancy Newton she ain't gone nowhere. She has sent word by Andrew Jim that she will try and git in amongst us one day next week, fly bonnet, old pipe, thankay bad and all.

RUFUS SANDERS.

His Nerve Saved His Life.

Len Henry, a well-known pioneer, relates an adventure that is out of the usual order. He was traveling on a narrow rail above the raging Grande Bonde river when he came to a landslide about 20 feet across that left no trail or even a niche in the smooth, precipitous rock. The trail was so narrow that the horse could not turn back. He was trapped. Above the 20-foot break in the trail was a sharp crag of overhanging rock. On his saddle bow was a strong rope 60 feet long, and Henry is an expert in the use of it. He steadied himself upon the saddle, swung the rope over his head, and hurled it high in the air. It settled firmly over the crag. He tried to carefully. It was firm. His saddle was a new and strong one, with double cinches. Around the horn he wound the rope. He urged the horse on to the edge of the precipice. The faithful beast stood firm. He would not step over, but the rider drew up the slack and pulled with all his power. Inch by inch he drew the straining horse forward till his feet slipped and he swung over the chasm. The rider held his breath as he looked at the river below and the slender rope above, but he was across the gap. He sprang up the trail and tugged at the reins to aid the horse in gaining his feet. He pulled, and the horse leaped up into the trail with the chasm back behind.—Angonia Standard.

M'KINLEY HAS NO CINCH.

His Political Ambition May Yet Be Crushed to Earth.

The republican managers are already indulging in a beautiful pipe dream of success in November. They are quite unmindful of the known divisions within their party and of the recognized weakness of Maj. McKinley on the financial question in the east. They figure that his election is certain, and are already gossiping freely about the changes that he will make in the tariff schedules next March. One bright promise that they offer the business world is that in the event of his election he will summon congress in extraordinary session at once. One of the pilgrims that went out to the republican Mecca at Canton has returned, and says that it is the intention of the Ohio man, if elected, to call an extra session of congress immediately after his inauguration. This call will be made on the first day of March next, and will specify that the purpose of the session is to consider the tariff question. According to this statement congress would meet on the 15th day of next March, and be in session no one knows how long. The republican high tariff advocates who are counting upon so many chickens in advance of their hatching profess to be delighted with this promise of an early return of the high tariff agitation. But many conservative republicans, particularly from the eastern states, regard this advance declaration of what McKinley will do if elected as apt to prove very dangerous to republican prospects in this campaign. What the business interests of the country most desire at this time, according to these gentlemen, is an opportunity for rest and recuperation. The agitation of tariff and silver questions they hold to be mainly responsible for the desperate depression for the last three or four years. Except for the class termed "robber barons," eastern manufacturers and business men are well satisfied with the Wilson law. Even extremists among eastern republican manufacturers do not desire it changed in any important particulars. And even those who do wish to see it changed are not prepared for the wholesale tearing up that is proposed by McKinley enthusiasts.

Still another class of prominent republicans are much disgruntled with this announcement of the McKinley policy. They hold that no effort on the part of McKinley can put the tariff question ahead of the financial question. They believe the tariff question is settled, if not to the entire satisfaction of all, at least so that it meets the approval of a large majority of our people and should remain as it is for some years. The financial question, however, demands immediate adjustment, and its settlement should form the principal feature of any administration that comes into control of the government next March. The McKinley cry of protection and immediate prosperity is not popular in the east, however satisfactory it may be to that large element that hopes to get office in case the Ohio protectionist is elected, and that small class of tariff lords that wishes to resume its interrupted dominations over the people.—Detroit Free Press.

WHERE IS THE FLOOD?

A Republican Prophecy That Has Come to Naught.

In rebuttal of the oft-repeated statement that this country under the operation of the present tariff is being "flooded with foreign goods," it may be noted that the treasury statistics show that the value of the imports during 1895, both free and dutiable goods, was less than the average annual value during the four years 1891-94, inclusive. That the alleged "flood" will be found very much lower when the statistics for the fiscal year which ends on June 30 are made up is certified by the figures already made public.

The most noteworthy feature about the decline is as it affects dry goods, and in this respect in the figures for recent months the falling off is still further emphasized. During the current calendar year the dry goods entered at this port amounted in value to $56,179,704, against $66,432,240 during the corresponding period of 1895, a decrease of nearly $10,000,000, or something like 20 per cent. On no class of goods is the decline so marked as in importations of woollens, which have shown a constant falling off during the present calendar year. * * * The sufficiency of the existing tariff as a revenue producer would probably be fully demonstrated in the event of a change to still higher duties being a "sure thing." The "flood of foreign merchandise" would then in reality set in, and while the change would be followed by a period of stagnation, for the time being the increased imports would clearly show the amount of revenue that could have been produced had prosperity but followed the enactment of the present scale of duties. And that prosperity would have been ours but for the reckless desire on the part of a portion of our citizens to upset the present standard of value.—Dry Goods Economist.

Lack of Discipline.

If the work of drilling and directing the McKinley cohorts during the campaign is to be assigned to Mr. Hanna, of Cleveland, he will have to instruct some of his recruits not to march before the order is given. The publication in the World of the McKinley letter of 1890 to the Stark County Farmers' alliance, favoring the use of all the silver product of the country, has caused a great deal of confusion in the ranks. Some of the supervisable editors of the McKinley organs rush forward to dispose of the question by calling it a "fake letter." This shows strange lack of discipline. The assertion is at variance with the statement of Mr. Hanna, who has probably known of the existence of the letter all the time. He contents himself with saying that "the letter was written in 1890. McKinley stands on his record."—N. Y. World.

The people are to be robbed in two ways. They are to receive 50-cent dollars at the rate of 100 cents as currency and are to pay from 50 to 100 per cent in the increased cost of goods produced by the tariff. This is the pernicious combination of silver and tariff designated as McKinleyism. It is the product of the Fifty-first republican congress, in the McKinley tariff and Sherman silver purchase act, which is to be revised in the election of McKinley as president.—Chicago Chronicle.

THE ADJOURNED CONGRESS.

Some Fine Specimens of Republican Statesmanship.

Congress is adjourned. With what brilliant promises the country was regaled for 13 months prior to December, 1895, of what would be done for business as soon as the republican congress assembled! And what a bitter and humiliating failure and worse than failure has to be acknowledged! Congressional capacity never before showed so small. Legislative ability never was so lacking. Statesmanship was altogether absent. Politicians were in the majority. The congress that promised so much good legislation devoted itself to playing politics with the result that it brought upon itself the greatest measures of discredit and contempt. Nothing was accomplished for the treasury, the nation's finances, the currency or the business prosperity of the country. It was a do-nothing congress, in every respect but one. It spent the people's money as it never was spent before. The total appropriations for this session of congress are upwards of $515,000,000, according to republican figures. To this must be added more than $100,000,000 which will have to be appropriated by future congresses to carry out works authorized by this congress. In river and harbor improvements alone the future appropriations necessary amount to $65,000,000. So that while congress did nothing to replenish the treasury, nothing to increase the revenue, nothing to improve the currency system, it spent a greater sum than ever was spent at a first session before, and it mortgaged the treasury to the future for more than $100,000,000.

That is republican statesmanship! The revenues last year amounted to $300,000,000. The deficit was $42,000,000. The total revenue this year will be something more. The deficit will be reduced to about $25,000,000, because of economies in the last democratic congress. Congress knew the condition of the treasury. It is known that the revenues have not equaled the expenditures for several years. That has been the subject of unstinted republican complaint and criticism. But instead of addressing itself to the task of correcting the difficulty, the republicans went to work to increase the trouble. It spent $515,000,000 on an income of $325,000,000, and it will leave to the administration the task of finding the money. That is republican statesmanship as illustrated by the present congress, republican in both branches, and having in the lower house Thomas B. Reed for speaker, whose fame rests on his boast of "doing business." How long would it take such a congress to make a total wreck of this country if the firm, restraining hand of Grover Cleveland did not hold the executive pen?—Utica Observer.

THE RIGHT TO ISSUE BONDS.

Republicans Change Their Views to Suit Their Own Ends.

Since republican senators, as well as the populists, have raised the question whether the secretary of the treasury has the right to issue bonds under the resumption act, it is worth while to note what was the construction put upon the act about the time when it went into operation. Mr. Sherman, secretary of the treasury at that time, said in his report of 1878, shortly before the resumption of specie payments: "The power to sell any of the bonds described in the resumption act continues after as well as before resumption. Though it may not be often used, it is essential to enable this department to meet emergencies. By its exercise it is anticipated that the treasury at any time can readily obtain coin to reinforce the reserve already accumulated."

This was the contemporary construction put upon the act by the party in power and acquiesced in by the members of that party, including, no doubt, many of those that are now calling the power in question. Mr. Sherman goes on to say that the power to reissue United States notes was conferred by section 3579 of the revised statutes, and was not limited by the resumption act. A different opinion, however, prevailed in congress, for the act of May 31, 1878, was passed especially to prohibit the cancellation of greenbacks redeemed.

Mr. Sherman received great praise from his party on account of the successful resumption of special payments while he was secretary of the treasury. His construction of the law was generally acquiesced in then and ever afterward until the beginning of the present administration. Since then many republicans have vainly denounced the issue of bonds to maintain the public credit, simply because it was done by a democratic administration. Now, some of them go so far as to say that the issue of bonds is illegal.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

—If it is all the same to Mr. Manley, Mr. Reed would like to cash in his own chips hereafter when he contemplates quitting the game.—Washington Star.

—McKinley mildly and theoretically disapproved trusts when running for governor of Ohio, but he has shown no symptoms of disapproving their contributions to his campaign fund.—N. Y. World.

—The alliance between McKinley and the leading members of the presidential trust, Platt and Quay, will make the men who preached of McKinley's abhorrence of bosses, feel sheepish.—Utica Observer.

—"Mars Hanna," said the colored delegate, "we wants to know how Mars McKinley stands on de money question. Our delegates is mighty uncertain, sah." And Hanna grinned. "Money question, eh? Well how much does de business?"—Albany Argus.

—Great is Hanna, of the hypnotized republicans! Just now and for a few months more he will be at the top of the heap. It will then rest with the electorate to determine whether the man whom they rejected shall become the ostensible head of the nation, with Mark Hanna, his maker, the real thing.—Detroit Free Press.

—It is interesting to see the inside workings of the republican machine, and to observe how the deal is put up which is supposed to carry with it the next presidency, without regard to the individual views of the millions of voters whose assent is necessary to success, and without a glimmer of devotion to those larger and truer and fiercer ideals, by which alone this country can prosper or be secure. It is the bosses, big and little, the machine men, who are now in the saddle. They are conducting this campaign from first to last as a heavy mercantile transaction. Will the deal work?—St. Paul Globe.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

AFFIDAVITS were filed in Justice Tancey's court at Fort Wayne, Ind., on the 29th, against the players of the Fort Wayne and Saginaw baseball clubs, charging them with engaging in a game of baseball on Sunday in violation of the Indiana state law. The complaining witness was Rev. J. S. Ainslie, of the Congregational church. Rev. Mr. Ainslie is backed by the Ministerial association.

A NOTICE was posted in the Pemberton mills, at Lawrence, Mass., on the 30th, informing 200 operatives that the plant would shut down on Friday, July 3, and remain closed until September 8. Agent F. Clark explained that it was intended to make important repairs, and advantage is taken of the time to do this.

At Newport, Ky., on the 29th, Judge Helm overruled the motion for a new trial for Alonzo Walling, convicted as an accomplice of Scott Jackson, in the murder of Pearl Bryant. The appeals of Walling and Jackson can not be heard by the appellate court at Frankfort before the September term.

JOHN MCGINNEN and John O'Brien, both men of many aliases and both notorious bank robbers, were captured in Vancouver, B. C., on the 28th, by a Portland Ore., detective, and were housed in the Clark county jail. A man giving his name as Fred Martin, who was with the pair, was also arrested.

THREE unknown men near Muskogee, Okla., on the morning of the 29th, stole a work train engine, and ran it to Choctaw City, where they abandoned the engine and took to the woods. The railroad company has offered a reward for the capture of the robbers.

A PARTY of berry pickers, consisting of Alexander Anger, aged 40, his cousin Gene LaFornie and two nieces, Liza and Annie Anger, three girls of ten or twelve years, were struck by a train on the Massachusetts Central road near Worcester, Mass., on the 30th. They saw the train coming and ran for their lives, and had almost reached a place of safety when the engine struck them. The Anger girls were instantly killed, the LaFornie girl's leg was broken and the man's head was badly injured.

WORK on the largest fire engine in the world was completed, on the 30th, at the shops of a Cincinnati fire engine company. The boiler is 70 inches long and 40 inches in diameter. The two steam cylinders and two pumps are each, respectively, 10 inches long and 6 inches in diameter. The stroke is 9 inches. At full speed the engine's capacity is 1,300 gallons per minute. It was built for the Grand Rapids (Mich.) fire department.

FRANK IVES, the champion billiard player of the world, has made a will, in which he bequeaths his right arm to his physician for dissection. He does this in order that men of science may determine why he strikes a billiard ball harder than any other man living. Corbett, Fitzsimmons, Sandow and other athletes and strong men have competed with him and he has not been beaten yet.

THERE was no change in the situation in the Twin Shaft mine at Pittston, Pa., on the 30th. The rescuers continued to work hard in their endeavor to reach the entombed miners, and rapid progress was being made.

By the overturning of a boat in Lake Massapoag, near Sharon, Mass., on the 30th, Choir-master Brackett and four other boys of St. John's Episcopal church, Charlestown, Mass., who had gone there for a week's recreation, were drowned. Two other boys who were in the boat were saved.

It is stated that Gen. Jacques Nicolas Leger has been appointed minister to the United States from Hayti to succeed Mr. Clement Hietjacs, resigned. The new minister is expected to arrive during July.

The treasury deficit for the fiscal year ended on the 30th foots up $25,500,000; for the past three years the deficit aggregates $137,500,000.

FIDEL G. PERRA, a member of the Cuban junta and chairman of the Cuban Fair committee, called upon Gen. Tomas Estrada Palma in New York, on the 30th, and handed him a check for $5,000, the first installment of the proceeds of the Cuban fair. "This is not all," said Mr. Perera. "As soon as we settle up completely, I expect to give you another check."

A DELEGATION of citizens of New York and Brooklyn called on Gov. Morton, on the 30th, and urged executive clemency in behalf of John W. McKane, the former Gravesend boss. A personal letter from McKane to the governor was presented by the delegation. It urged that McKane had fully atoned for his crime, and that outraged justice had been satisfied.

It is considered probable, at Havana, that Gen. Bradley Johnson, who has been acting as the correspondent of a New York newspaper, will have to leave Cuba on account of the reports which he has sent to the United States regarding Cuban affairs. By an explosion of ammunition during a fire in the arsenal near Fort Moselle, in the German province of Lorraine, on the night of the 30th, 42 men were killed and 199 others badly injured.

THE Cheyenne Indians in Montana have dawned their war paint and are holding pow-wows, preparatory to a general uprising. Several troops of the Tenth cavalry have been ordered from Fort Custer to the Cheyenne agency at Lame Deer, Custer county, Mont. The Cheyennes have been unusually indolent this spring.

CHARLES W. CLARK, son of W. A. Clark, the millionaire mine owner, banker and politician, and Miss Catherine Q. Roberts, of Helena, a young stenographer, were married at Butte, Mont., on the 30th. The groom's father presented him with a check for $100,000.

The Confederate Veterans' reunion opened at Richmond, Va., on the 30th, with charming weather, clear and cool. An immense throng of people was present, and exposition grounds, where the reunion was held in a large auditorium erected for the purpose, was crowded. The auditorium was handsomely decorated.

THE Italian public revenue for the first half of the fiscal year just expired was 20,000,000 lire more than the revenue for the corresponding period of 1895.

THE German reichstag, on the 2d, passed the oleomargarine bill through second and third readings. The bill was ordered by the government.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

A DEADLY duel took place near Adairville, Ky., on the 5th. Dick Younger went to the town drunk and as he rode out of town he fired his pistol. H. H. Harmon, the town marshal, jumped on a horse and started after Younger. An hour later both men were found dead about one mile from the town.

THE natural gas production in the United States for 1895 is reviewed in a report of the geological survey compiled by Expert John D. Weeks. The total value was $13,000,050, against $13,954,400 in 1894.

DURING a thunder-storm on the 5th Arthur Poake, a farmer, was instantly killed by lightning in Knox county, Tenn.

The South Pittsburg (Tenn.) Pine Works has secured an order for 1,600 tons of cast iron water pipes for shipment to Costa Rica, Central America.

A TRAGEDY occurred near Fayetteville, Ark., on the 1st. Robert Wilkes and Robert Toney, brothers-in-law and neighbors, had been for some time enemies over the disputed ownership of a hog, which led to the tragedy.

RUFUS ROCK, Louis Davis, Lucky Davis, Maomi July and Sam Sampson, comprising what is known as the Buck gang, were executed at Fort Smith, Ark., on the 1st.

The director of the mint at New York on the 1st ordered the premium on assay of fine gold bars reduced to one-tenth of 1 percent.

THE indications are that the excess of government expenditures over receipts for the fiscal year will be about $25,000,000, as compared with a deficit of about $43,000,000 for the fiscal year 1895.

MANAGER DONNER of the National Tin Plate Works of Anderson, Ind., on the 30th discharged 500 men outright. The men and the company could not agree on a scale of wages.

HINDSALL BROS., woolen manufacturers of Pittsfield, Mass., whose plant employs 200 hands, made an assignment on the 30th. Dullness in the woolen market is given as the cause.

ON THE EVE OF BATTLE

The Silver Delegates Rest for Want of Material Upon Which to Impress Their Views the Question of Temporary Organization Receiving Attention—Roles Men Take Now Hope—The Coming Gold Dips from New York.

CHICAGO, July 2.—The proverbial calm before the storm prevailed today. Having accomplished everything possible in advance of the arriving of a respectable number of silver delegates on the ground, the democratic bimetallic national committee, and those co-operating with it took a rest from their labors, so far as meetings or conferences are concerned until tomorrow evening, when another round-up of all the white metal supporters then in Chicago will be in order.

The ranks of the 16 to 1 advocates were reinforced to-day by the arrival of Dr. J. J. Mott, of North Carolina, and who is chairman of the executive committee of the independent or new silver party, formed in Washington a year ago. For reasons which he deemed sufficient, and which he has not explained, the head of the silverites did not take up his abode at the Sherman house, where the silver headquarters have been established, but instead chose an hotel on the same street, but a couple of blocks away. From here, and without consultation with any of the silver people that preceded him, he sent an invitation for a conference on Saturday night of every representative or party favorable to silver, including populists, silver democrats and silver republicans.

As to what it was intended to accomplish by this conference, Dr. Mott was reticent, but the expressions of sentiment among those that flocked to his quarters during the day indicated a decided preference for the nomination next week of such a candidate as could be endorsed by the silver and populist conventions at St. Louis three weeks hence upon a platform dealing with no other issue than that of the free and unlimited coinage of silver. The executive committee of the independent silver party meets here Saturday, and at to-morrow night's meeting conference of the bimetallic committee and the silver delegates a committee will be appointed to meet the independents with a view toward united action.

Sentiment among the silver men crystallized to-day in favor of the selection of either Gov. Stone of Missouri or W. J. Bryan, of Nebraska, as temporary chairman of the convention with Senator John H. Harris, of Tennessee, and Maj. Towles, secretary of the bimetallic committee, as permanent chairman and secretary, respectively.

The story was published this afternoon that Senator Harris had been definitely chosen as permanent chairman, but at the headquarters in the Sherman house, the fact that no meeting had been held to-day was cited as proof positive that this was purely guesswork.

Through Senator Jones, the silver men went on record to-day as opposed to the suggestion made by members of the national committee that Senator David B. Hill might prove acceptable to both factions as temporary chairman. Senator Jones insisted that, while personally he had the highest regard for his New York associate in the senate chamber, he could not countenance the idea of a supporter of the gold standard presiding, even if for a short while only, over a convention that was opposed to his views toward gold. Senator Hill, he said, would not be acceptable to the silver people, and consequently there was nothing to be gained by a further consideration of his alleged availability.

In the absence of material—in the shape of delegates with votes—for the making of deals or the winning of converts, the boomers expended their stock of ammunition on the motley crowds that invariably invade the hotels on the eve of a national convention. Much of the fashion of the side-show men at the circus, they took possession of the rotundas of the hotels and held forth to those inclined to listen concerning the merits of their respective candidates.

At one time this afternoon four distinct booms were in process of advocacy on the ground floor of the Palmer house, and the cheers and yells and shouts and ironical ejaculations of the listeners combined to create a deafening din, as can well be imagined as described.

The friends of Mr. Bland were perhaps the most active. In addition to their headquarters at the Palmer and the Auditorium annex, they opened up rooms to-day in the entresol of the Sherman house, where a committee was appointed to corral such arriving delegates that first of all seek out the headquarters of the democratic silver committee.

Mr. Bland's friends were in high feather to-day, and while unable, on account of the paucity of delegates already in sight, to give out any definite figures, insisted that the prevailing sentiment in the city and the advice which they were receiving from outside warranted them in taking their stand that it was Bland against the field, and with the field already giving evidence of being decidedly on the run.

The friends of ex-Gov. Boies, however, were by no means discouraged by the claims of the Bland men, and fell back on the argument that it was votes rather than shouting that made nominees.

Delegate Brewster, of Ceston, one of the chiefs of the Boies bureau and who had a talk with Gov. Altgeld just before the latter left for Springfield last night, quoted him as declaring that he had not spoken a word on the subject of presidential possibilities; that he had no more friendly to Bland than to Boies, and that the time had not yet arrived when the Illinois delegation could fasten itself to any one candidate.

There was more or less talk about the hotels to-day concerning a ticket made up of the two B's—Bland and Boies—but the Iowa people frowned down any such suggestion.

HE WOULD GIVE AN ARM

For a Sight of His Country's Flag Once More, Says Owen Milton, a Prisoner in Cuba—How Gen. Olivera, Governor of Cabaneros Fortress, Tried to Bulldoze Him Into Revealing the Name of a Letter Writer.

NEW YORK, July 2.—A Herald special from Key West, Fla., says: There was a sensational scene in the Cabaneros fortress, Havana, on June 13, in which Owen Milton, the American captured on the Competitor, and Gen. Olivera, governor of the prison, were principals. Gen. Olivera had received an anonymous letter from Key West for Milton containing $10, and had summoned the prisoner to his office. Describing what happened, Milton, in a letter to a friend here says: "Gen. Olivera showed the letter and money and said Consul-General Lee wanted to know the name of the writer. I refused to disclose the writer's name, and Gen. Olivera threatened to run his sword through me. Again he demanded the writer's name. I told Olivera I would furnish it to Gen. Lee in person. The Spaniard saw that I had penetrated his purpose, and stormed in a terrible manner, swinging his sword about my head. Finally he ordered me back to the prison, telling the guard not to let me escape. Olivera used Lee's name without authority and I have learned he has tried to trap other prisoners in a similar manner."

Milton says new prisoners are being thrust into the Cabaneros daily. Almost every new prisoner has a story of alleged Spanish atrocities to relate. Cipriano Perez, one of the late arrivals, tells of an alleged massacre near Cuernavaca. Spanish guerrillas, the prisoner says, raided an estate near that place on June 20, burning buildings and shooting Jose Gonzalez, Serafin Caravaja, Pedro Ilanero, Jose Castro, Juan Gonzalez, Merogito Perez and Julian Castaneda. Perez also reports that two women were killed.

Milton says he fears he will never live to return home. "I would give," he says, "one of my arms for a sight of the United States flag."

LIEUT. CLARK EXONERATED.

His Duty When He Ordered Private Weaver Shot.

OMAHA, Neb., July 3.—The board of officers appointed by Col. Andrews, commandant at Fort Niobrara, to investigate the killing of Private Weaver by a guard on orders of Lieut. Clark, have replied to headquarters that Lieut. Clark was perfectly justified in his action.

Weaver shot and killed Sergt. Livingston last Saturday morning and was shooting at others when Lieut. Clark called upon him to lay down his gun and surrender, and he refused. Lieut. Clark then ordered a guard to shoot and wound Weaver, which the guard did, but he struck a vital spot and Weaver died.

An officer at headquarters said that there never been a particle of suspicion, but that Lieut. Clark was right in his order, and had he not given it, thus placing the lives of other men in danger, he would have been court-martialed.

DEATH OF GEN. A. R. LAWTON.

Short Biographical Sketch of His Life.

CLIFTON SPRINGS, N. Y., July 3.—Gen. A. R. Lawton, of Savannah, Ga., died at the Clifton Springs sanitarium yesterday morning. He had a stroke of paralysis on Friday last, from which he did not rally.

Gen. Alexander R. Lawton was born in Beaufort district, S. C., in 1816. He entered West Point in 1835, having for classmates Generals Halleck, Stevens, Canby and Gilmer. He was colonel of the First Georgia volunteers when, in January, 1861, he took possession of Fort Pickens under state authority.

At the commencement of hostilities in the following April he received a commission as brigadier-general in the confederate army, and he was from that time up to the close of the rebellion in constant military service.

After the fall of Richmond Gen. Lawton returned to Savannah and engaged in the practice of law. He was minister to Austria under the first Cleveland administration.

JURY FAILED TO AGREE.

Mistrial in the Case of John D. Hart and Others at New York.

NEW YORK, July 3.—The jury which deliberated until a late hour Wednesday night over the evidence presented in the trial of John D. Hart, Emilio Nunez, Capt. O'Brien and Mate Edward Murphy, accused of having aided and abetted a military expedition to Cuba, came into the United States court and told Judge Brown that they could not agree.

His honor discharged the jury and then listened to a long argument about the bail bonds of the defendants. Excepting the case of Mate Murphy, Judge Brown directed that the bail remain $2,500 in each case. Murphy's bail was reduced to $500. The 11 men who have been detained as witnesses in Ludlow Street jail were ordered discharged.

THE RED CROSS

Will Aid the Widows and Orphans Left Penniless by the Pittston Mine Disaster.

PHILADELPHIA, July 3.—It was decided yesterday by the executive committee of the Associated Society of the Red Cross of Philadelphia to appeal to the public to aid the 33 widows and 180 orphans who are left penniless by the mine disaster at Pittston.

CROP CONDITIONS

As Summarized by the Cincinnati Price Current.

CINCINNATI, July 3.—The Price Current summarizes the crop conditions for the past week as follows: Moisture has been somewhat excessive in central regions, prejudicing the crop situation to some extent. There has been nothing in the later information suggestive of higher wheat estimates. Corn is mostly doing well. Oats maintain the promise of a larger crop. Spring wheat advances have been somewhat irregular.

"SPREADIN THE NEWS."

That Plain Old "Female Lady" from Down on Panther Creek.

Our Aunt Nancy Newton's Talkin Machinery in Cool Runnin Order—A "Tremendous Big Scandalation"—"Seein Things at Night."

Hit is so monstrous seldom like and rare in this present day and generation of American people that you can meet up with one of these plain old flint-and-steel women—with a head as long as a flour barrel and as level as a squash—"16 hand high, and heavy as buckshot"—till it raley looks to me like everybody and everything on the place, even to the cats and the dogs, was glad when Aunt Nancy Newton come up from Panther Creek and showed down at the appointed time one day last week. I do believe in my soul that Aunt Nancy—whilst she calls herself nothin more and nothin less than a "everyday, she woman"—would fight her weight in wildcats in case of a pusheney. And yet she has got the softest and most handiest way of any woman I have ever saw to make you laugh and forget—to let the sunshine in and shut the shadows out and wipe the tears away.

There will be a funeral then. She is so bright, and so newsey, and so fresh; and when she turns her mouth loose in a runnin conversation she can spit out more good sense to the square minit than three or four common women. With only two eyes and two ears, it is one of the most strange things in this green old world to me how Aunt Nancy can keep the general run of things for miles and miles around, and pick up so much news "comin and goin," as she is so wont to say.

But that dear, delightful old soul don't give out no news on her own hook, only that which she has seen with her own eyes. It might be that she will sometimes deal in second-hand news, but in that case she takes particular pains to tell you where she got the goods, so you can pay your money and take your choice.

"The Lord knows I do raley love to talk, Rufus," says Aunt Nancy to me that night when we gone out on the back porch to take a social family smoke. "And jest as long as I can keep my talkin machinery in good runnin order you are more than probable to hear from me onest in awhile. If it ever comes to pass that you might hear the news that Nancy Newton has quit talkin, you better saddle your horse or hitch up your mules and come on down to the Panther Creek settlement. The funeral will come off at the usual hour, with your Aunt Nancy ridin feet foremost at the head of the procession."

"I know you have lived a good long whet and learnt a whole passle in your day, Rufus, but if you don't know it already, by the time you have lived long and looked upon many sights and scenes as your Aunt Nancy, you will find out that it don't pay to talk outside of the family tochin the things that belong to the family. You can make a great big rucus out of little more than nothin if you only tell the news and heat it hot and keep it goin and growin. It might be a little fresh cut, or it might be a rale bad old ore, but many a time it would heal over and the people in general would forget it if you didn't keep on pickin at it and foolin with it."

Two Women in the Case. "Now, that puts me in mind of the roarin big confusionment which come to pass down in the old settlement last week," Aunt Nancy went on, torefore. "Big meetin was goin on over at old Elam church. There was two or three new preachers on hand, and w'th two sermons every day—one in the mornin and one at first candlelight. They had a great outpourin and a blessed good meetin."

"Over there on the other side of the creek—a mile and a half, or maybe a leetle better from the church—Joe Blevins and Lit Garvin live on joinin farms. Their families are thick and neighborly as you please, and they have got along together smooth and pleasant like white people ought to do. But one night in durin of the meetin at old Elam Misses Blevins was rather poorly to be out and one of the Garvin children was sick abed of a slow fever. Now, Lit Garvin is a shounth Methodist and never did b'lieve in much time over old Elam, where they stick to all over baptism as the right and proper way. Anyhow, Joe Blevins was goin to church that night, and it would seem like Misses Garvin she was likewise also most crazy to turn out and hear the 'gospel dispensed with' by the new preachers. "So it suited all around for Misses Garvin to go to church that night with Joe Blevins, and she went with him. So far all right. I couldn't see nothin wrong about that. I wouldn't say for certain how much religion they have got, but, at any rates, Joe Blevins and Misses Garvin have both got their names on the church books over at old Elam. Consequentially it was plain natural for both of them to want to turn out to meetin, and if it come handy and convenient for them to go together, that was all right. If it suited them, and suited Lit Garvin and suited Misses Blevins, to be certainly it ought to of suited other people."

"But it would seem like it didn't suit everybody. It didn't suit Misses Huggins, the wife of Nick Huggins. She was powerful bad pestered about it. To hear her tell the news, it took Joe Blevins and Lit Garvin's wife such a terrible long time to walk from home to the church and vicerly vicerly. She had come over the same road, and she would give her testimony on a stack of Bibles as big as the meetin house that it took them two mortal hours to walk a mile and a half. She told the news free and promiscuous to the sisters, and naturally of course it then leaked out amongst the men folks. By the next day it broke out in the general crowd and was spreadin like a prairie fire on a windy day in March."

"Now, in the name of free grace and common sense, what was the use of that? It was a pure family question, Rufus, and if Lit was willin, and Misses Blevins was willin, I was more than willin. But Misses Garvin she loved it took 'em such a terrible long time to go and come from church. But what of that? The weather hit was meltin hot, and they didn't have to burn the wind and make a race track out of the big road."

"When meetin turned out the next day Misses Garvin she had heard the news and went pizen mad. She got right out in the midst of the crowd, she did, and helt up Misses Huggins and pitched in and naturally helt the air sizzlin hot all around. She would give Misses Huggins to understand that she was a lady, and she wanted everybody to know for certain—onest and forever—that she was a lady, herself."

"And if your Aunt Nancy ain't all sorts of a fool, Rufus, right along there is where Misses Garvin dropped the jug and split her molasses. If a lady is a lady I never could see no reason for her to climb up on a high fence and tell everybody the news."

"But there they had it—Misses Garvin and Misses Huggins—up and down and over and under—till they bring on a pluperfect big scandalation in the settlement, and all because they didn't have no better sense than to turn their tongues loose in regards to things which the general public didn't have a blessed thing to do with."

WITH this issue The Chronicle passes the tenth mile-post, and starts on its journey through the eleventh year. Ten years ago today the paper was purchased by its present owner. During all these long years we have likely made many mistakes, but we lay the flattering unction to our soul that they were unintentional errors, and not committed with malice aforethought. We have striven at all times for the upbuilding of our town and county, and have expended all the talent and energy at our command to advance the cause of the only party in the South worthy the name—the democratic party. If we have made any mistakes in this direction, they were prompted by our intense zeal that democracy might triumph over its enemies. But enough. A large majority of our readers have been on our subscription book since the birth of the paper. They are competent to judge as to its merits or demerits, and on their verdict we are willing to stand or fall.

It is an undeniable fact that populists all over Alabama are leaving Goodwin and the republican party every day by the scores, and from present indications the ticket headed by Joseph F. Johnston will carry the state by not less than 50,000. In a recent issue of the Ozark Star, Dale county, eighteen leading populists came out in cards denouncing Goodwin, and stating that they would work for and vote the democratic ticket. Johnston's majority will be so overwhelming that the cry of fraud will be ridiculous.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat says: "One of the first effects of a free silver triumph at Chicago will be to show that the woods this year are full of democratic republicans. There are lots of big ones among them too."

DEMOCRATS of Shelby county, are you doing your full duty? If not, remember the election is near at hand. Victory is assured us if every member of the party will work as he should until election day is passed.

A GEORGIA editor, endowed with more wit than money, thinks the motto, "In God we trust," on our silver dollar ought to be changed to read "God be with us till we meet again!"

THE State Herald has figured it out and announces that Goodwin will not carry ten counties all told in the state. If this prophecy proves true it will hardly be a Good-win.

THE Rome Tribune speaking of the drought in that section says: "The ground is as dry as a populist political organ." Fearful beyond comprehension.

THE confusionists are playing in poor luck. Their voters are leaving them so rapidly that it amounts almost to a stampede.

THE next president of the United States will be nominated at Chicago before the week ends.

LOCAL VIVISCOPE.

J. M. Spencer and Clem Creek biked it to Talladega Tuesday.

J. F. Pope, of Wilsonville, transacted business here Monday.

Miss T. Hammond is a guest of Wilsonville friends this week.

I. D. Mason left Saturday for Atlanta, to be absent several days.

Miss Leila Parker has returned from a visit to relatives in Anniston.

John Leeper, of Birmingham, is in town visiting his friend, Horace Hammond.

Mrs. Fraser and children, of Montgomery are visiting relatives in our town.

Miss Alice Porter left yesterday for Blocton to visit her brother John Porter.

Mrs. L. Armstrong is spending this week with Mrs. John C. Williams in Talladega.

Miss Susie Boggs, of Shelby Springs, is spending the week with her friend, Miss Belle Huyett.

The Page building is rapidly nearing completion. Only the inside work remains to be done.

J. E. Michael, of Talladega, an expert tinner, is here putting the roof on the Page building.

Ned Anchors, of Pratt City, spent two or three days of this week here with his father's family.

They say St. Jacob's Oil is the finest tonic for the eye-brows. For full particulars apply to Henry Anchors.

J. O. Farmer moved his family Monday into the elegant new residence of E. D. Hall on West College street.

Miss Nellie Lloyd, after a pleasant visit of several weeks to friends here, left Monday for her home in Danville.

Miss Vivian McLean left Tuesday for her home in Avondale, accompanied by her friend, Miss Belle Cromwell.

A gang of workmen are at the Southern depot engaged in remodeling it. When completed and painted it will be much more inviting and comfortable.

A. J. Lett, a thrifty farmer living near here, informed us Saturday that he had a Jersey heifer only two and a half years old that has never had a calf, but is giving half a gallon of milk per day. This is rather out of the ordinary.

A series of meetings will begin Sunday at the Baptist church. The pastor, Rev. E. B. Teague, informed us that Rev. W. J. O'Hara would assist him, and that he expected him to do most of the preaching. May success reward their efforts.

Earnest Avery, of Shelby, came over Tuesday to stand an examination as required by law to obtain a license as druggist. He passed a very creditable examination, and carried home with him the law's sanction to dish out drugs to heal the sick.

The colored people celebrated the glorious fourth at a picnic in the grove near the ball park. After dinner two games of ball were played: Wilsonville vs. Columbiana 16 to 15 in favor of the visitors; Columbiana vs. Calera 9 to 15 in favor of the home team.

We are under obligations to A. J. Lett, one of our farmer friends for an exceptionally fine cabbage. It weighed 54 pounds and measured 10 inches across the top, and he has plenty more just like it. Mrs. Chronicle and all of the supplements pronounced it elegant.

The Shelby County Medical Society met here Tuesday in regular monthly session. Besides local physicians Dr. J. H. Gunn, of Calera, Dr. E. G. Givhan, of Montevallo, Dr. H. C. McAdams, of Shelby, Dr. J. R. Morgan, of Shelby Springs, and Drs. Payne and Leonard of Cahaba valley, were in attendance.

The commissioners court was in session Monday and Tuesday, only routine business having been transacted. On next Monday the court will meet again to fix the tax rate for the coming year and also to confer a free scholarship to the Alabama Medical College, Mobile, upon some deserving young man who aspires to be an M. D.

The city council held a meeting Monday for the purpose of selecting teachers for the coming session of our Free school. Prof. W. B. Greck was again chosen as principal. Miss Lucy Smith will have charge of the intermediate department, and Misses Elva Greck and Ida O'Hara will take care of the little ones. This makes a strong faculty, capable and thoroughly in earnest, and we feel perfectly safe in saying that our school will boom as never before under their wise direction.

Shelby County Matrimonial Bureau.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

John W. Lanham to Lula Bowdon, of Calera.

James Barrow to Savannah Hale colored, of Columbiana.

J. M. Spencer while biking Monday afternoon took a "header" which thoroughly demoralized his new wheel and caused him to look as though he had been dragged around the ragged ramparts of a deserted fort, and had been beat over the head with a sut bag. An innocent and unsuspecting swine taking a nap on the side-walk was the cause. Joe no doubt will give hogs a wide berth in future.

The masonic installation and Sunday school celebration last Thursday attracted a large crowd, and a most enjoyable day was spent by all. The dinner was immense, in every sense of the word. The officers of three lodges, Shelby, Wilsonville and Columbiana were installed by I. D. Mason. Rev. J. W. Cary, of Wilsonville, and Rev. W. J. O'Hara made short addresses to the children.

The following from Columbiana spent yesterday in Talladega at the Chataqua: W. B. Browne, D. R. McMillan and wife, Rufus Lester, Amos Elliott, Mrs. J. G. Parker and Nellie, Leila Parker, Gordon DuBose and wife, Essie and Pattie Mason, Anna Milner, Henry Milner and wife, Annie McMillan, George Mason, John Milner, Ed Parker, Sam Green, Guila Green, Belle Huyette and Susie Boggs.

Quite a romantic marriage took place in our city last Saturday. Two young people, Miss Lula Bowdon and West Lanham, of Calera, desired to celebrate the Fourth in an unusual way to them, so they eluded parental authority and came up, securing the services of Judge D. R. McMillan, they were made one. Miss Lula is a sister of Louis and Bob Bowdon two well known young men of our county. We wish much joy for this happy couple.

A sad and tragic death occurred in Anniston on the night of July 4th. J. F. Anchors, for many years a resident of this county, a son of our esteemed townsman S. T. Anchors, was instantly killed and his body horribly mangled in a collision between an Alabama Mineral excursion train and a street car of the Oxford Lake line, of which Mr. Anchors was conductor. Carelessness on the part of both mortals and an engineer and a total disregard of the law, which compels trains to come to a full stop before crossing another track, was the cause of the sad tragedy. Mr. Anchors leaves a wife and seven small children to mourn his horrible death. His aged father, brothers, sisters and family have our sincere sympathy in their sad bereavement.

Program of Sunday School Conference to be held at Chapel Church July 18th and 19th, 1896.

Song and prayer 9:30

Address of welcome by Earnest Huston.

Response by Dr. J. B. Boyer.

Song.

Address by Rev. T. M. Wilson, Subject, "How to get the older people to attend Sunday school."

Song.

Address by Isaac D. Mason, Subject "The advantages of using lesson helps in Sunday school work."

Address by D. M. Smith, Subject, "How to make a country Sunday school run through the winter."

Song.

DINNER.

Address by Dr. J. B. Boyer, Subject, "The best method of getting the little children interested in attendance."

Address by G. M. McCary, Subject, "The great benefit from having Bible questions in the Sunday school."

Address by John Farrell, Subject, "What is required in a successful Sunday school teacher."

Sermon Sunday at 11 o'clock, Subject, "Origin and good done by the Sunday school."

Every Sunday school worker of the various denominations is requested to attend and take part in discussing the subjects. We wish to make this conference of material help to the great Sunday school interest of the county.

J. W. Cary, Pastor in charge, Wilsonville, Ala., July 6, 1896.

Wilsonville Waits.

J. B. Kilpatrick and family are spending several days in Talladega.

W. J. Weldon went to Birmingham on business last Saturday.

Robert Fowler, of Birmingham, was in town visiting relatives last week, and returned to Birmingham Sunday.

Dave Fitzgibbon, with his oratorical jestures and smiling face, passed through our city going southward last Saturday.

Miss T. Hammond, of Columbiana, was the happy, happy guest of her Wilsonville companions the latter part of last and the former part of this week.

The protracted meeting will commence at the M. E. church the first Sunday in August.

Embrew Weldon and L. S. Smith departed for their destination to be the bordering edge of Harpersville last Sunday afternoon.

J. R. Black and I. D. Montgomery spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives in Oxford and Anniston.

"Jake," what am de natur, ain't you gwine to tel us no mur bout Harpersville?

Several of the young men and ladies are looking forward with fond anticipations to next Thursday when they will go to the Chataqua.

Misses Mary and Sallie Robin.

Georgia and Purdie Pope, Mattie and Laura Weldon, Mrs. Porter Bradley and Walter W. McGowan went to Talladega on a pleasure trip Tuesday, where they will spend several days. How long will it seem boys?

A large per cent of Wilsonville residents participated in the pleasures of the picnic at Columbiana. They all report a very pleasant time, especially who went in the wagon, as their fun was going and coming as well as when there.

Wilsonville base ball team defeated bats with Columbiana at five o'clock last Thursday afternoon. The game resulted 8 to 11 in favor of Columbiana. In the absence of four of our regular players we were forced to fill their places with boys who had never played much ball, and hadn't entered a single game this year. We hope to play them at an early date with our regular team. We agree that it takes scores to win a game, but Columbiana will think they have done a plenty when they keep our full team from making them.

The S. P. L. League congregated last Friday night as usual. The debate "Resolved that the hope of the future affords more pleasure than the memory of the past" was fully and nicely discussed and decided in the affirmative. I am pleased to say that we had the pleasure of enrolling Walter W. McGowan as an honorary member. An interesting program has been arranged for next meeting, part of which will be another debate, subject has not yet been chosen.

Free Pills.

Send your address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and receive a free sample box of Dr. King's New Life Pills. A trial will convince you of their merits. These pills are easy in action and are particularly effective in the cure of Constipation and Sick Headache. For Malaria and Liver troubles they have been found invaluable. They are guaranteed to be perfectly free from every deleterious substance and to be purely vegetable. They do not weaken by their action, but by giving tone to stomach and bowels greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25c per box. Sold by Parker & Armstrong, druggists.

Knights of the Maccabees.

The State Commander writes us from Lincoln, Neb., as follows: "After trying other medicines for what seemed to be a very obstinate cough in our two children we tried Dr. King's New Discovery and at the end of two days the cough entirely left them. We will not be without it hereafter, as our experience proves that it cures where all other remedies fail."—Signed F. W. Stevens, State Com. Why not give this great medicine a trial, as it is guaranteed and trial bottles are free at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

Revised Psalm of Life.

From the Cameron Sun.

At twenty, when a man is young, he thinks he knows it all; he likes to wag his active tongue and exercise his gall; he struts around in noble rage; the world is all his own; he laughs to scorn the world of age, and lists to self alone. He wears a window in his eye to see his whiskers grow; he thinks the ladies pine and die because they love him so. At forty as you may suppose, he's knuckled down to big; 'tis not till sixty that he knows how big a clump he is.

BRYAN AND SEWELL

The Standard-Bearers of the Free Silver Democracy.

Proceedings of the Democratic National Convention at Chicago That Nominated the Ticket on a Free Silver Platform.

CHICAGO, July 7.—Following are the proceedings of the Democratic national convention:

FIRST DAY.

The Proceedings.
At 12:30 Chairman Harbottle of the Democratic national committee called the convention to order. He requested the sergeant-at-arms to clear the aisles and see that everyone took their seats. Prayer was offered by Rev. E. Y. Sikes, rector of Grace Episcopal church, of Chicago. Then Chairman Harbottle, in slow, deliberate tones, said:

Gentlemen of the convention, by direction of the Democratic national committee, I desire to report the following as the temporary organization of the convention: Temporary chairman, David H. Hill, of New York; Y. Sikes, rector of Grace Episcopal church, of Chicago. Then Chairman Harbottle, in slow, deliberate tones, said:

For temporary secretary, Simon P. Sheelin, of Indiana; for sergeant-at-arms, Col. John I. Martin, of Missouri.

"What is the pleasure of the convention?" Mr. Harbottle asked, "on the report as made from the Democratic national committee?"

On that Mr. Clayton, delegate from Alabama, arose, advanced to the platform, and declared that the name of Hon. John W. Daniel, of Virginia, be substituted in the committee report for that of Hon. David H. Hill, of New York, and that the name of Hon. John W. Daniel, of Virginia, be substituted in the committee report for that of Hon. David H. Hill, of New York, and that the name of Hon. John W. Daniel, of Virginia, be substituted in the committee report for that of Hon. David H. Hill, of New York.

After a lengthy discussion participated in by half a score of delegates, Hon. Henry T. Clayton, of Alabama, moved that the name of Hon. John W. Daniel, of Virginia, be substituted in the committee report for that of Hon. David H. Hill, of New York, and that the name of Hon. John W. Daniel, of Virginia, be substituted in the committee report for that of Hon. David H. Hill, of New York.

When Chairman Daniel finished his speech Senator Jones, of Arkansas, presented a resolution of thanks to Chairman Harbottle for the able and impartial manner in which he had his duty while presiding.

Gov. Hogg of Texas, moved the appointment of committees on permanent organization, credentials, resolutions and rules, and a call of the roll of states for members of committees was at once begun.

After the announcement of the committees the convention adjourned until 10 a. m. Wednesday.

SECOND DAY.

First Session.

At a few minutes before 11 o'clock the temporary chairman called the convention to order and announced that its proceedings would be continued by prayer. Rev. Thomas Edwards, rector of Grace Episcopal church (Episcopal), Cedar Rapids, Ia., at this time the section of the New York delegates was still unoccupied.

Senator White, of Missouri, moved that the name of Hon. John W. Daniel, of Virginia, be substituted in the committee report for that of Hon. David H. Hill, of New York, and that the name of Hon. John W. Daniel, of Virginia, be substituted in the committee report for that of Hon. David H. Hill, of New York.

The temporary chairman announced that the first business in order was the report of committees, as no business could be done, except by unanimous consent, until the committee reported. He called the first committee in order, the committee on credentials, and there was no response. After an interval of about ten minutes it was announced that the committee on credentials were about to reassemble after their long night's session.

While awaiting the reports of committees the convention was addressed in response to calls, by ex-Gov. Hogg of Texas; Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky; Gov. Altgeld of Illinois; David Greengarden, of New York; Frederick Williams, of Massachusetts.

At this point (11 p. m.) the chair announced a partial report of the committee on credentials, recommending the name of Hon. John W. Daniel, of Virginia, be substituted in the committee report for that of Hon. David H. Hill, of New York, and that the name of Hon. John W. Daniel, of Virginia, be substituted in the committee report for that of Hon. David H. Hill, of New York.

In regard to Nebraska they were pleased to report that the delegates headed by Hon. W. Bryan should have their names placed in regard to Michigan they asked further time.

Mr. Mahoney, of Nebraska, rose in the body of the hall and gracefully offered to vacate the seats now occupied by the sitting delegates for the benefit of their successful contestants. The motion to adopt the report was declared carried by a viva voce vote a demand for a roll call, which was refused, and the report of the committee on credentials was adopted.

At 1:37 Mr. Aldrich moved that the convention take a recess till five o'clock. The proposition was met with loud shouts of disapproval. Thereupon the chairman (Mr. White, of California) declared that it had become manifest that there would be no report from the committee on credentials for some time, and that the motion just made was the result of that fact.

Mr. Finley, of Ohio, moved that the report of the committee on permanent organization be now read and that the convention proceed to its permanent organization, leaving the report of the committee on credentials to be disposed of subsequently.

The chair ruled that as there was no permanent roll of the body there could be no declaration of a permanent organization. He then put the question on the motion for a recess and declared it carried. So the convention took a recess till five o'clock.

Second Session.

The convention reassembled at 5:30 p. m. with a full attendance of delegates and with crowded galleries. Senator Daniel, of Virginia, was in the chair as temporary chairman.

At 5:15 p. m. the committee on credentials presented its report, admitting the delegates from the four congressional districts of Michigan—Messrs. Chamberlain and Hart, also admitting the contestants of the Michigan congressional district of Michigan—Messrs. Hoyt and White—and recognizing the right to their seats of all the other delegates from Michigan.

Mr. Crosby, of Massachusetts, offered an amendment to retain the four unseated delegates.

A long and somewhat acrimonious discussion followed which was finally brought to an end by the moving and recording of the previous question, when the minority amendment was rejected and the report of the majority declared adopted.

The report of the committee on permanent organization was then presented by Mr. Finley, of Ohio, naming Senator White, of California, as permanent president of the convention, and Thomas J. Cavan, of Ohio, as permanent secretary.

The report was adopted and a committee appointed to escort Senator White to the chair.

Senator Daniel in retiring from the temporary chairmanship expressed his deep sense of the honor which he had enjoyed and introduced Mr. White as "the distinguished senator from California." [Cheers.]

Senator White, of California, on taking the chair, spoke of the convention as an assemblage of men from every state and territory in the Union, and said that he was prepared to extend full, equal, and absolutely impartial treatment to all. Every question before the convention was to be decided by the majority.

Mr. Clark, of Montana, rising in the body of the hall, produced a silver gavel from the mines of Montana, which he tendered to the presiding officer in the name of the delegates from that state. The chairman remarked that in the absence of objection, he would feel compelled to accept this handsome token from the Montana delegation. No objection being heard, the silver gavel was passed up to the chairman.

The convention then on motion of Senator Jones of Arkansas, adjourned until Thursday morning at ten o'clock.

THIRD DAY.

CHICAGO, July 8.—It was 10:55 when Senator White, of California, called the convention to order.

Rev. Thomas Green, of Grace Episcopal church, Cedar Rapids, Ia., offered prayer. Representative Richardson was called to the chair, and Senator Jones, of Arkansas, chairman of the committee on resolutions, once took the platform and read the report of the committee on resolutions.

He was followed by Senator Hill, of New York, who presented a memorial containing issues of the silver question, and in other ways endeavoring to modify the radical utterances of the majority. It was read by the secretary, and upon the question of the adoption or rejection of the minority report, the debate began, in which lasted the entire afternoon, participated in by both Hillman, of South Carolina, and Senator Hill, of New York; Senator Vilas, of Wisconsin; ex-Gov. Russell, of Massachusetts; and Representative Bryan, of Nebraska, during the progress of which there were occasional scenes of tumultuous applause particularly in the case of Senators Hill and Mr. Bryan.

At the close of the debate all amendments were rejected by a majority of 180 votes. The platform, as amended by the committee, was adopted: Ayes, 628; nays, 301; absent, 1.

Evening Session.
CHICAGO, July 8.—The mass of spectators at this evening's session was, if possible, denser and the excitement intenser than at any previous meeting of the convention because the other main candidates for the presidency were present, and the silver question was the subject of the debate.

It took the sergeant-at-arms and his assistants fully 15 minutes more to ally the uproar to order, and the convention was not in a very quiet condition, even though for only a very brief interval, for every moment, on one pretense or another, the crowds broke out into a riot.

The chairman informed the convention that the roll of states had been called, and that the names of the candidates for the presidency should be made. By an agreement, entered into by the friends of the several candidates, the chairman added, the nominating and seconding speeches would be limited to 30 minutes in length, which time might be used either when the nominations were made or when the state of the speaker was called.

Senator Vest, of Missouri, was the first delegate to address the convention, even before the call of states had got further in the alphabetical list than the state of Arkansas.

The chairman and the sergeant-at-arms appeared to be utterly unable to cope with the situation; and Mr. Vest went on with his speech nominating Mr. Bland. The only part of his speech that stirred the crowd was the closing phrase: "Give us Silver Dick and Silver quick."

This brought down the house and hats and flags were waved and great uproar made which lasted for some minutes. The band came to the help of the crowd, striking up "The Battle Cry of Freedom." All the silver delegates rose to their feet, cheered and indulged in all the usual manifestations of popular enthusiasm, so that what at first was a faint wave of applause grew into a tumultuous storm. In the thick of which a Bland banner was carried through the hall, with the motto "Silver Dick the people's choice." A band of music at either end of the hall added to the uproar, while the Bland band struck up, amid great applause, "Red, White and Blue," putting the rival musicians to silence.

By this time there were three handsome Bland banners unfurled and carried about with a likelihood of success. The band came to the help of the crowd, striking up "The Battle Cry of Freedom." NUMBER 2.

gate from Indiana suggested an adjournment. An attempt was made to restore order, and the sergeant-at-arms—who is quite a character in his way, and who delights in making speeches from the stand—addressed the audience, saying: "LADIES AND GENTLEMEN—I want your attention for a few moments. I want to say that the chairman of this convention desires that I shall announce to you that, unless there is here, feet order [cheers], the convention to-morrow will be without any guests. The delegations will be protected by the police, and the audience will not be permitted to come into the hall. Now keep order. [Shouts of laughter.]

Mr. Martin, of Kansas, indulged in some playful ridicule of the vain efforts of the chairman and sergeant-at-arms to maintain order, and said if the same disrespect was shown to other speakers as was shown Mr. Turpie he would move to adjourn.

Hon. Fred White, of Iowa, was recognized to nominate ex-Gov. Boies. Cheers of a comparatively mild type greeted the announcement, and the Boies banner was raised.

Mr. White was a vigorous voice and good delivery, and was listened to with attention. He closed a glowing tribute to Iowa's ex-governor by saying:

Gov. Boies does not believe in a dishonest fifty-cent dollar. As it would work an injury to the creditor class, neither does he believe in a two-hundred-cent dollar which is still more dishonest as it unquestionably involves the bankruptcy of the debtor class. Gov. Boies believes in a honest one-cent dollar, authorized not by the British parliament but by a law of the American congress and coined for use among the American people. He believes in a gold dollar of 22.2 grains of gold and in a silver dollar just sixteen times heavier.

The finger of a kind fate points to the election of Horace Boies. History seems to be anxious to reward him. Give us the man from Waterloo and allies will flock to his standard which will destroy Mark Hanna's Napoleon number two as effectually as the European allies destroyed the French Napoleon number one.

A Boies demonstration was started by the Iowa delegation, but made no progress till two young women dressed in white, in the south gallery stood up, and wildly waving their arms began shrieking for Iowa's governor. Somebody handed one of them a couple of flags, and by this time the attention of the whole convention was directed towards them, and every body faced that way. The Boies banner was handed to them, and between them they managed to wave a few times, and then sank back in their seats exhausted.

As soon as some slight degree of order was re-established the nomination of Mr. Boies was seconded by Mr. A. T. Smithson, of Minnesota.

Hon. John S. Rhea, of Kentucky, with a voice almost as resonant, and very closely resembling that of the senator he nominated, placed in nomination the name of Senator Joseph S. Blackburn, of Kentucky. He prefaced his remarks with the pledge that he would ever be nominated. Kentucky would give him her vote. He spoke of his candidate as "Joe" Blackburn, because to Kentuckians he was "Joe" Blackburn and that meant everything. [Cheers.] It was true that he was from the south and had been a confederate soldier, but his candidacy was not a sectional one. [Cheers.]

Mr. W. F. Foot of California, seconded the nomination of Mr. Blackburn. He briefly but forcibly eulogized Mr. Blackburn's character and services, and his remarks were well received.

When Massachusetts was called the chairman of the delegation said Massachusetts had intended to present the name of Gov. Russell, but Mr. Russell declined to run on the platform.

Mr. Paul Jones, of Arkansas, also seconded the nomination of Mr. Bland, whom he said was no new convert or experiment in democracy. He had fought the battles of the party for 22 years, under the terrible blaze of a political searchlight, and no spot had been found upon his escutcheon, no flaw in his armor. He was the logical candidate on the great issue that now confronted the American people.

He pleaded, of Ohio, when the name of his state was called, put in nomination Mr. John R. McLean, of Cincinnati, and said:

"I shall pass by extravagant eulogy on the man. His whole life has been a life of honest, capable, he is a democrat. He is the son of a sire who did more to mold the democracy of this country than any other man. If you nominate John R. McLean I promise you that Ohio will be the Waterloo of McKinley."

Delegates, we hand over the claim of John R. McLean into your hands and into your hands, relying on the integrity and gratitude of the great democratic masses. [Cheers.]

Chairman Harbottle, of Pennsylvania, when his state was called, put in nomination Mr. John R. McLean, of Cincinnati, and said:

Mr. John H. Bankhead, of Alabama, one of the delegates who had relieved Congressman Richardson as temporary chairman, introduced the name of Senator Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas. Mr. Bailey was earnestly applauded on taking the stand. He earnestly seconded the nomination of Richard P. Bland.

Mr. Patrick, of Ohio, when the name of his state was called, put in nomination Mr. John R. McLean, of Cincinnati, and said:

"I shall pass by extravagant eulogy on the man. His whole life has been a life of honest, capable, he is a democrat. amid much confusion Gen. Briggs again rose and claimed the attention of the convention to say:

"With your kind permission we will send out and make search for another straggler, and, on the successful Wisconsin may yet pledge its support to another candidate. [Laughter and hisses.]

At the close of the call of the roll of states the convention, at 12:35 a. m., adjourned till 10 a. m.

FOURTH DAY.

First Session.

CHICAGO, July 10.—At 10:55 Senator White, of California, the permanent chairman, took the chair and made an effort to establish some degree of quiet and order in the hall. After five minutes devoted to that purpose with very little success, prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. Green, of the Episcopal church, Cedar Rapids, Ia., the same clergyman who officiated the last two days.

The chair immediately recognized Mr. Harbottle, of Pennsylvania, who, standing in the main aisle, was greeted with cheers. He said: "I desire to say that in obedience to instructions given by the Democratic state convention the Pennsylvania delegation presents the name of Robert E. Pattison, of Pennsylvania, as a candidate for the presidency."

Then the chair asked if there were any more nominations.

Mr. Mattingly, of the District of Columbia, from his place in the rear of the hall, seconded the nomination of that peerless champion of free silver, that true democrat and friend of labor, John R. McLean, of Ohio.

Mr. Miller, of Oregon, on behalf of that state nominated ex-Gov. Sylvester Penney.

No other names being presented, the chair declared the nominations closed, and first in voting order, directed the secretary to call the roll of states. But before this was commenced Mr. Smith, of Ohio, informed the convention of the sudden demise of Hon. Frank Hurd.

The chair asked if any action was desired and Mr. Smith said that at this time.

When the first state was called Chairman Lomax, of Alabama, rose to say that John B. Knox, H. B. Foster, S. J. Carpenter, J. H. Mingo and D. B. Burgess desired to vote for ex-Gov. Wm. E. Russell, of Massachusetts, but under the unite rule, he cast the 22 votes of Alabama for Horace Boies.

Several of the chairmen of the delegations interjected little stump speeches into the announcements of the votes of their delegations. Massachusetts said "the water hand," of Louisiana stood up and holding a silver dollar in his hand said something which was drowned in laughter and cheers.

Minnesota brought Adlai Stevenson's name placed in nomination, but not a solitary cheer greeted it.

When New Jersey was reached the chairman of the delegation rose and said: New Jersey respectfully declines to vote, whereupon there were cheers and hisses.

The state of New York adopted the same course, and the chairman of the delegation said: "I wish to say that New York respectfully declines to vote, whereupon there were cheers and hisses.

There was some curiosity to see how Ohio would vote, and the chairman of the delegation manifested a full desire to gratify it. Standing in the rear of the hall, he said: "I would like to see the delegates from Wisconsin to whom I would be the strongest candidate. If it shall at any time appear that my candidacy is the least obstruction to the nomination of any candidate, I will be glad to step aside."

The full proceedings of the Chicago democratic national convention will be found on the first page of this issue. Up to the meeting of the convention we were for sound money, and up to this good hour our views have not undergone the slightest change, but we cheerfully lay aside our personal opinions for the time being and shall give our enthusiastic support to the nominees of our party. That is democracy if we understand the term. The majority should rule, and we have no crow to eat, nor do we feel that we have made the slightest sacrifice of principle. In other words, to sum up the situation in a few words here is our position: We are a democrat; democracy means a cheerful and complete yielding to the will of the majority; we have done that, and there you have it. We have yet our first dish of crow to eat, for the reason that when our party speak we dry up and fall in line. The democratic party is far bigger than any question now before the people, and we are going to stay with it to the end.

If the colored voters of Shelby county want to know just how far they can depend on a republican-populist congressman to aid them or do anything whatever in their interest, they can inform themselves by reading the article elsewhere in this issue showing how he defeated the appropriation of government land to the colored school at Tuskegee. And if the populists will take the trouble to read the same article they will see how great a friend Aldrich is to the poor white girls of Alabama.

LONGSHORE'S Alabama Leader says Bryan is a good clean man, and is running on the correct platform, but it's the gang his training with that it dislikes. Just as we thought. Any excuse is better than none. The pop leaders would be out of a job if their followers should go back home. And isn't it a clear admission that their cry for free silver is only a delusion and a snare? It looks so to a man up a tree.

We hope bill collectors will give us a rest until after November. Of course we are going to get all the free silver we want, and of course we will have a barrel on tap in our office. If they will only exercise a little patience we will settle then in full. In the interim, however, you may send in your silver dollars, and we will place your names on our book for a year's subscription to The Chronicle.

So far as the election of Joseph F. Johnston and the entire state ticket is concerned, that is a foregone conclusion, and the only question is as to the size of the majority. The thing for us to do in this county is to look to our own interest. By systematic organized effort we can carry this county, and we must not neglect a single opportunity. Democrats of Shelby, hustle.

BRYAN is the youngest man ever nominated for the presidential chair, being only 36 years of age.

BRYAN may be honest, a great many enthusiastic democrats are honest, but the machine is just as bloodthirsty as it was in '94. Longshore's Alabama Leader.

Holy smoke, a democrat honest! What an admission for a pop paper. Surely there is a mistake somewhere.

MAJOR MCKINLEY has discovered a new kind of dollar, the full dollar. We have known for a long time that a dollar would buy enough white ink to get a man full, but now it seems the dollar must also be "full."

THE candidate for sheriff of Coosa county on the populist ticket was pulled last week and carried to Montgomery on the charge of running an illicit still. He is a "plum good un."

ONE of Calera's enthusiastic democrats says he's going to vote the ticket through from A to Z on down to and so forth. That's the proper stuff.

THE pops are pops no longer. Flops would fill the bill better. They are flopping every day, and are coming home in droves. Good nuff.

IT is only about two weeks until the election. Democrats should be on the move. Let no grass grow under your feet.

READ the democratic national platform on the fourth page of The Chronicle, and then get on it with both feet.

WE suppose "thesenate is delighted" at the ticket and the platform launched at Chicago.

GOODWIN's explanations don't seem to explain.

"No crown of thorns; no cross of gold."

POOR MAN'S MONEY.

Much has been said and is still being said by the free silver advocates about free silver being the poor man's money. A writer on the subject suggests free copper as the proper metal for the poor man's money, if he is to have a cheaper dollar than other people, and gives good reasons therefor when he says: "The farmers and laboring men should not be fooled by either the goldbugs or the silver bugs, as neither gold or silver can be called the poor man's money. If free silver will be a good thing for the working people, free copper will be better. There is no argument that can be advanced for free silver but applies with greater force to free copper. Copper has been used for money the world over for thousands of years. The widow's mite was copper, and the widow and children of the poor today have copper only to use for their necessities. If 53 cents worth of silver can be made into a government dollar and this action bring great prosperity and plenty of money for all, then 3 cents worth of copper can also be made into a government dollar and bring greater prosperity and more money for all. During the civil war in this country gold and silver both disappeared from circulation, and copper was the only one of the metals which remained in active circulation, and it supplied the only money which the poor man could use to buy his daily bread. Let us meet the issue boldly, and instead of giving 53 cents worth of silver for a dollar, use copper and give only 3 cents. Let the public save 97 cents on the debts which they have to pay rather than only 47 cents."

THE TROUBLE IN BUTLER.

From the Selma Times.

The Butler Piebalds held a primary some time ago, as you know, and their bosses, not satisfied at the nominations made by it for county offices, tore up the returns and ordered a new primary. This was held last Monday so far as it was held at all. The Greenville Advocate says 144 voted at Greenville in the first primary, and only 81 at the last one. It is also told by the Mobile Register that only about 400 voted in the whole county in this last deal. Whether or not the bosses will tear up these returns as they did the first remains to be seen. The fact is, however, that the hog has gone with his mouth tied in Butler.

And it is the end of a pitiful story. Perhaps no county in the state had a more wild and cantankerous lot of populists than Butler. They had it bad and all over; not only on the skin but in the flesh and bone. They would not talk to you. If you tried to reason with them they said you were in the pay of Wall street, though most of them didn't know where Wall street was. When folks lose their heads in that way they are in the best condition to be handled by a slick duck who knows how to humor them. "No fools no fun," and "a sucker is born every minute," is the motto of the slick duck. So the slick ducks got hold of the machinery and made the rantankerous vote them all the fat offices of the county. The rantankerous thought they were doing great things, and this sort of thing has gone on in Butler several years. Sensible people had to stand by, look on, and wonder how it would turn out. Well, there was only one way for it to turn out. The slick ducks run the thing in the ground. Even the rantankerous can see that they have made themselves foolish for the benefit of nobody but those who were slick enough to get the offices. So they are all to pieces down there now, and the democrats will win, hands down.

W. F. ALDRICH

The Man Who Is Responsible for Failure to Secure Public Lands

FOR INDUSTRIAL SCHOOLS

He Tried to Make a Political Deal With Booker T. Washington.

The following letter from Washington to the Jacksonville Republican, written by F. W. Gist, formerly of this county, should be read by every white and colored citizen of Shelby county.

"The bill to donate 25,000 acres of public land to the Girls' Industrial School of Alabama failed of passage by the past congress. A brief history of the measures will be of interest to all Alabamians, and it is but just that they should know who is responsible for the failure.

It was introduced by Mr. Robbins, and was in the interest of the newly established school for the industrial training of the girls of Alabama. This school, as is well understood, is of the greatest importance to those girls who have not the means of acquiring a classic education and whose prospects for life make it desirable to fit them for self support.

Mr. H. C. Reynolds came to Washington and was granted a hearing by the committee on the public lands of the house. At the same time Booker Washington appeared in behalf of his school at Tuskegee and the committee unanimously agreed to report in favor of donating both schools an equal amount of land. Mr. Underwood reported the bills and they went on the calendar.

It was then only left to get unanimous consent for their passage. This could only be obtained from the speaker, and that functionary being a confirmed hater of all southern institutions refused his consent. Booker Washington was then called upon to use his influence with Mr. Reed. He did so, and was told by the speaker to take the bills to the senate, get them through that body, and they would then be allowed to pass the house.

At this point it was clearly seen that the scheme of the speaker was to get the bills both through the senate, and when they reached the house to let the Tuskegee bill go through and kill the white girls bill. However, it happened that in the senate Alabama is represented by a man of brains, who is more than a match for the wily schemes of Mr. Reed. Here Senator Morgan combined the two bills into one and had no trouble in getting them passed. They went over to the house and Mr. Reed was called upon to make good his promise to Washington. Here the cloven foot protruded from under the beery form of the speaker, and, characterizing the appropriation to the white girls as a "steal," he refused his consent to the passage of the bill.

This is the character of the man who presides over the house, and who wanted to be president. This is the character of all republicans when the interests of the South are at stake.

About this time Mr. Robbins was unseated, and it was hoped that the bill was being delayed to give Mr. Aldrich the credit of getting the bill through. It was known that this gentleman was opposed to the school on grounds of personal spite toward Montevallo, and that the donation of the public lands would be against his interests as a mine operator, but it was supposed that he would give away his personal feelings, as a statesman should, to the interests of his people. Again Booker Washington was called upon to exert his influence with a republican congressman. He willingly approached Mr. Aldrich and was as promptly met by an inquiry as to what he was willing to do in a political way in return for the passage of the bill. His evidence of shallowness and contemptible littleness so disgusted Washington that he gave up the fight.

The matter was rested for awhile, and Mr. Reynolds went to work among the populist friends of Mr. Aldrich. Several of these wrote Mr. Aldrich, importuning him to call up and secure the passage of the bill. This he had ample opportunity to do. Notwithstanding the opposition of Mr. Reed, his consent could have been secured by Mr. Aldrich with the proper effort. Finally Mr. Aldrich selected a day which had been set apart for the consideration of pension matters, and while the pension bill was before the house he asked unanimous consent to call up the bill. As he knew before hand the chairman of the committee on invalid pensions objected and the bill went back to the calendar. This virtually disposed of it for this session.

Mr. Aldrich will, of course, claim that he made every effort to call the bill up, but the fact is he purposely waited until he knew objection would be made. He is directly responsible for the defeat of the donation in aid of the daughters of the very people who gave him their support.

This is but another proof of the fact that when the white people of the South cast their vote for a republican they sacrifice their own interests. This man, given enough votes to justify a contest, and created by a partisan, house, has sacrificed the interest of his own supporters, white and black, to his own petty spite and pecuniary advantage. He has ignored the claims of the fair girls of Alabama, and those of the colored youths who are struggling for an education. He has in-sulted the principle of the colored school by offering to barter his influence for political aid and found that person possessed of more intelligent principle than he could boast of. He has betrayed his own party by paying for his seat in congress with his support of a man whom the republicans of the district are opposed to. He has paid the fees of his lieutenants with the profits wrung from the brows of his laboring miners. The Fourth district and the entire state of Alabama is disgraced in having such a man represent it in congress. And he will ask a re-election at the hands of these people whose trust he has betrayed. Will they be fooled by him again?"

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Samuel Pitcher is on every wrapper.

Travel with a Friend
Who will protect you from those enemies—nausea, indigestion, malaria and the sickness produced by roving on the waves, and sometimes by inland traveling over the rough beds of the ill laid railroads. Such a friend is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Ocean voyages, yachtsmen, commercial and theatrical agents and tourists testify to the protective potency of this effective safeguard, which conquers all rheumatism, nervousness and biliousness.

A WOMAN
HESITATES

It isn't to be wondered at that there are so many sick and half-sick women. Most of them suppose their peculiar troubles can only be cured by the physician. That means local treatment and examinations. No wonder they hesitate. And hesitation gives disease a stronger foothold.

The truth is that local treatment and examinations are nearly always unnecessary. They are only to be submitted to till everything else fails.

McELREE'S WINE OF CARDUI

cures painful menstruation, irregularities, life-sapping drains, falling of the womb and flooding. It cures all the pains and troubles by making the feminine organs perfectly strong and healthy. THE PLATFORM.

Declaration of Principles of the Democratic Party

Presented by the Committee on Resolutions for Adoption by the National Convention at its Session in Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 8.—Following is the full text of the declaration of principles and platform presented by the committee on resolutions in the democratic national convention at its session in Chicago:

The Platform.
We, the democrats of the United States, in national convention assembled, do reaffirm our allegiance to those great essential principles of justice and liberty upon which our institutions are founded, and which the democratic party has advocated from Jefferson's time to our own—freedom of speech, freedom of the press, freedom of conscience, the preservation of personal rights, the equality of all citizens before the law, and the faithful observance of constitutional limitations.

During all these years the democratic party has been the champion of self-interest, and the centralization of government power, and steadily maintained the integrity of the dual scheme of government established by the founders of this republic. Under its guidance and teachings the great principle of local self government has found its best expression in the maintenance of the rights of the states and in its assertion of the necessity of confining the general government to the exercise of the powers granted by the constitution of the United States.

Free and Religious Liberty.
The constitution of the United States guarantees to every citizen the rights of civil and religious liberty. The democratic party has always been the exponent of political liberty and religious freedom, and it renews its obligations and re-affirms its devotion to these fundamental principles of the constitution.

The Money Question.
Recognizing that the money question is one of the most important of the day, and that the federal constitution names silver and gold together as the money metals of the United States, and that the first coinage law passed by congress under the constitution made the silver dollar the monetary unit of value and admitted gold to free coinage at a ratio based upon the silver dollar unit.

We declare that the act of 1873, demonetizing silver without the knowledge or approval of the American people, has resulted in the appreciation of gold and a corresponding fall in the price of commodities produced by the people; a heavy increase in the burden of taxation and of all debts, public and private; the enrichment of the money-lending class at home and abroad; the prostration of industry and impoverishment of the people.

Free and Unlimited Coinage.
We demand the free and unlimited coinage of both silver and gold at the present legal ratio of 16 to 1, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation.

We demand that the standard silver dollar shall be a full legal tender, equally with gold, for all debts, public and private, and we favor such legislation as will prevent for the future the demonetization of any kind of legal-tender money by private contract.

We are opposed to the policy and practice of surrendering to the holders of the obligations of the United States, the option reserved by law to the government of redeeming such obligations in either silver coin or gold coin.

Bond Issues and Circulating Medium.
We are opposed to the issuing of interest-bearing bonds of the United States in time of peace, and condemn the trafficking with banking syndicates which, in exchange for bonds and at an enormous profit to themselves, supply the federal treasury with gold to maintain the policy of gold monometallism.

Congress alone has the power to coin and issue money, and President Jackson declared that this power could not be delegated to corporations or individuals. We therefore denounce the issuance of notes intended to circulate as money by national banks as in derogation of the constitution, and we demand that all paper which is made a legal tender for public and private debts, or which is receivable for dues to the United States, shall be issued by the government of the United States, and shall be redeemable in coin.

Tariff for Revenue.
We hold that tariff duties should be levied for purposes of revenue, such duties to be so adjusted as to operate equally throughout the country, and not discriminate between classes or sections, and that taxation should be limited by the needs of the government honestly and economically administered.

We denounce as disturbing to business the republican threat to restore the McKinley law, which has been twice condemned by the people in national elections and which, enacted into law, proved a prolific breeder of trusts and monopolies, enriched the few at the expense of the many, restricted trade and deprived the producers of the great American staples of access to their natural markets. Until the money question is settled we are opposed to any action for further changes in our tariff laws, except such as are necessary to meet the deficit in revenue caused by the adverse decision of the supreme court on the income tax. But for this decision by the supreme court there would be no deficit in the revenue under the law passed by a democratic congress in strict pursuance of the uniform decisions of that court for nearly one hundred years, that court having in that decision sustained constitutional objections to its enactment which had previously been overruled by the ablest judges who have ever sat on that bench. We declare that it is the duty of congress to use all the constitutional power which remains after that decision, or which may come from its reversal by the court as it may hereafter be constituted, so that the business of taxation may be equally and impartially laid, to the end that wealth may bear its due proportion of the expenses of the government.

Protection of American Labor.
We hold that the most efficient way of protecting American labor is to prevent the importation of foreign pauper labor to compete with it in the home market, and that the value of the home market to our American farmers and artisans is greatly reduced by a vicious monetary system which depresses the prices of their products below the cost of production, and thus deprives them of the means of purchasing the products of our home manufacturers, and as labor creates the wealth of the country, we demand the passage of such laws as may be necessary to protect it in all its rights.

We are in favor of the arbitration of differences between employers engaged in interstate commerce and their employees, and recommend such legislation as is necessary to carry out this principle.

The absorption of wealth by the few, the consolidation of our leading railroad systems and the formation of trusts and pools require a stricter control by the federal government of those arteries of commerce. We demand the enlargement of the powers of the interstate commerce commission, and such restrictions and guarantees in the control of railroads as will protect the people from robbery and oppression.

Oppressive Taxation.
We denounce the profligate waste of the money wrung from the people by oppressive taxation and the lavish appropriations of recent republican congresses, which have kept the tax on the people's property at a level which is unremunerative and the products of the people's toil are depressed in price till they no longer repay the cost of production.

We demand a return to that simplicity and economy which better a democratic government and a reduction in the number of useless offices, the salaries of which drain the substance of the people.

Federal Interference.
We denounce arbitrary interference by federal authorities in local affairs as a violation of the constitution of the United States and a crime against free institutions, and we especially object to government by injunction as a new and highly dangerous form of oppression by which federal judges, in contempt of the laws of the states and rights of citizens, become at once legislators, judges and executioners, and we approve the bill passed at the last session of the United States senate and now pending in the house of representatives relative to contempt in federal courts, and providing for trials by jury in certain cases of contempt.

Government Discrimination.
No discrimination should be indulged by the government of the United States in favor of any of its citizens. We approve of the refusal of the Fifty-third congress to pass the Pacific railroad funding bill, and denounce the effort of the present republican congress to enact a similar measure.

Union Pensioners.
Recognizing the just claims of deserving Union soldiers, we heartily endorse the rule of the present committee of pensions that no names shall be arbitrarily dropped from the pension roll, and the fact of enlistment and service should be deemed conclusive evidence against disease and disability before enlistment.

Admission of Territories.
We favor the admission of the territories of New Mexico, Arizona and Oklahoma into the union as states, and we favor the early admission of all the territories having the necessary population and resource to entitle them to statehood, and while they remain territories we hold that the officials and agents who represent the government of any territory, together with the District of Columbia and Alaska, should be bona fide residents of the territory, and that the officials and agents who desire to be performed. The democratic party believes in home rule, and that all public lands of the United States should be appropriated to the establishment of a national system of public lands. We recommend that the territory of Alaska be granted a delegate in congress, and that the general land and timber laws of the United States be extended to said territory.

The Monroe Doctrine.
The Monroe doctrine as originally declared and as interpreted by succeeding presidents, is a permanent part of the foreign policy of the United States and must at all times be maintained.

Sympathy for Cuba.
We extend our sympathy to the people of Cuba in their heroic struggle for liberty and independence.

Tenure for Public Office.
We are opposed to life tenure in the public service. We favor subjecting all offices to merit, fixed terms of office, and such administration of the civil service laws as will afford equal opportunities to all citizens of ascertained fitness.

No Third Term.
We declare it to be the unwritten law of this republic, established by custom and usage of our fathers, that no president shall be elected for a third term, and we demand that no man should be eligible for a third term of the presidency.

National Waterways.
The federal government should care for and improve the Mississippi river and other great waterways of the republic so as to secure for the interior states easy and cheap transportation to the tidewater. When any waterway of the republic is of sufficient importance to demand aid of the government such aid should be extended upon the same basis as that of our water until permanent improvement is secured.

Confiding in the justice of our cause and the necessity of its success at the polls, we submit the foregoing declaration of principles and purposes to the consideration of judgment of the American people. We invite the support of all citizens, and we demand that they have them made effective through legislation for the relief of the people and the restoration of the country's prosperity.

FIGHTING RAILS.

A Hard Battle Between Two of the Birds for a Claim.

"I was hunting rail a few days ago," said a well-known sportsman, "when I heard the most terrific squawking and chattering over in the tules. From the sound I concluded that there must be at least a hundred rail, and each trying to make itself heard above the others. I worked my way cautiously through the tules and soon saw in a little opening ahead of me two muddy and bedraggled rails fighting over a clam, and it was the funniest fight I ever saw in my life.

"The birds glared at each other, with their feathers ruffled, and then sprang together. One went over on its back and lay there kicking its legs up in the air and yelling like a good fellow, while the other, in a more dignified looking for an opening. Finally he found it, and, jumping on the prostrate bird's breast, he stood and stamped with his big feet and stabbed with his sharp bill till the under bird had managed to struggle up. Then they stood over the clam and swore at each other. They didn't use cuss words, but still I could see that they were swearing. They looked like a couple of muddy teamsters quarrelling over the right of way. And the amount of noise they made was simply astounding.

Our Letter "X."
It has always been supposed that our letter y was a "lineal descendant" from the Roman y, which, in the time of Cicero, was borrowed from the Greek alphabet to represent upsilon in the translation of Greek names. It is shown, however, by late investigations, that the letter is only used to transliterate borrowed words which come to us directly from the Greek, or indirectly from the Latin or French. In the majority of cases our English y is a semiconsonant, corresponding in value to the continental European j. Y was adopted by the Anglo-Saxon, along with the other Roman letters, from the Latin alphabet, its value being approximately that of i. In fact, it is claimed that there is not a "lineal descendant" of the "Anglo-Saxon y" known. The modern English y is not a y at all, but a g, which the Romans evolved from a still earlier "c"—St. Louis Republic.

Lincoln Believed Himself Ugly.
Mrs. Benjamin Price lately told at the Woman's Literary club two anecdotes of Abraham Lincoln. In one of them she said that her father-in-law had at one time been appointed to a government position in place of Mr. Addison, who was a most polished man, but notably plain-featured man. The two gentlemen went together to call upon President Lincoln, who received them cheerfully in the midst of the somewhat embarrassing operation of shaving. His face a rather of soap, he extended a hand to each, and upon Mr. Addison enumerating the good qualities of his successor, and congratulating the president upon securing so eminent an officer, Mr. Lincoln exclaimed: "Yes, Addison, I have no doubt Mr. Price is all you say, but nothing can compensate me for the loss of you, for when you retire I shall be the homeliest man in the employment of the government."—Baltimore News.

—A Chicago policeman recently arrested a young woman and her husband because they had kissed each other in the public street as they were about to part. The sight of a man kissing his own wife is more than a Chicago policeman can stand.

"SUNRISE TO SUNSET."

Rufus Sanders Draws On the Stormy Past.

"Uncle Luke's Long Whip" Tangled the Boy and the "He Cow" And They "Tore Out from There."

Hit comes back to me to-day as clear as the ring of a thousand evening bells—the time when a gang of us boys went up to town along in the fall of the year and I give the old family graveyard a tremendous close shave. Nothing but the hand of Providence and pure nigger luck pulled me through the toils and snares and trials and troubles of that autumnal day, which then I got out of the hair of my head and the skin of my teeth, as it were.

"From Sunrise to Sunset."
Every livin' mortal man, born of woman—if he will but only stop and hunker down and look back along the line, and he didn't have no time to spare. He give a little snort and one loud below, and roached his back, and me and him tore out from there, and now, let me tell you, ladies and gentlemen, if there ever was a poor country boy in all this green and wicked old world that suffered the agonies of death in three shakes of a sheep's tail, it was me. I didn't have no time to think about what would come of me, and I didn't give a continental darn what went with the he cow. The mainest thing to my mind was Uncle Luke's fine whip, which I knewed he thought just a 1-ee-tle more of that whip than he did of his wife and children. I was skeered to pull on it much for fears it might slip off at the other end of the staff, and we would never lay mortal eyes on it no more henceforward and forever.

So I thought to myself I would better try to climb the staff, as it were, till I could get my hands on the leather part and then hang to it like grim death till something froze over. I felt exactly like I was to lose Uncle Luke's long, fine whip, it would be a whole lot better for me if I never had been borned, and I would then be ready to run away and go west, or slip off and drown myself in the biggest wash hole in the settlement. Up to that time it had always looked to me like the sun rose somewhere over there in the fat woods on the other side of Panther Creek, and then went down with a royal ballad flourish and set behind the old hills around Greenville.

In that day and generation the men folks didn't go to town as regular and frequent as they do now, and it was only about once a year that they would fill up with the milk of human kindness and let the boys go with them. And, mind you, with us boys a trip to town was the biggest thing in the deck—the happiest and most brightest spot in the records of a year. White people, according to the way I see things now and the way I saw things then, a railroad excursion all the way from New York to New Orleans nowadays ain't nothin' to a ride on our ox wagon from Panther Creek to the town of Greenville.

So in the large and lovely autumn, in the golden Indian fields were turnin' brown and red and pale in patches, the men folks they yoked up the oxen and loaded the wagons and took the boys with them and went to town. If it was given unto me to live right on for a hundred years to come I never could forget how tremendous big and broad and bright and beautiful the world looked to me on that frosty mornin' in October as the wagons rolled over the old stage road—men and oxen and boys all headed for town—from Panther Creek to Greenville—from sunrise to sunset.

Uncle Luke and His Whip.
If in case you have lived as long as I have you have took notice by this time that back there in them plain old days people had more oxen and thought more of their cow teams than they do now. On that trip I recollect that some of the men driv two oxen and some driv four, whilst Uncle Luke Willis he driv six without the sign of a rope on narry one. He had him a long keen whip, which he could take it and keep off the wheels to the horns of the lead ox way out there in front. And to hear Uncle Luke talkin' to his cows, sometimes kind and gentle and sometimes with a loud voice in the plainest and strongest United States language, and then see him handle his long whip till it would coil up and hiss and pop like a bunch of firecrackers—that was fun and show enough for me.

Soon as ever we got to town and sold out the cotton and other productions which we had took to market, the men folks driv around on the square and halted the wagons. Then they went off and left us boys there to look after the cows and keep loose stock away. You understand they didn't have no stock law in town then, and if you didn't look out the cows and hogs and things would eat up every blessed thing in the wagons.

So the men folks they left us boys with the wagons and teams, whilst they went off to "see about it," as I heard Uncle Luke say. As for me, I don't know for certain where they went, but from what little I could see and pick up around the edges I knowed blame well they didn't go off and drink any plain branch water or eat. Anyhow, we boys wanted to see some of the sights, so we took it time about in regards to mindin' the wagons, and it want no trouble at all that day to find two or three yearlin' boys fresh from the woods and hills strayin' and stragglin' around town steppin' high and awkward as a mule colt in a canebreak.

Finally at last I told the boys if they would leave Ben Chris Weaver with me and let me have Uncle Luke's long whip, I would mind the wagons and teams and they could make up a crowd and take in the town. If we only turned loose two or three at a time, you understand, they dassent go out of sight from the wagons for fears they never would get back to base. And that's how come me to take the job of mindin' all the wagons and keepin' the stock off with nothin' but Uncle Luke's long whip and Ben Chris Weaver to help me.

Now it come to pass that there was right one little woolly-headed he cow in town that day which was particularly mean and saery, and he mighty might pestered the life out of me and Ben Chris. He want me foddler, he did. He want foddler jest a little bit worse than anything else in town, and he kept me and Ben Chris so monstrous busy drivin' him away till we couldn't see no sights at all. By-and-by I told Ben Chris to let him alone till he hid his head in a pile of foddler when I would try and give him something to remember us by. Then I watched my time and slipped up behind him with Uncle Luke's long whip and tried my level blamdest to split him wide open with it. But instid of that bless gracious, I wrapped the whip around his tail fifteen or twenty times and it got tied there in a hard knot.

And there I was, in the biggest town on earth, with one end of Uncle Luke's whip in my hands, and the other end tied hard and fast to a he cow's tail. Naturally, of course, I didn't have time to think and talk over the general situation; but my mind was made up on the spot. I would hold to the whip and follow that infernal he cow all over town and clean on back there in the red hills to where the sun went, before I would turn loose and give up the fight and take my chances with the wrath to come.

Well, Bully—if that want his name I can't see why—I took up a notion about that time that he was goin' somewhere, and he didn't have no time to spare. He give a little snort and one loud below, and roached his back, and me and him tore out from there, and now, let me tell you, ladies and gentlemen, if there ever was a poor country boy in all this green and wicked old world that suffered the agonies of death in three shakes of a sheep's tail, it was me. But instid of that bless gracious, I wrapped the whip around his tail fifteen or twenty times and it got tied there in a hard knot.

And there I was, in the biggest town on earth, with one end of Uncle Luke's whip in my hands, and the other end tied hard and fast to a he cow's tail. Naturally, of course, I didn't have time to think and talk over the general situation; but my mind was made up on the spot. I would hold to the whip and follow that infernal he cow all over town and clean on back there in the red hills to where the sun went, before I would turn loose and give up the fight and take my chances with the wrath to come.

Well, Bully—if that want his name I can't see why—I took up a notion about that time that he was goin' somewhere, and he didn't have no time to spare. He give a little snort and one loud below, and roached his back, and me and him tore out from there, and now, let me tell you, ladies and gentlemen, if there ever was a poor country boy in all this green and wicked old world that suffered the agonies of death in three shakes of a sheep's tail, it was me. I didn't have no time to think about what would come of me, and I didn't give a continental darn what went with the he cow. The mainest thing to my mind was Uncle Luke's fine whip, which I knewed he thought just a 1-ee-tle more of that whip than he did of his wife and children. I was skeered to pull on it much for fears it might slip off at the other end of the staff, and we would never lay mortal eyes on it no more henceforward and forever.

So I thought to myself I would better try to climb the staff, as it were, till I could get my hands on the leather part and then hang to it like grim death till something froze over. I felt exactly like I was to lose Uncle Luke's long, fine whip, it would be a whole lot better for me if I never had been borned, and I would then be ready to run away and go west, or slip off and drown myself in the biggest wash hole in the settlement. Up to that time it had always looked to me like the sun rose somewhere over there in the fat woods on the other side of Panther Creek, and then went down with a royal ballad flourish and set behind the old hills around Greenville.

In that day and generation the men folks didn't go to town as regular and frequent as they do now, and it was only about once a year that they would fill up with the milk of human kindness and let the boys go with them. And, mind you, with us boys a trip to town was the biggest thing in the deck—the happiest and most brightest spot in the records of a year. White people, according to the way I see things now and the way I saw things then, a railroad excursion all the way from New York to New Orleans nowadays ain't nothin' to a ride on our ox wagon from Panther Creek to the town of Greenville.

So in the large and lovely autumn, in the golden Indian fields were turnin' brown and red and pale in patches, the men folks they yoked up the oxen and loaded the wagons and took the boys with them and went to town. If it was given unto me to live right on for a hundred years to come I never could forget how tremendous big and broad and bright and beautiful the world looked to me on that frosty mornin' in October as the wagons rolled over the old stage road—men and oxen and boys all headed for town—from Panther Creek to Greenville—from sunrise to sunset.

THE SOLID SILVERITES

The National Silver Party in Convention at St. Louis.

Synopsis of the Proceedings—A Solid Silver Platform Adopted and Bryan and Sewall Nominated by Acclamation.

St. Louis, July 22.—The conditions governing entrance to the silver convention were almost as rigorous as those at Chicago on the opening day of the democratic convention, although the demands for admittance were so few that at five minutes of twelve there was no one in the gallery but the band, and on the floor, scarcely more than 200 persons, including visitors.

At 12:15 Chairman Dr. Mott, of New York, and Secretary Kenney, of California, came on the platform, and arrangements for opening the convention were speedily made.

FIRST DAY.

The Proceedings.

At 12:30 Dr. Mott called the convention to order, announcing that proceedings would be opened with the reading of the call for the convention by J. M. Devine, secretary of the Democratic League, which was accordingly done by Mr. Devine.

At 12:35 Dr. Mott introduced Hon. Francis G. Newlands, representative in congress from G. Newlands, representative in congress from Temporary Chairman Francis G. Newlands, Nevada, as the temporary chairman, who addressed the convention at great length.

Committees were then named by calling the roll of states. Some of them, which were represented, failed to respond, so it was impossible to tell how many states were in the convention.

After naming the committee on credentials, the chairman suggested that the state delegations get together and select their representatives on the several committees, and pending this, Miss Lillie Pierce, of St. Louis, was escorted to the platform. She was arrayed in a garb of white, over which was draped the American flag and with a liberty cap on her head. On her left arm she wore shoulder and wrist bracelets connected with chains of gold coins and on her bosom a delegate's badge, the color of which was old gold. She stood in front of the presiding officer's desk. Miss Pierce carried a small flag, and waving it said: "Americans, under the folds of our grand old flag, I salute you." She then recited the Declaration of Independence.

The conclusion of the recitation, which was very effectively rendered, was marked by a wild outburst of applause, while the band played Red, White and Blue.

A delegate from Colorado, moved the thanks of the convention be given Miss Pierce for her recitation of the Declaration of American Liberty, and it was adopted by a rising vote and more cheering.

It was finally agreed that the state delegations should hand the names of the several members of committees to the secretary.

While the lists were being prepared Chairman Newlands read the following telegram from Senator Butler:

I. N. STEVENS, ST. LOUIS.—The money question overshadows all others. On its right determination depends the prosperity of the people and the perpetuity of republican institutions. All other questions must be subordinate to it. A vote for Bryan and Sewall is a vote for American independence and the financial independence of the American people from foreign domination and control, and they should have the support of all opponents of the gold standard."

(Signed) H. M. TELLER.

The sentiments contained in the telegram were vigorously applauded.

A recess until 4:30 p. m. was agreed to, and at 2:22 p. m. the convention separated.

Afternoon Session.

Most of the delegates were in their seats promptly at 4:30 and quite a sprinkling of visitors were in the galleries. At 4:50 Chairman Newlands dropped his ravel.

Mr. Williams, a delegate from Nebraska, moved that a committee of three be appointed to invite the delegates to the populist convention to take seats in the galleries for the afternoon, the populist not being in session. It was unanimously adopted.

The committee on rules made its report recommending that the rules of the present congress, be used in the conduct of the convention business.

The committee on credentials reported no contents, and suggested that any portion of a state delegation present in the convention could cast the full vote of the delegation. The report was adopted.

The permanent organization committee, through its chairman, Col. Bradshaw, reported in favor of Wm. P. St. John, of New York, as permanent chairman. As his name was mentioned the convention cheered vociferously.

At the request of the delegates during recesses.

Resolved, That in the present situation this organization, looking to the coming campaign, must be the peculiar representative of independent free silver republicans, and that the efforts of the national committee should be chiefly directed to combining and augmenting this republican element as an independent force co-operating with the others for the election of the candidates which this convention shall name for president and vice-president and a free silver congress.

The convention, at 12:45, took a recess until 2:30 p. m.

At the afternoon session, after preliminary work in closing up details, the platform was adopted and, nominations being declared.

In order, the nominees of the national democratic party, William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, and Arthur Sewall, of Maine, were placed in nomination and unanimously chosen as the standard bearer of the silver party.

Just before the sine die adjournment Col. Pace, of Nebraska, offered a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the convention that as the democratic party had arranged to notify Bryan and Sewall in New York, the silver party notify them in Bryan's home at Lincoln. The resolution was agreed to.

THE SILVER CRUSADE.

The Populist Wing of the White Metal Hosts in Session.

The Preliminary Proceedings—Address of Welcome by Gov. Stone of Missouri and Response by Ignatius Donnelly of Minnesota.

St. Louis, July 22.—The hall in which the populists met was the same in which the national republican convention was held last month. There were the same arrangements as to seats. The state delegations were located in the pit, each marked by a guide, with letters on either side. The galleries reared themselves above the pit, on all sides. The platform in front was flanked by the press benches. The decorations were not elaborate.

FIRST DAY.

The Proceedings.

At 12:30 the convention was called to order by Mr. Taubeneck, chairman of the national committee, and the proceedings were opened with prayer by Rev. W. R. L. Smith, of the Third Baptist church of St. Louis.

Gov. William J. Stone of Missouri introduced by Taubeneck, and delivered an address of welcome.

Hon. Ignatius Donnelly, of Minnesota, responded to Gov. Stone's address of welcome.

The chairman asked such members of the executive committee as were in the body of the hall to step up to the platform. Among those who thus advanced was Mrs. Mary Ellen Leaso, who was warmly cheered. Chairman Taubeneck introduced as temporary chairman of the convention Senator Butler, of North Carolina, saying that he had been chosen by acclamation and without a dissenting vote, in a committee of 140 members, and expressing the belief that when the convention adjourned it would have accomplished its work just as unanimously. (Cheers.)

Senator Butler received with three cheers, which he characterized as "a cyclone of patriotism." All history taught, he said, that there always came a crisis in the affairs of men when humanity was raised to a higher level according as the men whose shoulders the responsibility rested were able to meet the crisis with wisdom and patriotism (cheers).

As soon as the vote was announced, the Bryan section of the convention broke out into a wild shout of triumph, delegates standing up and cheering, and waving hats and fans, and again a procession of golden-bearers took up the march through the convention hall, yelling demagogically. The band took part in the performance with the strains of "Hail Columbia" and other patriotic airs.

Finally, at 8:30, some degree of order was restored, when Mr. Watkins, of California, stepped to the platform and said that the Campmen of (whom he was one) had fought a grand fight and had been squarely whipped, and now he moved to make the nomination of Senator Allen unanimous. The motion was adopted with a whoop. Senator Allen was escorted to the chair by Life Pence, "Gone with the Wind" and Ignatius Donnelly, and was greeted with cheers. He then addressed the convention at some length.

THIRD DAY.

Morning Session.

ST. LOUIS, July 24.

The convention was called to order by Senator Allen, permanent chairman, at 10:04 o'clock.

Prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Williams, of the Union Methodist church, St. Louis.

The chairman introduced Mrs. Marian Todd, who read a resolution expressing a regret for the death of Mrs. S. E. B. Emory, "one of our number," and read an address eloquently eulogizing the deceased lady. The resolution was unanimously adopted by a rising vote after which the reading clerk aided his tribute to the services of Mrs. Emory.

"Vote for Betsy and the baby" Monday.

Vote the democratic ticket next Monday.

Next Monday, August 3rd, is election day.

Next Monday is the day to lay the confusionists on the shelf.

The populists state ticket is doomed. Ditto their county ticket.

JOHN H. ROBERTSON should write another letter. His last one was a howling success.

DEMOCRATS, work like beavers and let's have a big majority. Work will give us the victory.

WANTED—Poll-bearers for the defunct populists party. Apply next Monday evening to A. T. Goodwyn.

DEMOCRATS of Shelby, victory is within easy reach if we put forth the proper effort. Let no man shirk his duty.

No use crying fraud this time. The majority will be too big. The confusionists may prepare to take their medicine.

NEXT Monday settles the fate of the confusionists in Shelby county. Make a good job of it and bury them deep—out of sight.

The entire confusion state ticket will be snowed under by 50,000 majority next Monday. Watch the figures and see how close we came.

NEXT Monday the confusionists will see snow-flakes in the air, icebergs hanging from the roofs, while the wind will whistle a mournful dirge through their whiskers.

COLORED voters if you want to fully realize the great love and high esteem John H. Robertson, confusionist candidate for tax collector, has for you, read his letter in another column.

A SPECIAL from Montgomery, which we reproduce elsewhere, says the republicans are disgusted and will throw Goodwin overboard. We will change our estimate, Mr. Advocate if you will allow us, and make Johnston's majority 75,000.

THERE is only one thing that can possibly defeat our county ticket next Monday, and that is apathy on the part of democrats. If every man will do his full duty, our word for it we will win in a trot. Go to hustling and keep at it till Monday night.

THE Advocate started last week that if the democrats could vote every negro in the county, the pops would still be ahead 300 votes. Is there a man in Shelby county so silly as to swallow such rot as that? Now, Mr. Advocate, we will say that we have no idea of getting the entire negro vote, but our ticket is a dead sure winner just the same. You will perhaps notice that our estimates vary widely, but the votes will decide it for us next Monday.

"I HAVE always been a true republican and worked for the party, but when it comes to this state of affairs that THE COLORED MAN PARTICIPATES IN OUR MEETINGS and SAYS WHO TO RUN, it is too much for me."—John H. Robertson's letter to The Chronicle in 1890.

Do the colored voters of Shelby county remember that in 1889, J. D. Hardy and John H. Robertson were delegates from this county and helped to organize the white republican league? Mr. Robertson says so in his letter published in this issue. Mr. Robertson refused the republican nomination in 1890 because ten negroes participated in the convention, but the pops put him on their ticket this year to catch the negro vote. Funny, isn't it?

We hear it hinted that there will be independent candidates in one or two of the beats for justice of the peace. Of course they will not be democrats, and can lay no claim to the support of democrats. Why? Simply because no man is or can be a democrat who runs independent. Whenever he takes that step he places himself out of the party, and is entitled to no consideration whatever at its hands. Every vote cast for an independent will be thrown away.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, of New York, has signalized its 50th anniversary by the publication of a very handsome 72 page special number, which consists of a review of the development of science and the industrial arts in the United States during the past 50 years. It was an ambitious undertaking, and the work has been well done. The many articles are thoroughly technical, and they are written in a racy and popular style, which makes the whole volume—it is nothing less, being equal to a book of 442 ordinary pages—thoroughly readable. It is inclosed for preservation in a handsome cover, and is sold at the price of ten cents.

It strikes us the populists ought to be doing some serious thinking about this time of year. The situation that confronts them is this: They are asked in this county and state to vote for republicans, gold bugs, of course, on next Monday. Then in November they are expected to tumble over on the other side of the fence and vote for a free silver democrat for president. The latter is decidedly in line with the views they have always held, and we see no good reason why they should not take the last tumble first and land back home where they belong and where a hearty welcome awaits them. Populists, think over this a little, and see if we are not right.

TO THE REPUBLICANS OF SHELBY COUNTY.

If there ever was a time when our grand old party needed our assistance and good judgment, it is now, when the populists are trying to gobble up and destroy our organization in the South. Worse still, they are trying to destroy the very principles upon which the republican party stands—sound money and plenty of it; protection to American labor. You cannot longer be deceived; the populists have endorsed Bryan the democratic nominee for president. They tell us here in Alabama they are our friends, and go to their national convention and declare against us. They tell us here in our state and county vote for us populists, but declare in their national convention we will forever bury your party beneath the silver wave and free trade so deep you will never rise. Now will you, can you as a true republican vote for a party whose platform and actions plainly speak out as they did only a few days ago in St. Louis, and say we will destroy the very principles that date back to the liberty of every American citizen both white and colored. Stear clear of such a party. We will get our president, and when the Napoleon of today, William McKinley, gets in the white house and the flag of our country waves over us under the old, that good old republican principle, backed up by a republican president, McKinley, who is the friend of the laboring people, he will remember us. Hoping you will keep your hands clean, stear clear, stand firm, and do not cast a vote to destroy us, I am, as ever, a true republican.

MORALITY VS. POLITICS.

YELLOW LEAF, Ala., July 24, '96.
MR. EDITOR—So far as we are able to comprehend, from what we see and hear, a great many of our people have got an over dose of politics. That is, they have got more politics than religion.

Now we wish to say through your columns to the citizens of Shelby county who are desirous to maintain good morals, that so long as our people spend the Sabbaths arguing politics and reading political papers, morals will be at a low ebb, and we will have turmoil, strife, confusion.

Now we do not intend to personate any one or wound their feelings, but we are intimately acquainted with some men who live not more than fifty miles from here, when going to church a few Sundays since, met and held an interview on governmental affairs, rather than go on and hear a sermon. You will understand this when I tell you that these men take advantage of the Sabbath to "spread the news." Some of them, when they start to church, stuff their pockets full of newspapers and their heads brimful of revellings for everybody who does not take the same medicine they take, but thanks be to God that everybody is not sick alike.

Some of these fellows got such a tremendous dose that it seems to me they will never get able to go to church, and they stay at home all day on Sunday without putting on a clean shirt, and just keep on taking that awful medicine which is poisoning their minds, ruining their moral character, and spreading destruction everywhere.

What is our duty under such circumstances? Let every good citizen rise up in their might against desecrations of God's day and put it down, and do not, for the rising generation's sake, profane the Sabbath by reading and arguing politics. It is a burning shame upon our county the way some men spend the Sabbath.

Now let all who favor the best moralist take a firm stand against such a practice, and we shall soon have instead of Sabbath-breakers church-going men; instead of turmoil and strife, peace; instead of confusion, harmony; instead of poverty, prosperity.

Yours, respectfully,
"HILLBILLIE."

BEAT 5, SHELBY COUNTY.

EDITOR CHRONICLE—Permit me, a Jeffersonian democrat, to contribute a few items to your highly esteemed paper from beat 5. We are on the eve of a great battle, and it behooves every loyal citizen to shoulder his musket and fall into line and help elect the nominees of the Chicago convention. The question before the people today is one of principle and not of party, and the action of the populists convention at St. Louis will show how much love the populists party has for their country, and how much sincerity there is in their efforts to promote the prosperity of this country. The old adage is as true in politics as it is in religion: "By their fruits ye shall know them." And this reminds me of a populists meeting I attended a short time ago at Bamford. The speakers present were all candidates for office on the fusion ticket, but they signally failed to arouse any enthusiasm in the bosoms of their populists friends, and the action of the speakers on that occasion will be the means of increasing the democratic votes at the coming election in this beat. The candidate for superintendent of education on the fusion ticket was one of the speakers. He emphasized the fact that he is a republican, always was a republican, and expected to die a republican, and during his speech he proved to the satisfaction of his hearers that he was indeed a republican. Before the close of the meeting, at the request of this gentleman, an invitation was given to the colored part of the audience to speak. One colored man responded to the invitation, warning the voters of Shelby county against voting the democratic ticket. Some one has said that every body has an influence, and no doubt this colored man has his influence, but the influence of the speakers at this meeting will be the means of swelling the list of democratic voters in August and November.

How is it that men whose every lineament of their face tells that they are intelligent, that they are educated, that they are capable of reasoning from cause to effect, and yet the evidence before us shows that they are not able to see an inch before their nose. What is the cause of this anomaly? Is it prejudice? Is it selfishness? Is it unwise influence? or some other cause that makes men so blind to their best interests, and the interests of the country in which they live? The populists party today is afflicted with this blindness, they cannot see that they are drifting gradually and surely into the republican party. Republicanism is exercising a powerful influence over them, but many of them are having their eyes opened to this fact, and are coming back heart and hand to the democratic party just in time to speed the ship of state on to democratic victory in August and November. Men of Shelby county join me in giving three cheers for the democratic ticket, national, state and county. Hurrah for Bryan and Sewall. You will hear from me again some time in the near future.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Fitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Fitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Sam. H. Fitcher is on every wrapper.

Remember the entertainment to-morrow evening at the school house.

W. F. Adams and family, of Weldon, are guests of the family of Rufus Lester.

After a month's stay in Atlanta, Mrs. I. D. Mason returned home Monday.

J. T. Leeper paid Harpersville a business visit the latter part of last week.

Miss Susie Wilson, of Birmingham, is a guest of her uncle, Rev. T. M. Wilson.

I. W. Bailey and wife, of Calera, spent Sunday with relatives at the Central.

Miss Essie Mason is visiting her friend, Miss Flossie Kifer, at Shelby this week.

Miss Luna Jackson, of Weldon, is on a visit here to her sister, Mrs. Rufus Lester.

W. F. Thetford returned Saturday from an extended visit to his old home in Talladega.

Robert Beavers, Esq., spent Saturday and Sunday in Talladega enjoying the Chautauqua.

We are glad to learn that a splendid meeting is in progress at Goodhope church, near here.

Rev. J. W. Cary, of Wilsonville, is conducting a revival meeting this week at Lester's Chapel.

J. Woods and wife, of Talladega Springs, spent Friday and Saturday with relatives in our city.

James Mason and family spent several days of the past week in Talladega county visiting relatives.

Miss Katie Reynolds, daughter of our friend James Reynolds of Montevallo, spent last week with friends here.

A jolly crowd of young people had a most enjoyable time Friday evening last at a moonlight picnic at Shelby Springs. Some contemptible car stole one of the teams and drove it here, consequently one of the boys had to make it home afoot. We presume this marked his fun to some extent at least.

You could not possibly spend a quarter that would bring you in a larger return of genuine enjoyment than by going to the entertainment tomorrow evening at the school house. We have heard Mrs. Hellen Brown-Ford several times in recent years, and we guarantee that she will give you full value for your money. Talk it up and let's have a big crowd.

A few days since we were shown a letter from Capt. T. G. Bush, superintendent of the Shelby Iron Co., to one of the contractors who has been supplying the furnace with charcoal, conveying the information that unless there was a decided increase in the demand for iron the furnace would be blown out inside of sixty days, and would remain out of blast indefinitely. Truly the outlook is blue for our Shelby friends.

Tomorrow evening Mrs. Hellen E. Brown-Ford will entertain our citizens at the school house with recitations both entertaining and humorous. The funds raised by this entertainment are to be applied towards buying more desks for the school, and every person in this community should contribute liberally to its success. The price of admission is low, only 25 cents for adults and 15 cents for children under the age of 12 years.

Yesterday we received an invitation to attend the marriage of Mr. T. J. Caldwell, of Birmingham, and Miss Neppa Hall, which happy event will take place August 4th at 711 Woodland street, Nashville, Tenn., at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. Mr. Caldwell is intimately known in Shelby county, his former home, where his noble traits of character are fully appreciated. May happiness and prosperity attend him in his earnest wish.

A peculiarly sad death occurred in our town Sunday night. Little Walker, only son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Weaver, aged 8 years, after a protracted illness, was taken from his fond parents to his home above. Only about two years since his little sister died. While we realize that their hearts are torn and bleeding, being left childless and lonely, we commend them to their Father to whose care they committed their dear ones. They have our sincere sympathy.

Wilbur Wallis, oldest son of W. W. Walls, is here with his wife on a visit to his father's family. When 16 years of age, Wilbur started out to earn a living in the railroad business. This programme did not meet the approval of his father, who tried first to persuade him out of the notion, and finally tried thrashing as a last resort.

During the progress of the aforesaid thrashing the determined youth told his father that he would live to punch his ticket. Having recently been promoted to the responsible position of conductor on the L. & N. R. R., he is now in a position to "punch" the old gentleman if he can get a chance at his ticket. Such are the ups and downs of life. The punched is now the puncher. We congratulate Wilbur heartily.

The building fever is raging in Columbiana. A regular cyclone has struck this week, and next week will see the dirt broken for three new houses. Yesterday Z. H. Clardy & Son told us that on Monday they would begin work on a one-story brick store-room on the lot between their building occupied by Parker & Armstrong and the store of Lester, Mason & Co., in other words the projected building will span the ditch. A renter has been secured for a term of years before a brick is placed on the ground. The same firm were also given the contract for a five-room cottage dwelling for J. G. Parker. Mr. Parker will move next Wednesday, and Thursday a force of hands will be put to work tearing down the old dwelling, and as soon as the material can be placed on the lot, the new house will be begun.

Lumber is also being cut this week for a new lively stable to be built by A. M. Elliott, on the vacant lot near his dwelling, the size of which will be 40 x 100 feet. Work on this building will begin next week. If this is not a good record for one week, then we are no judge. If you want to "get in the swim" move to Columbiana.

Another Lie Nailed.

I understand that a report is being circulated about Shelby, and perhaps elsewhere, that I said I did not want republicans or populists to vote for me. That is a lie. I would feel especially complimented by votes from the opposing parties, because they would be strictly for personal reasons, and not on party grounds.

Card of Thanks.

Mr. Editor:—We wish to use the columns of your paper to thank the good people of our town for the many acts of kindness shown us during the severe trials through which we have passed, in the sickness and death of our darling little boy.

We wish especially to mention the four little boys, Pierce Mason, Tommie Norris, John and Fleet Strickland, who were so kind in calling to see Walker during his sickness.

We also wish to mention the kindness of the pall-bearers, who so willingly carried the remains to the cemetery.

Respectfully,

MR. AND MRS. T. J. WEAVER.

Items from Creswell.

Pink Hambricht and wife returned to their home at Irondale last week, after spending a few weeks with relatives and friends here and at Fayetteville.

H. P. Baggett went over to Birmingham last week on business and to visit his old home.

Mrs. W. S. Lowe and family, accompanied by Miss Jennie Bates, is visiting in Coosa county this week.

Miss Viola Dentil, from near Vincent, is spending a few days here attending the meeting.

Tilden and Misses Vista, and Leona Blanchard, of Sycamore, are visiting relatives here this week.

Some of the rep-pop candidates were here last Monday telling some negroes and a few white folks that old memorized tale that always disgusts so many and kills so many pop-rep votes.

If there has been no more interest manifested in other parts of the county and at other speakings than there was here, we do not see how they have kept out of a hole long ago without waiting until next Monday.

As Judge Russell, at Harpersville, pulled down, L. H. Cosper, of this place, has been placed on the democratic ticket for justice of the peace in this beat. It is needless to say he is worthy of the place and will make a good officer, and all would do well to cast their vote for him.

The protracted meeting commenced here last Sunday, conducted by Rev. F. G. Mullen. We hope there will be much and lasting good done.

We would again hint that some of the young ladies might talk less in church; and we see it is not confined exclusively to the young ladies, but some of the young men as well. We do not wish to place any one's name before the public connected with a matter of this kind, but "a word to the wise is sufficient."

"CHORTAW."

NO NEGRO IN HIS!

John Robertson Refused the Republican Nomination in 1890

Because Ten Negroes Participated in the Convention

But He Was Put on the Populite Ticket This Year to Catch the Negro.

In 1890 a republican convention was held in the court house in Columbiana, presided over by John Brown, of Wilsonville, and a colored man as secretary. The convention was composed of 17 delegates, 10 of whom were colored. J. D. Hardy was nominated for the legislature and John Robertson for superintendent of education. The next week Mr. Robertson wrote the following letter to The Chronicle, which was published in the issue of June 4, 1890, and can be seen any day by reference to the files of said paper either in the court house or in the Chronicle office:

MR. ROBERTSON'S LETTER.

WILSONVILLE, ALA., June 2, 1890.

MR. EDITOR:—I have been reliably informed that there was a so-called republican convention held in Columbiana on the 29th inst., and that J. D. Hardy was nominated for the legislature and myself for superintendent of education. I want to say to the people of Shelby county that I will not accept the nomination by any means when it comes from such a source as the aforesaid convention.

I denounce the whole thing, and if it takes that sort of a crowd to make a republican, it leaves me out. It has been rumored that I was there. I can truthfully say that I was not. Had I been there I would have kicked out. I have put myself to some trouble to see some of the republicans and they all denounce it that I have seen or heard of. I have always been a true republican and worked for the party, but when it comes to this state of affairs THAT THE COLORED MAN PARTICIPATES IN OUR MEETINGS AND SAYS WHO TO RUN, IT IS TOO MUCH FOR ME.

The most of the people remember the meeting that was held in Birmingham on the 10th of April last year. J. D. Hardy and myself represented Shelby county and WE, with about 200 delegates, ORGANIZED THE WHITE REPUBLICAN LEAGUE. Now it seems to me that J. D. Hardy has gone back on the whole thing.

You will please pardon me for taking up your space, if you publish this, which I hope you will do, as I want to be set right before the good people of old Shelby.

Yours truly and with respect,

JOHN H. ROBERTSON.

Wilsonville Warblings.

Mrs. J. F. Pope has returned home after a several days visit to Talladega. Miss Georgia Pope surprised us very much by making her appearance in Wilsonville one day last week.

W. J. Timney and E. Williamson went to Talladega last Saturday, negotiating the wonders of the last days of the Chautauqua, and returned Sunday night.

Justin C. Jackson biked it to Talladega, 30 miles, Sunday morning while the minute hand of his watch was revolving three times, and returned Sunday night.

W. R. Smith, E. Dultamus and J. Taylor went to Antioch last Sunday. Boys, did you get your feet bathed?

Miss Lula Densler and mother participated in a trip to Talladega last Friday. Mrs. Densler returned Sunday, and Miss Densler Monday. They report a very pleasant time.

Miss Emma Taylor, one of the most cheerful and most fascinating young ladies that ever visited our city, was the guest of Miss Lula Densler a few days last week. She departed for her home Saturday. Boys, watch, eye watch that flying train; some day we'll see her sweet face again.

Don't forget the S. P. L. League meeting next Friday night. The majority of the members have taken their summer outing and we trust that each and every member will be present so as to make these meetings interesting. A nice program has been arranged, and I take the liberty of saying that if you will come you will not regret it.

I am pleased to state that Prof. J. B. Kilpatrick has just issued a beautiful catalogue of his school and surrounding locality, formation, health, climate, etc., also the industrial enterprises of our town. The professor is worthy of the patronage of every young man or lady who desires to attend school. Send for his catalogue.

We played an interesting game of ball with Harpersville last Friday afternoon. The outlook was gloomy for us until the third inning when O. W. Timney resigned his position as pitcher and was succeeded by Weldon, which meant our game. The final score was 17 to 13 in our favor. We had the sweet pleasure of batting McLean, of Vincent, entirely out of the box in one inning. This makes our series of games, or two games that we have won in succession this season, with Harpersville.

"Wilsonville," which being interpreted means "Four Mile," I did not mean to offend you so you would not write any more in that Advocationality, but simply to ask you for an explanation which as yet you have failed to give. If I were you I would help that thing out all I could for I am under the impression that it needs something. It is very much like a little paper I used to take, has just about as much truth in it which I asked the editor to please send my paper blank.

A new prophesy made by a pop. Prophesying the effect of the gold standard. He stood on his tip-toes of eloquence canvassing the country, so I've been told, belching his poisonous doctrine upon hundreds of his kind and color. Says he, or in substance thereof: When it becomes a law we will have to pay our taxes in gold, and the poor people of the country can't get the gold, consequently cannot pay their taxes, and the able men for their gold will come forward, pay the tax and take possession of their property. Pity on the man and those who believe it. Their is not a negro in Shelby county but what has more common sense than to believe any such trash. I am afraid that a man like this when he knows that he is only fooling the people who never have thought anything about it, and leading them in this direction, will not be permitted to enter the transient golden streets, but at his death the power of gravitation will be so attractive that it will draw him to its centre.

WANT GOODWYN OFF.

Alabama Republicans May Ask Him to Drop Out of the Race.

JOHNSTON A SURE WINNER

A Montgomery special, 25th, says: A movement has been set on foot in the ranks of the republican party in this state to assemble a republican state mass meeting and annul the agreement to support Goodwyn and the populist state ticket in the elections next Monday.

The several republicans who were seen here today denied any positive knowledge of the movement, but intimated that they would be very glad to participate in it. One of them said: "The only objection I have to the proposed action is that it is unnecessary. Scarcely a corporal's guard of republicans will vote for Goodwyn. I think it would be well enough to put the party on record as against Goodwyn, however."

"We are certainly justified in throwing the populists overboard," suggested another. "The action of the populist and democratic national conventions proves out Nathan Alexander's (colored) definition of a populist as a sort of democrat. I think we ought to repudiate the action of the national people's party by withdrawing our promise of support to their state ticket. Goodwyn does not stand any chance of election, anyway."

A number of prominent republicans here have been asked for their opinion as to the probable national effect of the nomination of Mr. Bryan by the populists. For some reason they are all as dumb as oysters. One thing is evident, and that is that they are not a bit pleased.

FROM OLD ROCKY.

People and Things at the "Confluence of the Streams."

The American People as a Race of Politicians—The Story of the Widow Mixon and Her "Old Faded Umbrella."

So far as I can now recollect, and so far back as the family records run, American politics have always been American politics. And under the general circumstance of the surrounding it looks plum natural and right to me that we have been bred and bred and bringing up a race of politicians. If it now comes to pass that we have more elections, and more various and sundry different sorts of politics than anybody else in the round created world, it is because we live under the broadest flag and in the greatest country on the broad bosom of the earth perhaps.

"The weather is swelterin hot, Rufus, but if we can figger on the future from the general appearances of the present, there will soon be one more waddin match and two old fools made happy down in the Panther creek settlement," says Aunt Nancy Newton to me and mother at the dinner table one day.

"As for me, I don't make out like your Aunt Nancy knows everything for certain," the dear, delightful old soul went on, as she backed her coffee cup down to the tank for the third time; "but bless gracious I aint stone blind if I do wear specs. You know, and I know, and everybody knows that old Mises Mixon is now a poor, lone widder for the second time, whilst Elder Butler has already followed three wives to the graveyard over at Pilgrim's Rest. Now they are both full of years, as the Scriptures would put it, but they are likewise also full of fool notions, as your Aunt Nancy would say. On Tuesday before the Fourth of July the widder she went around to the Butler place to see if the elder didn't want to buy a fine young beef which she had to sell. From what I have since learnt they closed the beef trade quicker than you could say sent with your mouth open. But that wad the mainest thing, Rufus. When the widder started back home she left her old faded umbrella over there at the Butler place—went off and forgot it as clear as a whistle, you understand. Consequentially on the mornin of the Fourth when the elder started to the big barbecue and political raffication down at Tucker's mill he had to drive around by the widder's to take her umbrella home. Then naturally of course it just happened that the widder she was also fixin off to the barbecue, and so she got in the buggy with the elder and they rid on down to the mill together under that same old faded umbrella. To be certain I don't know everything for certain, Rufus, but human nature is powerfully human and anybody can put two and two together and count up four. And in the main time the widder Mixon's old faded umbrella aint gone nowhere."

In the general run of politics this year I have seen a right smart to put me in mind of Aunt Nancy's story of the Widder Mixon and her old faded umbrella. Way last spring the free silver demerats they wad over across the creek to see the third party people, and when they returned back home they left their umbrella over there. Here lately it would seem like the third party people have come over to fetch the umbrella home and return the visit, and from all the general appearances at the present writin you needn't to faint and fall over in it if you see a big political waddin match this summer. They are all under the same umbrella now and keepin step to free silver music at the rates of sixteen to one.

The Smell of Kosum Was There.

Some people thought maybe think that all the natural born fools and green goods on the earth live right down here in the Rocky Creek country. But I can tell you a whole lot better than that. Mind you, now, I don't say but what the fool killer could pick up a few scatterin jobs in this skirt of woods. But you must recollect that the whole entire human family don't live in the same settlement.

Once upon a time, some three or four years ago, I was laid up for general repairs at a little railroad town in the piney wood belt of East Texas. The people around town didn't have anything in particular to do but go down to the depot and see the cars, and come back by the post office and wait for the mail. One day a covered wagon rolled up in front of the post office loaded with a family of people. There was likewise three dogs and one tar bucket under the wagon. The man crawled out and walked in and said he would love to see the postmaster, which it wadn't no tremendous heavy job for him to find what he was lookin for.

"Me and my folks we live down here in the sawmill destrict, and we are now goin up yonder in the Turkey Creek settlement to see my brother Bill and his folks," says the man which had driv in in the covered wagon. "The old folks back in the states they writ us a letter nigh about three year ago, and I reckon as how we ought to drop them a few lines to let 'em know how we are comin on. Do you sell mail cards here, mister?"

"Do you mean postal cards?" asked the postmaster.

"I reckon I do," says the man from the sawmill country. "What do you ax for a card?"

"One cent."

"Golly, but aint that cheap. I'll jest take two at a pop so's me and Bill and the women folks can all drop a line back home."

"Do you want a pen and ink, or a pencil and paper to write with?"

"Nary one right now mister. Reckon my brother Bill and his folks have got some writin fixments and we can do 'em both up together and send 'em off when we come through on our return back home."

A week had went by when bright and early one mornin a covered wagon halted in front of the post office, and the man which hailed from the regions of tar, pitch and turpentine come bulgin right in and tackled the postmaster quest more.

"Homed if they aint fixed up new, mister, and fixed up accordin to law," says he, as he shoved two postal cards through the window to the postmaster. "Bill's wife she writ 'em both, whilst Bill and me and my wife told her what to set down. Aint they fixed right, mister?"

"They are fixed right," says the postmaster.

"Now how much will it cost us to send 'em on through to the old folks back there in the states?"

"Not a continental red. The government will take them through for nothin."

"The native h'll you say! Well, durned if I ever would of thought it. And here like the blasted idiot which I am—I have been dead square agin the government for thirty-odd years. But blamed if I aint with her, right or wrong, henceforward from now on. Say, mister, the next time they git up a war you jest let us know, and durned if me and my brother Bill don't fight under the old flag till the evenin stars sing together."

The two postal cards are shuffled into the mail pouch and then tossed on the noon train. The covered wagon, the dogs and the tar bucket have moved on. The man with the smell of rosun in his clothes returns back home, whilst the wide and wicked world wags its way and all is well.

"Hit Was Old Mart's Treat."

My friend and fellow citizen, Mart Mayo is such a tremendous big liar till it would be mighty hard for people to believe the cold and solemn truth if he told it. Andy Lueves git it out free gratis as his public and private opinion that Mart Mayo couldn't tell the truth with a dead rest. But when Mart owns up to it that he has been and backed himself agin a great big snag and brings himself out as the under dog in the fight, I reckon you can sprinkle on a little salt and take it for truth.

For something better than a month past, old Mart has been off some wheres, and when he turned up in the settlement onest more last week all he would tell the boys as to where he went was to the general extent that he had been over in the mountains of Tennessee bruisin around for his health. But it has now leaked out in the settlement that he fetched back a wagon load of "the first runnins of the corn," which the boys tell me is particular smooth and fine.

Anyhow, Mart is now tellin a bully story, which the most funniest part to me is that it shows him as the under dog in the fight and brings him out way down at the little end of the horn.

"You understand, boys, I had come into town one day from the mountains, where they don't use nothin but pure spring water—I mean they don't use nothin else 'ummin off the corn—and consequently I was feelin mighty fresh and promiscuous. Then all at onest I thought I would mount the railroad cars and ride up to the next station and back, jest mainly to see how it felt. When I got on board of the cars I saw a man, which it seems to me like I must of seen him somewhere before that day. I looked at him and he looked at me, we did, till finally at last I couldn't stand it no longer. I went over there and slapped him on the shoulder, social like and friendly, and says I to him, says I: 'Mister, your face looks powerful famillious like to me. Where in the hell did I meet up with you?'"

"Raley I haven't got the answer to that question along with me," says he. "What particular place in hell do you hail from?"

"Well, I could see right where I had backed my fool self up agin a scandalous big snag," the great and gifted liar went on, "and I reckon you boys can see wherein it was then old Mart's treat."

News from the Settlement.

Squire Doggin and John Andrew Milligan have both cut a double back action summer set in politics. They are both out for the legislature, and to a man on the grand stand it looks like they are also out for the stuff. At the start John Andrew was a gold democrat, and the squire he was a free silver populist. But the democrats and the populites all got together on a sixteen to one free silver platform, and blamed if the squire and John Andrew didn't jest naturally tear up the earth and spit their under clothes to see which could slide onto the free silver plank first.

The Galloways and the Stinson boys got together at a picnic over on Huckleberry ridge last Saturday and had a lively shootin match. They didn't hit nothin but the open air and didn't hurt anybody to speak of. Jule Nabors, the deputy constable, run out from under his hat and tore down three panels of a stake-and-ridered fence in the general neglect of his official duty. Old Mises Galloway missed the foot log and waded to take a hand in the fight, whilst two of the Stinson women folks fainted and got run over in the general scatteration. But the storm has now blown over, and all is lovely at the confluence of the streams.

No Advantage.

Mr. James Moriarty, in the days of his bachelorhood, loudly maintained that a man should be the head of the family. Then, when he was 46 years old, he united his fortunes with those of a pleasing widow a few years his senior.

It soon became evident to their friends that Mrs. Moriarty governed her spouse with a firm and steady hand, and that the days of his freedom were over. When he had been married about a month he failed to appear one evening at a special meeting of a club of which he had long been an active member, and the next day he was taxed with this absence by a friend, Mr. Herlihy.

"Sure, and why weren't you at the club last evenin," James?" inquired Mr. Herlihy.

"Well, man, you see it's jist loike this," began Mr. Moriarty, shamefacedly; "me wife she—"

"An' what has your wife to do with it at all?" interrupted Mr. Herlihy, in apparent amazement. "Isn't it yer self that always said the man should be the head of the family, and not the wofe?"

"Yis, Michael, many's the time O've said that same," assented Mr. Moriarty, miserably. "And O'll not take back my words. But niver having enjoyed the advantages of matrimony, O forgot wan thing; the man may be the head; but if it's the wofe is the neck, Michael, that turns the head; or kapes it still, O'm thinking these days it'd be jist as well to be fut!"

M'KINLEY'S IGNORANCE.

The Republican Nominee Has No Knowledge of Financiering.

McKinley's admirers made haste to give him an opportunity to make some remarks regarding the Coliseum permanence, and he improved the opportunity without hesitation in the style to which he is addicted.

The Coliseum crowd had just completed its unique job by nominating the Maine protectionist, all-around monopolist and bosom friend of Senator Frye and the late Mr. Blaine, when a Foraker club drew up before the Canton joss house and elicited a "timely" speech from the occupant of that shrine.

After uttering sundry words in very solemn and impressive style about a struggle greater than that of the civil war—a struggle to preserve the honor of the government, a contest in which "patriotism is above party and national honor is dearer than any party name"—the great orator went on to say:

"The currency and credit of the government are good now and must be kept good forever. Our trouble is not with the character of the money that we have, but with the threat to debase it. We have the same currency that we had in 1892, good the world over and unquestioned by any people."

Here we have the same ignorance of economic principles, the same ignoring of notorious facts, that have characterized all of McKinley's utterances on the currency question.

The republican candidate is unable to see anything amiss in the system which culminated in the act of 1890 providing for the purchase of silver with a new emission of legal tender notes and producing the disastrous panic of 1893.

Our currency was not good the world over and unquestioned by any people in 1892. The silver act of 1890, in the passage of which McKinley took an active part, had shaken confidence and caused a reduction of more than $80,000,000 in the net treasury gold long before the presidential election of 1892.

By the admission of far abler republican leaders than McKinley that set produced distrust and was the immediate cause of the panic of 1893.

All competent judges know that our currency has been unsound ever since the war issues of legal tender notes. They know that its unsoundness was confirmed and perpetuated by the half repeal of the resumption act in 1878 and the provision that redeemed legal tenders should not be extinguished.

ME AND MARK.

They know that the endless chain thus forged was put in motion by the republican silver act of 1890. They know that the currency will never be sound until provision is made for the extinguishment of redeemed notes and for taking the government out of the business of providing credit currency.

They know that the republican doctrine that government should provide each citizen with the means of the whole brood of errors in regard to money which has kept the country in turmoil for 30 years and produced two great panics, not to speak of less serious ones.

McKinley knows none of these things. He actually believes, if we may credit his repeated utterances, that there is nothing wrong with our currency and that the only thing needed to make it absolutely perfect is more taxes for the enrichment of protectees.

Is this the kind of man to lead in a struggle to preserve the honor and credit of the government? Is he the man to guide those economic reforms which we must have before we can be rid of an unsound currency and the whole black brood of panic-breeding errors and heresies which always accompany an unsound currency?

Far from it. Sound financiers, sound democrats cannot support McKinley, the ignorant, more than they can support Bryan, the silver attorney and repudiator. They cannot vote for either of these "advances agents of prosperity" for classes at the expense of the masses.—Chicago Chronicle.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

—Is McKinley still in favor of the McKinley bill? If not, does he favor lowering the protection of campaign-fund contributors?—N. Y. World.

—Modesty, of course, will prevent either Mr. McKinley or Mr. Hobart from voting for himself, but Mr. Hobart is going to vote for Mr. McKinley and Mr. McKinley is going to vote for Mr. Hobart.

—Candidate Hobart is a great deal more pronounced in his financial views than is Candidate McKinley, which is only another way of saying that Hobart is not so great a hypocrite as the head of the ticket.—Illinois State Register.

—Mr. McKinley appears to have an unfortunate connection with labor strikes. In 1892, with his prosperity bill in operation, the bloody Homestead labor war occurred, and now, only a week or two after his nomination as the prosperity candidate, bloody labor riots occur in Cleveland. This brand of prosperity is costly to people and candidate.—Harrisburg Patriot.

—Although a lower tariff prevails on tin plate than was levied by the McKinley act, the industry continues to gain ground. No less than 36 plants are now in operation making the black plates, which are the foundation of the product, and which have heretofore almost entirely been imported from England. In fact, the country is in a way of supplying its own needs in this respect.—Springfield Republican.

HANNA'S POOL AND PROFITS.

McKinley's Manager Has a Pull on the Trusts.

The Philadelphia Press recently complained because the new iron ore pool had increased the price of ore by 35 per cent, without increasing the wages of the mine workmen. This enthusiastic supporter of Mr. McKinley and Mr. Hanna was pointing out that the tariff duties on iron and steel products were in danger because of the number and the extent of the combinations recently formed in the iron and steel industry.

"The various iron and steel trades," said our McKinley contemporary, "which are raising prices by combination may find themselves stripped of all protection." We quote also the following:

"The iron ore combination has advanced prices and not wages. It is unjustifiable. The steel billet combination, like that in ore, by raising prices, has affected all branches of steel manufacture. It has added to the cost of the Carnegie steel wire. The steel of a long list of articles to the consumer will be advanced by its action."

But the Press must know that Mr. Hanna, who organized the iron ore pool, needed money for the expenses of Mr. McKinley's canvass. Mr. Hanna is the president of the Chapin iron company, which owns the great Chapin mine. This mine stands second on the list of ore producers, and its output last year was 635,000 tons. The pool advanced prices on the basis of an increase from $2.90 to $4.10 per ton for Bessemer ore. The Chapin mine had its allotted share of this increase, and Mr. Hanna is interested in other iron mines.

It is plain that the increase of about one dollar per ton has very perceptibly enlarged Mr. Hanna's income. As we have said, he wanted money for McKinley's canvass. He said a few days ago that the canvass had cost him $100,000 and that only $38,000 had been contributed by other friends of his candidate. Well, the additional profits of his investment in the Chapin mine and other iron mines and associated interests, procured by means of the pool's increase of price, have at least been equal, we presume, to his expenditures on McKinley's account.

If it is true, as the Philadelphia Press asserts, (and the Press is his friend and McKinley's friend,) that he and his pool associates did not increase wages, why should the Press complain? Was not the money, or a part of it, spent in procuring the nomination of "the advance

—Gov. McKinley's adjutant general resigned to escape investigation; his inspector of factories was dismissed for dishonesty and forced to make restitution of several thousand dollars, some of which he confessed to have used as contributions to the republican campaign fund; the management of the Ohio penitentiary, as disclosed by Gov. Bushnell's investigations, was equally scandalous and corrupt. A competent executive could have presented all this and other irregularities and extravagances by the exercise of the supervisory authority vested in that office. Gov. McKinley permitted them to go on unchecked.—Boston Post.

ONE of the most heinous crimes ever committed in Austin, Tex., was brought to light on the 30th. W. E. Burt, a member of one of the most respected families of Austin, murdered his wife and two children, aged 2 and 4 years, and placed the dead bodies in a cistern.

FIFTY contractors, employing 2,000 garment workers, signed the agreement of the Brotherhood of Tailors at New York on the 31st.

Mrs. HENRY WEBSTER was fatally shot by John Webster, her son, at La Porte, Ind., on the 31st, because she refused him money.

DRIVEN to despair by different causes, six people attempted to end their own lives by suicide at Chicago on the 31st.

FAILURES for the past week have been 281 in the United States against 261 last year and 40 in Canada against 28 last year.

THE postoffice at Ullysses, in Lawrence county, Ky., was burned on the 30th, after having been robbed. The loss will aggregate $2,500.

THE movement to secure a suspension of the distilleries of Kentucky for eighteen months has at last been successful. All preliminaries were finished at a meeting held at Louisville on the 31st.

FOUR deaths occurred at Louisville, Ky., on the 29th, from heat. The mercury reached a maximum of 95 degrees. Many prostrations were reported.

GEN. R. E. COLTON, who was an officer in the Confederate army and at one time commanded the Stonewall brigade, died at the Soldier's Home at Richmond, Va., on the 29th, in his 71st year.

COL. JAMES F. LILLY was shot down in the Baptist church at Metcalf Ga., on the 2d by John T. Ruskin.

JOINT DISCUSSION.

Senator Thurston, of Nebraska, and a Chicago lawyer open the campaign in Wisconsin—Free Silver the Subject of the Debate—The Question Logically and Learningly Discussed by the Speakers on Both Sides.

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 31.—Senator Thurston, of Nebraska, for the republican party, and Clarence S. Darrow, a Chicago lawyer, for the democrats and populists, contested with oratory and argument for presidential votes yesterday afternoon at Lakeside, the grounds of the Monona Lake assembly near this city.

Mr. Thurston said that it was among Wisconsin people that he grew to manhood and that in the first regiment of his cavalry he went out to fight and die, if necessary for his country. The senator continued:

We are here especially to discuss certain financial theories and views which are disturbing our people. This money question is a new one in this campaign. I was brought up to believe that the judgment of the man who had succeeded in life was better to follow than that of the man who had failed; that the word of the man who had never broken his promise was better to believe than that of the man who had broken his word. Therefore, I think it is safer for me to keep away from the leadership of such men as Altgeld and Tillman and Llewellyn and Waite, and follow the lead of Allison and Reed, and that greatest of all Americans, William McKinley, of Ohio. Four years ago the issue before the people made, for the most part, by the man who are now presenting another issue, was not the issue which they would have you believe should be the one on which to go to the polls in 1896.

William J. Bryan made no other argument and advocated no other issue four years ago than the tariff. He and his associates had no intention of bringing forth this new issue until they realized they were overwhelmingly defeated by the people on the issue of free trade on which they secured a majority of votes four years ago.

Don't you think, in view of the promises given four years ago and their default to pay, that it would be best to ask for a little collateral security on which to back up this new promise?

I am an American. The American traveling in foreign lands finds that his silver dollar is taken without one cent of discount. You can buy with it twice as much as you can with the silver dollar of any country which opens its mints to the free coinage of silver. I do not want to Mexicanize our American dollar or apologize for its cheapness.

Gold means free coinage. Did you stop to think that the free coinage of silver will increase the value of bullion, that it will not bring to the people higher wages or give them better prices for their products? Free coinage will either lower the standard of our dollar to the 50-cent Mexican dollar or else it will double the value of our neighbor's dollar without expense to them.

The senator mentioned that July 11 the Chicago Chronicle had charged Bryan with being the paid agent or spokesman of the Bonanza silver kings, who had really made the silver issue, and that he had not met the charge.

He closed by arguing that cheap money would not help the poor working man. Mr. Darrow was then introduced. He did not think the settlement of the free coinage question would ever give to labor that which labor never had under a democratic or republican administration, a full share of the product of his toil, nor lift from the farmer the great burden of debt and distress under which he lived. But it would do something. He repudiated the senator's prescription of four more years of the gold cure administered by McKinley instead of Cleveland. He accused the Cleveland democrats of working for McKinley, and asked the people to support what was Maj. McKinley's policy until he became a candidate for the presidency.

It was the first time that a national party in the United States asked that silver money be stricken down and gold alone used by our people. The proposition was so outrageous and un-answered that the men who framed it at St. Louis were afraid to openly advocate it, and added the international agreement clause as a sop which they and the people knew to be a trick and a lie. He repeatedly resented the senator's claim to being an American when he defended the proposition to become the bond slave of Lombard street and Wall street. The great creditor class had been the blighting curse on the earth for ages.

He created a sensational scene when he declared that if a dollar's worth of American wheat continued to be sold for 50 cent the Englishman will collect his interest from America, as he does from the Egyptians with cannon and with sword. The speaker was vigorously hissed and several men arose and shook their fists and cried, "Never." The chairman appealed for order and a fair hearing.

Senator Thurston, in closing, denounced the attempt to array class against class, and section against section. There was no such issue under the Stars and Stripes. A party was needed to build up, not tear down. Finally, he said:

"The man who holds the key to the situation is the officer who held the line for Sheridan at Shenandoah, Maj. McKinley, and please God he will be our next president."

AT WASHINGTON.

Senator Jones and the Democratic National Headquarters.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Senator J. K. Jones, chairman of the national committee, is expected to reach the city to-day. It is believed that he will early settle the question of the location of national headquarters, and will before he leaves Washington announce the names of the members of the national executive committee, a subject upon which he has been bestowing careful attention since he left Chicago.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

Improvement in Business Conditions. Though None in Business—An Early and Large Foreign Demand for American Products Promised by Foreign Advances—Slight Further Advance in Boots and Shoes—Small Sales of Wool.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade to-day say:

Business conditions have clearly improved, though business has not. It is the torpid season and better prospects have little effect as yet. Gold exports have been stopped and foreign advances are more promising as respects an early and large demand for American products. The operations of foreigners in the stock market have reflected little beyond the troubles of speculators at the London settlements, and varying degrees of ignorance about American affairs. The prospect for large crops of cotton and corn is still excellent, and neither movements of wheat nor markets give countenance to low estimates. Wheat is going out with more freedom than is usual for the season, and Atlantic exports have been 1,901,119 bushels, flour included, for the week, against 900,248 last year, and for four weeks, 6,664,266 bushels, against 3,422,321 last year.

Lower rail rates helped men to make a new low record at 30.12 cents, and prospects are generally favorable. Cotton advanced a quarter on reports of injury, but there are really few who expect less than a large yield.

The woolen mills do not gain, light weights opening 5 to 7 1/2 per cent. lower in price than last year, and sales of wool now reported are less than a quarter of a full week's consumption. Orders taken in light weights have been very few and for low-priced goods.

The boot and shoe industry has secured slight further advances from the lowest point in brogans and calf boots and shoes; but new orders are scanty, the more because the permanence of the advance is questioned. Leather is stubbornly held without change in prices and some grades are really scarce, although manufacturers are buying only for actual needs; but hides have turned downward sharply at Chicago, declining five per cent. for the week, with heavy accumulation.

The iron industry is helped but little by the settlement which gives piddlers of the Ohio region 50c advance in wages, because the demand is so light that few mills can run.

A ray of encouragement comes to rail mills, two considerable sales having been made, 20,000 tons to a New England road and 10,000 by the Premier Steel Co. of Indianapolis; but otherwise sales are small.

Trade in wire nails has been so light that even the trifling allotment of 65,000 kegs for July is supposed to have exceeded sales, and the association is in session at Boston to consider the matter.

The billot pool has been constantly undersold by middlemen and open hearth steel, and had a session yesterday at which reduction of prices was discussed. Many contracts for structural work are being held back, and there is very little done in that line, and orders for plates and pipe are scarce.

It is not surprising that failures have been considerable in magnitude, and in 23 days of July defaulted liabilities were $12,069,481 against $3,392,757 in 25 days last year. Failures for the week have been 251 in the United States, against 261 last year, and 40 in Canada, against 28 last year.

CAS IS CAUTIOUS.

A Nebraska Bank Going Out of Business—Tide Over Troubled Times.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 1.—There is the greatest excitement among farmers of Box Butte county over a communication received Thursday from the First national bank of Alliance. The letter was received by persons who were obligated to the bank, and whose loan became due before November, and reads as follows:

ALLIANCE, Neb., July 27.
DEAR SIR: Owing to the constant agitation of the financial policy of the United States and the socialist feeling emanating from the Chicago convention, there has been a doubt thrown over the minds of the people that points to a possibility of a greater panic than we have yet seen. Should the remainder of the year be thrown into employment, now about half employed) there will be much labor trouble.

We prefer to do nothing till there is more stability rather than take the chances of losing what we have; and would advise all of our friends to stay out of debt. We will call in all our paper this fall. We have your note, please prepare to pay it promptly and do not ask for further time. Yours truly,
R. M. HAMPTON, Cashier.

AMERICAN MANUFACTURERS

Making a Tour of South America, Arrive at Montevideo.

MONTVIDEO, Aug. 1.—The party of American manufacturers that left Rio de Janeiro on the 28th of July on board the steamship Danube, on their way to the Argentine republic, arrived in this port yesterday, all in good condition.

The United States gunboat Castine is also at anchor in this harbor and her commander, Capt. Perry, went on board the Danube and placed himself and officers at the disposal of the party.

United States Minister Granville Stuart and United States Consul Schramm also boarded the Danube and welcomed the visitors, stating that the government of Uruguay had made arrangements for their entertainment upon their return from Buenos Ayres, which will be the 15th of August.

THE STRIKE ON AGAIN.

Union Men Again Walk Out of the Brown Hoisting Works.

CLEVELAND, O., July 31.—The strike is on again at the Brown hoisting works. To-night all the union men who had gone back under the agreement entered into Monday, were called out. The men claim they were deceived by the way in which the agreement was construed to them. The agreement, according to the company, was a complete surrender on the part of the men. Acting on this the shops were being filled with "scabs."

SOUTHERN GLEANINGS.

Mule-Thief Shot.

A negro mule-thief was killed near Dublin, Ga., by a deputy sheriff. Seven years ago Forum Troup stole a fine mule from a negro neighbor in Montgomery county. He immediately went off, and was not located until a few days ago. Sheriff McGregor, being apprised of his whereabouts, knowing that he was a desperate character. The sheriff concealed himself in the woods, while he sent two officers named Dunn and Miller. Dunn called the man to the gate. As soon as he reached the yard fence Dunn made a dash for him, but Troup picked up an ax. Dunn then fired, the ball entering Troup's body, killing him instantly.

Skeleton of a Missing Child Found.

About one year ago Walter, the eight-year-old son of a Tuscaloosa county (Ala.) farmer named Parsons, disappeared from his home and though a most diligent search, in which the whole neighborhood joined, was instituted, the little fellow could not be found. The other day a man was hunting in the swamps about five miles from the Parsons' farm, when he discovered lying in a lonely spot the skeleton of a child, which, by the tattered garments clung about it, was later identified as the remains of little Walter Parsons. The skeleton received Christian burial in the presence of a large assemblage of sympathizing friends of the family.

Murdered for His Money.

The dead body of Kiah Brown, a colored farmer, was found in a cow path on the Nettles plantation, about eight miles from Montgomery, Ala. There were five pistol balls in it, and the head had been kicked almost into a jelly by the heels of heavy boots. The pockets had been cut out of the clothes which the dead man wore. Brown was a thrifty negro and always had a sum of money in his pockets, and the motive of his murder was evidently robbery. Ely Ramsey, Pollard Williams and Frank Harde-man, who live in the neighborhood, were arrested, charged with the murder.

Top of His Head Shot Off.

Two young planters named Brewer and Henry had a difficulty at Henry's home near the village of Orinda, Tenn. Brewer went to the farm house, is said, and abused a woman there. He was ordered to leave by Henry, but instead of doing so he fired several shots at Henry with a revolver. One of the bullets took effect in the latter's arm. Henry, who was standing in his doorway, reached over the door and, using a wooden mallet, fired, shooting off the top of Brewer's head, killing him instantly.

Thomas H. Holt.

Thomas H. Holt died at his residence in Birmingham, Ala., recently. He was born in Westmoreland county, Pa., and moved south before the war, but during the strife took sides with the federal troops. He was a past grand of Alabama in the Odd Fellows, past dictator in the Knights of Honor, member of several branches of Masonry, Knights and Ladies of Honor, Knights of Pythias, Knights of the Essene Order, Woodman of the World, and other lodges.

Killed His Brother.

One of the most sensational killings ever recorded in Crawford county, Ark., was committed the other night, when Tom Hitchcock shot and instantly killed his brother, Perry. Tom has left the country and the only witness is Tom's wife. Tom came home and found Perry with his wife. Tom then took Perry's pistol, placed it to his head and blew out his brains. They were farmers, and have borne a good name.

A Virginia Veteran.

Gen. R. E. Colston, who was an officer in the confederate army and at one time commanded the Stonewall brigade, died at the soldiers' home, Richmond, Va. He was in his seventy-first year. Gen. Colston served six years in the Egyptian army, and received the decoration of knight commander of the Turkish order of Oshmanish for distinguished services.

First Bale of Alabama Cotton.

The first bale of Alabama cotton for the season 1896-97 was marketed at the market, July 28. It was raised by J. F. O'Brien, of Burnsville, and weighed 615 pounds, classed middling, and was sold to T. P. Gowan & Co. for nine cents. It is 20 days earlier than the first bale last year and breaks the record in Alabama.

Lumber Company Assigns.

The Letcher-Allis Lumber Co., of Anniston, Ala., has made an assignment. Liabilities are said to be $26,000, and assets $40,000. Poor collections the cause. The company was one of the largest lumber concerns in the country, and owned several big mills.

Georgia's First Bale.

The first bale of new Georgia cotton was received at Savannah, July 28, and was purchased by a prominent republican to be shipped north with gilded hoops inscribed "McKinley and gold."

Lockjaw Caused by Splinter.

Will C. Clark, the ten-year-old son of Rev. C. H. Clark, Baptist, died at Canton, Trigg county, Ky., from lockjaw, caused from running a splinter into his foot.

By Hanging.

Nelson Metcalf, a young man, committed suicide near Adams' station, Robertson county, Tenn., the other day, by hanging to a peg in the barn.

Hamilton College May Be Removed.

Hamilton college, located at Byhalia, Miss., may be removed to Water Valley, Miss. Overtures to that end will be made to the college trustees.

C. C. DuBOISE, Editor and Proprietor.

COLUMBIANA, AUGUST 6, 1896.

The state election is now over and the question arises what are we going to do in national affairs. As long as the ticket remains Bryan and Sewall, The Chronicle is for it, first, last and all the time. This is all that can be done by a paper still claiming to be democratic, and by an individual still claiming to be a democrat.

To do otherwise is nothing more than Kolb and his clan did in 1892—simply bolting the party.

We condemn the course the Advertiser is taking, and the action the sound money meeting took yesterday in Montgomery in electing a delegate to the convention to be held next Monday night in Indianapolis.

Perhaps we do not approve of every plank incorporated in the democratic platform or of the candidates placed upon the ticket by the democratic convention, but the party, by its highest tribunal has spoken, and we must abide by it, or be traitors to the cause and bolt the party.

In participating in the beat meetings and primaries we morally, if not legally, bound ourselves to support the candidates nominated by the national convention, standing upon the platform there adopted. If there are evils in the platform, within the pale of the party is the place to remedy them, for if we now desert the party leaders we will have no voice in the future to remedy those evils that we think exist now.

The Advertiser, by the present flight she is waging on Bryan and Sewall, is giving up the power she might have wielded in the party ranks fighting those wrongs as she sees them. She has now placed herself without the folds of the party and the good she might have done is scattered to the four winds of heaven—and this in the face of the boasts she made while the fight was being made before the convention. When asked by other papers what she would do in the event the Chicago convention declared for free silver and placed free silver men as the standard-bearers, she raved back on her dignity and stated that her record as a democratic paper for the past forty years was sufficient to answer all such queries. She evaded the question and attempted to hide behind her reputation which she thought was as invulnerable as the rock of Gibraltar, in order to deceive the public. For she knew that if the Chicago convention declared for free silver, her democratic faith would not be strong enough to withstand the sting of defeat. But regardless of the influence of the Advertiser and of the bolters of the party, let us stand together and Alabama will give Bryan and Sewall such a majority as will allow all doubt of her democracy and adherence to the platform.

Two years from now old Shelby will join the procession of the democratic counties on their onward march to good government and white supremacy. The gain by the democrats in the white vote of the county is a favorable sign of the white voters in a re-united democracy. It is a sure sign that it is only a matter of a short time when the white people of Shelby will again grasp the right hand of fellow ship, and sit down together at the festive board of democracy to partake of the good things guaranteed to them by the grand old principles of the democratic party; and may that time soon come, for the white people of the south can't afford to be divided on political questions; and the best men of the state who strayed off with the poplite party four years ago, are now rapidly seeing the error of their way and returning to the home of their fathers. This step on their part was greatly hastened by the action of the state democratic executive committee in letting down the bars and inviting all those back who had strayed from the folds. This action has proven a most wise one, and will shortly finish the work of re-uniting the white people of Alabama.

JOHN B. KNOX, of Anniston, has added more lustre to his already brilliant career by his recent flight as chairman of the state democratic executive committee. Mr. Knox is one of the leading lawyers of the state, a man of great ability, comparatively young in years, but vastly aged in experience, and the glorious victory he has just won shows him to be a great leader among men. When the magnificent work he begun is completed, that is a complete re-uniting of the white people of the State of Alabama. Then it is that his praise will be upon the lips of every man in the state. When the committee under his leadership, saw proper to let down the bars, he was censured by almost all the Clark men, who said that this action would encompass the defeat of the nominees of the party. But how vastly different has it terminated than their prediction. As a good general marks out his plan of action, so Mr. Knox marked out his plan of campaign, and with the assistance of his committee, won a glorious victory. So we all drink to Knox, victory and good government.

The poplites have lost strength in almost every poplite county in the state since the election in 1894. In some of the counties that Kolb carried in 1894 by from two to eight hundred, Johnston carried this time by three or four hundred votes. This is conclusive of the fact that the poplites are losing ground all over the state, and that very rapidly.

This being the case, the next election it will be useless for them to put out a state ticket or even a county ticket. In other words, in two years from now they will be very dead.

The election in Shelby county passed off very quietly, and from the best information we can get the poplites carried the county by about five hundred votes.

It is gratifying, however, to state that the democrats gained in the white vote of the county since the last election. But the poplites, by various false representations, carried the negro vote almost solidly.

The democrats had a good majority of the white people of the county, but the negro having the balance of power cast it for the poplites.

AN observer of Cuban affairs says that since the war broke out in Cuba, Spanish officers have reported 16,000 decisive victories. Taking the average victory as "officially" reported from day to day, the Spanish have had about 32,000 commissioned and non-commissioned officers killed and wounded and in the same way have had their forces crippled to the extent of about 80,000 soldiers killed and wounded.

CAPT. JOS. F. JOHNSTON was elected governor of the State of Alabama by about forty thousand majority. The entire state democratic ticket was elected. The democrats will have two thirds of the legislature.

THE SOUTHERN FARMERS.

MR. W. COLLIER ESTES, of Memphis, writes a cheering letter to the New York Evening Post, in which he shows that the farmers of the South are in a prosperous condition, despite the silver agitation. He says:

"While the remainder of the country is bitterly growing because of hard times, there is at least one section where the people are more prosperous than they have been in a long time. That section is the cotton-growing South. The money-bringing crop there is cotton, and a method of growing it has been generally adopted that enormously decreases the expense, and makes it a profitable crop at almost any price. The principal element in 'raising' cotton has been food for both negro and mule. Instead of being purchased from the West, it has been grown at home for little or nothing. This is the main reason for the very low current price of cereals and provisions. Instead of being an enormous customer of the West, the South now buys very meagerly.

"The coming cotton crop promises to bring real 'boom' times to the South. While a trifle less in acreage than the banner crop of two years ago, it is still very large—not, however, larger than the world can consume of American cotton. The season has been extremely propitious and has advanced the yield in time at least three weeks. If cotton brings only five cents per pound, as did the crop of 1894-95 (a price then below the cost of production), the profits will be good; general business will be magnificent. The price cotton will realize, however, promises much larger, as the conditions now are very different from those of two years ago. Settled opinion is, that the size of the present crop and the banner crop will be about the same—in the neighborhood of ten million bales. Then there was a large surplus of cotton on hand at the beginning of the crop year; now there will be none. The trade of the world is much better now than then. English and continental spinners are doing a large business. This year the planter does not have to pile his cotton all at once to market to liquidate his indebtedness, but can sell it evenly throughout the year as the price suits him—a thing in itself that will help maintain prices. It now looks as if the price would be about six cents, which will bring $300,000,000 for a crop grown with incredible cheapness.

Summer Homes and Resorts.

The Southern railway is the first of our great railway systems to give information to the public and to fix low excursion rates for a summer outing good for return until October 31st, by issuing, with usual promptness, its Summer Home and Resort Book.

It is handsome in design and artistic in every respect having thirty-two beautifully illustrated pages containing the most complete and conveniently arranged information calculated to answer fully and satisfactorily every question likely to be propounded, such as routes and distances, hotels and boarding houses, names of proprietors how to reach them, rates of board by day, week and month, etc.

The Southern offers a choice of mountain and seaside resorts, the surf bathing and sea breezes of some of the most delightful resorts on the Atlantic Coast or the cool mountain breezes of Swannanoa, Asheville, Lookout Mountain and others 2,500 feet above the sea level.

Your Boy Won't Live a Month.

So Gilman Brown, of 34 Mill St., South Gardner, Mass., was told by the doctors. His son had Lung trouble, following Typhoid Malaria, and he spent three hundred and seventy-five dollars with doctors who finally gave him up, saying: "Your son won't live a month." He tried Dr. King's New Discovery and a few bottles restored him to health and enabled him to go to work a perfectly well man. He says he owes his present good health to use of Dr. King's New Discovery, and knows it to be the best in the world for Lung trouble. Trial Bottles Free at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

He—By Jove, this weather's hot enough to kill a dog.

She—Yes, I'm surprised that you ventured out—Cleveland Leader.

SHE IS A JEWEL.

MRS. BRYAN, is a Versatile Woman. But Above All She is Wife, Mother and Daughter.

From the New York Journal.

Mrs. William Jennings Bryan is the most interesting member of her household, lacking none of her husband's brilliancy and acumen and possessing many traits which the candidate lacks.

Mrs. Bryan has for nearly twenty years had a husband of boundless activity, children with a surprising propensity for mischief, a blind father who desired to keep pace with the world, an invalid mother, who required much attention, and a thirst for reading and study. Among these conflicting interests she has divided her time. To keep up with them all has been the object of her life.

When Mary Baird, an American girl with American ideas, became Mrs. Bryan, she possessed as a foundation for her future knowledge, the same academic education and training that her husband had received. He, however, had studied law before they married, and, prompted by a desire to catch up and to have a share in all that interested her husband, Mrs. Bryan's first step after marriage was to take a course in law and obtain admission to the bar. Over the legal cases that occupied Mr. Bryan's attention they worked and studied together. She consulted books for him, cited precedents and outlined arguments.

His political career Mr. Bryan followed with his wife, not behind him, but at his side. No political leader ever studied more assiduously the constantly varying condition of political matters than did Mrs. Bryan. When the silver question sprang into prominence Mrs. Bryan studied it with her husband. They delved into the subject, not as master and pupil, but as equal students.

Mrs. Bryan's father, who took an absorbing interest in these matters, has, since his daughter's marriage, been unable to use his eyes. The newspapers and the fiction of the day had to be read to him, the changing conditions of the world had to be explained to him, and to satisfy the cravings of an active mind—all that he read had to be discussed with him. There was no one to do this but his daughter.

To Mrs. Bryan her children's welfare is her breath, her life. She fed them and dressed them and taught them and played with them. It was only when after the romping and mischief-making that make up a day's life of country children, the little ones fell asleep in sheer weariness, that the other life of Mrs. Bryan began. Then she discussed law and politics with her husband, read to her father, and, when there was nothing further to do, slipped into a corner of the library and read Hawthorne, her favorite American writer, or Hugo, whom she liked the best of the great novelists.

In order to preserve her health, Mrs. Bryan took to swimming and bicycling, but it was always at night, when the household work was done, that she indulged in this recreation. She was one of the founders of Sorosis, a local club composed of twenty-five of the leading women of Lincoln, but her object in joining this association was more to have an opportunity to discuss with other women matters that interested her than to obtain any mental relaxation.

The Bryan cottage is very small, and those who go there, if only for a moment, cannot help catching a glimpse of the domestic life within. In the morning, clad in a simple gown, Mrs. Bryan dresses the children, gives orders to the grocer, butcher and baker, and gets the household into order. Then she helps her husband attack the pile of letters that has accumulated, answers the door bell, and keeps as many people away from him as she can, and answers some of the many letters that come addressed to her. Photographers beg her to pose for them, interviewers, male and female from all parts of the country, request her to grant them an interview, neighbors and visitors from out of town call to gossip and to congratulate her. To all of them she is courteous and amiable, yet I hardly remember having heard her say a single sentence beyond: "You must really excuse me. I would like to talk to you, but I have so many things to do that I cannot spare a moment's time."

It is only necessary to suggest to her that the West is barbaric and uncivilized. Then her eyes flash, her face lights up, and all her other work is forgotten while she launches into a vigorous denial of this base slander, championing the West with an enthusiasm, supported by undeniable facts and unanswerable statistics that I have never seen surpassed. She has a warm sympathy for this section of the country, and has great hopes for its future.

THE MEDICINE OF SLEEP.

In No Country is it More Neglected Than in America.

From Harper's Bazar.

As a people American women sleep less and sleep worse probably, than the people of any other civilized nation. Indeed, our tendency to sleeplessness is due in a measure to the very fact of our civilization, which is in many respects, of the highest. We are more sympathetic, more anxious-minded, more occupied, above all, more nervous, than Europeans are, and less inclined to leisure, to take rest. Our native women, though not generally in any kind of business, are too intense, are keyed up too high, whatever their pursuit, be it pleasurable or serious, to adapt themselves readily to slumber when the strain has been removed. Too often the strain is not removed when they go to bed, and then they toss for an hour or two on their pillows before nature's refreshment comes. They pervert their recreations or their duties, or both, to enervate too much on the time they should give to sleep, never remembering that a certain amount of sound sleep is absolutely essential to the preservation of really good health.

Many women think they are well so long as they can keep up and about. They may always feel tired; have frequent headaches, very little appetite, and suffer continually from migraines; but they are sure they are not ill. They say they do not take any medicine; that they do not need any. And they are right. If they mean drugs, but wrong if they need any kind of restorative, which, with them, should be sleep—the sleep they steadily deprive themselves of. Sleep, in many cases, notably in such cases as theirs, the best medicine, and the very best that is taken. It is prescribed by the great physician, Nature, has never been known to do harm, and usually does incalculable good.

If these tired, listless, headachy women would resolve to try to sleep at odd times, whenever they can, or regularly so many hours, say eight or nine, night after night for months, and execute their resolution inflexibly, their ailments would be apt to disappear. They might not succeed at first; they might be wakeful, have troubled dreams and feverish rest for some weeks. But perseverance will accomplish the unexpected. Sleep is commonly a matter of habit and regularity, and may be won by persistence.

Physical health and mental peace are worth everything else; too high a price cannot be paid for them. Life without these scarcely deserves preserving and they merit in and of themselves the consumption of a little time. Two or three hours more a day consecrated to rest and most judiciously expended, particularly since they may save years later on, and make all the difference between satisfaction and dissatisfaction, serenity and uneasiness. To get full and proper rest in due season, is one of the wisest and most profitable of economies, one well worth practicing.

In some of the oldest countries of the East, like China, people take to their bed and keep entirely quiet, though they may not sleep, as soon as they feel unwell, believing that in this way they will either recover or be the gainers ultimately. And experience is said to justify their belief. The American custom, far more of women than of men, is to avoid lying down so long as one can stand. We seem to think any cessation from labor or activity a serious discredit, and attachment to sleep a little short of disgrace. We appear to consider work the highest duty, and to have so little appreciation of pleasure as actually to work in its pursuits. Abstinence from labor of any sort impresses us as a species of surrender, and so we stick to it while we retain any degree of strength.

Women do not understand the amount of sleep they need, or if they understand it, they neglect what should be an obligation to themselves—altogether the more probable. They certainly do not know what a help more sleep would be to them mentally, sanitarily and personally—this in particular—or they would try to get more. A very large proportion of them who are virtually invalids, though they may not admit it; who are rarely cheerful or hopeful, through deranged nerves; who are complaining, fretful, nagging; who cannot imagine what ails them—are what they are from lack of adequate sleep. They ascribe their condition, their failings, to a variety of causes, but never to the right one—which is, so to speak, under their very eyes, and therefore unsuspected. Many, chiefly they who are overdone of society, recognize that incapacity to rest at night, and try to overcome it by narcotics or sedatives, without any permanent success. They substitute artificial for natural means and pay the penalty. As a rule, they sleep best who sleep most, and they sleep worst who sleep least. The true curatives are within ourselves, and this truth is steadily dawning on our minds.

The physical regeneration of American women depends on the quantity and quality of their sleep. Their general health has greatly improved in the last two generations by their adaptation to and comprehension of natural laws. But they sleep less—I always have in mind the women of the cities—than they did twenty-five years ago; and their complicated life now demands more sleep than ever before. Sleep is a negative blessing; a kind of delightful, temporary death; an oblivion of today, its cares, its disappointments, and its pains; an unconscious but complete preparation for the struggles and fatigues of the morrow. It heals; it refreshes; it consoles; it revivifies. It is what sleep and sleep alone can be—the very day witchcraft of common sense. Let all women yield to it its due need of time.

LOCAL VIVISCOPE.

Chen Greck left for Anniston today.
E. S. Layman, of Montevallo, spent Tuesday in town.

Mrs. Carr, of Brandon, Miss., is a guest of Mrs. C. E. Parker.

Kennon Thetford, of Talladega, visited his brother last week.

Miss Belle Hand, of Jenison, is visiting relatives in our city this week.

Cotton has advanced three-fourths of a cent during the last 24 hours.

Pete Rowland, a handsome knight of the "grip" was in our city one day this week.

T. A. Huston and J. B. Kilpatrick, of Wilsonville, were visitors in our city Saturday.

T. H. Waterworth, of Burnsville, is visiting the family of J. T. Cromwell this week.

Frank Jackson, of Kynulga, was in town Wednesday, and played ball with our boys against Shelby.

Mrs. D. R. McMillan and Mrs. Henry Milner, with their children are spending this month in Shelby Springs.

Rev. John McLane and family, of Gainesville, Texas, are expected this week to spend sometime with the family of Rev. W. L. Shinnott.

For SALE—A fine farm of 120 acres. Will sell either 40 or 80 or both, to suit buyer. Terms easy. Apply for full particulars to editor of Chronicle.

W. F. Thetford and J. T. Leeper were guests of W. W. Wallace a few days last week, attending a house party, and they report a most elegant time.

F. W. Gist, of Washington, made us a pleasant call Saturday. Mr. Gist has a very lucrative position in the government printing office in that city. He having left Shelby county sometime since to accept the position.

Mrs. J. P. Anchors, of Oxford, visited the family of her father-in-law, S. T. Anchors, from Saturday until Monday. Mrs. Anchors is the widow of Frank Anchors, whom we all remember with sadness was killed in Anniston the fourth of July, in a railroad accident.

Mrs. Mary E. Brown-Ford gave two very enjoyable and instructive entertainments in the High School Auditorium last Friday and Saturday evenings. She is a very fine impersonator and has splendid control of her voice. On account of the inclement weather she did not have as large an audience as she would have had otherwise.

The Columbiana Mercantile Co. will move into their handsome new brick building on the corner of Main and College streets, next Monday. Under the defunct of its manager, Mr. H. Fox, the display of goods will be a "thing of beauty and a joy forever." Mr. Fox has brought with him to this town a spirit of enterprise that is commendable, and with the assistance of our other good merchants, will make things hum this fall.

In another column of this issue will be found a letter from F. W. Gist, of Washington, in reference to Mr. Aldrich, the republican congressman from this district. Mr. Gist, being in the employment of the government is in a position to know how Mr. Aldrich stands with other members of congress, and when he says he is regarded as a narrow minded, selfish and incompetent man, and that the Fourth district is both pitied and laughed at by her sisters on his account, it behooves all good citizens of the Fourth district to work together for the election of a man who will be an honor to her, and will represent her as the noble counties which compose her should be represented.

Why can't the city council pass an ordinance to keep stock off of the streets. There are no towns in the state, that amount to anything, where stock is allowed to roam the streets as here. It is an outrage perpetrated upon the public that such a nuisance is allowed by our city fathers. Those to whom we look for protection, and those who should have, and we are sure do have, the best interest of the town at heart. Our streets can never be made to look nice and clean as long as such a nuisance prevails. This should be done and our streets cleaned and we are confident it would prevent a good deal of the sickness we are now having in our town. We think this neglect is only an oversight in their part and they will pass such an ordinance as soon as their attention is called to it.

We want to buy 4,000 bales of cotton here this fall. There is no reason why we should not get that many bales here. Our merchants are industrious and wide awake, and there is plenty of cotton raised in a radius of fifteen miles. Then why shouldn't we get that many? We have the best town in the county, more store-houses filled with nice goods, more thriving merchants and cheaper goods, then there is no reason why we shouldn't get cotton from all over the county if our merchants will only work for it. The election is now over, so let us all settle down to business and hustle up our town. If we will do our part the farmers will do theirs, and this will be the largest cotton shipping point in this section of the country. We heard a farmer, who lives 16 miles from here, say a day or so ago, that he was going to bring his cotton here. So why can't we induce more of the farmers to say the same thing? Let us be up and do

The Columbiana and Shelby base ball teams crossed bats at Shelby last Wednesday. The score resulting 7 to 6 in favor of Columbiana. Kennon Thetford, of Talladega, did the twirling act for the Columbiana team and splendidly he did it. Joe Spencer assisting him in the battery work. Oliver and Smith were Shelby's battery. The game was thrown up by the Shelby team during the sixth inning. At the close of the fifth inning the score stood 5 to 6 in favor of Shelby. During the latter half of the sixth inning Shelby seeing that defeat was inevitable attempted to bluff the umpire into calling the game on account of darkness. Columbiana had been to the bat making two scores, placing the score 7 to 6 in her favor. Shelby was at the bat with two outs and no prospects of making a score, consequently she tried to force the umpire to call the game on account of darkness and he refused to do so because it was not dark enough. Besides Shelby had the advantage, being at the bat, for it is easier to work at the bat than in the field when it begins to get dark. But it was not dark enough to call the game and there were already two outs, consequently the umpire would not call the game. The Shelby team then threw up the game and the umpire gave it to Columbiana.

There are two brick store buildings and several residences in the course of construction here now, and A. M. Elliott will begin work on a large livery and feed stable next week. Columbiana is not on any boom, nor do we want any, but she is steadily improving, and getting within her midst citizens who are calculated to improve a town. On account of her absolutely free public school, a good many people are moving here in order to take advantage of a good school to educate their children. and this is the class of citizens we need.

Reports from Virginia, the two Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Texas, Arkansas and Tennessee, show that the crops are injured very much by the drought and heat. In Alabama "excessive heat with light, scattered showers, causing cotton to open prematurely, which, with much rust and shedding will shorten the yield promised two weeks ago; picking under way and first bale was marketed on the 28th, which is very early; corn suffering and will be a short crop; other crops uninjured as yet."

Capt. T. J. Martin, the great mogul of the democratic party, of Harpersville, was in our city one day this week. You can depend on Capt. Martin to bring up his usual majority from beat 10.

Mrs. Ehrlick, who has been a guest of the White House for some time, leaves Sunday for Talladega Springs, where she will spend the remainder of the heated term.

Wilsonville Waifs.

J. F. Pope went to Anniston on business last week.

H. A. Jackson visited relatives and friends in Tallapoosa last week and returned home Tuesday.

Marvin Self came home last Sunday after a several months' sojourn in parts of Mississippi.

Mrs. H. A. Jackson returned home last Tuesday, from an extensive visit with relatives in Tallapoosa, Ga.

Frank Kelley, a modest young man of Selma, spent Monday and Tuesday with friends in our city.

H. D. Tatum, of West Point, Ga., spent several days in town with old friends the latter part of last, and the former part of this week.

Mrs. P. W. Terry, the "better half" of Protector of Widows Terry, life insurance agent, is spending several days in town and gaining many friends.

On account of the threatening storm Friday night though it would have been a welcome visitor, caused the League meeting to be postponed until this week, but as the protracted meeting is in progress at the M. E. church, we will not congregate until Friday after the meeting closes. Rev. Cary is conducting the services, assisted by Mr. Self, of near Weldon. Mr. Self is a promising young man and seems to be well fitted for the theological world before him. He is always a welcome friend in our community.

"Jake," I note what you say in regard to "me having so much to contend with," such as the "sleeves M. H. Coolers" etc. I am happy to say that you are mistaken in this matter. Have you not seen some things that pleased you so well that you wanted to tell everybody about it? Yes! and that is what caused me to speak as I have spoken. Now if you had spoken that paragraph vice-versa, you would have expressed yourself about right, I guess, i. e. to say that it is bad for the girls to have to contend with such a thing as me." Thanks for the advice, "Try, try again," but I have worn that out with my patient efforts trying, but have not succeeded. Don't desert us, Jake, come again.

The ladies of the Methodist church gave an ice cream festival Tuesday night, 28th ult. The night was clear and pleasant, the cream and lunches were delicious. It seems that every festival is the nicest and most enjoyed. The "Oak-Hill Park" was almost crowded, and the beautiful grove was furnished with comfortable seats and glittering lights. Beyond a doubt this was one of the most entertaining festivals that has ever been known in Wilsonville. Columbiana was well represented by Messrs. H. C. DuBose and Horace Hammond, and we extend to them a hearty welcome to visit us oftener. The proceeds of the supper went to decrease the liabilities of the Methodist church parsonage.

The election passed off here very quietly. We were honored with telegraphic bulletins until the wee small hours of the night, and when we retired from the office there were negroes lying around the polls of this beat waiting to hear who was elected governor, as it seemed that they thought when the official count was given in Wilsonville, the thing would be decided. Yes and there are thousands of their color that know just as much about it as above, yet they can go to the polls the next step behind or first in front of the best counseled man in the United States, and kill his vote dead as a doornail. I heard a negro say last week (one with good common sense), "that if I could stretch forth my hand from one side of this universe to the other, I would forbid every negro from casting a vote in ten years, and then our men who know what they are doing would again get this old confused United States back to her standard." Says he: "Cap I tell you what you're ought to do—you ought to dig a deep trench fifty miles long and bury every one of these niggers alive."

Bourgeois.

Harpersville Echoes.

Cotton is opening very fast.

Fodder is being pulled this week.

Hurrah for Joe Johnston and the democratic ticket.

Prof. Strook, of East Lake, is over this week looking up a school here.

Messrs. Kidd and Darby carried a drove of beef cattle to Birmingham this week.

Miss Laura Davis, of Easonville, is visiting Harpersville relatives.

Miss Robbie Johnson, of Cropwell, is visiting friends in and around Harpersville.

The election passed off very quietly here, and went democratic of course. Can't go any other way at Harpersville.

E. V. Caldwell spent two days of last week at Alpine.

Our ball team (first nine) went over and cleaned up Childersburg last Thursday.

Now that the election is over with, let's all go to work and build up a good school at Harpersville.

Our second nine ball team played a match game with Vincent, Kelleys Creek and Seddon combined, at Vincent last Saturday, the score standing 13 to 15. The same game was played here Monday, score 15 to 18, both times in favor of Harpersville. Hurrah for the Joe Johnston team.

T. J. Martin, of this place, and Henry Cosper, of Creswell, were elected Justices of the peace for this beat, over Messrs. Lowry and McGraw, populist, by a large majority. Now we hope that "Square" Cosper won't have the court house moved from Columbiana to Creswell, but just ask the commissioners court to build him a small house, say something about 80 by 120 feet with a glass front, to hold court in, provided he don't hold his court at Harpersville.

Farmer Waifs.

Crops looking fine.

Bill Ryland has been very sick, but glad to state he is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Baldwin are on a visit to their brother, A. H. Merrell. Quite a crowd attended the pop speaking last Saturday from Farmer, claimed a nice time.

Mr. Venson, from Ishkood, is on a visit to the family of N. N. Mosteller. Charles Browning and Henry Busby took a flying trip to Talladega Springs last Sunday, to see the Mr. Beasley that was badly cut, at the pop speaking, report he is in a very bad condition.

Rev. Jack Jennings will fill his regular appointment at the Methodist church next Sunday.

H. D. Harris passed through Farmer on his bike, on his way to Mr. Cardons, this week.

We are glad to state that Miss Maud Merrell is able to be out again.

Miss Lithi Dooley is spending the week with Misses Mattie and Buto Mosteller.

Mr. and Mrs. John Merrell attended the singing at Rev. G. H. Holmes on last Sunday, says the singing was fine.

AN IMMENSE ICE CAVE.

One of the most remarkable natural phenomena that has been discovered in recent years has just been reported in the southwest corner of Brown county, Indiana. It is near the village of Elkinsville. The cave is one of those remarkable freaks of nature that puzzle the scientist. At its entrance, which is completely overlapped by the trees, the cold air is plainly perceptible. The opening appears not unlike a mine shaft long disused, but the steep, rocky descent shows nothing of an artificial construction. The winding way leads to a subterranean cavern fifty feet below the surface. This is very like a broad, vaulted corridor, and is known to the natives as the "devil's chamber." The air here is near the freezing point. From this point quite a number of halls lead off, but the one to the ice vault is evidently from the cold blast which comes from it.

The descent in this natural corridor is similar to the rocky decline at the entrance, but not over a dozen yards within the front from the ice vault is plainly visible, and farther on it is thick on all sides, like the crust that is formed on the pipes of an ice plant. A little farther on the descent entirely ceases, and here the walls are frozen hard, like the ground in the middle of the winter. Then the narrow way leads into a mammoth chamber, and this is known as the ice vault. In this great aperture, which is one hundred feet in width, the ice towers in a miniature mountain, appearing like a dozen icebergs heaped together. Here the ice stands in a solid mass, extending downward to an unknown depth.

NO CONFIDENCE IN ALDRICH.

CALERA, August 3, 1896.
EDITOR CHRONICLE.—Having copied my article in regard to Mr. Aldrich's connection with the Montevallo school land bill from the Republican, in your valuable paper, I beg to use your columns for the purpose of noticing the editorial in last week's issue of the Montevallo News in reference to this matter.

I do not regard the editorial referred to as a denial of the charges made by me against Mr. Aldrich, but only a repetition of the promises made by him to the friends of this bill. The facts remain the same, and I have still no withdrawal to make. Mr. Aldrich may secure the passage of the bill at the next session in order to clear himself of the suspicion of opposition to the measure, but I doubt it. If he does so I shall be glad that my exposure has caused him to change his course, but no action in the future will be able to change the fact of his past connection with the matter.

It is not at all probable that he will be able to pass the bill at the next session. He has already failed to deliver the republican delegates from this state to Reed as his part of its compact that secured his seat in congress, and there will be no incentive for the speaker to give his consent to the passage of the "fiscal." The votes of the populists will not be delivered to the republican party as the other part of the deal, and when congress meets, these gentlemen who have been seated from this state as a matter of purchase and sale will have lost their prestige.

The institutions of Alabama are only properly protected and cared for by democrats, and what we get must come through them. I do not believe that Mr. Aldrich "stands ready and willing to forward the interests of the school at any time," notwithstanding his promises to do so. He is regarded as a narrow-minded, selfish and incompetent man, and the Fourth district is both pitied and laughed at by her sisters on his account.

There is no confidence to be placed in the promises of this class of men. In his case he has promised what he had neither the ability nor the purpose to perform, as both the failure of this bill and the discharge of employees who voted against him will attest.

He is a boiter from his own party and a self-confessed traitor to its tenets, and he is now trying to hoodwink the populists into supporting him for re-election. Should they succeed in sending him back he would turn his back on their demands for free-silver, and lend himself to every effort to oppress his people. His protestations for silver are a blind, as his vote to seat goldbugs republicans over silver democrats in every instance proves.

Not among the carpet bag representatives did Alabama have so worthless a congressman, is the opinion expressed to me by many public men in Washington.

I felt it my duty to tell the people of his course in this matter, and I have given the facts. His democratic opponent in the coming race will find it easy to prove his unfitness for the place he occupies now by fraud as apparent as that charged by him against the democratic party.

EARLY COTTON SEASON.

The cotton crop this year will be marketed much earlier than usual in this section and the following from the Atlanta Journal in reference to the crop and the supply on hand is of interest:

Seldom has a cotton crop begun to move so early as it has this year. Although it had a later start than usual the crop is maturing fully three weeks ahead of the usual time.

Although the cotton year does not begin until September 1st, it is certain that a great number of bales will be marketed before that date.

There has recently been a notable falling off in the estimates of the crop. Neal, the Englishman who has made so many close estimates, believe that the crop will not reach 10,000,000 bales and there are many experienced cotton men in the South who think 9,000,000 is an outside figure.

The general reduction of estimates and unfavorable reports from several quarters caused the advance of $3 a bale in futures last week.

The unusually small visible supply is another important factor. It is far less than it has been at this season for three years past. The following statement shows the supply in Great Britain and on the continent a week ago and at the same date for the three preceding years:

1894.	1895.	1896.	1893.
1,271,200	2,365,200	1,955,200	2,010,300

The total visible supply including American, Asiatic, Brazil and other cotton for the same dates, was as follows:

1894.	1895.	1896.	1893.
1,670,933	2,014,182	2,420,930	2,560,210

It will thus be seen that there has been a decrease of 1,243,249 bales as compared with the same date of 1895, a decrease of 750,071 as compared with 1894 and a decrease of 893,297 bales from 1893.

Referring to this condition the Louisville Courier-Journal says: "As stocks are one and a quarter million bales below what they were last year, the nine or ten millions of 1896 will not so swamp the manufacturers as to make cotton sell for 4 cents on the plantation. Another circumstance is also to be noted. The selling value of cotton is fixed in Liverpool, and the enormous prosperity of England during the last two years will encourage higher prices."

"Finally, it should not be forgotten that this crop will probably be raised cheaper than was ever done before. The South no longer pins its prosperity upon the one staple, but diversifies its farming and produces enough, or almost enough bread and meat to be self-supporting. Under such circumstances 5 cent cotton has not the terror it once possessed for the planter. When the big crop of '96 has gone into consumption the chances are that the South will continue to be more prosperous than any other section of the country."

AMPHIBIOUS RAILWAY TRAIN.

From the London Mail.

An "amphibious boat" now in practical operation in Denmark, would seem to have paved the way for a solution of the problem involved in the operation of boats on the Upper Nile. The idea of a boat that could be used as a carriage or run on rails over dry land was broached many years ago, but the scheme was looked upon as impracticable.

This latter day "amphibian" is no longer an experiment. It is a commercial success, and carried during the last summer 20,000 passengers.

This odd-looking craft is used on two large lakes, situated twelve miles from Copenhagen. The bodies of water are known as Furo So and Farum So, and are divided by a narrow strip of land, 1,100 feet in width.

It is to cross this isthmus that the boat leaves the water, and, for the time, becomes a locomotive. It is practical, although somewhat cumbersome. The inventor is a Swede, and the boat was built in Sweden. It is a small passenger steamer, forty-six feet in length, drawing from three feet to three feet six inches, according to the load. Her full complement of passengers is seventy. When loaded she weighs about fifteen tons.

Her engines and boiler are of ordinary build, and have a maximum of twenty-seven horsepower. The mechanism which propels the boat when on land is quite simple, but it may be improved upon.

The rails used are of regulations Danish pattern, and the gauge is four feet two inches.

When nearing the land the boat is guided into a funnel-shaped dock, which gradually tapers down to a width only two inches greater than that of the boat. When the narrowest portion of the dock is reached the boat enters a short parallel dock of the same width, and is allowed to advance slowly until the front wheels touch the rails, which extend below the water level for the purpose. Immediately the wheels are thrown into gear, and the boat begins its ascent. It is also assisted by the propeller which is in play.

In due time the back wheels find their way to the rails, and the boat advances on its upper course at the rate of about 200 feet to the minute.

THE GREAT NURSERIES.

Louisiana, Mo., Rockport, Ill.—Visited by Gov. Culman, Ex-Sec'y Agri. and the Hort. Ed., Judge Miller.

"Oh, how insignificant all my fifty years of nursery business seems, all combined, when compared with this stupendous establishment, where they count by millions," said Judge Miller, that veteran horticulturist, as he, in company with the writer, were being driven to the various departments of this vast nursery.

In an experience of over forty years we do not remember to have passed through an establishment where so large a number of hands were employed whose duties were so thoroughly systematized, and where business capacity of a higher order was manifested.

It is not in the soil of every farm that one finds qualities essential to the growth of the different kinds of Nursery stock, hence it has developed upon these gentlemen, who were born to the Nursery business, to select from among the hills and valleys of the two Pike such portions as are adapted to their purposes. But in this very fact of selection of soil, we see their exceeding care for the future success of their stock.

Missouri and Illinois have no more worthy institutions than the Stark Nurseries, and surely no better or more representative men than the proprietors. The business is growing on their hands as it deserves to grow.

They have a system of 40,000 acres of commercial test orchards located in great fruit growing regions.

The canvassing force is being increased, 5,000 fine outfits ready. Stark Nurseries always have room for more active workers because they have millions of Stark trees to sell.—Colman's Rural World.

STEADY WORK

AN ILLUSION

Do you know that the sight of your face, Though I see you each of the seven, Can transfigure the commonest place Into something that seems to be heaven?

Do you know that the sound of your voice, When you utter a brief salutation, Bids the stars of the morning rejoice As they did at the dawn of creation?

Do you know that the clasp of your hand, In a purely conventional greeting, Makes this earth a mysterious land Where the fairies are holding a meeting?

Do you know that the ways you pass by, When the stream of the traffic is flowing, Are like the ladders which lead to the sky, Whereon angels are coming and going?

Do you know that your eye or your nay Lays its clasp on my soul like a fetter? Whilst regarding myself I can say That I know that I ought to know better.

TESTING OF ANTHONY.

BY LEWIS W. SMITH

HERE were three weeks yet before we commenced our work, and in that time much could be done by hard practice; but what would that avail when Leon March would be sure to practice hard? Leon might not get the prize; there were three other competitors besides Anthony himself; but the chances were all in Leon's favor. Anthony jumped up and strode about his room angrily, as he thought of the foolish persistence with which Leon kept to himself and to his violin, foregoing the pleasures of the other boys and living only in his music. Why could he not be interested in the other things that appeal to the right-minded boy in general? How could one have any chance at all with a boy who didn't care for football or baseball or any other outdoor sport? It was so unnatural in a lad in his 17th year that his fellow students at the academy had given up trying to understand him, and had for him only that feeling of irritation that all of us have when we come into close contact with a thing altogether anomalous and beyond our fathoming. When he first saw him at prayers Anthony had conceived a liking for him; but as all his attempts at friendliness with him were one by one met coldly or repulsed, that early feeling had grown into something that was not dislike, but had yet all its bitterness.

Anthony began again the oft-repeated process of looking over his music, not yet decided as to which among his solos he should play at the great concert. While again balancing in his mind the merits of two compositions between which his decision wavered, there was a knock at the door; and in answer to his shouted invitation to come in, Roy Willett opened the door and poked his head in before entering.

"Perhaps I can stand it if you're only looking at the music and not playing," he said, as he pushed the door wider and came in. Anthony tossed the music over on the table with just a show of vexation in his manner. "I am tired enough of it to be glad you've come. What's the use in trying for that miserable prize when we all know that Leon will get it? I don't call it a fair show for the rest of us. We have something else to do, and can't be practicing all the time, as he is."

"You haven't heard about his violin, have you?"

"No; unless you mean that old story about his singing it to sleep."

Roy laughed, not at the story, but at the startled questioning on Anthony's face.

"I am afraid that he will cry it to sleep to-night, and himself, too. This afternoon he broke a hole in the back of it, and you can hardly call it a violin any longer. He wants to give up entering the contest, but Mandel won't hear of it. The rest of us have good violins, and it will be our fault if some one of us does not get the prize."

"After all, that's hardly fair," said Anthony, a sudden sympathy for his rival springing to life in his heart.

"It simply gives us an even chance with him," said Roy; "the disadvantages have all been ours so far, but now he's getting his share. That's all there is to it."

"And what have been our disadvantages?" said Anthony, with a guilty consciousness of having had the same feeling himself. Roy settled himself back lazily in his chair before answering.

"Oh, we haven't been given the natural abilities that we ought to have, and, besides that, we weren't born to spend all our time bending over a violin, as he does."

"No," said Anthony; "I am sure we were not. Even Mandel himself would agree to so much."

"It strikes me that if one does not inherit a capacity for work he ought certainly to be given its equivalent in some sort of good luck; and lo and behold! the gods are as wise in the matter as I am. Here comes the good fortune that is our portion."

"But even with that lucky chance to help you, you will still have to work hard. If you do not, I am sure to beat you."

"You forget that you can't play any," said Roy, lightly; and the boys laughed before drawing out the chessboard, to forget their musical incapacities in exercising their brains over the intricate maneuvers of knights and queens and bishops.

That night Anthony could not escape the remembrance that he had another violin which he was not using, stored away in the little closet adjoining his sleeping-room. There was no reason at all why he should not let Leon have it until after the concert, save that by so doing he would be increasing his rival's chance for the prize. Leon could not afford to get a new violin, he knew that well enough; and of what use would the old one be with a hole punched in its back? Of course Leon deserved the prize, just as Roy of right had the honor of being captain of the ball club. Still it was none of his affair if he broke his violin. It was not a thing for which he should make reparation; and why should he trouble himself about one who had always repulsed his kindnesses, or at least had never invited them? He would be quite sure of the prize himself if—

—but Anthony could never bring himself to think of his being a party to Leon's failure. The old violin in his closet seemed to send out a faint but insistent music in its heart had been so long unvoiced. He could fancy that the spirits of those who in long-gone days had played upon it were waiting to whisper in its moving tones the joys and sorrows of a vanished time. And then——but Anthony would not think about it any more. He turned his thoughts resolutely to the next day's Virgil reading, a topic stimulating his fancy so lightly that he soon forgot it all in sleep.

It was three days later when Anthony went into Prof. Mandel's room before the latter had finished the lesson he was giving Leon. Both teacher and pupil were aggravated by the dull tones of the cracked violin; and at last Mandel handed Leon his own instrument, upon which no pupil had ever before been permitted to play. Anthony sat down and listened for the remainder of the lesson hour. At first his heart sank within him; he could not so much as dream of being able to play like that. Then gradually the music came over him with all its power. He wondered how so slight a form, so thin and etherealized, a face, should have for its soul so much strength and mastery. Directly he forgot to think about this, and by the time Leon had finished he knew what he should do. The shy boy hardly understood him when he told him that he had an old violin of good quality, to the use of which he was welcome for the rest of the term; but Anthony himself played better that afternoon than he had for weeks.

Anthony did not enter the contest for the prize. His father would be disappointed, he knew; but he had not the heart to bring his fumbling with the bow into comparison with Leon's mastery of his instrument. Roy laughed at him, and even upbraided him a little for lending his violin; but Roy's laughter and upbraiding were alike harmless.

But after the concert, when the prize had been awarded, Leon's mother came to him without an introduction.

"I do not know how to thank you," she said, and her voice was not so steady as it might have been, "Leon has written me about you. Your giving him the violin was more to him than the prize."

Afterward, when they had gone to his room together, Anthony told his father why he had not played and with whose instrument it was that Leon had won.

His father seemed to be thinking of other things, only nodding his head slowly to show that he was listening. Then at the conclusion he spoke of from a distance, his eyes looking into a time of which Anthony knew not.

"Your uncle used to play that same fantasia on the old violin years ago, when we were boys together. I can see him dropping his head over the strings now. He used to linger over that Adagio until it seemed the melting tones were angel voices calling; and even the Andante's pain of human longing barely seemed to bring him back to earth. It is no wonder that your friend played well to-night."

Anthony was not thinking now of the possibility of having to meet his father's displeasure.—X. Y. Independent.

WONDERS OF BIRD MIGRATION.

Some Fly During the Day and Others at Night.

The manner of travel differs greatly among the birds. Nearly everybody has seen or heard the flocks of wild geese passing over in the night, making tremendous leaps, so to speak, across the country on their way south. That the shore birds bound to Patagonia travel in like fashion has already been told. Probably the great majority of birds travel south in great flocks at tremendous height from the earth. They are thus able in pleasant weather at least to see the landscape and so direct their way unvaryingly. In storms and fogs they lose their way, become confused, plunge about among the tree tops, fly through the streets of cities and dash themselves to death against the windows of lighthouses. To my mind this gathering of timid birds like the thrush—birds that live the summer through close to the ground and are never seen 100 feet above the soil—the gathering, I say, of birds like these in great flocks that go careening high in air for vast distances over the land by night is the greatest marvel of migration. It seems a matter of course that swallows should do so, for they are tireless.

On the other hand there are birds that are seen by day in "a ceaseless tide of migration." They pass leisurely from tree to tree, gleaming as they go, says one observer writing on the characteristics of warblers. It is worth noting that the birds who migrate in this fashion are peculiar in their habits as workers—they never waste any time in play. The robins, the orioles, the bobolinks make a picnic excursion of their annual flight, but the plodders of the feathered race must needs carry their knitting to camp meeting. It has been supposed that the birds who migrate by night do so to escape the attacks of predatory birds, but these plodding migrants are quite as subject to attacks as any. Besides, on the clear nights when the night flyers go they are certainly subject to attacks from owls. There are so many things we do not know about the habits of birds that it seems worth while to call attention to points that may be disputed in the hope that some who seek knowledge out of pure love of it may turn their attention to this most interesting part of life in nature.—Colette Smiley, in Chautauquan.

Wonderful suns.

Astronomers are not yet all agreed as to the causes of the variations of color and brilliancy which are exhibited by many stars. In the constellation Cepheus, in the northern sky, there is a star named Delta Cephei, which in the course of about three days alternately gains and loses a large part of its light. The spectroscopic has proved that Delta Cephei consists of two stars revolving around one another in a very elliptical orbit, although they never get far enough apart to be separately visible from the earth. Even when viewed with a telescope their light is blended into a single star disk, although if we could go near enough to them we should find that they are, in reality, millions of miles apart. When brightest, the united light of the twin stars is two or three times greater than when faintest. One of the explanations recently offered by astronomers to account for these changes is that one of the stars composing Delta Cephei has a very thick atmospheric veil, consisting of clouds of condensed metallic vapors, and that when the stars draw near one another in their orbital motion the increase of heat dissipates the obscuring veil, and permits the star to which it belongs to shine with a splendor that it cannot obtain when its rays are interrupted by its envelope of clouds. It is hard to believe that the inhabited worlds could exist in the neighborhood of such a pair of suns as that.—Youth's Companion.

ISN'T IT STRANGE?

The "strained relations" often find their greatest strain among nearest relations. That in dwelling upon the wickedness of others, we often forget to dwell upon our own.

Mr. Balfour now has an aluminum bicycle of American make weighing only 18 pounds.

Roumanian bicyclers must have their names and addresses not only on a plate fastened to their machines, but also on the glass of their lamps, so that they may be read at night. Cyclists in the streets of Bucharest must ride in single file.

A sedate wheelman, who is anxious to strictly follow the rules of etiquette, wrote to an Indianapolis paper, and asked this important question: "Would it be all right to ride a bicycle to the funeral of a distant connection by marriage, providing you keep behind the horse?"

A bicycle drowning accident has taken place in Wales. A fisherman named Conway rode down to lay his lines at low water, but could not keep ahead of the incoming tide. His body was carried out to sea, and his bicycle, found at low tide between two sand banks, was the only mark of what had become of him.

COLUMBIANA, AUGUST 20, 1896.

NATIONAL TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT: WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, of Nebraska.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT:
ARTHUR M. SEWALL, of Maine.

DEMOCRATIC ELECTORS.

First district—E. L. Russell.
Second district—John D. Barnett.
Third district—T. M. Espy.
Fourth district—W. H. Browne.
Fifth district—T. L. Bulger.
Sixth district—J. J. Mayfield.
Seventh district—M. D. Sibert.
Eighth district—E. B. Almon.
Ninth district—C. B. Powell.

STATE AT LARGE.
S. W. John, J. W. A. Sanford.

Let every good democrat stand true to Bryan and Sewall and we will give them such a majority as Cleveland received in 1892.

The Honorable Cecil Browne will be a candidate for speaker of the next house of representative. If Mr. Browne is honored with this position he will make a dignified and capable presiding officer.

THE MOBILE REGISTER in publishing a list of the democratic congressional aspirants in the state, gives out the following as candidates in the Fourth district: State Treasurer J. Craig Smith, of Dallas; Hon. Gaston A. Robbins, of Dallas, and Hon. Percy Clark.

THE CHRONICLE is informed that Hon. T. S. Ploverman, of Talladega, will be a candidate for congress from the Fourth district. Mr. Ploverman is a man of great ability and would represent well the interest of our district in congress. He is a man that would reflect great honor upon this, one of the greatest states in the Union, in the National Assembly Hall, and The Chronicle would like to see him there.

THE CHRONICLE notices a call for a state convention on August 27th to elect delegates to the Indianapolis convention. In this call Shelby county is entitled to seven delegates. It is hard to see how Shelby can comply and send seven delegates when there are not seven bolters in the county, and consequently not seven men in the county in sympathy with the movement. Though Shelby is a strong sound money county, still her democracy is as firm as the rock of Gibraltar and she does not believe in dishonoring herself by bolting the party after participating in her primaries and conventions.

THE CHRONICLE trusts that the good people of the State of Alabama will not be led astray from democratic paths by the sound money movement that is now agitating our country. Especially the South cannot afford for her solid phalanx to be broken. The money question, or any question is as vital to her as her white supremacy. In other words the white people of the South must stand together, or we will have days again fully as dark as the days of reconstruction. The money question may be important to us as a nation, the tariff may be an important question to us as a government, but the race question is important to us as a people, and when a blow is made that pierces through the solid phalanx of our white democracy, it strikes the very heart core of this beautiful South land of ours. We truly have the garden spot of the world. On no part of the globe does the sun shine brighter, the birds sing sweeter and the flowers grow prettier, and no section on the face of the earth has fairer women or braver men than here in the South. Therefore let us urge upon the white men of the South to stand together and maintain the glorious country that we have striven so hard to build up and beautify, and this can only be done within the ranks of the democratic party.

IT WAS A GREAT SPEECH.

From the Birmingham State-Herald.

Before an audience of more than 20,000 people night before last in New York, the brilliant leader of the democratic hosts formally accepted the commission as the national democratic standard-bearer. It was a grand scene and a great occasion. If there were those who hoped that the acceptance speech would not come up to that high standard the country naturally demands of the man who has been called upon to bear the banner of the national democracy, and we have reason to believe that some such exist, they were most certainly disappointed.

Those who have given a willing ear to the organs of the gold trust, in their effort to make believe that the national democratic convention had not nominated a statesman, but instead had nominated a school-boy orator for president, have only to read the acceptance speech made by Mr. Bryan to learn that the goldbug press has sought to deceive them. It is the speech of a patriot and a statesman. No man lives today on the American continent who can excel it. No nominee of any party in the past for any position can equal it.

Mr. Bryan's great speech in the Chicago convention and his subsequent nomination by that body electrified the whole country, and from that day until the occurrence of the memorable event in Madison Square Garden Wednesday night, the electric shock has been growing in magnitude. The triumphant trip from Nebraska to New York, which a staff correspondent of the New York Journal, who made the trip with the party, says has never been equaled on this continent, and the success of the great Madison Square Garden meeting Wednesday night, leaves no doubt as to what the people have made up their mind to do. Bryan will be elected by the most overwhelming majority ever before given a candidate for president.

GIRL'S INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

Miss Julia Tutwiler Writes a Letter Explaining its True Status.

Upon the call of the governor, the trustees of the Girl's Industrial School of Alabama will meet in this city today.

The following letter from Miss Julia Tutwiler, the president, will be read with much interest just at this time, as it gives her position and the real status of the school, and is fully and plainly set out:

EDITOR BIRMINGHAM NEWS:—My attention has been called to a letter from Montevallo in your paper in reference to the Girl's Industrial School, which contains, I think, several errors, doubtless unintentional, on the part of the writer.

First—I have not resigned the position of president of the State Industrial School.

Second—I think the writer is mistaken in stating that it is the intention of the trustees to open that school this fall, for several reasons. First, I do not believe that the trustees would have failed to give official information of such an intention to the president-elect, and I have received none. Last year, I was requested to sign a paper releasing the trustees from the obligation of paying me a salary for that year, as there was no work for me to do, giving me at the same time, permission to continue my present work in the only existing State school for girls, the Alabama Normal College at Livingston, until such time as they should need my services. This spring, as I heard nothing from them, I wrote each of the fourteen members of the board, except the three members of the executive committee, (knowing that these had no power to act without instructions from the board) asking whether they expected to open the school this fall, and requesting if this was not the case a written permission to continue my present work for the coming school year, without doing any prejudice to my position as president-elect of the new school. It was necessary for me to do this, not only on my own account, but on that of the teachers employed in the Alabama Normal College for Girls, who wish to know whether I would continue in that position for another year, as otherwise they might have to seek new positions. All but one of the gentlemen to whom I wrote replied; and all but one informed me that they thought the school could not and should not begin this fall, and gave me besides the written permission which I had requested.

Second—A distinguished teacher and author, who is deeply interested in the Industrial School, is my neighbor here at Montevallo. She tells me that one of the most valuable and influential members of the executive committee said lately to her very emphatically: "Never will I give my consent to the erection of a building until we have the money to construct one worthy of the dignity of the State of Alabama and of the purpose for which it is intended."

Third—I received a letter lately from a lady of Atlanta, who desires a position in the Industrial School, and wrote to me to that effect. I referred her to the governor as president of the board of trustees. I received from her today, August 7, the following letter:

Miss Julia Tutwiler, Montevallo, Tennessee:

DEAR MISS TUTWILER:—Please allow me to thank you sincerely for your very prompt and kind reply to my letter. I wrote the governor as per your suggestion and today had a letter from his secretary, saying that the Industrial School would not be opened this winter, and it was uncertain as to when it would be. Again thanking you, and assuring you of my appreciation of your kindness in this matter, I am very truly, Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 5, 1896.

Fourth—Another reason why I doubt the accuracy of the information given by your correspondent, whose name is not signed to his letter, is the great unwisdom of such a course. The bill establishing this school was passed not in the interest of any place or of any persons, except the hundred thousand white girls of Alabama. It is their interests which must be considered to the exclusion of all others. Some time ago, it was proposed to take $7,500 of the $9,000, which alone can be used for building purposes, and erect with this sum a building for the Industrial School, using the remaining $1,500 to repair the schoolhouse of the town to be used as an annex. The proposition was absurd on the face of it, and I supposed it had been long since entirely abandoned. There is scarcely a village in the State which cannot afford a better building for its school children than one costing only $7,500. I heard lately of the erection of a $20,000 school building by the young men of one of the smaller towns of the State. The city of Birmingham has three school buildings, each of which cost $50,000.

I have been in correspondence with the industrial schools which have been established by other Southern States, and I think that not one of them has buildings costing less than $100,000, nor an annual appropriation of less than $20,000. The plant of the Mississippi Industrial School for Girls is valued at $150,000. The industrial school for the colored girls of Alabama, at Anniston, has a building costing $10,000. Every paper in the State would cry shame upon the trustees if they sanctioned such a course as erecting for the Industrial School of the white girls a building no better than the outhouses and offices of this colored school. A handsome brick livery stable would cost more than $7,500. Certainly the white girls of Alabama deserve something better. To begin with, the school, in so cheap a building, would be humiliating to every one connected with it, and disgraceful to the State. The girls of Alabama have waited three quarters of a century for just recognition from the State. It is better for them to wait a little longer than to receive a gift unworthy of their merits. Nothing could be more injurious to the future interest of this school than for it to begin its work by the erection of mean, insignificant and insufficient buildings. A prejudice would be excited against it which it would take years to overcome. No institution should be handicapped in this way at its very start. Every new enterprise has at best a rough and thorny road to travel for some years. Its friends should try to remove difficulties from its path, instead of deliberately placing them there.

The wisest course for this school is to wait until at least the sum of $100,000 is in the hands of the trustees before putting a stone in place. "Festinate" should be its motto. "Who goes slowly goes surely." The bill asking congress for twenty-five thousand acres of the public lands of Alabama for the white and colored industrial schools of the State, was brought too late to receive the attention which it deserved. If it is introduced at the very outset of the next session, there is no reason why it should not pass, for no one has any interest in opposing it. The erection of the buildings and the opening of the school should be postponed until the money for the sale of these lands is actually in the hands of the trustees.

The "mountain in the valley" is a beautiful location if the money to erect buildings worthy of the State can be secured. No place is a good location unless this can be done. The good people of Montevallo—some of the excellent of the earth—are not so selfish as to prefer their advantage for a year to the permanent benefit of the hundred thousand white girls of this generation of Alabamians, and that of the millions of the generations yet to come. When we build for ages, all petty, local, personal and temporary considerations must be laid aside.

Respectfully and sincerely yours,
JULIA STRUDWICK TUTWILER.

P. S.—I shall feel under obligations to any paper in Alabama which feels interest enough in the Industrial School for White Girls to re-publish this letter.

MONTVALLO, Tenn., Aug. 7, 1896.

BART THRASHER.

The Noted Outlaw and Escort Within a Mile of Montevallo Sunday—Making for Cover.

Montevallo, Aug. 17.—(Special.)—Our peaceful and quiet village was thrown into a state of excitement yesterday when it was learned that Bart Thrasher, the now famous outlaw, with four other men, were seen about a mile from town, heavily armed and threatening the life of Mr. Charles W. Cary, who last year had Thrasher jailed at Jasper, charging him with robbery. Mr. Cary was held up by two armed men a little over a year ago and robbed of his watch and a small amount of money. Mr. Cary always contended that Thrasher was one of the men, and a short while afterwards had him arrested in Walker county. It could never be established satisfactorily, so he was discharged. Thrasher has on several occasions threatened to kill Cary.

Quite a crowd of determined and well armed men left last night, and are now scouring the woods near here for the outlaw. Should they come together some bloody work may be expected, as all are brave and determined men.

Mr. Bunk Harris, who is well acquainted with Thrasher, saw him Saturday coming in this direction. He met him at the river bridge on the Birmingham, Brierton and Blocton railroad and talked with him for some time. It is believed that Thrasher is going down to Stump Hills, a neighborhood south of Calera, where it is almost impossible to trace or capture anyone.

The prospects of the Columbiana High School are very flattering for a great and glorious year. Prof. W. B. Greek, our principal, is noted for his indomitable zeal and energy, and is a man fully capable of the high position he occupies. He is working nobly for the school and will have everything in readiness for the opening of the session. His assistants are very proficient in the different branches, and they all go to make up a very fine school.

It is absolutely a free school for all those living within the incorporated limits, and those contemplating moving here to get advantage of the school and to live in a thriving little city should move in at once.

Mining by Hog Power.

"I was riding through the mountains in Trinity county, California, a few days ago," said a prominent mining man yesterday, "when I happened to take a trail that led by old Barley Johnson's cabin. You know he has always been called Barley Johnson, because he was never known to wear a pair of boots, but always kept his feet sewed up in burlaps, like canvas-packs. I took dinner with Barley—corn bread and bacon, and then sat down for a smoke.

"Wouldn't you just as soon do your smoking outside, partner?" he asked. "Certainly," said I, "but you don't object to the smoke of a cigar, do you?" I was naturally surprised, for he was already pulling away at an old corn-cob pipe.

"No, of course not, seeing as I've smoked high on to 50 years, but I keep my hogs at work."

"My curiosity was aroused, but I said nothing. He took down a double barreled, muzzle-loading shotgun and his powder horn. Then he went out to a shed and got a pan of shelled corn. He sat down on a bench at the cabin door, rammed down a couple of charges of powder, and poured a handful of corn into each barrel. He put on a percussion cap, pressed it down with the hammer, cocked both barrels and blazed away at the side hill across the little gulch. The roar had not died away till a drove of hogs came running, grunting and squealing, and began to root the side hill in search of the corn. Whenever they slacked up in their work, the old man would fire out another charge of corn.

"That's a mean trick," I said. "Why don't you feed it to them in a trough?"

"Feed it to 'em?" he repeated, in amazement. "Then they wouldn't work. Besides, they don't need it."

"What do you want to make them work for, and why do you waste corn on them if they don't need it?"

"Why man alive! They do as much work as four men would. They root up the dirt, and when the rain comes I sluice it."

"Then I understood that he was using the hogs to help him mine."—San Francisco Post.

JOCKEY VERNON'S BRAVE ACT.

Stops a Pair of Runaway Horses and Saves the Lives of Two Women.

From the Chicago Times-Herald.
Harry Vernon, the jockey, is a hero now. A manly act, backed by prompt courage, stopped a pair of runaway horses on Michigan avenue yesterday noon and saved serious injury to the frightened occupants of a stylish equipage.

Vernon was seated in the carriage, which contained Mrs. Louise Conrad wife of a wealthy New York brewer, and her daughter. The coachman was driving south on the boulevard, and had just passed Congress street, when a passing member of the Riverside Wheel club accidentally struck one of the horses with his wheel. The team at once became unmanageable and ran away. Instead of dashing down Michigan avenue, the horses reared and plunged over the sidewalk near the lake front park, and finally rushed madly toward the lake. The park is literally torn up and blocked with construction material in this locality, and the occupants of the carriage were compelled to hold on to the seat for their lives.

The driver pulled desperately at the safety straps on the reins until they snapped, and he fell to the ground. While the horses were dragging the rig toward the lake young Vernon climbed over the seats, ran along the carriage pole and seizing the horses by the bits, swung himself into what seemed to be the jaws of death in an effort to stop the wild run of the horses. They dragged him 150 yards, when his heroic energy was crowned with success. People cheered him to the echo for his pluck, and he emerged from the incident without injury or damage, except the complete destruction of a suit of clothes. Mrs. Conrad and daughter were profuse in their gratitude, and commended Vernon for his bravery.

Summer Homes and Resorts.

The Southern railway is the first of our great railway systems to give information to the public and to fix low excursion rates for a summer outing good for return until October 31st, by issuing, with usual promptness, its Summer Home and Resort Book.

It is handsome in design and artistic in every respect having thirty-two beautifully illustrated pages containing the most complete and conveniently arranged information calculated to answer fully and satisfactorily every question likely to be propounded, such as routes and distances, hotels and boarding houses, names of proprietors how to reach them, rates of board by day, week and month, etc.

The Southern offers a choice of mountain and seaside resorts, the surf bathing and sea breezes of some of the most delightful resort towns on the Atlantic Coast or the cool mountain breezes of Swannanoa, Asheville, Lookout Mountain and others, 2,500 feet above the sea level.

Maj. Huggins and N. A. Graham, of Calera, were in our city Monday.

John Caldwell, of Avondale, visited his girl here Monday and Tuesday.

Miss McGee, of Stanton, is visiting Miss Leila Parker on College street.

A. H. Avery and John Avery, of Shelby, came up to the land sale Monday.

Miss Venecia Vines, of Clanton, is visiting the family of John T. Cromwell.

Mrs. I. Edwards, of Childersburg, is a guest of her daughter, Mrs. I. D. Mason.

Messrs. Ham Dulose and Will Thomas visited Shelby Springs Saturday night.

Miss Essie Mason left last Saturday to visit the family of John Edwards, at Childersburg.

Miss Tommie Alexander is now visiting Miss Birdie Morrison on "Mountain Heights."

Walter Tinney was married to Miss Emma Davis at the residence of B. L. Moore on last Sunday.

Miss M. A. Bridges, of Mississippi, who has been visiting relatives here left Monday for her home.

Rev. T. M. Wilson is spending the week in Laniers, Ala., assisting Rev. Mr. Aiken with his meeting.

Mrs. Rodgers and children, with Miss Ida McLane, of Gainesville, Texas, are visiting Mrs. C. E. Parker.

All the newly elected officers have made their bonds and the same have been approved except Robertson and Williams.

Miss Georgia Cromwell returned home Saturday from a delightful visit to relatives in Clanton, Stanton and Maplesville.

Mrs. Joe Parker is now ill at her temporary home on College street. We trust she will be able to be out in a short time.

Hon. W. B. Browne, an elector, left yesterday morning to attend a meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee.

There will be an ice cream supper at the residence of Mrs. L. C. Armstrong, Friday night, 21st, for the benefit of the Baptist church. Your patronage will be highly appreciated.

In another column will be seen the advertisement of Dr. G. W. Shackelford, dentist, and all those desiring good work done will find him at the White House.

Do not fail to attend the ice cream supper at the residence of Mrs. L. C. Armstrong on next Friday night, notice of which will be seen in another column. This is for a noble cause and our people should turn out en-masse to help it.

Misses Florie Lister and Lucie Leeper came up from Shelby Springs and spent Tuesday in our little city. They are two of the Spring's prettiest and most accomplished guests and add greatly to the pleasure of those visiting this most delightful and beautiful summer resort.

Miss Annie McMillan left Monday afternoon for South Alabama, where she contemplates teaching this winter. We are truly sorry to see Miss Annie leave our little city for so long a time, but trust she will have a successful and pleasant winter of it. Miss Myrtle Swain accompanied her as far as Calera.

E. L. Spencer came in on his wheel from Talladega Springs yesterday. Eugene is getting to be quite an expert wheelman. He left town a few days since on a trip and one of our townsmen passed him out in the woods laying down on his back with his feet propped up in a tree breathing as if his heart would break.

The young people of Columbiana, Calera and Wilsonville enjoyed a most delightful entertainment given in honor of Misses Tommie Alexander and Nellie Parker by Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Hall, at their beautiful home on East College street. Those in attendance from Calera were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bowdon, Misses Alma Duran and Willie Bird, Messrs. Claude Duran and Elbert McCloud; from Wilsonville, Misses Georgia Pope, Lula and Blossom Denster, Juddie Kilpatrick, Mary and Sallie Hollin, Messrs. Will Tinney, Will Smith and Claude Jackson. We hope that the young people of our neighboring towns will come oftener, for we are always glad to have such brave sons and fair daughters with us.

Part Thrasher, the noted outlaw and desperado, of Bibb county, is again creating considerable excitement in the neighborhood of Blocton, and there is a considerable reward offered for his capture. It is strange how a man can go about in this civilized country of ours committing crimes of all kinds and not be captured.

Work on our new building is progressing very nicely. Columbiana is improving slowly but surely, and we now have the best town of its size in the state. Our merchants are enterprising and our people are most liberal and generous. Goods can be bought cheaper here than in any market in this section of country, and as good a price will be paid for cotton as in any other market. Anything can be bought in our stores from a pin to a fine suit of clothes. So let all our farmers in this section of country bring their cotton and other farming produce here, get a good price for it, and buy goods cheap.

Wilsonville Waifs.

"Shaky Jackie" where were you when the "pop-gun" shot?

Miss Lula Denster was treated to a handsome new bicycle by her mother last week.

Misses Sallie Wallace and Lizzie Phillips were welcome visitors in town last week.

Mrs. Wm. Tinney is visiting relatives in Columbus, Ga.

Mrs. Sommerville and children returned to Birmingham Saturday, after inhaling the balmy health giving arena of our village and vicinity.

A party of young people chartered a hay wagon Friday evening, bareheaded and headed for Columbiana and the party at Mr. Hall's. They returned at 3:30 next morning tired, sleepy and hungry too. They had a splendid time at the party, for how could it be otherwise among those hospitable Columbiana people.

The recent drouth has not only affected the corn and cotton crop, but has also checked the flow of milk. A man was heard to say that his cows didn't give enough milk for the cream to rise.

Miss Emma Milstead, of Columbiana, is visiting her brother's family.

Mr. and Mrs. Privette and son, of Dallas, are spending a while with Mr. McGowen's family, to allow their son to recover from an attack of typhoid fever.

Prof. J. B. Kilpatrick is conducting a series of meetings at Wallace's school house, alias "Possum Trot." Great manifestations have been and are being made and no doubt, if the meeting is continued, there will be great and mighty good come from this meeting.

Lend your presence to our Literary Society every other Friday night and hear the foreign, American, political, religious, practical, scientific, wise and otherwise questions discussed and debated by the future youth of our town. BOUTWAGES.

Harpersville Echoes.

Chills and fever are raging.

Dr. Nelson was sick all of last week, but is improving now.

Miss Mollie Corley, of Dallas county, is visiting her uncle, Rev. John Corley near here.

We are glad to state that the Darnell family are all improving after a long spell of sickness.

Talk for the school, work for it and let us make it one of the best schools in the county.

Dr. Fields was confined to his bed all of last week, but he is some better at this writing.

A very interesting meeting was held at the Vincent Baptist church last week. The pastor was ably assisted by Rev. W. J. Elliott, of Montgomery, son of C. F. Elliott, of near Vincent.

There was quite a large crowd of strangers at the Baptist church last Sunday, and all seemed to enjoy Mr. Whittle's sermon finely.

Sci Smith, aged about 35 years, died of a congestive chill last week. He leaves a wife and two children to mourn his loss, and to them we extend our sympathy.

The Green fell from a tree last week where he was gathering muscadines, about 40 feet and received injuries of which we are afraid will prove fatal.

Messrs. Prince and Jones have put up a brick kiln this summer and will supply our people with brick this winter. Democratic brick of course.

Mr. Hopkins and a Miss Waldrope, living near here eloped to Talladega county last Sunday and were made man and wife.

We had a severe wind here Sunday evening accompanied by a light rain. Fences and trees were blown down, and it looked at one time as if we were going to have a regular cyclone.

Harpersville Baptist church, and her funeral was preached here in the church Tuesday by the pastor, Rev. B. E. Giles, after which she was laid away in the cemetery to await the resurrection morn, witnessed by a large concourse of friends, who deeply sympathize with the bereaved ones in their sad bereavement.

Mr. Whittle's sermon Monday night was one of the best that we ever listened to, and all who heard it was perfectly carried away with it. Subject: "The soul that shineth shall surely die."

JACKS.

DR. COCHRAN DEAD.
Alabama's Famous Health Officer Passes Away After a Long Illness—Will Be Buried at Mobile.

Montgomery, Aug. 17.—(Special).—Dr. Jerome Cochran, health officer of Alabama since the creation of that office eighteen years ago, died here this afternoon, after a long illness. He will be buried in Mobile.

Dr. Cochran has a national reputation as a yellow fever expert and was considered to be better posted than any other man on matters of quarantine. He was 65 years old, and leaves two sons in Texas.

Press Account.

Montgomery, Aug. 17.—Dr. Jerome Cochran, president of the Alabama State Board of Health and Dean of the medical profession in this section, died here this afternoon from kidney trouble. Dr. Cochran was born in Tennessee in 1831, and passed his early life in Marshall county, Mississippi. He graduated in medicine at Memphis and also at Nashville, and began his reputation as surgeon in the Confederate army, western division. After the war he moved to Mobile, and there commenced a special study of hygiene and public health, having charge of the yellow fever epidemic in the summer of 1878. For some years he was a member of the national yellow fever commission, when he began to establish a national reputation.

Liberty Items.

Our farmers are having some fine weather for saving their fodder and hay.

Miss Luna Jackson is visiting relatives in Georgia.

Misses Carrie Holcomb and Carrie Crane are attending the protracted meeting on Four Mile, this week.

Prof. J. A. Spearman and wife, of Four Mile, are in our community last Sunday.

The protracted meeting which was to convene here last Sunday, was postponed until the second Sunday in September.

The singing at W. A. Weldon's last Sunday night was enjoyed by all who were present. It was the good luck of your little writer to be present.

Shelby Siftings.

H. C. Dulose, of Columbiana, paid our town a flying visit last Friday morning.

J. M. Kifer has been sick with chills for the last few days.

Miss Ella Phillips, a charming Sylacauga belle, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. K. Lanning.

Capt. J. P. Christian and A. H. Avery paid Birmingham a visit last week.

Several members of D. C. Glenn's family have been sick for the last few days, but we are glad to say they are improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Bremond Bristow and son, of Shelby Springs, are visiting the parents of Mrs. Bristow, Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Harrell.

Messrs. Spears and Mosely spent Sunday visiting young lady friends in Helena.

Miss Peoples, of Montevallo, and her guest, Miss Stout, of Mobile, were the guests of Mrs. John Hall last week.

C. A. Bowles left a few days ago to visit relatives in Michigan.

Mrs. Chas. Sparks, who has been very sick, is improving.

Our very accommodating depot agent, Mr. J. K. Lanning, has moved into his new cottage near the depot.

Much to the regret of one of our pretty young ladies, Frank Avery left last week to visit relatives in Benton, Ala.

Misses Bessie Carter and Catherine Owen left Sunday to visit friends and relatives in Antauga county, Ala.

Robert Oliver and his charming sister, Miss Helen, spent last Saturday at Talladega Springs. Robert has accepted a position there as telegraph operator.

Misses Belle and Kate Huyett and Anna Milner, of Columbiana, were welcome visitors to our town Tuesday. The most charming entertainment of the season was last Friday evening's reception, given at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Avery, in honor of Mr. G. H. Avery and bride.

NOT UNTIL SEPTEMBER

With the Newly Elected County Officers Receive Their Commissions From the Secretary of State.

Montgomery, Aug. 13.—(Special). The county officers elected on the 3rd inst., will not be commissioned nor take charge of their offices until September 1st. A large number of them have written the Secretary of State, requesting that their commissions be forwarded them, but he is not authorized to send them out until the date mentioned, in conformity with the act of February 1, 1893. The provision applies to all officers from justice of the peace up to sheriff. It is in order, however, for the officers-elect to get their bonds ready, and arrange to take their new places promptly on the 1st.

Farmer Waifs.

Mrs. Ella Hale is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Robinson.

Mr. Charlie Browning and sister, Miss Sena, spent Saturday and Sunday in Coosa and attended a singing meeting.

Mrs. Mollie Gaston is spending a few days with her relatives in Fayetteville this week.

N. N. Mosteller was in Columbiana last Thursday.

Little Erby Robinson is improving. We are glad to state, after a long illness.

Mr. and Mrs. John Merrill have just moved into their new building.

A. Worthy and Mary Lovestor were married on the 15th inst. We wish the young couple a long and happy life.

Mr. John Smith was called to the bedside of his brother this week, but before he reached his residence the angel of death had visited their home and carried home another blooming flower. He leaves a wife and two children and a host of friends to mourn his death. May God bless them in my prayer, and may the wife raise her children so that some sweet day she will go shouting home, and thus meet her loved ones there to part no more.

Mr. H. I. Williams is in Farmer this week.

PACED BY AN ENGINE.

Anderson Wheeled a Mile in 1:03--Rode a Ninety-Two Gear Bicycle.

From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The long expected attempt of Cyclists, E. B. Anderson, to ride a mile a minute, paced by an engine, was made on the Bluff Line tracks yesterday afternoon, at Oldenburg Station, in the presence of about five hundred people. A special train, carrying about three hundred St. Louisans, left Union Station at 1:30 o'clock. Nearly as many more people were at Oldenburg when the train arrived. Most of the enthusiasts found seats on the bluffs at the finish point. Anderson made two trials before he attempted his final one. On the first trial he went half a mile at a forty miles an hour clip, without a perceptible effort. His second attempt was expected to be his final, but after going a little over half a mile, Anderson stopped pedaling. The train was then going at almost a mile a minute gait. Anderson then returned to the starting point for another trial. He was attired in a red and white bicycle costume, and wore long, black gloves, reaching all the way up his arms. He wore a pair of smoked glasses to protect his eyes from cinders. At 3:50 o'clock he gave the signal to start, and the great run had begun in earnest. As the starting point was reached, the train was going at the rate of fifty miles an hour. Anderson was riding easily behind it. After going about half the distance, he dropped back about twelve feet. A quick spurt put him directly behind the train again. Anderson hung on like grim death, and when the engine had struck the torpedo, announcing that the finishing point had been reached, Anderson was less than fifteen feet behind the coach. He then began to back pedal, and in less than a sixteenth of a mile had brought the machine to a full stop. The train returned for him and he was carried aboard amid the cheers of his friends.

Douglas W. Robert and William P. Laing were chosen as the timers. An accident to Mr. Robert's watch prevented him from getting the correct time, but Mr. Laing, who is rated as one of the best timers in St. Louis, caught the cyclist's speed at one minute and three seconds. Anderson rode a 92-gear, and, barring the last sixteenth of a mile, he experienced no trouble in keeping up with the engine. His wheel weighed nineteen pounds. Engine No. 7, which paced Anderson, is one of the fastest locomotives in the West. In less than half a mile it had attained a speed of sixty miles an hour. William Buckner, Anderson's trainer, occupied a seat in the cab, and assistant engineer, Elderle, and fireman Adamson, keeping the pace at an even rate.

Anderson said after the race to a Globe Democrat reporter that, while he was well satisfied with the result of his ride, he felt confident that he could go a mile at a minute gait, if not even faster. There is not a person who saw his great ride yesterday who disbelieves this statement, as it was plainly evident that Anderson could have kept up with the pacing, even though it had been a few seconds faster. Anderson bore no marks or bruises. He said that he rode much smoother than he did in any of his trials. His wheel stood the journey well. The cement which held the rubber tires had melted, however, and as trainer Buckner carried the machine to Anderson's training quarters after the ride, the melted cement was seen to drop to the ground.

TO OPEN.

Girl's Industrial School Will Be Launched in September.

Special to the Birmingham News.
Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 15.—The meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Girl's Industrial School, to be located at Montevallo, met here yesterday, and after some discussion, decided to open the school in September. The brick building, donated by the City of Montevallo, will be used as a school room, and pupils will board in private families until dormitories can be erected, which will be done as soon as possible.

Miss Julia Tutwiler has resigned as president of the school, and Dr. B. F. Riley, late of Howard college, at East Lake, and at present occupying the Chair of Literature in the University of Georgia, was elected to the position. Indications for a good start for the school are bright, and the friends of the school are glad some definite action has been taken in the matter.

The above is very interesting reading matter to the people of Alabama, and especially to those of Shelby county. The indomitable pluck of the good citizens of Montevallo, has at last secured, without a doubt, the Girl's Industrial School of the State. This will be a great institution for the State, and Montevallo is exactly the place for it.

For its health, beautiful scenery, and intelligence of its people, Montevallo cannot be excelled by any place of its size in the State of Alabama. The moral influence which will surround the good girls of the State who go there to be trained in the industries suited to their sex, will be splendid, and The Chronicle predicts great success for the school.

Dr. G. W. SHACKELFORD, DENTIST.

The director of the mint is endeavoring to increase the monthly coinage of gold and silver at all the mints.

OFFICIAL figures on government receipts and expenditures for the last fiscal year show a deficit of $25,203,845.

EX-CONGRESSMAN RANSOM W. DUNHAM, of Chicago, died in Springfield, Mass., on the night of the 19th, of apoplexy.

The Ohio Oil Co., the Ohio branch of the Standard, will, it is said, reduce the wages of pumpers in all the Buckeye fields from $55 to $50 per month.

SINCE the opening of the presidential campaign the republican congressional committee has sent out more than thirteen million political documents.

ON the 21st the O'Hara Waltham (Mass.) Dial Co. notified its employees that after August 29 the dial works would be closed indefinitely pending the advent of better times.

AN entire absence of ostentation characterized the funeral of Miss Mary Abigail Dodge (Gail Hamilton), which was held from her late home in Hamilton, Mass., on the 20th.

GOV. MATTHEWS of Indiana was able to be at his office in the state house for a short time, on the 19th, but went home as soon as he had disposed of a little pressing business. He seemed, however, to be slightly better.

THE deadlock in the sixth democratic congressional convention at Los Angeles, Cal., was broken, on the 20th, after 130 ballots had been taken, by the withdrawal of two leading candidates, and later Harry Patton, editor of the Capital, was nominated.

THE air at Binghamton, N. Y., echoed with martial music on the 19th, the occasion being the grand parade of the Union Veterans' union, one of the features of the second day session of the national encampment. There were about 500 veterans in line.

TREASURY gold reserve at the close of business on the 21st stood at $103,228,617. The day's withdrawals at New York were $91,700. During the previous ten days the treasury lost more than $3,000,000 in gold at San Francisco by redemption of legal tenders.

A THIRD edition of treasury circular No. 123 was issued on the 20th. This time 30,000 copies were printed, which, with two former editions of 15,000 copies each, swell the total printed to date to 60,000. There is no apparent diminution in the demand for the circular.

W. BOURKE COCHRAN, of New York, addressed an audience of 18,000 persons in Madison Square garden, New York city, on the night of the 18th. In answer to Wm. J. Bryan's speech accepting the presidential nomination delivered in the same place one week before.

THE St. Petersburg astronomical expedition which was sent to Tornea, Finland, to observe the recent total eclipse of the sun, was very successful. Members of the expedition have telegraphed that they were able to get ten excellent photographs of the eclipse.

AMONG the distinguished callers on Maj. and Mrs. McKinley, at Canton, O., on the 11th, were Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Bland, of Missouri. The time spent at the McKinley home by Mr. and Mrs. Bland was apparently very agreeable to both the callers and to Maj. and Mrs. McKinley.

THE Detroit (Mich.) law firm of Dickinson, Thurber & Stevenson, comprised of Hon. Don M. Dickinson, Henry T. Thurber, private secretary to President Cleveland, and Elliott G. Stevenson, late chairman of the Michigan democratic state central committee, has dissolved on account of political differences.

IT was announced, on the 18th, as an absolute fact, that the prince of Naples, the crown prince of Italy, had been betrothed to Princess Helene, third daughter of the prince of Montenegro. It was announced in February last with equal positiveness that Princess Helene had been betrothed to King Alexander of Serbia.

PROF. JOSHUA DWIGHT WHITNEY, of Harvard university, died in New London, N. H., on the 19th. He had been in poor health and went to New London for a rest. He had been Sturgis-Hooper professor of geology and metallurgy at Harvard since 1865, and was a prominent member of the American association and of the National Association of Science.

THE treasury gold reserve, on the 18th, declined to $104,834,699, the day's withdrawals being $155,100. At Philadelphia, on the 17th, the treasury received $15,000 in gold in exchange for the new $5 certificates. There was deposited at the assay office in Helena, Mont., on the 18th, $10,000 in gold bullion, which came from the Yukon river mines in Alaska. It will be coined into eagles.

AN entire locomotive plant will shortly be taken from Philadelphia to St. Petersburg, on the British steamship Laleham, which has been chartered for the purpose. The plant is to be erected at Nijni Novgorod, the commercial metropolis of the interior of the Russian empire. Contracts for machinery for the plant amounting to over $500,000 were awarded to American manufacturers, the bulk of them going to Philadelphia firms.

IT is said that Secretary Hoke Smith, just before he left Washington to join his family at Lincoln, N. C., received a letter from President Cleveland declining to accept Mr. Smith's proffered resignation of the interior department portfolio.

CURRENT TOPICS.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

PRIVATE advices received in Philadelphia, on the 18th, stated that out of the crew of 21 men on board the British bark Flora P. Stafford, which was burned at sea on June 8, while on a voyage from Newcastle, N. S. W., for Manila, the mate and five sailors were unaccounted for, and the general impression is that they have perished.

THE electric lighting companies of St. Louis promise to have all lights restored in the tornado district by the 25th.

FIRE at Lancaster, Ky., on the 18th, destroyed all the buildings on the east side of the public square, including the post office. Loss, $50,000, two-thirds of which is covered by insurance.

A DISPATCH from Athens, on the 19th, said that insurgents in Macedonia had burned two villages in the Kostoni district and massacred eighty persons.

AMONG the passengers on the steamer St. Paul, which sailed from New York, on the 19th, for Europe, were Senator-elect Joseph B. Foraker and Postmaster-General Wilson.

THE democratic state convention assembled in Pueblo, Col., on the 19th. There was a large attendance. George Thomas, who had been looked upon as the probable candidate for governor, created a sensation by sending a formal letter to the chairman positively declining to accept any nomination from the convention.

MAJ. MCKINLEY denied himself to all callers, on the 19th, and devoted the hours to the work of reading the proof of that part of his letter of acceptance which had been put into type. Almost one-half the letter had been revised.

ON the 19th a deputy state bank commissioner posted a notice on the closed doors of the Argentine (Kas.) bank, announcing that he had taken possession and that application for a receiver would be made.

A TERRIFIC boiler explosion took place in Rockland park, Rochester, N. Y., on the 19th, where a new sewer was being constructed. Contractor Wm. Fuller was blown 100 feet and probably fatally injured. John Holliday and John A. Metzger were terribly hurt, and 20 others were slightly injured.

A FRAUD order was, on the 20th, issued by the post office department against the Creditors' Beneficial association of Rockford, Ill.

THE treasury gold reserve declined, on the 20th, to $103,933,711. The day's withdrawals were $129,700 and for the month they aggregated $7,750,000.

PROF. M. A. GREEN, M. A., professor of geology of the University of Oxford, died in London on the 20th.

FIRE of an unknown origin, on the night of the 19th, destroyed the residence of John Felbach in Watertown, S. D. Mr. Felbach and two daughters, Tillie, aged 10, and Hattie, aged 15, were burned to death. The mother and another daughter escaped.

THE Tomhicken Powder Co.'s mills at Derringer, Pa., exploded, on the 20th, killing E. J. Whitebread and injuring Peter Shell, Oliver Ross and John Kiech. The mills were completely wrecked, and the country surrounding was alarmed by the shock.

A HEAD-ON collision occurred, on the 20th, on the Detroit, Lansing & Northern railroad, near Fowlerville, Mich., between two passenger trains. Both engines were dented and one fireman was seriously injured. Several cars were derailed. The accident was caused by the west-bound train failing to make a siding to let the east-bound train pass.

THE funeral of Sir John Mills, president of the Royal Society, who died in London on August 18, took place in St. Paul's cathedral on the 20th.

RAY SEWELL, who for a month had been confined in the Meade county jail at Sturgis, S. D., on the charge of cattle rustling, made a desperate effort to escape, on the 20th, and was killed in an encounter with Fred Willard, a butcher of that town.

JACOB L. LUCE, a well-known farmer, committed suicide by hanging at his home, near Arkadelphia, N. J., on the 20th. The farm hands returning from the field found him hanging from a beam in the hay mow. His mind was probably unbalanced by the silver agitation, which had given him great concern.

RANSOM W. DUNHAM, of Chicago, who was visiting friends at Springfield, Mass., died suddenly of apoplexy on the night of the 19th, aged 58 years. Mr. Dunham was an ex-congressman, having served in the national house in 1864-5. He was also ex-president of the Chicago board of trade.

THE Jerusalem Celebration society, whose object is a pilgrimage of American Sunday-school children to the Holy Land in 1900, has been launched. The project is Rev. Frederick Bliss, of Chicago. Mr. Bliss was the originator of the Youths' congress of the Columbian exposition.

HARRY N. WING, book-keeper at the State savings bank, Butte, Mont., was arrested, on the night of the 20th, on the charge of embezzling funds from the bank to the amount of $5,408. Wing is a young man with a wife and child, having been in the employ of the bank a number of years.

THE 20th was the hottest day ever experienced in Oklahoma. From noon to five o'clock the mercury indicated from 105 to 113, and the people suffered intensely, but no fatalities were reported. For a few hours parching and almost unbearable hot winds prevailed from the south.

A NEW torpedo that gives promise of wonderful destructive possibilities, and which is claimed to possess many of the elements that have heretofore been striven after in vain by torpedo builders, will be given a trial in the Potomac river at Washington by the navy department.

THE national reunion of the Barlan family at Richmond, Ind., closed on the 20th, and the next meeting goes to Chester county, Pa., on the third Wednesday in August, 1897. Heretofore these reunions have only been held every two years, but it was decided to hold another reunion next year and then every two years thereafter.

CMRS. HULDA SNELL has renounced her claims to the millions of the late Andrew J. Davis, of Butte, Mont. Mrs. Snell claimed to be the wife of the millionaire, and that he had deserted her years ago. Detective Stillwell has been working on the case for three years in Mrs. Snell's interest, and has discovered that it was another Andrew J. Davis Mrs. Snell married.

GEN. RUGER, who is in command of the department of the east, and to whom has been assigned charge of arrangements for Li Hung Chang's reception in the United States, will announce the programme for the reception of the distinguished Chinaman during the present week.

A STRANGE double fatality occurred at the National Soldiers' home in Milwaukee, on the 10th. Richard Botfield, aged 78, late of the United States navy, and William I. Gordon, late of Company D, Ninth Ohio infantry, were assisting each other up the steps of the main building, when both fell backward to the stone flagging, and were so badly hurt that they died shortly afterward.

ON the 21st a cablegram was received from Santa Catharina, Brazil, saying that the American ship Willie Rosenfeld, which sailed from New York, April 23, for San Francisco, had foundered 400 miles off the southern Brazilian coast. Two boats containing 14 persons are missing. The Rosenfeld is owned by Arthur B. Sewall & Co., of Bath, Me.

ON the 21st Amanda Douglass, aged 18, daughter of Peter Douglass, of McMinnville, Tenn., committed suicide by shooting with a revolver. She was to have been married in a few days, and was buried in her bridal dress. Trouble about the engagement caused the act.

THE American ship Gov. Goodwin, Capt. Oakes, from New York, April 29, for Che-Poo, went ashore on Princess island, in the Malay archipelago, East Indies, and is a total wreck. The crew was saved.

GOV. MATTHEWS of Indiana, upon the advice of his physicians, left Indianapolis, on the 21st, for Mackinac, Mich. He will join Mrs. Matthews at Mackinac, where she has been spending the season.

ON the 21st a boiler in the Pennsylvania railroad car shops at PAVONIA, N. J., exploded from an unknown cause. Frank Smith, a fireman, was badly scalded and will probably die. The boiler house was wrecked.

ON the 21st Mr. and Mrs. Walter Damrosch, Mrs. Truxton Beale and another lady, while on their way to the "Village Improvement Concert," at Bar Harbor, Me., where Mr. Damrosch was to play, were thrown from their carriage by the horses running away. The carriage collided with a grocery team and the inmates were thrown beneath the upturned vehicle. All except the driver were extricated unharmed. The driver was badly cut.

THE government of Switzerland, at the request of the governments of Great Britain and the United States of Colombia, has appointed three Swiss jurists to arbitrate the differences arising out of a disputed railroad concession in the republic of Colombia claimed by a British subject.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

THE amount collected under the Raines liquor law in New York continues to swell. The returns from all counties up to August 15 shows the total to be $10,801,095. Of this amount New York city contributed $4,905,189, Kings county $2,124,304 and Erie county $833,977.

AT Kansas City, Kas., on the 21st, an unknown thief entered the branch of the American Bank during the momentary absence of the cashier, opened a desk and secured $1,000 or more in currency and made his escape.

THE total business failures in the United States were 224 the past week, six more than last week, 72 more than in the week one year ago and 13 more than in the third week of August, 1894, the period of extreme depression after panic of 1893.

THE president on the 19th appointed Col. Charles G. Sawtelle to be quartermaster general of the army, vice Gen. Batchelder retired.

FARMERS in Brookfield (Ind.) township are greatly exercised over a new disease which has broken out there. The disease has spread in three herds of over 100 head, and many of the animals are hopelessly blind and many others rapidly losing their sight.

OSCAR NEENE, the Chicago anarchist, who was pardoned for his complicity in the Haymarket riots by Gov. Altgeld, on the 19th left his wife and eloped with another woman.

SIX cars of a Rock Island train were derailed near Topeka, Kas., on the 19th, and four men riding in the cellar or feed box underneath one of the cars were crushed to death.

FRED S. ROTHACKER, who was stabbed by Attorney Charles Lundey at Cincinnati on the 17th, died on the 19th at the hospital from the effect of the wound.

FIRE at Lancaster, Ky., on the 18th, destroyed every building on the east side of the square.

ACCORDING to advices received in Philadelphia on the 18th, ten of the crew of twenty-two men of the British bark Flora P. Stafford, which burned at sea several weeks ago, perished.

EUGENE BURT, who is wanted in Austin, Tex., for the murder of his wife and two children about a month, was arrested in Chicago on the 18th.

HENRY WILD, a peddler, shot and killed his wife at Louisville, Ky., on the 18th, and then blew out his own brains.

CANDOR OF MR. BRYAN.

The Democratic Candidate Is Above Deception and Dishonesty.

The republican organs parade as damaging to the democratic candidate the telegraphic correspondence of Mr. Bryan and Senator Jones concerning the populist nomination and the reports of his stubborn determination to let the populists know where he stands.

The effect of Mr. Bryan's attitude and utterances is undoubtedly the opposite of that hoped for by these organs. The publication of the Bryan-Jones correspondence did Mr. Bryan more good than harm, and all that he may say in line with his determination to meet the populists with perfect candor is beneficial to him.

The American people admire frankness and honesty. They abhor trickery and deceit in politics. The public man who speaks his mind and disdains to profit by deception or hypocrisy earns their respect, as the public man who shows himself willing to profit or trickery receives their contempt.

It may not have been good politics in the narrow sense of apparent temporary advantage for Mr. Bryan to tell the populists that he did not want and could not accept their nomination on the terms with which it was offered, but it was good politics in the broadest and best sense. It was the kind of politics that gains honor and confidence for a man and that wins in the long run.

Mr. Bryan's desire to deal frankly with the populists and to give them an opportunity to act with a clear conception of his own position was altogether creditable. It showed him to be a man of honest dealing rather than win it by consenting to a misconception or to a course that might savor of deception or dishonesty. The feeling of party resentment which might be felt against a man who is willing to sacrifice a political opportunity to conscience must yield to a feeling of respect for his courage and probity.

MR. HANNA CALLS ON MR. WANAMAKER.

The populists know now that if their representatives voted for Mr. Bryan's nomination under a misunderstanding of the situation the democratic candidate was not a party to the misunderstanding. They know that if the populist convention acted without a clear knowledge of the consequences the convention was kept from securing that knowledge by its own officers and not by the man who was most concerned and most anxious that the convention should act with a full knowledge of all the circumstances bearing upon its action.

The revelation of Mr. Bryan's attitude and wishes cannot fail to win him the respect not only of the populists, who are chiefly concerned in this matter, but of all men who love honesty and courage.—St. Louis Republic.

Said William McKinley, speaking in the house of representatives on June 24, 1896: "I am for the largest use of silver in the currency of the country. I would not dishonor it; I would give it equal credit and honor with gold. I would make no discrimination. I would utilize both metals as money and disreput neither. I want the double standard." The official report of these words may be found on page 6,447 of volume 21 of the Congressional Record. Six years after uttering those words William McKinley turned his coat in order to get the republican nomination for the presidency. How much confidence can the people place in a man who will eat his own words in order to get a nomination?—Helena (Mont.) Independent.

Unfortunately "financial glutony" is not confined to mere business speculation, where its effects are bad enough, but has shown itself in politics, where its influence has been far more disastrous to the material welfare of the people and detrimental to national morals. The protective tariff system, started as a sincere, although misguided, effort to promote the general welfare, injected an element of greed into politics which soon turned a policy of mild incidental protection into a business of public plunder. Gluttony organized into trusts and combines, essayed to control the legislation of the country and culminated in the riot of bounty robbery which prevailed under the McKinley law.—St. Louis Republic.

"THE PAUPER CANDIDATE."

Despicable Methods of Republicans and Disgraced Democrats.

The enemies of democracy have already begun a campaign of abuse. No language is too vile, no epithet too coarse for them in speaking of the men nominated by the Chicago convention. Mr. James Gordon Bennett, editor and proprietor of the New York Herald, many times a millionaire and a resident of Europe because the country that made him rich is not good enough for him, has generally had the grace to support the democratic ticket. But, following the lead of the disgruntled Dana, his paper has bolted the nominations and left the democratic ranks. To make the defection more disgusting, it copied that perfect specimen of shifting sophistry, the Sun editorial declaring for McKinley, and added "me too," virtually acknowledging its inability to frame a declaration of its own, exhibiting bad judgment and lack of originality as well. But the climax was reached when the Herald printed the following sentence:

"Bryan is a pauper of the west; he has not a dollar and is proud of his poverty."

This vile and foolish attack gives to the democracy a campaign phrase of irresistible force. Mr. Bryan may not be rich, but he has never begged his bread and has always worked honorably for it. In this he is a typical American citizen. In this he is a representative of the true American ideal. In this, too, he differs from McKinley and his followers. He has not allowed other men to pay his debts. He has not sold himself, body and soul, to a syndicate of millionaires. He is not rich, it is true, and to be poor because he scorned the methods that have made his enemies rich is a thing to be proud of. To style him a pauper because he lacks the ill-gotten gains the Ohio syndicate is scattering broadcast for corruption pur-

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

The democratic campaign will be one of education. That of the republicans will be one of vilification.—St. Louis Republic.

The Hanna "object lesson" reached its zenith at Homestead in 1892, and there was a decided echo at the polls that year.—N. Y. Journal.

J. Pierpont Morgan as a McKinley advocate is a shining mark. The financier who shared in a profit of $10,000,000 in one bond issue ought to be an effective campaigner for the gold standard.—St. Louis Republic.

Some people are going to vote for Mr. Bryan simply because they like a man with the courage of his convictions. Some people are going to vote against McKinley simply because they don't like a trimmer.—Albany Argus.

The campaign biography of McKinley traces his ancestry back to "Constantine Macduff, earl of Fife, who killed Macbeth, thus by heroic conduct creating the basis for Shakespeare's immortal tragedy." This ought to catch the jingo vote.—Utica Observer.

The republicans have not formally renounced their hope of carrying at least one southern state, but since the democratic victories in Alabama and Tennessee the talk of breaking the solid south has ceased, and mighty little is being said about the solid west.—Kansas City Times.

If the gold men thought they could elect McKinley thereby they could undoubtedly raise a campaign fund of $100,000,000 in Europe alone, but the gold men keep pretty well informed and they know that the single gold standard has reached the end of its string in the United States.—Wheeling Register.

Mr. Hanna appears to be meeting with some success in trying out fat in New York. But some day those who are thus blackmailed may find that it is a good deal cheaper to pay a reasonable income tax in support of the government than it is to make unreasonable contributions to support political bossism.—N. Y. World.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

Political Events Without Definite Influence on Business—Grain Advances by Speculation Owing to Reports of Injury to Growing Crops—The Boot and Shoe and Iron Industries Continue Depressed—Wool Dull.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—R. G. Dun & Co. say to-day in their weekly review of trade:

Failures for the week have been 280 in the United States, against 222 last year, and 27 in Canada, against 43 last year.

Political events of the week had no definite influence upon business prospects, for the phenomenal variations in sterling exchange and the beginning of imports of gold, although following the great meeting in Madison Square Garden on Tuesday, may be fairly attributed to the accumulating excess of merchandise exports over imports, to which attention has been repeatedly called; exports from New York for the past two weeks having been 20 per cent. larger, and imports here 21 per cent. smaller than last year. The rapid movement of grain and the unusually early marketing of cotton tend strongly to aid the banking syndicate which has undertaken to regulate foreign exchanges.

Withdrawals of money to the interior are rather large, and commercial loans are hard to place, and this difficulty checks many new enterprises and business in many departments. Bank clearings are small for the week, 13 per cent. less than last year. Railroad earnings are not as good as might be expected for the first half of August, exceeding those of last year by only 3.4 per cent.

Speculation has advanced wheat over one cent during the week; corn a small fraction and cotton five eighths, the principal motive power being reports of injury to growing crops.

The boot and shoe industry is rapidly nearing the end of past orders excepting in women's grain and buff shoes, of which there are still orders for some weeks to come, while others are constantly received; but in other branches the new business is light. Prices are a shade lower. Leather is weaker with a small demand, although restricted supplies have caused a shade of advance in some kinds. Hides at Chicago averaged more than three per cent. lower for the week again, the fall in the past five weeks having averaged about 25 per cent.

The iron and steel manufacture has only continued depression to report and Bessemer pig has sold at $10.40 at Pittsburgh, while Southern No. 1 is offered at prices equivalent to $10 at New York and nearly all finished products are being sold below the current quotations. There is rapid curtailments of production, but in spite of this the supply of finished products appears to greatly exceed the demand for them. The one bright spot is a sale of 9,000 tons steel rails to Japan, for refitting railways in that country, which makes an aggregate of 45,000 tons exported this year.

Nothing encouraging can yet be said regarding the woolen manufacture, and the demand for goods, even at recent reductions in prices, is still disappointingly small. A heavy auction sale of cotton goods brought prices which were considered quite encouraging, and the current demand is fairly maintained, although the mills are not inclined to make large contracts for the future in view of the rise in the raw material. In general the working force in the textile branches does not appear to have increased.

A HARROW-TOOTH CASE

In Which the Defendants Are Sustained in Violating Their Contract.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 22.—Judge Acheson, in the United States circuit court, yesterday rendered an opinion in favor of the defendants in the suit of the National Harrow Co., of Jersey City, N. J., against Hench & Drombold, of York, Pa. The suit was brought to enforce license contracts for the manufacture and sale of non-lever float spring to other harrows, and lever float spring to harrows. The decision is important to the entire harrow industry of the United States.

When the case was brought, attorneys for the prosecution contended that the defendants, after joining a combination which included practically all of the manufacturers of float spring tooth harrows, violated their agreements in a number of cases, and that they sold harrows at less than the prices fixed by the combination. The defendants urged that the combination was an illegal combination of manufacturers, and that the license contracts were illegal, as being in restraint of trade. The decision supports the contention of the defendants.

TO CARRY OIL

Proposed New Pipe Line From Northern Indiana to Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 22.—It is stated that Michael and John Cudahy, the well-known millionaire packers of this city, have bought the entire plant of the Northern Indiana Oil Co. in Ams and Wells counties, Ind., and intend building a pipe line from the wells into this city. It is said they have already ordered 170 miles of six-inch pipe, and that work will be started on the line as soon as possible. It is understood that the investment, outside of the purchase price of the wells, involves about $1,500,000. No details of the deal have yet been given out.

A WOUNDED PRISONER

Identified as One of the Most Notorious Burglars in the Country.

NEW YORK, Aug. 22.—The man who lies wounded in the Long Island hospital in Brooklyn, and who is believed to be one of the men engaged in the postoffice burglary at Bedford Station, N. Y., was identified yesterday morning by Detective Sergeant McCauley, of this city, as John Offshore, alias John Clare, alias George Price, one of the most notorious postoffice burglars in the country. The man is a prisoner at the hospital.

SOUTHERN GLEANINGS.

Severe Storm in Alabama.

A fearful wind storm passed near Terry, in Dublin beat, Dallas county, Ala. About three o'clock in the afternoon black clouds were driven over the heavens from the north, and in an incredibly short time the storm was on. Trees were uprooted and many were twisted from their stumps and carried through the air with fearful force. Fences and outhouses were blown down. William Morrow's smokehouse, kitchen and dining-room were carried away. Fortunately, the family was in the front of the house and escaped. Great damage was done on the plantations of Messrs. D. P. Miller and James Milson. The path of the storm was nearly half a mile wide, and crops were completely destroyed. It is considered miraculous that no lives were lost, and that no live stock was killed.

Held Up by the Thresher Gang.

Bart Thrasher, the noted Bibb county (Ala.) outlaw and desperado, who recently killed Deputy-Sheriff Griffin Bass at Hooton, Ala., accompanied by four companions, with red masks on, broke into the room of the officials at the Belle Ellen coal mines, in Bibb county, the other night, and ordered Timekeeper George Jackson, Physician John Hendrix and Superintendents Hubert, Charles and Arthur Debardeleben to throw up their hands. The robbers expected to find the money which is to be used on the monthly pay-rolls, but they only secured seven dollars out of the lot.

Wholesale Capture of Desperados.

In Franklin county, Va., revenue officers made a raid on a noted band of outlaws and captured 12 of them, including some of their leaders. No blood was shed, but the officers were repeatedly fired on by the remaining outlaws as they came out of the mountains.

An effort was made July 18 to capture these men, but they routed the officers, shooting the horses from under some of them and killing one of the guides. Among those in custody are the Martin and Atkins brothers, Calvin Moore and a man named Brogan, all of whom are noted outlaws in that section of the state.

Fell Asleep on a Track.

While out fox hunting, near Owensboro, Ky., a party of hunters, while exhausted, lay down alongside the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis railroad tracks at 2 a. m. to wait for their hounds, which had gone in a thicket on a trail. The men were so tired they all fell asleep and were not awakened until west-bound freight train came along at 2:30 o'clock. William Coverts, white, was badly hurt about the leg, and lost an arm. Charles Watkins, a negro, was instantly killed. The others escaped.

Murdered His Fleeting Wife.

Henry Will, a peddler, shot and killed his wife in Louisville, Ky., and then blew out his own brains. He also made a desperate attempt to take the life of his son Willie, but the bullet went wide of its mark. The murder was a particularly atrocious one, and at the time she was shot the poor woman was pleading with her drunken husband to go home and try to do better. The son was the only witness of the tragedy.

Announced His Destination.

Frederick Higginbotham committed suicide, near Defunk Springs, Fla., by drowning in Yellow river. Higginbotham, with a number of friends, was bathing in the river, and he seemed to be in high spirits. Suddenly he sprang on the raft from which they had been diving and shouted: "Good-by, boys, I'm going to h—l."

LOCAL VIVISCOPE.

W. J. Cannon, of Sylacauga, spent Wednesday here.

J. W. Kidd, of Harpersville, gave us a pleasant call this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Bell, of Vincent, were in the city this week.

Miss Ethel McMath, of Montevallo, is a guest of Miss Edna Nelson this week.

Charley Seabrook, of Childersburg, is a guest of his aunt, Mrs. L. Armstrong.

Miss Eva Weaver returned home this week from a visit to relatives in Calera.

Miss Mary Brown, a charming young lady of Shelby Springs, spent Monday in our city.

Col. Bran and family, of Sylacauga, have moved into the Wimpee house on East College street.

Captain W. H. Bell, of Shelby, passed through town today on his way to visit his former home in Dallas county.

Miss Grace Walker who has been with her sister, Mrs. T. J. Weaver, left Wednesday for her home in Jacksonville.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Johnston returned home Tuesday from a week's visit to Rev. T. P. Roberts' family in Easonville.

FOR SALE—A fine farm of 120 acres. Will sell either 40 or 80 or both, to suit buyer. Terms easy. Apply for full particulars to editor of Chronicle.

County court has been in session all the week, and so far about twelve cases have been tried, besides a number not pressed and dismissed.

Jim Seale has returned to Columbiana to stay. Of course we are all glad. Jim is one of our boys, and has been in business in Childersburg for the past two years.

Rev. John McLane, of Marshall, Texas, filled the pulpit at the Methodist church Sunday morning and evening. He preached two most instructive sermons.

Married, this morning at 10:30 a. m. at the residence of James Evans in this place, W. B. Dever to Miss Nettie P. Leonard, both of Longview, Rev. C. W. O'Hara, officiating.

DIED.—At the home of her brother, Evander Morrison, on Monday last, Miss Maggie Morrison, daughter of the late Kenneth Morrison. The sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved ones.

We hear it rumored that Goldburg & Lewis, of Talladega, contemplate opening a clothing store here, but as yet we can give no definite information as diligent inquiry has failed to develop anything positive.

The Columbiana Free School will open September 14th, so we were informed yesterday by Prof. Greek. There is little doubt that the attendance will be even larger than last year, and that wasn't bad by any means—200.

Dr. J. G. Parker, than whom cannot be found a cleverer, or more accommodating druggist, was taken seriously sick last week, but we are glad to learn that he is now on the road to recovery, and we trust will soon be at his post again.

City Tax Notice.

The taxes for the city of Columbiana, for the year 1896, will be due September 15, 1896. All persons due the city will call at the mayor's office and settle same. Tax will be delinquent after November 1, 1896, and extra cost will be added if not paid before.

JOHN T. CROWWELL,
City Marshal and Tax Collector.

Upon inquiry we ascertain that the following officers who were elected on August 3rd, have failed to qualify, and that the judge of probate has certified the vacancies to the Governor: W. P. Hale, justice peace beat 2; David B. Lacy, justice peace beat 6; W. E. Millender, constable beat 10; B. R. Smith, constable beat 11; Isaac W. Johnson, justice peace beat 12; E. W. Attaway, Jr., justice peace beat 13; W. P. Cox, constable beat 13; M. P. Nalors, constable beat 16; Job Morgan and S. D. Gunnels, justices peace beat 18; Sam Isbell, constable beat 18.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Since the last issue of the Chronicle the following marriage licenses have been issued:

Thomas P. Read and Ella Saterwhite, of Saginaw.

W. B. Dever and Nettie P. Leonard, of Longview.

James F. Brown and Louisiana Morris, of Wilsonville.

Jake Harper and Margie Nelson, of Montevallo.

James McDaniel and Elizabeth Driskell, of Gurnee.

D. D. Atkinson and Abbie Horditch, of Gurnee.

Mitchell Evans and Elton Dickerson, of near Weldon.

Jeff Hale to Mary Wooley, (colored) of near Calera.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Miss Osie Wilson, of Fayetteville, is visiting the Misses Bolin.

Miss Grenna Wallace, of Sylacauga, is the guest of her cousin's family.

Dr. Lightcap, of Talladega, is in town this week plugging our peoples teeth, on "a gold and silver basis." In other words, he's taking the gold and silver out of their pockets and putting it in their mouths.

The Baptist meeting was begun here Sunday by the pastor, Rev. McCord.

Monday evening Rev. Wood, of Pratt City, came over to assist us in having a revival. There is much need of a good meeting here, and we hope this people will have one such as Harpersville experienced last week. With these two ministers of God at the front and the christian people to hold up their hands, the closing services will promise to be something grand, in the way of "gathering in the sheaves."

The Social Purity Literary League had a revival of interest last Friday night. The program drafted for next meeting may be rightly termed, "an hour among the poets and poetesses." Come out next Friday night, whether you belong to the poetic or prosaic class of people.

Henry Jackson biked it down to Columbiana last week.

Many nice hay rides were participated in by the young people during the protracted meeting at Harpersville last week.

Bourgeois.

Harpersville Echoes.

Cotton picking has begun in good earnest.

Miss Minnie Webb, of Atlanta, is visiting our community.

Ike Green is improving very fast and will be well in a few days.

Mr. Whittle did some powerful preaching last week, which will never be forgotten by a great many.

Deputy Sheriff was in town one day last week.

Miss Green, of Columbiana, who sold books here last spring, was around last week delivering them.

Mr. Whittle gave us one of his famous lectures at the Baptist church Monday night, to about 250 people. I shall not attempt to describe it, only say that it was splendid, but as for our part I had much rather hear him preach.

Rev. Mr. Roberts will preach at the Methodist church Sunday.

The splendid rain which fell here Monday night was thankfully received.

Everybody and his daddie is engaged today (Tuesday) sowing turnips.

Mr. Edrorn—I have been telling you some about politics and other different things which have happened in and around Harpersville. And now with your permission, I will tell of one of the best meetings which closed at the Baptist church Monday. The meeting was conducted by that man of God, Rev. W. A. Whittle, of Birmingham, who did all of the preaching (sixteen sermons), and such preaching we never listened to, nor our community was never blessed with the privilege of hearing. He captured the attention of the entire people at the beginning and held it until the ending. There were scores of conversions. Church members were greatly revived, and 26 additions to the church. Among the number was a man and wife who have a son that is a preacher and has been at the Howard three years. Men who had been at "outs" with each other for a long time, met and with tears in their eyes and love in their hearts agreed to forgive and forget. Mr. Whittle is a great preacher, a great revivalist, and has a warm place in the hearts of all our people, and may he live long, and may a bright light continue to illuminate his pathway and may he wear many crowns of which he so richly deserves. The greatest crowd that ever gathered at the pool was there Monday to witness baptism which was administered by Mr. Whittle, the pastor, Rev. Mr. Giles, having left on Saturday for his church at Eden, where he is holding a meeting this week. The congregations at night were estimated at between five and six hundred, and on several occasions there was over a hundred people who offered themselves for prayer. Better attention nor better order never prevailed anywhere.

A Valuable Prescription.

Editor Morrison, of Worthington, Ind., "Sun," writes: You have a valuable prescription in Electric Bitters, and I can cheerfully recommend it for Constipation and Sick Headache, and as a general system tonic it has no equal." Mrs. Annie Steble, 2525 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, was all run down, could not eat or digest food, had a backache which never left her and felt tired and weary, but six bottles of Electric Bitters restored her health and renewed her strength. Prices 50 cents and $1.00. Get a bottle at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

THE CONSCIENCE FUND.

Penitents Square Their Honesty to the Government.

Washington Special to Chattanooga Times.

It was in 1867 that the books of the treasury were opened with an account which was labeled, "The Conscience Fund." Francis E. Spinner, then treasurer of the United States, received during his regime, the sum of $6,000 in bonds, accompanied by a note stating that the amount was due to the government, having been improperly retained by the sender some years before, and that a troublesome conscience caused the restitution of the money. There was no fund into which the money could be turned, and so an account was opened, and has remained open until the present day, when, as the fact becomes more generally known, the contributions are increasing in proportion, until now many thousands of dollars are received annually by the treasury department in this way. Prior to this year amounts varying from $5,000 to $8,000 had been received, but the largest amount was sent several months ago. This consisted in a bill of exchange for £2,030, or nearly $15,000, drawn on a New York bank in favor of the secretary of the treasury by the Rev. Mr. Barff, vicar of the church, of St. Giles, Cripplegate, London. The Rev. Mr. Barff, is not, however, the person whose conscience had been afflicted, for he stated in his note to the secretary of the treasury that he had been asked by a gentleman who would not reveal his identity, to forward the money to the United States.

There are many ways in which these conscience-stricken subjects of Uncle Sam return money to the treasury department, and not a few of the letters sent form most curious and interesting reading. In many cases the sums are enclosed in envelopes with nothing on the outside but the postmark of the town from which they were sent to reveal the whereabouts of the sender, most of them labeled simply, "Conscience Fund, Treasury Department, Washington." The envelopes frequently contain nothing else but the money in the form of notes and perhaps a piece of paper attached to them on which is roughly scrawled, sometimes in pencil in a disguised hand, "Conscience," "A Penitent," or "Money wrongfully taken." Many of the notes received at the treasury department would seem to indicate that the penitent is under the influence of some strong emotion, such as the effects of the confessional or the possibility of near approaching death, and indeed some of the notes have stated that such was the case. More recently, however, the money is returned to the government by people who, having been in doubt for some years as to the honesty of some past action, take this means of obeying the promptings of their better natures. The bulk of the letters are, of course, for small amounts, many of them so small and the cause of the sending so apparently needless that they indicate more than ordinarily sensitive natures. The people at the treasury department, however, by giving the amounts received occasional publication in the larger newspapers, are given publicity to the conditions of such an account at the department, and the result is that many consciences are having loads of various proportions lifted from them to the great good and benefit of the treasury department. The amounts of these receipts are, of course, small, but Francis E. Skinner, who started the "Conscience Fund," once said that if all the big rascals had followed the example of the smaller ones who have contributed to the "Conscience Fund," the national debt could easily have been lifted long ago. Unfortunately, Treasurer Spinner's statement has had no chance of verification at the treasury department, for the big rascals are not the ones to pass sleepless nights over their misdoings unless there is a chance of the discovery of their crimes.

The people in charge of the correspondence at the treasury department think that the mode in which the recent large $15,000 contribution was sent is the most satisfactory one. In the cases of many of the persons who have sent to the treasury department envelopes containing money and no clue whatever to their identity, there would be no possible chance of identification should their previous misdoing be discovered and the fact of restitution be brought forward by them as a mitigating circumstance, or a recommendation to clemency should they be convicted. As it is, the government endeavors in some way to acknowledge the receipt of these sums of money by publication in a newspaper in the city or county printed on the postmark. This cannot, however, always be done, and more frequently than not the sender of the money has no knowledge that the sum of money forwarded has reached the destination for which it was intended. In the case of the $15,000 recently received, should the unknown person who confided the money to the Rev. Mr. Barff be apprehended, he would be able to prove by identification by that gentleman that he had returned the money to the government and would, therefore, probably not suffer so severe a penalty as if he had disregarded the promptings of his better self. Small sums are now frequently received in this way, many of them from Catholic priests, whose penitents have made confession and desired to make restitution, the one being useless without the other. Several months ago a Boston priest wrote to the treasury department stating that one of his parishioners had wronged the government of the sum of $50 some years ago, and that now, on the point of death, he could not die at peace with the world without sending the money. The money was sent to the treasury department with compound interest at the rate of 8 per cent per annum. The priest, however, did not reveal the name of the penitent, signing merely his own name at the bottom of the epistle.

The largest contribution received during last year was a note for $465, drawn in Montreal on a bank in New York. The outside of the envelope bore the name of the secretary of the treasury in very good handwriting. Inside a name was signed, without doubt a fictitious one. Last year two notes, one for $40 and the other for $50 were received from the same person. The only other paper in the envelope was a slip bearing the fictitious name and the words: "The enclosed belongs to the United States." The smallest remittance ever received was one cent. This was sent by a person who called himself "Beggar Jimmy." Here is rather an amusing letter which accompanied a five-cent piece the other day:

"Sir—A clear conscience softens the hardest bed, a proverb says, and as I am a poor government clerk my bed is very hard and needs much softening, so I herewith return money which I cannot conscientiously keep, having loafed considerably the other day.

Yours, respectfully,

C. H. M.

Here is another one of a similar character, which was received several years after the conscience account was opened:

"Sir: The Enclosed Dilapidated 10 cent is from a Conscience Stricken Soldier who received just that money Bounty than he ought to in 1862, and as the last act Passed by our Noble and Generous Congress gives an extra 100 Dollars why he is afraid he will get too much under the last act you will oblige him very much by investing the Enclosed 10 cents Fractional Currency in the Great National Soldier's Gift-Concert and Draw a Brick House (if you can) and give it to the Penians. Yours truly, Ho Bo."

The communications of not a few of the correspondents of the treasury department, if nothing else, indicate highly sensitive natures and a delicate appreciation of right and wrong. A little girl sent the following to the President of the United States: "To His Majesty, President Cleveland: "Dear President—I am in a dreadful state of mind and I thought I would write and tell you all. About two years ago, as near as I can remember it was two years, I used two postage stamps that had been used before on letters, perhaps more than two stamps, but can only remember of doing it twice. I did not realize what I had done until lately. My mind is constantly turned on that subject, and I think of it night and day. Now, dear President, will you please forgive me, and I promise you I will never do it again. Enclosed find cost of three stamps and please forgive me, for I was then but 13 years old, for I am heartily sorry for what I have done.

"From One of Your Subjects:"

A dime was sent into the fund the other day with a long letter, unsigned which stated that the penitent had, when a boy, received a letter upon which the 3-cent postage stamp escaped the canceller. He had removed the uncanceled stamp and used it, thus cheating the government out of 3 cents. This crime had been committed twenty years before, but the person wrote that it had never ceased troubling him. Ten cents was enclosed to pay the compound interest on 3 cents, which he imagined would amount to about 7 cents.

Whether the following letter would indicate a sensitive nature or not could better be answered by the hundreds of officers employed in the army, navy and civil life by the government whose offices carry with them certain perquisites:

"Boston, Feb. 15, 1866.—Sir:—Enclosed is a check for $190. I will briefly explain why it is there. I have been in the United States service and a part of the time with rank which entitled me to two servants. I drew pay for two, but actually had but one. It was the common practice of officers to do this and the paymasters were well aware of it. But, though I do not think it exactly a wrong to the government, it is yet a wrong, and I have always regretted doing it. I entered the army poor and sick—too poor, in fact, to get along well without a clear conscience.

"But it is right for the government to hold up such a premium to her officers to evasion of the exact truth? Ask tens of thousands who have done as I did, this question. Very respectfully,

"JOHN L. MARKHAM."

"P. S.—The above is estimated for seven months, with interest at 7-10. I hardly need say that the name is assumed."

There follows another of the same character:

"To the Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

"I transmit herewith $91.30, money that my conscience tells me I cannot keep—commutation money for a servant that I exacted when I was not entitled to it and not having a servant employed. I was a quartermaster, captain and A. Q. M., and having 'contrabands' employed in the department, I used one as my servant also, which was wrong. I sent the money, with interest at 7-10 per cent. Also commutation for a servant for twenty days while I was not on duty and had no servant employed.

Respectfully,

"Amount, $91.30."

"These letters are believed to have been inspired by a genuine sense of wrong, but the department is in receipt of a great number of communications enclosing very small amounts, which, from their general character, lead to a belief that they are the products of disordered and feeble minds, who imagine that they are under obligations to the government or have trumped up some fancied grievance or wrong-doing for which they take this manner of atoning. They are the reverse of the crank so familiar to the people of Washington, who has an imaginary claim on a fancied grievance.

No small amount of money is received annually from smugglers. In fact, it is believed that much money has been received from ladies and gentlemen who have succeeded, after returning from foreign countries, in passing through the custom house various prohibited articles in their baggage. Here is a letter from a smuggler at Hartford, Conn., who enclosed the sum of $40:

"Dear Sir:—Though I disapprove as heartily as you of the recent tariff laws, I think it the duty of every honest man to declare fully the duty of articles subject to the same, as he can only avoid doing so by perjuring himself. I did so when I returned from Europe, with the exception of a few trifles, which, if examined, would have involved putting about the contents of my trunk to the injury of my property, but with the intention of sending the full duty thereon to you."

Continuing, the writer hopes that the secretary will have the present laws altered, and winds up by saying: "I hope this loss on account of economic ignorance which they display than because of the terrible demoralization which they have powerfully aided to bring about.

Very respectfully,

"A. B. C."

"Where am I?" he asked, freely, as he opened his eyes.

"Safe on shore," replied one of the rescuers.

"On which side of the river?"

"The Iowa side."

For a moment the news seemed to overcome him, and he turned sorrowfully toward the river.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend his money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to Dishonored Drafts.

When the stomach dishonors the drafts made upon it by the rest of the system, it is necessary because its fund of strength is very low. Toned with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, one soon begins to pay out vigor in the shape of pure, rich blood, containing the elements of muscle, bone and brain. As a sequence of the new vigor afforded the stomach, the bowels perform their functions regularly, and the liver works like clock work. Malaria has no effect upon a system thus reinforced.

SQUIRE RUFUS SANDERS.

Some "Great Gobs" of Good Sense and Philosophy.

Sorry Crops and Hard Times—Three Funerals, But "Nary One" from Starvation—Angels as Wives and Saints as Husbands.

One day last week my friend and fellow servant Andy Lucas—which you will understand there is a man that will travel all the gaits and stand hitched—went on a horse-swapping trip down in the Flat Woods.

And then the next time I saw Andy he was on his return back home dismounted and afoot and totin of his saddle. In a general off-hand way Andy gave it out to me that he had sold his horse and come out thirty dollars ahead of the hounds.

But Andy's mouth ain't anybody's prayer book, and my private notion is that he struck a snag down there and got his socks swapped off of him. I will go out amongst the boys in a few days and see what I can pick up.

"Powerful Seldom Times."
"Don't you forget it we have been havin' some powerful seldom times down in the old settlement this summer, Rufus," says Aunt Nancy Newton to me after dinner when she got her pipe loaded and fired and runnin on full time.

"The crops are mighty spotted and sorry for a common thing, and money is skinner as hen teeth. But yet I don't reckon the times are so scandalous and outrageous hard as you hear some people makin out that they are.

"Just to set around and hear folks talk you mought think the whole discovered country was tremblin and totterin on the ragged edges of starvation and ruination. I have been stirrin about and visitin aroun considerable and keepin up with things as best I could, and to the best of my ability and belief the country is safe for a l-e-e-tle while longer anyhow.

We have had about the usual run of sickness in the settlement, but as yet I ain't heard tell of anybody that got down for the pure want of somethin to eat and wear. I did hear that one of the Tanner boys had to go to bed one day last week whilst his wife washed out his breeches, but he was up and about the next day as healthy and happy as ever.

"But we nint had but only three funerals in the settlement this summer—which you recollect we had four by this time last year—and so far as I know nary one of the three didn't die from pure hard times and natural starvation. Old man Seth Wallace died along in the first days of July, which the same it is a blessed pity he didn't go dead 20 years before he was ever borned into this world.

He was too farnal rotten mean and stingy to live in God's country and amongst the children of nature. He had a big chance of money loan out in the settlement on high intrust, and when the seasons all hit wrong and the crops put in to fail, and provisions went up whilst cotton went down, and the general appearments of things got blue and squally all around, the pore old thing took sick and went to bed. And then the more he thought about the hard times and sorry crops and that mighty percentum on his money the sicker he got till finally at last one day he keeled over and pegged out and went on—well, of course it aint for me to say for certain which way he went and I would some rather not spend my personal opinions on that pint. But at the same time it aint much probable to my mind that Seth Wallace had ever pestered old Saint Peter like he did the good people in the Panther Creek settlement.

"Little Sim Giddins lost his wife about the last of June, which the same he didn't deserve no better and she died with the slow fever. Now if it had been left with Sim Giddins I reckon maybe there would of been one death in the settlement from starvation, cause he is too lazy and triflin to make a livin for one, let alone two. But his wife she was a Simpkins and a good peart woman, though I always thought she must of been in a powerful good notion to marry when she took and tied herself up with little Sim Giddins. As it was, howsoever, she never suffered a day nor a minnit for somethin to eat and wear and that which was nice.

What she couldn't rustle up for herself, with her butter and her eggs and a little extrly sewin, her own folks put it down there for her, and whilst she was sick the neighbors chipped in together and waited on her and done for her the same as if she had been a member of every family in the settlement. Then after she died and was put away decent and proper her old daddy and brothers got right in behind Sim Giddins and het the ground so hot and made the track so heavy for him till he had to pack his wallet and move his washin off to some fureen country. I reckon by this time he has either joined the chain gang or put up at the pore house.

"And then one of the Rutherforders I forgot which one it was now—lost a baby, and it had the measles, though from all I could see and hear I have my doubts as to whether it died with the measles. I ruther think it was doctored to death. But anyhow it didn't die from hard times and natural starvation. It had all the milk it would take, not to mention the dead oodles of medicine which they stuffed it with. No, they ain't dyin up with starvation as yet down in the old settlement, Rufus, though you mought think so jest to ride through there and hear people talk.

"Angels and Babies."
"Talkin about hard times and skceer money and starvation, Rufus—it is a thousand wonders to me that some people don't starve to death." Aunt Nancy went on, after scratchin a match on the seat of her chair and strikin a fresh light. "I have been lookin and listenin all the summer to hear some stationin news from Mister and Miss William Lunkins. Rufus? Well, he married Sarah Ann Singleton somethin better than three year ago. Now for common I don't go around meddin and mixin myself up with every little love mess and weddin match in the settlement, but tha' was one weddin match which I tried my level best to oust up and break off. I had knew the Lunkinses and the Singletons all my life, and I knowed well and good that William and Sarah Ann didn't have no business hookin themselves up together in the double harness for life. For why? Well, they was both jest naturally too good to go and get married. She was too good for him, and he was likewise also too good for her. She was too good to do anything in particular but wear white dresses and pick flowers and read book novels and look soft and sweet and love-sick, as it were, whilst as for William, he was born too good. He was a good baby, and then a good boy, and as he grewed older and bigger he got better and better till, when he come up to be a man, bless gracious, he was so over-lust in good till he was good for nothin'.

"When William took to rounn up regular and frequent at the Singleton place, and it looked out that a weddin match mought soon come to pass in the settlement, I picked my chances and tried to talk him out of it. But then when he went on to tell me that Sarah Ann was the apple of his heart and an angel on the earth I blowed off the dogs and quit the drive, though not till after I had give out my plain private opinions in the case without been mealy mouth with him.

"You are growin how and call yourself a man, William, and if you are bound to marry jest pitch in and go it, boots," says I. "But remember what your Aunt Nancy told you, William. I know a few things concernin this world and the people that live in it, and after you git married you will mought soon find out that your angel must eat victuals and wear clothes. Angels, that, William, some of these things, particular them that live in the flesh and wear dresses instid of wings—they have babies sometimes, and as the family grows the store account will grow with it. You are poor and she is poor, and about the next thing anybody knows you will have to go to the field, whilst your angel goes to the cook pot and then to the wash tub. Love is a good thing no doubts in its place, and everybody ought to be as good as they know how, but with poor folks and a growin family it takes and a whole passle of 'em to run expenses and make both ends meet. I can see now the way your head is sot, William, but in the main time I am bound to tell you the truth as my old eyes see it. When a poor man takes a notion to git married he don't need no angel for a wife. He needs a rale smart, stirrin, peart-motioned, healthy woman—that's what he needs. It will be time enough for you to mate yourself off with an angel when you reach that other and better country, where they don't have to eat victuals and wear clothes and work."

"Well, jest as I loved, what I said to William about Sarah Ann went in on one side of his head and come out on the other, and what other people told Sarah Ann about William went in and come out the same way. And so consequently it want very long before there was a second-class weddin in the settlement. They never had nothin to start with and they aint got nothin yet exceptin a few odd weddin clothes and a promise of children. They have been livin aroun and about from pillow to post and from hand to mouth, so to say. This year they are livin on a pore little old ore out farm over on the other side of the creek, and William calls himself runnin of a farm, but he ain't. He did make out to pitch a little crop, and, with some help from his angel, he did manage to work it over one time, and since then the pore little old farm has been runnin of itself. William has always been a mighty good man, everybody says, but it does look to me like if I was a man and had took and went and married myself off with an angel I wouldn't then turn around and make her work in the field. I don't think angels have got any business cookin and washin and tendin children, and it seems to me like they would look particular odd and curious like out in the hot sun with a fly bonnet on, chop-coin cotton. Now does your general opinion run along that line, Rufus?"

"They run right plum square with yours, Aunt Nancy," says I, and the good old soul went on in this way. "You know Nancy Newton, you have knowed her now high onto fifty years—and you know full well she never did give herself any tremendous big sight of worrimint about yokin up with a man. And yet, Rufus, you never heard me say I wouldn't marry any livin man that the sun shines on, and you never will. I never have so much as made out like I wouldn't git married if I got a good chance. I ain't no angel, as yet. I am nothin but a woman—jest a plain old female woman without any fly-wheels or fancy trimmings—and there aint no tellin what mought of took place before now if the right man and put in his credentials in the right way. But let me tell you something, Rufus Sanders. As I have said before, I aint no angel, but, even in my old days, if I was to take up a fool notion to git married I wouldn't want to marry no saint like William Lunkins. I hope to dwell in peace and unity with the saints sometime and somewhere in the future hereafter, but so long as I live in the flesh and remain over in this vain and fleetin world here below, the common run of people are good enough company for me. And if I must give me a man—give me a man. Plain, everyday men may not be as good as saints, but I ruther think they make better husbands and fathers for plain, everyday women and children.

"Too Good to Kill Grass."
"Don't you go and put it out now that your Aunt Nancy don't like good men, Rufus, cause she does," says the old lady, as she knockered the ashes out of her pipe on mother's new fire screen. "But at the same time I do like a regular, healthy, human man, and I don't like a good, eny good for nothin saint like William Lunkins, and I don't care a copper who knows it. Now, Sarah Ann Singleton allowed she wouldn't marry nothin but a piupert and upright man—one that was clean above doin anything that was wrong. And so far as I know, she got what she was lookin for when she took William. I have never yet heard tell of him doin anything wrong. He is too mortal lazy and triflin for that. He is so kind and gentle and tender-hearted and got till he won't even kill grass when the weather gets rale hot. I reckon he is still callin Sarah Ann his angel, whilst in the main-time the meat box and the meal barrel stand empty and the little children go hungry and dirty, but you know that wouldn't suit my style. If I had a husband—and for all we know I may have one some of these days, the Lord will—and he was to come home in a callin me angel and foolin off his time whilst the grass run away with the crops and the porehouse loomed up in the near distance, I would spit on him—declare to gracious I would. I would a heap right ruther he would call me jest plain Nancy, and then go on about his business and keep up with the store account. It maybe mought not sound exactly right for me to say so, but as I'm a woman I would ruther have a man that would do wrong sometimes than to have one that wouldn't do nothin.

"I know it ain't none of my business, but as I started out to say, if it comes to pass that, you mought hear of anybody dyin from pure hard times and natural starvation in the Panther Creek settlement in these hard times you can jest go ahead and put on mourin for Mister and Miss William Lunkins. There ain't so very much danger of men and women starvin, but when crops are short and money is skceer and times are hard there ain't no tellin what will happen to the saints and angels in this country."

May the God of the orphan and the widow bless these plain old flint-and-steel women, which the same my Aunt Nancy Newton is one of whom.

QUEER MANIA OF A SICILIAN.

Kept a Regiment of Sculptors at Work on Grotesque Statues.

The Sicilian prince of Valguarnera at the beginning of this century was a monomaniac of a rare description. He succeeded to one of the largest fortunes in Europe, his habits were studious and economical, he had no children; but, in spite of these advantages for saving money, he contrived to ruin himself.

The prince had a fancy for grotesque statues, with which he adorned the stately mansion of his forefathers. Many descriptions of the place are extant, for it was renowned through Europe in its day. Brydone visited it and he has left us a pleasant picture. Approaching by a noble avenue, one found the palace encircled by an "army" of monsters. "The absurdity of the wretched imagination which created them is not less astonishing than their wonderful fertility," says Brydone.

"Some were a compound of five or six animals which have no resemblance in nature. In one instance the head of a lion was set upon the neck of a goose, with the body of a lizard, the eye of a goat and the tail of a fox. Upon the back of this object stood another with five or six heads and a grove of horns. There is no kind of a horn in the world that he has not collected, and his pleasure is to see them all flourishing on the same skull."

Of such horrors there were 600 in the avenue and the courtyard alone when Brydone saw the collection, and the prince maintained a regime of sculptors who were rewarded proportionately to their success in designing new and unparalleled combinations. The effect upon a superstitious peasantry may be imagined. So serious was the agitation that the government of Sicily threatened to demolish the wondrous array several times, but a prince of Valguarnera was not to be offended in those days without the gravest cause.

The inside of the house was eccentric in another fashion. Here the madman diverted himself with columns and arches and pyramids of cups and saucers, teapots and the like, cemented together. One column, for instance, started from a great porcelain vase of shape familiar in bedrooms, but not elsewhere; the shaft was teapots, with the spouts protruding, graduated in size up to a capital of flowerpots. The openings of the chimney pieces were encrusted in this manner, the chimney pieces were loaded up to the ceiling, and the magnificent rooms of the palace were divided by fantastic arches of the same construction. China was rare and fine in Sicily at that day, and most of the pieces thus treated had great value. The prince's bedroom was a chamber of supreme horrors. Reptiles awful beyond conception had their home there, intermixed with pleasing busts and statues which if turned, showed a skeleton or a hideous representation of decrepitude. We have never observed an illusion to these things in a modern work of travel. Perhaps the government destroyed them at the prince's death, beggared by his mania.—London Standard.

He Wanted a Change.
A prominent citizen of Dallas said to his wife the other day: "I believe I'll run down to Galveston for a change."

"You need a change badly, don't you?" she asked, anxiously.

"Yes, my love."

"Then take me with you for a change. You've left me behind you six seasons in succession."—Texas Sifter.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

—It is said by philologists that there are 13 original European languages, the Greek, Latin, German, Slavonic, Welsh, Biscayan, Irish, Albanian, Tartarian, Illyrian, Jazygian, Chaucian and Finnic.

—Cocoa butter, which has hitherto been on the free list in England, has been made subject to the same duty as cocoa or chocolate, as it is imported in quantities for the manufacture of chocolate.

—A miner in the Dolcouth mine at Camborne, Cornwall, recently fell 120 feet down a shaft without hurting himself. The explanation offered is that there was a strong current of air rushing up the shaft at the time.

—A German cable company, with a capital of $890,000, has been formed under the name of the Deutsche Seefahrtsgesellschaft to lay a cable between Germany and Spain, which ultimately will be continued to the United States.

—Inside a bust of Victor Hugo, which is hollow, the leader of the anarchists of Prague imported a large quantity of anarchist writings for circulation in the country. The bust has been seized by the authorities, and the anarchist has been arrested.

—A Viennese shoemaker joined a party of English tourists visiting the steeple of St. Stephen's cathedral lately. When he reached the platform from which Count Starkerberg watched the Turks during the siege of 1683, he jumped off, landing on his neck on the roof below.

—A snuff box made for Linnaeus, the botanist, in Japan, of gold lacquered in several colors, has just been presented to the Natural History museum of Paris. It was made at the order of Linnaeus' pupil, Thunberg, but did not reach Stoen till a year after Linnaeus' death, when it went to his son.

—A queer strike is threatened in England. The government inspectors of factories, being dissatisfied with the way they are treated, have formulated their complaints and declare that unless they are heeded "a public protest will be made and a cessation of their duties will follow." They complain of too little salary and too hard work, of not having power enough over the factory employees, of having their reports to the chief inspectors ignored and not published as they are sent in.

ETIQUETTE IN SPAIN.

There the People Are Always Punctiliously Polite.

Spaniards have some rules of etiquette that would prove surprising to the average easy-going American. Take, for instance, the rules governing visits. When the first call is made by a lady she is expected to arrive in a carriage, that being considered a mark of high respect. Should the person called upon be absent from home, the visitor is expected to leave her card with one end turned over, and in one corner is to be written the initials E. P., meaning en persona, or in person. Upon ringing the bell the visitor is usually greeted by an unseen person with the words, "Quien es?" or "Who's there?" to which should be replied "Gente de paz," or persons of peace. Entering, the visitor is conducted to the best room in the house, led to a sofa and placed to the right of the hostess. On rising to take leave the proper form is to exclaim, in the case of a lady: "Sonora, I place myself at your feet." She will answer in a similarly figurative way by saying: "I kiss your hand; may you depart with God and continue well." Feminine visitors are saluted with a kiss, both upon their arrival and departure. It is considered an unpardonable breach of good manners for a gentleman to offer to shake hands with a Spanish lady. Another decidedly objectionable proceeding, in Spanish eyes, is to offer a lady one's arm when walking with her. Should a Spanish gentleman so far forget himself as to offer his arm to his wife he would be looked upon as lamentably ignorant of the laws of etiquette governing good society in the land of his birth.

Another noticeable custom is that when walking with a Spaniard, in Spain, it is considered the height of ill-manners to walk on the inside. This is the place of honor and should always be given to the native. When a well-bred Spaniard meets a lady on the street he always passes to the outside, thus making way for her; but with men this rule is not observed; whoever has the wall on his right hand in the narrow streets is entitled to keep it.

These are some of the most noted peculiarities of the rigorous rules governing Spaniards of polite breeding; they are punctilious almost to the point of absurdity in most things, but their politeness is of a kind that wears well.—Utica Observer.

Power of the Arctic Sun.

Sunburn is quite fashionable at summer resorts, but to hear of suffering from heat in the arctic regions seems almost incredible. Last winter, Glider related the experience of his party from this cause while one summer in King William's land, and declares that probably nowhere on earth is the traveler more annoyed by acute sunburn than in the frigid zone. The heat of ordinary exercise compels him to throw back the hood of his fur coat, and by thus exposing his head, not only his entire face becomes blistered, but—especially if he is fashionable enough to wear his hair thin on the top of his head—his entire scalp is affected as severely as if by a bucket of scalding water had been poured upon him. At a later period Lieut. Schwatka's entire party, while upon a sledge journey from Marble Island to Camp Daly, were so severely burned that not only their faces, but their entire heads were swollen to nearly twice their natural size. And a fine looking party they were! Some had faces so swollen that their eyes were completely closed on awakening from sleep. When one was fortunate enough to be able to see the others he could not refrain from laughing.—St. Louis Republic.

Objected.

The little boy began: "Onery, twoery, ickery Ann; Fillason, fillison, Nicholas Jan; queezy quavy, English navy—"

"Here!" shouted his father, "don't let me hear you sayin' that any more!"

"What's the matter with it, paw?"

"Everything's the matter with it. Here I am paying my taxes for battleships and cruisers and things and you haven't the respect for your father and your country to say 'Yankee navy'!"

I got half a notion to tan your jacket just to make you remember.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

W. H. Falkner, of Sterrett, a democrat of the old school, spent Tuesday here transacting business.

John Upshaw and wife, of Talladega Springs, visited A. D. Wortham's family Monday and Tuesday.

Dr. E. B. Teague is with us again after a month's absence, and is stopping with his friend W. G. Parker.

Capt. W. H. Bell and John Mosley returned to their homes in Shelby Friday from a visit to South Alabama.

John B. Green moved Monday into A. D. Wortham's residence. Both families will dwell under the same roof.

FOR SALE.—A fine farm of 120 acres. Will sell either 40 or 80 or both, to suit buyer. Terms easy. Apply for full particulars to editor of Chronicle.

E. F. Vest moved his family here Monday from Montevallo, and is occupying the county dwelling at the jail.

Miss Susie McGee, who has been here about two weeks with relatives, left yesterday for her home in Staunton.

The families of Hons. W. B. Browne and D. R. McMillan returned last week from Shelby Springs, where they remained about two weeks.

A. B. Milner, who recently entered the railway postal service, was in town Sunday. He is a bright young man and has a promising future.

We are glad to learn that J. G. Parker, who has been seriously ill for two weeks, is decidedly better, and the chances are good for his early recovery.

T. L. Seale, who has been deputy sheriff and jailer for the past four years, moved his family Monday into the Jones residence lately occupied by R. E. McLean.

The Shelby Baptist Association began its annual session yesterday with Kingdom Baptist church, five miles east of this place. Rev. P. M. Woods is moderator, and Rev. C. W. O'Hara, secretary.

A party was given Tuesday evening to the young people by Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Nelson, in honor of Miss Ethel McMath, a former resident of our town, but now of Montevallo. She is a cultured and charming young lady.

Tuesday night between 12 and 1 o'clock John Crawley, a farmer, who lives four and a half miles east of this place, was suddenly awakened from slumber to find his dwelling on fire. His family barely had time to escape with their lives. The dwelling and contents were destroyed, and are a total loss as there was no insurance. He certainly deserves the aid and sympathy of his neighbors.

Our neighboring towns furnished the following representatives last evening at the wedding: John Millstead and wife, E. DuTannus and Miss Susie Self, Walter McGowan and Miss Lula Densler, from Wilsonville. Sam Harrell, Robert Oliver, Robert Glenn, E. Christian and Miss Mary Riddle, from Shelby.

Z. H. Clardy & Son are rapidly pushing the two buildings in which they are interested to completion. The brick will be ready for occupancy by the first of next week. The residence of J. G. Parker will be completed by the end of next week. This is rapid work, but it is nevertheless being nicely done.

James R. White, the affable proprietor of the White House, is preparing to enlarge his already commodious hostelry. He has purchased the new addition to the Roper House and has let the contract to W. F. Stockdale, of Talladega, to roll the building and place it in position on the south side of the present building, and parallel with it, facing west. The building will begin to move early next week.

Last Thursday, early in the night, two or three men rode up to the gate of Alex McGinnis, a worthy negro who lives on the farm of W. W. Wallace, near Wilsonville, and called to Alex to come out. He did so, and in a few minutes went back into the house, got his hat and coat, and told his family he would be gone for a short time. Since then he has never turned up. Foul play is suspected, but for what motive no one can guess, as Alex was an honest, hard-working man, and prompt to discharge all his obligations. A vigorous search has been made for him, but so far without success. There is considerable excitement among the negroes over his strange disappearance.

DYKE-MILLSTEAD.

A Popular Young Couple Happily Married.

Last evening was an ideal one. The cloudless sky and delightfully pleasant breeze from the Gulf were inspiring. An important event that was to shape and mould the lives of two of our young people was to occur. Most of yesterday was spent by quite a number in decorating and trimming the Methodist church with flowers, evergreens, etc., in order that it might present a pleasing appearance to the large crowd whom they knew would assemble there to witness the ceremony.

C. E. Greck and H. C. DuBose, ushers, were at their posts early, to assist in seating the audience. And their task was no small one, for it puzzled them to find seats for all.

Not long did the eager throng have to wait after 8 o'clock, the appointed hour. Miss Essie Mason presided at the organ, and soon an inspiring wedding march announced the approach of the couple whose lives were to be blended into one. Instantly all eyes were turned toward the door.

The first to enter were the attendants, George Mason and Miss Emma Wilson, who marched down the right aisle; John Milner and Miss Nellie Parker to the left. Then the bride upon the arm of H. C. DuBose and groom steadied by the strong arm of C. E. Greck followed in the order given. Slowly, keeping graceful step to the inspiring march the contracting parties were escorted in front of the altar and took position under an artistically arranged and beautiful bell of flowers, hanging from the arch, the attendants and ushers standing on either side.

The bride was a picture of beauty, loveliness and purity, dressed in white henrietta, trimmed with white silk, lace and ribbon, veil of white silk tulle, and a wreath of orange blossoms. The groom looked stylish and the perfection of neatness in full dress suit.

Miss Nellie Parker was faultlessly attired in white henrietta, trimmed in satin and lace, white satin sash and flowers, and looked pretty, O my!

Miss Emma Wilson looked winsome and attractive in white organdie, trimmed in white satin ribbon, with flowers.

The male attendants and ushers were in full dress, and looked their best, of course.

Rev. T. M. Wilson, pastor in charge, in a brief but impressive ceremony joined them in holy wedlock, after which they marched out and were driven to the home of James Evans, where they and a large number of friends were given a reception. Congratulations were showered freely upon the happy couple, and they were not said as a mere matter of form, either, for we doubt if there are two more popular young people in town than they. Both are possessed of sterling characters and are liked by every one.

The Chronicle is only too glad to add its mite, and wishes them long lives of unalloyed happiness. May their cares be few and their joys reach their fondest anticipation.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Miss Wagner, of Columbiana, was visiting many friends in town Sunday.

Ed Parker and his sister, Miss Leila, were among the pleasant visitors in town Sunday.

Rev. Will O'Hara came up Saturday to relieve Rev. Wood in the protracted meeting. He is a consecrated young man, and is preaching good sound doctrine of salvation, as all can testify who have heard him.

Mr. Lee, the life insurance partner of Mr. Terry, is registered at the hotel for a— for a— for a— for I don't know how long.

Pink Tatum, the hustling Georgia drummer, is spending a few days with his cousin, Mrs. Densler.

Will Smith spent a pleasant hour with Columbiana "friends" Sunday afternoon, returning on his wheel.

Miss Josie Skaggs is visiting Col. Smith and family.

The Wilsonville Institute opens next Monday. The school is catalogued to open September 2nd, but on account of the protracted services, it was deemed right and proper to wait until September 7th.

CYCLE CRAZE.

Wilsonville is in a roar.
For wheels both great and small
They're to us a grander sport
Than all the games of ball.

The reason why I will say
The girls are riding wheels,
This is why we're on a craze
To join the cycling field.

O, dear, the fun it was to us
To teach them how to ride,
Why 'twas fun I'll not discuss,
You may alone decide.

All our girls should own a wheel
And join our cyclone tour,
And all the boys of Wilsonville
Would then a wheel secure.

O what a thought 'tis to me
To think of a girl so fair
Riding upon the stylish wheel
Thus gliding on the air.

Riding alone is a pleasure,
Gliding by girls is joy.
This I hail as a treasure
In honor to a cycling boy.

Yes I love to see these girls
As on their wheels they glide,
But if they should chance to whirl
Oh how they want to hide.

I have almost watched them fly
As they go wheeling by,
Sleeves thus sailing high and wide
Beneath the earth and sky.

Boys let's work in unison,
And 'ere this season's o'er,
We will have a cycle club
That's never been here before.

BOTRGEIOS.

The money season has arrived at last and I take this means of urging my customers who owe me to come up promptly and settle their accounts in full. I have exercised all the patience I possess and now I must insist vigorously upon a settlement as I need the money. Do not delay longer. All I ask is that you treat me at least with the consideration I have shown you.

THE HORSELESS CARRIAGE.

From the Review of Reviews.
In fact, it is so thoroughly accepted that the horseless carriage has come to stay, and that scores of manufacturers are already engaged in turning out these machines of many and varied types. Their first use will, of course, come in the cities where there are good roads and for such purposes as light expressage. The great value of the horseless carriage, as compared with the old style, is its far greater cheapness. The use of horses in our cities, for instance, is practically forbidden to all, except the very rich. But a team, fed with oil or naphtha, at a cost of a few cents a day, will perhaps eventually place a barouche for afternoon rides in Central Park within the reach of any book-keeper or clerk. When a man earning $2,000 a year in New York city, can maintain an equipage which can trundle him twenty miles from his flat in an hour, a whole new class of citizens will become victims to the tennis, baseball, or golf habit, from which they are now sheltered by the mere inertia of time and space to be overcome. And with each advance in the art of moving rapidly, there will be a corresponding increase in out door sports, and a better opportunity to reach the fields and the woods in the short vacations allowed by the hurrying business struggles of today.

Cave Horsef Away.

"Maude" he said, as the carriage entered the shadowy lane, "Maude, are you sure you— you never had any man's arm around your waist, as mine is?"

"No, George, I never, never did! Why?"

"Oh, nothing," he replied, "only I wondered whether it was instinct or experience that made you take the reins from my hand just as we reached this secluded spot!"

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c and $1.00 per bottle at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

WHERE WIVES ARE BOUGHT.

Countries in Which Marriage is a Matter of Barter.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

There are many countries in which, if a man wishes to be legally married, he has to go out and buy a wife, though the market price of that article varies considerably. In Uganda, you can get what you require for two or three bullocks, or even for six good sewing needles, or, perhaps, a box of pen-sion caps; while inferior wives can be picked up in exchange for a coat, and if one is indifferent to health and beauty, for a pair of shoes. In the Caroline Islands, wives are cheap. A father will let you marry his daughter if you will give him a little fruit or a small present of fish, while in Samon, matrimony runs you into pigs and canoes; and among the Fijians, into wharves and muskets. In Tartary, it is best to marry beneath you (you can do it on a few pounds of butter), because a man who has lordly notions of a marriage with one of the upper ten, must be the owner of horses. The aborigines of Australia manage their marriages upon a most equitable principle. If (A) wishes to marry (B's) sister, he allows him to marry his own; or if (B) happens to be a widow, then his daughter will do just as well. One of the most objectionable forms of gaining a wife is to work for her, a habit practiced among many uncivilized nations, its only advantage being that a man can get a wife "on credit," though his father-in-law takes good care that he serves his time. Among some races, you have to do your work before you get your wife, as Jacob had to serve for Leah and for Rachel. Marriage by exchange and purchase is not customary among uncivilized nations only. In Central America and in Peru a man has to work for his bride.

In China, a present is given by the father of the bridegroom, the amount of which is agreed upon by both families. The Japanese make use of a similar custom, though, in their case, the giving of presents is the most important part of the whole marriage ceremony, for after these have been delivered and formally accepted, then neither of the contracting parties is able to back. Wife purchase appears to have been the basis of Indo-European marriage before the separation of the peoples took place. Manu mentions the Asura form of marriage as one of purchase, and, according to Aristotle, the Greeks were in the habit of buying their brides; for in the Homeric age, a maiden was called by a name which signified "one who brings her parents many oxen."

The old Scandinavians believed that even the gods had paid a price for their wives, and in Germany the expression "to purchase a wife" was in vogue until the end of the middle ages. The old inhabitants of Ireland and Wales were accustomed to buy their wives with gold and silver or land. In Serbia, at the beginning of this century, girls had reached such a price that Black George reduced their value to one ducat.

Among many savage nations the equivalents of a wife are varied and grotesque. Poor Bashkirs purchase their wives with cart loads of wood or hay; the Indian Kisans with two baskets of rice and a rupee; a tribe in California with half a string of dentallium shells; and among the Padams, a rude people of India, the suitor will show his intentions by gifts of field mice and squirrels.

OBSERVATIONS IN MEXICO.

From the Constitution.
Mr. Wendell McLaughlin, of Wichita, Kansas, a life-long republican, has just returned home after a lengthy sojourn in Mexico. His observations in that country, where he had an opportunity to witness the workings of free coinage, have made him a firm believer in bimetalism. Speaking of his trip, Mr. McLaughlin said:

"A good many people from the United States are investing money in Mexico. The number of Americans in Monterey is estimated at 4,000. They have smelters, breweries, and plants for the manufacture of vitrified bricks, and I was told that a good many of these bricks were shipped to the western part of the United States. Some of these plants are run by Americans. They are now arranging to have the streets of that city paved with vitrified brick, and the work will be paid for as it is done. Monterey is a city without a bonded debt.

"Mexico is on a silver basis, and I heard no complaint about it being inconvenient. People who want exchange in this country buy American money at a premium. When I asked them if it would not be better to come to a gold standard, so that they would not have to pay this premium, they laughed at me, saying that if Mexico was not doing anything but trading in American dollars that might be true, but they called my attention to what they were doing in the way of developing their country, and they said that they wanted lots of silver money with which to do it.

"Everybody seems to be employed and there are no tramps in Mexico. No man could tramp over that country and claim that he was willing to work without finding plenty of it. While property in this country seems to be always going down, it is appreciating steadily in Mexico, and that is the reason it is a good place for investments.

"Mexico is becoming Americanized, but I found nobody down there who was in favor of taking the American money system along with the rest. Americans here need not be awake at night fearing that this country will be reduced to the standard of Mexico, for Mexico is all right. If present conditions are maintained in this country we are going to see lots of American people and American money going to Mexico in the next ten years.

TREACHEROUS SHEET UNMASKED.

From the Montgomery Journal.

The Montgomery Morning Republican paper is today the most dangerous foe to the party in the state. It is dangerous because it still, despite its vile attacks upon the democratic national ticket and platform, has access to the homes and counting-rooms of many honest and confiding democrats, who continue to read it because of its past alleged devotion to the cause of true democracy. That it has always been a viper, warmed in the bosom of the democracy of Alabama is not a question now in dispute, but there is yet in many honest men's hearts, a kindly feeling for the paper they have deemed worthy of confidence, and they are daily being poisoned by its cruel fangs. It no longer conceals its work on democracy; it is as bitterly opposing the party as ever did Mosley and Wickersham and Parsons and other leaders in this state during the darkest days of reconstruction.

The Journal simply desires to warn the party against the paper and its insidious work in the interest of McKinleyism in this state. It must be read and recognized as a republican paper, which has no longer any right to speak for the democracy of Alabama, and whatever it says must be accepted merely as the utterances of a traitor and a marplot dangerous only as an unmasked enemy. Ex-Speaker Thomas H. Clark has boldly proclaimed the purpose of the "sound money movement" which the Advertiser is heading. He said: "If to refuse to support the ticket nominated on that platform is to become a bolter, I accept the phrase and acknowledge myself a bolter. I shall go with the sound money movement with the sole purpose to defeat Bryan," and of course to elect McKinley. He well defined the purpose of the Advertiser. Now that its mask is off, and it is seeking McKinley's election in an underhand way, not having the courage to do it directly, honestly and openly, there is no necessity for any one being deceived by its alleged professions of democracy. It is simply "stealing the livery of heaven to serve the devil in."

Honest and loyal democrats everywhere should recognize the Montgomery Morning paper now in its true colors as an open and avowed enemy to its party, to white supremacy and to its people.

"A feller down our way," said the farmer man, "is so dead sure" that Bryan is going to "get there," that he took a hundred silver dollars that he had buried in an old tin can and melted them into a lump of bullion.

"What did he do that for?" asked the city merchant.

"What did he do it for?" Why, so he could make $47 coining them over again."—Indianapolis Journal.

The discovery that sunstroke is not sunstroke but blood poisoning is important only in so far as it leads to prevention or cure. When the victim of the heat lies in his coffin, he is unconcerned as to whether Old Sol tapped him with a trip-hammer or inserted a poisoned bodkin between his ribs. But if the learned pathologists who have identified this fell destroyer will discover how the malady may be cured, they will have conveyed a great service on the public. Of course this discovery is an important step in that direction, for the reason that a full understanding of a disease is an essential prerequisite to a cure. But, having taken the first step, the scientists ought not to relinquish their labor until the work is completed by the discovery of a certain cure.

Baren Rotheild's pet charity is the largest free school in the world. It is of course in the east end of London, and its 3,500 scholars are taken from the poorest class of Russian Jews. One hundred teachers do the instructing; breakfasts are provided each morning, and each child gets a suit of clothes and two pairs of shoes a year. There is a savings bank in connection, where sums up to $50 may be deposited and which pays the young money-makers 10 per cent.

His Honor, (severely)—"How could you, sir, be so mean as to swindle people who put confidence in you?"

Prisoner—"Well, your honor, I'll make it worth something to you if you will tell me how to swindle them as don't."—Tit Bits.

An eastern exchange says: "Bets are being made all through New York State from $10,000 to $20,000 that Bryan will be the 'winning candidate' in the Presidential race."

PALMER AND BUCKNER.

The Ticket Nominated by the Gold Democrats.

Synopsis of the Proceedings of the National Convention of the Gold Democrats at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 3.—The weather to-day is all that could be desired for the holding of the regular Democratic national convention. The hour fixed for the assembling of the convention was noon, but the passage of the noon hour was only marked by the rendering of "Old Hundred" by the band.

The Proceedings.
At 12:30 Senator Palmer, who had taken a seat on the stage as temporary chairman, rose and called the convention to order in a few appropriate words.

Rev. John Hazen White offered the opening prayer.

Representative Outwater, of Ohio, read the call for the convention, which was frequently interrupted by cheers. All reference to sound money was loudly applauded. Terrific applause followed mention of Cleveland's name in reading.

The call of the states being ordered and completed the secretary reported that 41 states had responded.

When the call was completed Senator Palmer remarked:

"The next business in order, as appears from the printed list, is remarks by me. Words are silver; silence is golden. I make no remarks, but call for a report from the national committee."

The report was read by Mr. Brennan, as follows:

"We recommend that until otherwise ordered, the rules of the last democratic national convention, which was held in 1892, shall govern the deliberations of this convention."

We recommend that the resolutions be referred to the appropriate committee without reading.

We recommend the following temporary officers of the convention:

Chairman—Ex-Gov. Roswell Pettibone Flower, of Watertown, N. Y.

Secretary—John D. Wilson, of Indianapolis.

President—Ex-Gov. Roswell Pettibone Flower, of Watertown, N. Y.

The report was adopted, and Senator Palmer designated Gov. Jones of Alabama and Geo. Foster Peabody of Connecticut as the chairmen of the committee on credentials, rules and resolutions, and also vice-presidents. When this was completed the convention took a recess till 4 p. m.

Second Session.
The convention opened at 4:30 with the full attendance of delegates and the galleries packed with spectators, a large proportion of whom were ladies.

The chairman of the committee on credentials, Mr. J. B. Brennan, of Wisconsin, made a report to the effect that there were 824 delegates present, representing 41 states and three territories, and recommending that the present be entitled to cast the full votes of their states and territories. As to the contest with reference to the delegation from Connecticut, the chairman of the committee on the action of the national committee in seating the delegates returned by the state convention be confirmed.

The report was agreed to without question.

Dr. Everett, of Massachusetts, was introduced to fill up the time with a speech until the report on permanent organization should be ready. He addressed the convention as yellow patriots and said Massachusetts had sent her delegation, nearly 60 strong, to aid in repelling the invasion which had arisen against the ancient and venerable republic, the whole country, [Cheers.] "Massachusetts," he continued, "is here against all class divisions. [Cheers.] Massachusetts democracy knows no distinction between classes, between rich and poor, and the man who raises the grain and the man who takes it to market. Massachusetts democracy knows no distinction between the capitalist and the wage earner. Massachusetts democracy knows no distinction between the north and south, between east and west. [Applause.] And, above all, the democracy of our state will not stand any insult against that man who has protected the credit and honor of America. We stand tonight by President Cleveland."

Here the convention rose to a man and there was a scene of great enthusiasm. Delegates cheered and shouted and waved hats, fans, handkerchiefs and flags, and the spectators in the galleries took part in the demonstration.

The report of the committee on permanent organization was presented by the chairman of the committee, James W. Eaton, of New York. He recommended Senator Donelson Caffery, of Louisiana, as permanent chairman, and Mr. J. R. Wilson, of Indiana, for permanent secretary. He also recommended the establishment of a permanent national organization. The report was adopted without a dissenting voice. Senator Caffery was escorted to the chair by a delegation from Pennsylvania, and Mr. Lawler, of Minnesota, addressed the convention, his remarks being delivered with much force and greeted with continued applause.

At the close of Mr. Caffery's speech Mr. John P. Irish, of California, was introduced and made a speech to the convention. Alluding to the democratic convention held in Indianapolis during the war under President Grant, he said, of physical determination, he remarked that they were here to-day under the threat of extermination of that which was dearer to their life. They were here to defend against further attack the public credit, the national honor and the private and personal honesty of the individual citizen. They were here to face a crisis more serious than any crisis that had been faced before. They represented that organization and those principles which, under the leadership of the great President, were in line of the ancient principles of human liberty. [Applause.] They were here to swear by Jackson "By the eternal" that the marrow and strength of the democracy of this country should not be obscured or belittled by populism. [Applause.] He did not care whether it was attempted by the populist convention at Chicago or the populist convention at St. Louis—the two conventions of the year—like to purpose, alike in declaration, alike in the folly of their principles, and in the contemptibility of their vagaries. [Applause.] These were in fact twin conventions of the year—and not "the heavenly twins" either. [Laughter.]

Mr. Irish spoke of Mr. Bryan's stock in trade being a denunciation of trusts, and went on to characterize Mr. Bryan as "the agent, propagandist and commercial traveler of a syndicate greeder than the cornucopia—[Cries of "Good" and cheers:] a syndicate which has gained millions upon millions from the silver mines of the west and of Mexico, a syndicate which stands confessed upon its tongue of its representative now traveling the country touring for custom for the "loud cheers." It is now in the field for the sole and only purpose of advancing the price of its products by making the people believe that it will be an advantage to them." [Applause.]

Mr. Irish's speech was received with enthusiastic demonstrations of applause throughout. As he resumed his seat the band played "Rally Round the Flag," and there was quite an ovation.

The committee on platform not being ready to report, the convention, at 5:50, adjourned until Thursday at 11 a. m.

SECOND DAY.
The Proceedings.

At 11 o'clock, the hour to which the convention yesterday adjourned, there were not 10 delegates present. Senator Palmer, of Illinois, was accorded an ovation on entering.

At 11:40 Chairman Caffery announced that the opening of the convention had been delayed to await the report of the committee on resolutions.

While the convention further waited Mr.

Rev. John Hazen White offered the opening prayer.

Representative Outwater, of Ohio, read the call for the convention, which was frequently interrupted by cheers. All reference to sound money was loudly applauded. Terrific applause followed mention of Cleveland's name in reading.

The call of the states being ordered and completed the secretary reported that 41 states had responded.

When the call was completed Senator Palmer remarked:

"The next business in order, as appears from the printed list, is remarks by me. Words are silver; silence is golden. I make no remarks, but call for a report from the national committee."

The report was read by Mr. Brennan, as follows:

"We recommend that until otherwise ordered, the rules of the last democratic national convention, which was held in 1892, shall govern the deliberations of this convention."

We recommend that the resolutions be referred to the appropriate committee without reading.

We recommend the following temporary officers of the convention:

Chairman—Ex-Gov. Roswell Pettibone Flower, of Watertown, N. Y.

Secretary—John D. Wilson, of Indianapolis.

President—Ex-Gov. Roswell Pettibone Flower, of Watertown, N. Y.

The report was adopted, and Senator Palmer designated Gov. Jones of Alabama and Geo. Foster Peabody of Connecticut as the chairmen of the committee on credentials, rules and resolutions, and also vice-presidents. When this was completed the convention took a recess till 4 p. m.

Second Session.
The convention opened at 4:30 with the full attendance of delegates and the galleries packed with spectators, a large proportion of whom were ladies.

The chairman of the committee on credentials, Mr. J. B. Brennan, of Wisconsin, made a report to the effect that there were 824 delegates present, representing 41 states and three territories, and recommending that the present be entitled to cast the full votes of their states and territories. As to the contest with reference to the delegation from Connecticut, the chairman of the committee on the action of the national committee in seating the delegates returned by the state convention be confirmed.

The report was agreed to without question.

Dr. Everett, of Massachusetts, was introduced to fill up the time with a speech until the report on permanent organization should be ready. He addressed the convention as yellow patriots and said Massachusetts had sent her delegation, nearly 60 strong, to aid in repelling the invasion which had arisen against the ancient and venerable republic, the whole country, [Cheers.] "Massachusetts," he continued, "is here against all class divisions. [Cheers.] Massachusetts democracy knows no distinction between classes, between rich and poor, and the man who raises the grain and the man who takes it to market. Massachusetts democracy knows no distinction between the capitalist and the wage earner. Massachusetts democracy knows no distinction between the north and south, between east and west. [Applause.] And, above all, the democracy of our state will not stand any insult against that man who has protected the credit and honor of America. We stand tonight by President Cleveland."

Here the convention rose to a man and there was a scene of great enthusiasm. Delegates cheered and shouted and waved hats, fans, handkerchiefs and flags, and the spectators in the galleries took part in the demonstration.

The report of the committee on permanent organization was presented by the chairman of the committee, James W. Eaton, of New York. He recommended Senator Donelson Caffery, of Louisiana, as permanent chairman, and Mr. J. R. Wilson, of Indiana, for permanent secretary. He also recommended the establishment of a permanent national organization. The report was adopted without a dissenting voice. Senator Caffery was escorted to the chair by a delegation from Pennsylvania, and Mr. Lawler, of Minnesota, addressed the convention, his remarks being delivered with much force and greeted with continued applause.

At the close of Mr. Caffery's speech Mr. John P. Irish, of California, was introduced and made a speech to the convention. Alluding to the democratic convention held in Indianapolis during the war under President Grant, he said, of physical determination, he remarked that they were here to-day under the threat of extermination of that which was dearer to their life. They were here to defend against further attack the public credit, the national honor and the private and personal honesty of the individual citizen. They were here to face a crisis more serious than any crisis that had been faced before. They represented that organization and those principles which, under the leadership of the great President, were in line of the ancient principles of human liberty. [Applause.] They were here to swear by Jackson "By the eternal" that the marrow and strength of the democracy of this country should not be obscured or belittled by populism. [Applause.] He did not care whether it was attempted by the populist convention at Chicago or the populist convention at St. Louis—the two conventions of the year—like to purpose, alike in declaration, alike in the folly of their principles, and in the contemptibility of their vagaries. [Applause.] These were in fact twin conventions of the year—and not "the heavenly twins" either. [Laughter.]

Mr. Irish spoke of Mr. Bryan's stock in trade being a denunciation of trusts, and went on to characterize Mr. Bryan as "the agent, propagandist and commercial traveler of a syndicate greeder than the cornucopia—[Cries of "Good" and cheers:] a syndicate which has gained millions upon millions from the silver mines of the west and of Mexico, a syndicate which stands confessed upon its tongue of its representative now traveling the country touring for custom for the "loud cheers." It is now in the field for the sole and only purpose of advancing the price of its products by making the people believe that it will be an advantage to them." [Applause.]

Mr. Irish's speech was received with enthusiastic demonstrations of applause throughout. As he resumed his seat the band played "Rally Round the Flag," and there was quite an ovation.

The committee on platform not being ready to report, the convention, at 5:50, adjourned until Thursday at 11 a. m.

The anti-high-hat law is vigorously enforced in New Orleans theaters, to the great delight of every one, the ladies not excepted. If it works so well in theaters, why not in all public gatherings as well?

McKINLEY has come out flat-footed for the gold standard. The bankers refused to put up on him with the international agreement fringe, but since he has come out in a strong appeal for the 200-cent dollar they are expected to unload their chest into the lap of Hanna.

EX-PRESIDENT HARRISON, in a speech in New York lately appeals to the old soldiers to vote like they shut. If they did it would be very ineffective work, if you look into pension lists of the states and national records, for it took six hundred pounds of minnie balls to kill one southern soldier.

THE TIMES is a Presbyterian in belief. It believes that God and the people are on the side of Bryan. It believes that it was foreordained that the brainy young Nebraskan has been selected to free the toiling masses from the bondage that a few millionaires of the East would place them under.—Selma Times.

It is the duty of every man who can do a thing well, who makes a good thing, who sells a good thing, to tell people about it. The people can afford the expense of being told. The maker and dealer can afford to make the investment, which may be necessary to inaugurate a system or method of telling. In other words, any maker of a good thing, and any regular dealer in a line of good things, should consider the investment in advertising in this light. It is simply buying public favor. A business man buys what he wants.

GEN. JOHN M. PALMER, of Illinois, and Gen. Simeon Bolivar Buckner, of Kentucky, are the candidates for president and vice-president of the sound money bolters, who have the gall to call themselves "national democrats." And their ticket stands about the same chance of election as they would of catching fish from their mother's rain barrel. They might catch a few wiggle-wiggles, and the odds are two to one that a majority of them will wiggle wiggle square into the republican party before the November election. There can be but one possible result of this movement, and that is to insure, if in their power, McKinley's election. This is worse than to have voted the republican ticket straight, and it is not half so manly. The Chronicle wants to be distinctly understood as tottally, and immovably opposed to bolters under any and all circumstances. They show commendable zeal, but plagued poor judgment.

WILL the congressional dead-lock be broken tomorrow at Shelby Springs, or will Dallas and Calhoun tie up the convention indefinitely in their desperate effort each to down the other. Gentlemen, allow us to offer a suggestion that, if heeded, will speedily solve the problem, and leave no sores to breed dissension or ill feeling. Dallas county furnished the representative for four years and Calhoun twenty-four. Would it not be the proper thing to let Talladega county have at least a chance at the pie? She offers a good man, a clean man, a true man, an able man, and one who richly deserves the honor he seeks. Then why not unite upon the worthy son of Talladega and no bad results can possibly follow. He is the logical candidate, and is in a position to re-unite the party and carry the district by an old time majority. This is no time to be pig-headed or greedy. Self-interest should be laid aside for the good of the party, and if the delegates take this view of the matter a speedy nomination will result.

Few people realize the extent to which the agricultural products of the country find markets in Europe, every year. More than two-thirds of our exports last year were agricultural products. In the aggregate, these contributions, largely to Europe, from American fields west and south, amounted in value to more than $553,000. Cotton, of which crop two-thirds was sold in Europe, was exported to the value of nearly $205,000,000. The export of provisions, meat, hard, etc., was sold for $133,700,000 nearly, while the breadstuffs sent over the water were appraised at $114,000,000. True it is that this is an era of sharp competition in trade between nations. Russia and India have entered the field for the world's wheat provisioning. Nevertheless a great and growing business is done in the exportation of our products, and the figures above given clearly indicate that there is no class of producers in America who should feel more interest in our exporting trade with Europe than that including the planter and agriculturalist.

VERY PLEASANT—NIT.

Something of the Woes of Ye Poor Newspaper Man.

Editing a newspaper is a pleasant business—if you can stand it, says the Gainesville Georgia Cracker.

If it contains many advertisements the subscribers complain that they take up too much space.

If there is a scarcity of advertisements it is unpopular, and the people won't have it.

If we attend church regularly they say we go for effect.

If we stay away from church, they say we are heathenish.

If we accept an invitation to a wedding, they say we were only invited to "write it up."

If we go to a show they say we go on free tickets.

If we are seen on the streets often, they say we neglect our business.

If we avoid going on the streets, they say we don't hustle.

If we reject a long communication its author becomes enraged and discontinues his paper.

If we publish lengthy communications, our readers say we lack discretion and just put in anything "to fill up."

If we are single, they say we are too helpless to get married.

If we are not single, they say it is a pity for our wives.

If we publish a man who has brought disgrace upon his family, the friends of the family never forgive us.

If we, out of goodness of heart, decline to say anything on the subject, the man's enemies are disappointed, and we are branded as a white livered coward.

We are able to stand these raps and many more, and are always ready to receive visitors, whether accompanied by a dog or not. Of course we do not claim there is any work running a newspaper: every one knows it is a "soft place" with plush cushions and cold drinks always in reach.

WHERE WAS BRYAN?

From the New Orleans States.

Recently a New York illustrated weekly published a full page cartoon, one-half of which represented McKinley as a soldier boy in 1861, standing at attention, while shells were bursting above his head, and the other half pictured Bryan in a cradle, frantically shaking a rattle-box. The purpose of the cartoon is to show that while McKinley was at the front saving his country, Bryan, with perfect indifference as to the result of the war, remained in the security of his cradle playing with his toes and occasionally yelling for the pap bottle.

Shall we, under the circumstances, vote for a dodger, a shirker of duty, a stay-at-home in preference to McKinley, the soldier and patriot? Perish the thought. Where was Bryan when the field of Mannassas ran red with gore? Where was he when Philadelphia's liberty bell rang out the declaration of independence and patriots tossed their hats in the air and shouted for freedom? Did his bleeding feet stain the snow on the march to Valley Forge, or did he scramble up the rocky ramparts of Ticonderoga? Nixey, not much. Was he at Phillippi when the shields of the legion were clashing. Echo answers nit. Was he one of the heroes of Thermopylae? Did he perish at the Alamo under the weight of fifteen dead Mexicans. Never, and we say it advisedly.

Bryan has never fled for his country or any other fellow's, and for this reason the illustrated papers in bright colors are contrasting his record with that of McKinley, the battle-scarred warrior of Canton, champion of the trusts, and the beetle-browed knight of Hanna.

What a glorious opportunity Bryan had to win fame and the esteem of his countrymen, and how sad it is to know that he failed to embrace it. At the vigorous age of one year, instead of enlisting at the first blast of the bugle and shouldering his musket, he roosted contentedly in his cradle and did not care a fig, a copper, or even a sugar teat, whether the country went to the damnation how-woos or up in a balloon. Just think of it, this callous-hearted wretch now has the effrontery to aspire to the presidency of these United States and solicits the votes of the people. He dares to run against our own McKinley, the Napoleon of protection and the advance agent of prosperity. Oh what nerve! What cheek!

The Way to Do It.

From the Educational Exchange.

How can Alabama secure proper facilities for her rural schools? The first step in answer to this question must be the adoption of a new state constitution with adequate fundamental provisions for an efficient state system. For the past ten years the teachers of the state have been begging the politicians for action in this matter but the answer has been—"The time is not yet." The hour has come when those interested in the progress of the state must make this request a positive demand. Political expediency must no longer stand in impassable barrier to progress. Alabama today with all her marvelous undeveloped resources, is educationally behind every other southern state, simply because her organic law practically forbids an efficient system of state schools.

WONDERFUL

Is the Retentive Power of Helen Kellar's Mind.

A correspondent of the Nashville Banner writing from Tusculum, gives an interesting sketch of Helen Kellar, as follows:

North Alabama is rich in traditional history, and has been made famous by the deeds of her great men. Judges, congressmen, governors and great preachers, were born and raised in this section, all of which achieved more than a local reputation, and some even attained to national fame. Tusculum has had her quota of these illustrious ones, and while justly proud of their heritage, a good name and excellent deeds, she has produced one of whom any town, state or nation would be proud.

The world knows Helen Kellar perhaps even better than her own townsmen. The latter knew her as the blind, deaf and dumb daughter of the late lamented Captain Kellar, editor of the North Alabamian. The world knows her as a most wonderful prodigy.

When Helen Kellar was born, to all outward appearance, she was possessed of all her faculties. She is remembered as a bright babe, quick and alert, perceiving everything which was occurring about her. When a year old, she was stricken down by disease, which paralyzed her vocal chords and the senses of sight and hearing. With these infirmities she grew up to be a bright and vivacious child, walking about as if she could see perfectly.

Very early it was discovered that her sense of touch was abnormal. The instance remembered is that she could distinguish the several pups in a litter owned by Captain Kellar, never making a mistake in the selection of the right one. When she was eight years old her father employed a Miss Sullivan, of Boston, as governess for Helen. Miss Sullivan had once been blind, but had her sight restored by a very delicate and difficult operation. She was an expert teacher of blind children, and proved to be the proper person to take care of the youthful prodigy. She first taught her the deaf and dumb alphabet, and then combinations of the letters, with the object spelled, to show the child what such a formation of letters meant. For instance, she would spell apple, and then place in the child's hand an apple, thus impressing on her mind what she had spelled, as it is only through the touch of her most sensitive hand that she is able to grasp an idea.

She has learned to talk, and was taught this in a most unique way. Miss Sullivan would place Helen's hand on her throat and then make sounds of letters and words. These were conveyed to the child through her delicate and sensitive touch. Then Helen would place her fingers on her own throat and try to make the same vibrations. This has been kept up until now she can talk very well in a harsh and unmelodious voice.

The retentive power of her mind is truly wonderful. She never forgets anything she reads or which is read to her. Besides this, her mind is developed, and she is educated better than most people twice her age. She is well versed in history, ancient and modern, in mythology and in literature. She talks and writes about nature in a style that would do credit to a much older person. She writes beautiful letters to her friends and relatives, and has written one or two stories. Several years ago she wrote the story of her own life for the Youth's Companion, which attracted universal attention, not only because of the subject, but also by its literary merit. She has also written a little tale of nature, entitled "The Frost King," which has also brought forth the praises of critics in literary Boston and elsewhere.

The facial expressions of the child attract universal comment. She wears a sober look, which does not detract from her general appearance. At times, her blue and sightless eyes will dance and sparkle like dew drops in the sunlight. Her nature is jovial and she is said to have a keen sense of wit. When with children she talks of things pleasing to them, and when with older persons she converses like an older person. She has a wonderful stock of witticisms, puns and conundrums, which she uses at most opportune times.

As has been mentioned before, her sense of feeling is her medium of communication. She can talk intelligently and clearly, but she cannot hear you, except through her fingers. With her fingers placed on your throat she can hear every word uttered, every note sung. If she places them on a piano, she can distinguish one tune from another, and while she does not play any instrument, she has a "keen touch" for music, telling in an instant when a discord is made. The most remarkable thing about this sense of touch is the fact that she can distinguish colors, and has never made a mistake in telling the name of the color on which she places her fingers.

Another peculiar characteristic of this wonderful girl is her growth, which has also been abnormal. At 13 years of age, she was described as very large for her age, with every feature in proportion to her height. She lives ever in sunshine and has never been known to complain of her situation in life. For every one she has a pleasant greeting and a cheery smile. For the past two years she has been in school in New York City, under the special care of her devoted teacher and friend, Miss Sullivan. She has frequently made tours of the eastern cities, visiting especially all the schools for unfortunate children. At every place where she has stopped she has been surrounded by a coterie of admirers and has been toasted by many of the distinguished people of the nation. She grows in every way, and if she lives and keeps her health, she is destined to be one of the most remarkable women ever produced by America.

"What this country needs to develop its business is confidence," said the local politician in the grocery store. "Mr. Briggs, will you trust me for a fortnight for a barrel of flour?" "No," said the grocer, "my terms are spot cash." "There you have it, gentlemen," exclaimed the local politician. "Mr. Briggs has not the confidence and I have not the flour. Consequently he misses an opportunity to do business, and does not sell the flour. It is the spirit he illustrates that compels many men to do whitewashing who otherwise would preach great and lasting truths to a waiting world."—Boston Transcript.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Cailloute, Druggist, Beaverville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

"Professor," said the fair leader of the reform delegation to the reticent neighborhood philosopher, who was supposed to know everything, "we're trying to make this world better, and have taken the liberty of seeking your advice. What is the surest way to prevent divorces in this country?" "Don't get married." And then the delegation fled out to look up another topic.

Cure for Headache.

As a remedy for all forms of headache Electric Bitters has proved to be the very best. It effects a permanent cure and the most dreaded habitual sick headache yields to its influence. We urge all who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and give this remedy a fair trial. In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitters cures by giving the needed tone to the bowels, and few cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles 50 cents at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

"Where do you stand on the silver question, Mr. Schaumburg?" said a schoolboy, to a prominent Dallas merchant. "Not you mean?" "Well, are you in favor of a single or double standard of value of money?" "O, I am in favor of a double standard—you to buy with and von to sell with. Py schiminy gerashus! if der vas only one standard of value, vere vill de profits come in?"

The Columbiana Mercantile Company have a large advertisement in this issue. It will pay every reader of The Chronicle to scan it closely. The prices given therein speak for themselves. Of course you are supposed to know a bargain when you see it. This company have an immense stock of goods attractively arranged in their large new brick storeroom and they are in a position to command a large trade.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will give a leap year entertainment at the residence of Rev. W. I. Simnot, on Friday night, Sept. 11, at which ice cream and sherbet will be served at 5 and 10 cents a saucer, beginning at 5 o'clock. An interesting feature of the evening will be a number of leap year proposals made by the young ladies of the town. Prizes will be awarded to the young lady who makes the best proposal, and to the young gentleman who accepts or rejects it most gracefully.

The city fathers met Tuesday evening and passed upon a few matters connected with our school. They decided to require pupils living outside the school district to pay one month's tuition in advance, and to pay regularly the first of each month thereafter. Two janitors are needed and they propose to give two free scholarships to boys outside the district who will perform the duties of the office. A code of rules was also drawn up for the government of said school, which carried their sanction.

Resolutions of Respect.

In view of the sad demise of Dr. Jerome Cochran, who was not only the originator and active supporter of the medical laws of the State of Alabama, but who was for years honored with the highest civic position which the state could confer upon a member of the medical profession, we, the members of the Medical Society of Shelby county, in order to attest in its demonstrative a way as we possibly can our appreciation of his lofty character, his wonderful intellect and his tireless energy to elevate the profession in the state, do pass the following resolutions:

WHEREAS, The Almighty has seen fit to end the career of that great and good physician, scholar and citizen, Dr. Jerome Cochran, senior censor of the Medical Association of the State of Alabama, we, the members of Shelby county Medical Society in meeting assembled, attest our heartfelt sorrow that he no longer lingers to advise, admonish and guide and counsel, and that we furthermore extend our sympathy to the bereaved family, and that we make known our action by sending a copy of these resolutions to the Montgomery Advertiser, Shelby Chronicle and Mobile Register, and as a further mark of respect the society do now adjourn.

The S. P. L. League meets Friday night week, to elect a full corps of officers, also to participate in the following subject for debate: "Resolved, that America has not approached her zenith." This is a question that every one should burst forth in the very elements of forensic oratory. Those that are not placed on for debate will have an opportunity to speak four minutes, extempore, at the second roll call.

Bourgeois overheard the following dialogue between a gentleman and lady in regard to the Girls' Industrial School, Montevallo: She—Did they elect Miss Tutwiler president of the Industrial school? He—No, Mr. Clay Reynolds has been elected temporary president. She—Well, sir, I imagine that it takes a man of firm and resolute jurisdiction to manage two or three hundred girls. He—You're right. I've been married 20 years and I find that it takes a good manager to manage even one girl.

A young men's prayermeeting was born out of the protracted meeting at the Baptist church. After the meeting closed the young men met and debated the question among themselves whether or not to continue this work. They finally decided to continue to worship God in this capacity, meeting every Tuesday night and urging all young men and boys (converted and unconverted) to be present with them in the spiritual edification of the noble high toned young men of Wilsonville and surrounding country.

Fourteen are to be baptized next Sunday, as the result of the meeting.

ATEMPS.

September dear has come again.
Arrived with cooling breeze,
Old summer's sun and summer's rain
For ninety-six have ceased.

Can we forget old spring's sodour
That blessed us all with rain,
Warned up last winter's work severe
And sprouted forth the grain.

Last spring alone, I can't forget.
For deeds that she has done,
Brought forth the sparkling violet
Nay—a "pansy blossom."

She folded up though leaf by leaf
Till summer days were here,
Unfolding with her scorching heat
And dust, you far and near.

And now kind autumn months so fair
Have come again at last,
How we rejoice to breathe her air
And on her gifts to feast.

She brings to us those many things
For which we've worked so long,
She reaps the plantings of the spring
The cotton and the corn.

Oh how happy these months must be
They have no work to do,
Except to open wide their wings
And scatter all that grows.

COLUMBIANA MERCANTILE CO.

She'll gather everything that's made,
Through spring and summer too,
She'll even cause the leaves to fade
And gather them in too.

Oh how grand autumn is to me
What pictures she doth make,
She almost folds this old year up
And full possession take.

She strips the earth, she strips the tree
She drinks the streamlets dry,
She robs this year of all she has
And dressed in frost she dies.

Autumn, you see, has the pleasure
Both owning great and small,
Winding up ninety-six's treasures
Honored by autumn or fall.

And then old winter comes so cold,
Brings forth the snow and the rain,
Which makes the streamlets overflow
And fills up every vein.

BOURGEOIS.

Items from Creswell.

We are proud of the steps our citizens are taking in the direction of a school, and hope they will succeed in getting a good teacher and all come together and make a good school.

Some of the Childersburg beauties came over Monday and picniced at the residence of one of our bachelor boys while he was in Columbiana, and we learn that they spent a very pleasant day. They amused themselves tying his chairs to the house-top, tying old plows and hoes to his parlor doors, uncoupling and scattering his wagons about, and playing Christmas tricks generally. They walked over, and back, notwithstanding it was one of those hot, September days. Come again, girls, and call on some of the rest of us. We have more than one lonesome bachelor.

Do not bring up your girls, says Ruskin, as if they were meant for sideboard ornaments, and then complain of their frivolity. Give them not only noble teachings, but noble teachers, and give them the help which alone has sometimes done more than all other influences—the help of mild and fair nature. You cannot baptize them rightly in inch-deep church fountains unless you baptize them also in the sweet waters which the great Lawgiver struck forth from the rock of your native land. You cannot lead them faithfully to those narrow, axe-hewn church altars where the azure altars in heaven remain for you, without inscriptions; altars built, not to, but by, an unknown God.

Home Baggett is down from Argo, to spend a while with his father's family.

Mrs. G. A. Smith left Saturday to join her husband at Leeds, accompanied by her little sister, Jessie Coleman.

Mrs. M. E. Lipsey, of Irondale, is visiting friends and relatives here.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Lowe visited relatives in the Kelley's Creek neighborhood Saturday and Sunday.

L. W. and J. P. Butts were over from Childersburg a short while Sunday evening.

We learn that our worthy citizen, P. L. Chancellor, has rented out his farm and will move to some place where he will have access to a good school. We hate to lose such men from our neighborhood, but we wish for him a successful move.

Mr. Freshly—"Did you hear of the terrible accident that occurred during the storm yesterday afternoon?" Miss Newcomer—"No, how distressing; what was it?" Mr. Freshly—"The wind blew up the lake."

"I wish we were rich, John, and could do something for the world," Mrs. Clericus remarked, half devotedly, half impatiently. "But, my dear, we can do good in a quiet way now." "Yes; but no one will ever hear of it."

Dick—"You know that feller working in shaft No. 17, who was always kicking for a raise?" Mick—"Yes." Dick—"Well, he kicked over a can of dynamite today and got it at last."

She—"Do you believe in long engagements?" He—"Well, I think an engagement should be long enough to test a man's constancy and to give the girl time to learn to cook."

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to the kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to Columbiana to Have Water Works.

At a special meeting of the board of commissioners on last Friday the question of how the county buildings could be put in better sanitary condition and thereby prevent injury to the health of the inmates and the town at large, came up for earnest consideration. John A. Edwards, of Childersburg, submitted a carefully prepared plan for a system of water works that would effectually remove this menace to our town, which has been neglected from year to year until it had grown to alarming proportions. His plan was accepted, the amount of his bid being $3,100. He proposes to bring water from the Weaver springs on the side of the mountain through a 2-inch pipe sunk deep enough in the ground to be beyond the danger of freezing. A rock dam will be built below the springs to impound the water. A large cypress tank, capacity 17000 gallons, is to be erected on a brick tower 40 feet high between the court house and jail.

A sufficient number of closets will be placed in both buildings, fitted with automatic flush tanks, all of which will empty into a 8-inch sewer which will empty into the Verbot branch about 400 or 500 yards below town. The system is to be a very complete one put up in a thoroughly substantial manner, and the day of its successful inauguration will be a day of rejoicing in Columbiana. We all feel that a great burden has been lifted from our shoulders. Mr. Edwards has ordered all the material and will begin work at once upon its arrival. He says 60 days is all he wants to complete the job.

Thanks to the commissioners for this concession.

THE Indiana state board of health proposes to keep the public schools of that state free from microbes. It has ordered that every school room, every article used in the schools shall be washed with disinfectants every day and that unwashed and unhealthy children shall be kept out of school. Open water buckets for drinking are forbidden and water must be drawn from a faucet and a cup used. Slate and slate pencils must be kept and paper pads, pens and lead pencils are to be replaced them. The action of the board has created a sensation in school circles.

THE United States treasury has ready for issue a circular on national banks, state banks, savings banks, loan and trust companies, the number of depositors and amount of savings, profit on national bank circulation, based on the deposit of $100,000 bond, tax on capital and all matters of interest relating to banking, besides articles on lawful money reserves, substitutes for money, clearing house loan certificates, revenue to the government, service to the public, etc. It will be furnished free to any one applying for it, but not more than one copy will be given to each applicant.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Gleaned By Telegraph and Mail.

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.
CONGRESSMAN HOWARD stated at Birmingham, Ala., on the 14th that he had a letter from Senator Butler advising that the confusion in the matter of the nominees for vice president "will shortly be adjusted by the withdrawal of Sewall, which has been agreed upon."

SENATOR BUTLER has denied the report that he had written a letter stating that Sewall would be withdrawn from the democratic ticket.

A WASHINGTON dispatch stated that the publication of the populist campaign hand-book would not be delayed later than October 1. The book will especially emphasize the fact that Vice Presidential Candidate Watson has been endorsed by a large number of unions for his work in behalf of labor.

A REPORT was sent out from Little Rock, Ark., that Mr. Sewall would retire as the democratic nominee for vice president and that Chief Justice Clark, of North Carolina, would be placed on the ticket. The report also stated that Mr. Watson would also withdraw as a vice presidential candidate.

CAPT. JACK WHITE, the last survivor but one of the battle of Sabine pass, died at Houston, Tex., on the 15th.

A DISPATCH from Frankfort, Ky., stated that the republicans were determined to elect a successor to Senator Blackburn and that a deal had been arranged with the sound money democrats to cast lots as to whether Blackburn's successor shall be a democrat or a republican.

CONGRESSMAN RICHARDSON, of Tennessee, chief assistant of Senator Jones, denounced as without foundation the story that Senator Jones had said that both Sewall and Watson would be taken down and Judge Clark, of North Carolina, put up as the vice presidential candidate.

THE British foreign office has given out a semi-official notice stating that public feeling in Great Britain has been so outraged by the shocking events in Constantinople that the government would never be supported in siding with the Porte, and if the powers cannot see their way to adopt means to co-operate to end the carnage in the British dominions, the only course opened to Great Britain was to stand aside and hope for a more satisfactory state of affairs.

A DISPATCH from the 17th from Washington said that the national meeting of the campaign clubs organized under the auspices of the silver party was originally called for September 23 at Chicago, but it will be postponed until October 3 and will be held at St. Louis, at which time the democratic clubs will hold their convention at the latter place. Negotiations are in progress looking to a joint meeting.

THE press bureau at the national democratic headquarters at Chicago published on the 17th an estimate of what they thought would be Mr. Bryan's majorities in November. It gives Bryan 36 out of 45 states, with 324 electoral votes.

WILLIAM F. SHEEHAN, of New York, has resigned as a member of the democratic national committee.

IF Spain was to have a serious reverse in Cuba the Carlists claim that the downfall of the present regency would follow immediately, and that Charles VII. would be triumphantly placed upon the Spanish throne with little or no trouble.

MAJ.-GEN. CARLOS ROLOFF, Cuban secretary of war, was arrested recently on a warrant sworn out by the Spanish consul, and spent the night in Ludlow street jail in New York. The charge was on "information and belief" that the general had set on foot preparations for a military expedition to Cuba. Roloff was released from custody as soon as his friends learned of his arrest.

MR. SEWALL, candidate for vice president, at Bath, Me., on the 18th said: "There is absolutely nothing in this talk about my withdrawal. The thing is absurd. As for the statement that Senator Gorman or any of the democratic managers desire me to retire, or that the party leaders are bringing influence to bear on me for that purpose, it is pure falsehood. On the contrary all the pressure on me has been the other way."

THE formal opening of the campaign was inaugurated at Canton, O., on the 18th. Seventy-five train loads came into the city. Maj. McKinley rode in a carriage with some of the speakers during the first parade. Before the parade dozens of delegations, headed by their bands, marched to Maj. McKinley's residence and short speeches were made.

MISCELLANEOUS.
JAMES MICHAEL died 27 miles and 1,690 yards in one hour on his wheel at the circuit meet at Manhattan Beach, N. Y., smashing all the American records for one hour.

A BILL has been agreed upon by the Choctaw council at Antlers, I. T., to disfranchise all white intermarried citizens who were married there since 1873, all of the Choctaws who lately came from Mississippi and all adopted freedmen.

FAILURES for the week ended the 18th (Dun's report) were 317 in the United States against 213 last year, and 32 in Canada against 32 last year.

JAMES SWIMMER, a full-blood Cherokee Indian, and Henry Williams, a colored youth of 18, were hanged in the national jail yard at Tahlequah, I. T., on the 18th for murder.

A HEAVY charge of dynamite was exploded under the saloon of Mrs. Mattie Weisbord, of Sardinia, O., the building being totally wrecked. Several persons were injured. Anti-saloon workers were suspected, having failed to secure the passage of a local option ordinance.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN spoke at Richmond, Va., on the 18th and also at Wilson, Goldsboro, Manchester and other North Carolina towns.

JIMMY BRITT, once champion bantamweight of the Pacific coast, and Frank Lawler, another well known athlete, had a mill at San Francisco on the 18th. Both men were terribly punished and the referee called the fight a draw at the 28th round, as there seemed no prospect of it being finished.

M. BOSSU, the public prosecutor in charge at Boulogne-sur-Mer, France, of the case against P. J. P. Tynan, the alleged Irish dynamiter, received a violent letter on the 18th, informing him, in the name of a committee of invincibles and anarchist brotherhood, that unless Tynan was released within 24 hours he, M. Bossu, would be blown up with dynamite. The letter was written with a red fluid, believed to be blood.

TWO men were killed and a number of others badly injured on the 18th in a wreck on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, near Connorsville, Ind. A pay train was following a freight. The crew took the engine of the freight and started back and the wild engine met the pay car. It was down grade and impossible to stop. The two engines came together with a terrific crash and the pay car was thrown on its side into the ditch.

STAR POINTER at Mystic park, Massachusetts, not only beat two accredited fast horses, Robert J., 2:01½, and Frank Agan, 2:02½, but paced the three fastest heats ever made in competition, the time being 2:02½, 2:03½ and 2:03½, an average of 2:02¾. He also lowered the world's record for the fastest heat ever paced, 2:02¾, as well as the record for the fastest quarter and half, 2:09½ and 3:09½ respectively.

THERE was a conflict between whites and blacks in Colbert's reserve, near Florence, Ala., which resulted in one negro being instantly killed, with a good chance for further trouble. The trouble grew out of an assault upon a planter by a negro.

THE amount of the gold reserve in the federal treasury at Washington on the 18th was $115,424,424.

FLORENCE HARRY, a Creek woman, received 80 lashes on the bare back at Wewoka, I. T., recently, for an ordinary offense against chastity. During the laying on of the 80 lashes she maintained a stoical indifference, uttering not a word of complaint. The blood was drawn in several places on her back and arms.

ACCORDING to official returns the number of men suffering from yellow fever in the military hospitals throughout Cuba was 1,155 on the 17th. The death rate was said to be about 15 per cent.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND on the 17th pardoned Samuel K. Obay, sentenced in Utah to five years' imprisonment for adultery, and Floyd Smith, sentenced in Iowa to two years in the penitentiary for violation of the postal laws.

A MONEY broker of Portland, Ore., a member of a hypnotic club, complained to the police that two magnetic professors had induced him to advance them $1,000 on a bit of glass, which he thought was a diamond, while he was in a hypnotic state.

MANY hogs have recently died of cholera in the vicinity of Red Bud, Ill. The Cambria steel works at Johnstown, Pa., opened up on the 15th, giving employment to 3,000 men.

THE branch of the Illinois Steel Co. at Joliet started up on the 15th, giving work to 2,000 men.

THE "Alley L" road in Chicago was sold at auction for $4,000,100. It was bought by representatives of the bondholders.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

ONE of the most destructive storms ever witnessed in Utah passed over Ogden on the 10th, leaving devastation in its path.

THE postoffice department on the 19th issued an order prohibiting the use of the mails to the bucketshop operators of Chicago.

GEORGE LANDRETH, farmer, 40 years of age, was found dead in his field on the 19th near Malvern, Ark.

A. A. BALL & Co., bankers at West Liberty, Iowa, made an assignment on the 19th. Inability to realize on assets was the cause of the failure.

THE monthly statement of collections of internal revenue issued on the 10th shows the total receipts for the month of August to have been $11,527,074, as compared with $12,102,355 during August, 1895.

THE Atlanta, Ga., cotton mills were placed in the hands of a receiver on the 19th.

JAMES T. SWIMMER, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian, and Harry Williams, colored, was hanged at Tahlequah, I. T., on the 18th.

F. J. FOWLER of Stillwell, Ok., who had been in search of his runaway wife, found her in St. Joseph, Mo., on the 18th, and shot her and then shot himself.

THE packing-house of Armour & Co., of Chicago, on the 16th, received an order direct from the Japanese government for eighteen car loads of corned beef.

PROSPERITY AND USURY.

Ground of the Struggle Between the Two Parties.

THE Public Ledger quotes Mr. McKinley as follows: "No matter what kind of money we have, we cannot get it unless we have work. Whether it is poor money or whether it is good money, whether it is gold or whether it is silver, we cannot get one dollar of it unless we have employment for our hands and heads."

How about issuing watered stock by the ton in Wall street?

How about the "unearned increment," as it is called, of the Astor real estate in the city of New York?

How about the railway that takes advantage of its monopoly to gouge the public out of fares ten times as high as other roads charge for the same service?

How about the stock and the produce gamblers who get a corner on wheat or something else, and sweat their victims out of untold millions?

Possibly Mr. McKinley considers all these and a thousand other ways of plundering the public—all of which, by the way, should rightly go to the producers who make such values possible—as a reward for the "employment of their heads."

But aside from Mr. McKinley's loose way of talking, the Ledger printed it to offset Mr. Bryan's attitude, that free silver will help the American workman. The Ledger adds that if Mr. Bryan were correct, there would be no opposition from intelligent people to "substituting the silver standard for the gold standard."

See right here how hard it is for the Public Ledger to confine itself to the truth. Neither the democratic platform nor Mr. Bryan has ever said word about such a substitution, and the Ledger knows such to be the fact;

A FEW REALLY PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

VICEROY LI HUNG CHANG TO VICEROY HANNA:
How rich are you?
Did you make any of your money reducing workmen's wages?
If the free coinage of silver would, as you say, tend to reduce the wages of the workmen, why are you opposed to it?

Who gives you all the money you are spending now?
What do you promise in return for it?

How do you make Mr. McKinley do what you tell him?
Will he keep on doing it when he is president?
How did you get hold of him first?
Do you consider that those notes are a good investment?

but it would falsify to seemingly make out a stronger case for itself than it has.

The Ledger then says that neither Mr. Bryan nor his supporters have produced a tittle of evidence to prove the truth of the quoted position, that free silver will help the American workman. That is false. But without going into history, the item will again explain a fraction of the facts showing Mr. Bryan to be perfectly correct.

Free silver increases employment. It enables the people to get work. It stops these closing down of mills. It stops these failings daily taking place. It causes a rising market, which is the chief stimulus to the extension of new and old enterprises. It tends in the direction of booming business of all kinds, for promoters see in it a chance to get a reward for enterprise. It tends to increase wages. It tends to give much more employment to all classes of hands. It promotes construction of all kinds. It gives the farmer fair returns for his labor. It enables him to live. It increases the value of farm property. It increases the security of the mortgages upon it. It enables the worker to save something from his wages. It increases the earnings of railways. It stops railway failures when failures are the result of insufficient earnings. It increases the sales of manufacturers. It increases the sales of the wholesaler. It increases the sales of the retailers in all lines. Consequently all these must employ more help, can afford to pay higher wages. Even the banks can earn greater dividends, because of the increase of general trade. Thus luxuries can be bought, and the trade dependent upon luxuries be stimulated.

All this and much more in the same direction is the result of an increase of the volume of money now circulating in the channels of trade. Also, in preventing a good many corners in the money market such as at present. Also, in the stoppage of this 100 per cent. bounty business in silver-basis countries, which, if continued, will also lutely close nearly all the manufacturing in the United States.

Free silver means protection to American industry. Mr. McKinley and the Public Ledger in opposing it, oppose the republican principle of protection; thus they stultify themselves by pretending to support the very opposite of what they actually do support.

If free silver will not increase the money volume sufficiently, then without doubt Mr. Bryan will advocate a form of money in addition thereto, that will afford this nation a proper increase. The people, under the auspices of usurers which Mr. McKinley and the Ledger are sustaining, have starved long enough.—Philadelphia Item.

FOR MCKINLEY TO STUDY.

An Example of the Workings of the Trusts Tariff.

Mr. McKinley in his letter of acceptance declared the Wilson law to be a failure, among other reasons, because its duties do not cover the difference in the labor cost between this country and Europe. We have already shown that in the great industries of pig iron, steel rails and cotton cloth the existing duties are more than the entire labor cost. Here is another example:

The 53 stockholders of the window glass trust have been protected by a duty on foreign imports:
In 1880, revenue tariff..... 15 per cent
In 1891, war tariff..... 50 per cent
In 1894, republican commission tariff..... 120 per cent
In 1895, McKinley tariff..... 122 per cent
In 1896, Wilson tariff..... 126 per cent
The price per half box (18x24) in this country was $3.60 in 1860 and $3.12 in 1890. The trust kept the price steady. The foreign price of our imports was in 1890 per half box $1.80, and we imported 10,097,057 pounds, for which we paid:
The foreign cost..... $24,550
The custom house duty..... 42,963
So that to the original cost of the FEAT OF A HYPNOTIST.

Man Buried for Two Days and Then Resurrected Without Awareness of Injury.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 19.—John Lawrence Douglass, of Indianapolis, who has been hypnotized and buried here since Wednesday afternoon, was taken from the grave yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the presence of a large crowd. The subject was quite pale. His face was warm, but the feet and hands were cold. Hypnotist Boone put him into the cataleptic state while he was being lifted from the grave and returned to the city. There were no signs of his having moved. The blanket in which he was wrapped was intact, and the impression showed that the arms and feet had remained still. The unruly crowd knocked a quantity of dirt in on him after the lid of the coffin had been removed, and there was no flinch of the flesh or quiver of the eye. Stories on hypnotism are mystified. The spell was not broken until eight o'clock in the opera house, he having remained in what the hypnotist terms the fourth state until that hour. The heart beat was about 40 when the subject reached the city, but was run up to 80, where it stood until the spell was relieved.

STORM IN PENNSYLVANIA.

Many Buildings Wrecked, Much Glass Broken and Orchards Laid Waste.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 19.—A severe storm of wind, hail and rain swept over the eastern part of Pennsylvania last night. Scores of buildings were wrecked or unroofed, thousands of panes of window glass and many skylights were shattered and apples and other late crops almost destroyed. The storm was the most severe in Chester, Montgomery, Berks, Bucks, Lehigh and Lycoming counties. In the vicinity of Hatfield, Montgomery county, about 30 houses and barns were unroofed and two grist mills owned by George Snyder were totally wrecked, together with his dwelling. All the apple orchards in the Catawasa valley were stripped of their fruit.

IT IS FIVE FEET LONG.

Li Hung Chang's Note of Introduction to President Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—A personal letter from the emperor of China to President Cleveland, which formed the credentials of Li Hung Chang, has been placed on exhibition in the library in the department of state. The letter is written on a scroll of lemon colored parchment paper about five feet in length by a foot and a half in width, a portion being in ancient Chinese, and part in modern Chinese characters, with the royal red seal, and the emperor's autograph in the center.

NEW PACING KING.

Star Pointer Went the Three Fastest Heats Ever Made in Competition.

MEDFORD, Mass., Sept. 19.—Star Pointer at Mystic park yesterday not only beat two accredited faster horses, Robert J., 2:01½, and Frank Agan, 2:03½, but paced the three fastest heats ever made in competition, the times being 2:02½, 2:03½ and 2:03½, an average of 2:03¾. He also lowered the world's record for the fastest heat ever paced, 2:02¾, as well as the records for the fastest quarter and half, 2:09½ and 3:09½ respectively.

Sewall Will Not Withdraw.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—A dispatch to the World from Bath, Me., says: Mr. Sewall, candidate for vice president, last night answered the cry which has gone up all over the country for his retirement from the free silver ticket. "There is absolutely nothing in this talk about my withdrawal. The thing is absurd. As for the statement that Senator Gorman or any of the democratic managers desire me to retire, or that the party leaders are bringing influence to bear on me for that purpose, it is pure falsehood. On the contrary all the pressure on me has been the other way."

Religious Riots in Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 19.—A mob attacked the American Presbyterian church in Amusa, Calientes, and broke windows and doors with stones. Rev. D. Sharp's house was also attacked. A mob also attacked Morelos Protestant college in the same way Wednesday, breaking every window in it. Several arrests have been made and the authorities are anxious to identify the leaders. Minister Ransom has been appealed to by the government to secure the punishment of the offenders.

Cleveland's Return to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—It is said at the White House that there is no prospect of an immediate return of the president and Mrs. Cleveland from their summer cottage on Buzzard's Bay. Unless the weather makes a decided change for the worse in the meantime, it is not believed that the presidential family will resume their residence at the white house much before the 1st of November. Such was the president's purpose when he started away on his vacation early in June.

World's Bicycle Record Loved.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—James Michael, the Irish wonder, smashed all the American records for one hour's competition paced race yesterday afternoon at the first annual circuit meet of the Quill wheelmen at Manhattan Beach. Twenty-seven miles and 1,690 yards stand to the credit of the foreigner for one hour. Frank Starbuck, of Philadelphia, was only 30 yards behind him at the finish.

No Silver for Senator Smith.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Sept. 19.—United States Senator Smith publishes the announcement that being unable to reconcile his views with the platform of the democratic national convention he will resign from both the state campaign committees.

Sweeping Choctaw Disfranchisement.

ANTLERS, I. T., Sept. 19.—A bill was agreed upon by the Choctaw council to disfranchise all white intermarried citizens who were married there since 1873, all of the Choctaws who lately came from Mississippi and all adopted freedmen.

GOLD IMPORTS.

They Are Caused by the Balance of Trade Being in Our Favor.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 19.—"The present inflow of gold to the United States is the result of natural conditions. The balance of trade is now in our favor, and the prospects are that it will remain so until the cotton crop is moved, if no longer." This was the statement of Assistant Comptroller of the Treasury George M. Coffin yesterday, when asked to account for the large shipments of the yellow metal to this country. He continued:

The August statement of the bureau of statistics, covering the imports and exports of merchandise, gives the best possible explanation of the large imports of gold. The increase of more than $12,600,000 in merchandise exports and the decrease of $21,600,000 in merchandise imports, as compared with August last year, prove that the movement of gold to this country is the result of natural conditions. The trade balance in favor of this country in August amounted to more than $19,000,000. In addition to this we have exported a large amount of silver bullion, which must be paid for in gold, and in the same time the sale of American securities by foreign holders has been trifling, while the title of American tourists is setting toward the United States, and with their return the spending of tourists' money abroad comes to an end. It is not surprising, therefore, that upwards of $19,000,000 gold has already been imported, and that more than $18,000,000 more is now on the way here or under engagement for importation.

The demand for money in New York now is very great, and one of the great needs of it is to move the cotton crop of the south, which is, at a rough estimate, worth $800,000,000. In order to move this crop the traders in the interior towns must have ready money, and New York banks have to import gold to meet the demand. The reason why the premium put by the Bank of England on gold does not stop the exportation of the yellow metal from that country is that money there is very cheap, being advertised less than two per cent a year, while here six per cent is payable, and seven per cent is often secured. The problem of where the gold already imported has gone is puzzling. It is thought that a part of the imported gold has gone into the vaults of the trust companies and savings banks. A conservative estimate of the gold hoarding since the nomination of Bryan is $20,000,000.

THE CANTON RALLY.

Over 100,000 People Attend the Meeting at Maj. McKinley's Home.

CANTON, O., Sept. 19.—The formal opening of the campaign was inaugurated here yesterday. Railroad men claimed at noon they had hauled 50,000 people into Canton. Seventy-five train loads came. State Republican Chairman Charles Kurtz last night estimated the crowds present on the streets in the afternoon parade, at the big tent meeting, and about the McKinley home at 100,000, and far ahead of anything in Ohio's history. Maj. McKinley rode in a carriage with some of the special delegates to the first parade. The regular programme in the afternoon included Gov. Bushnell's introduction address and speeches by Senators Cullom and Thurston. In the evening Gov. Bushnell spoke briefly and Gov. Hastings, of Pennsylvania, and Congressman McCleary, of Minnesota, made addresses. Before the parade dozens of delegations, headed by their bands, marched to Maj. McKinley's residence. Among those to whom he spoke were the Columbian county people, the Pittsburgh delegation headed by the American and Tariff clubs, and the Columbus Buckeye club, acting as escort to Gov. Bushnell and Supreme Judge Shauck. Maj. McKinley thanked the members of the different delegations most cordially for their visit.

ALBATROSS FLYING MACHINE

The First Free Test at Millers, Ind., Was Very Gratifying.

CHICAGO, Sept. 19.—The first free test of Octave Chanute's albatross soaring machine, invented and constructed by William Paul, was made at Millers, Ind., last evening, under unfavorable conditions. While the machine was heavily loaded with ballast so as to prevent it from flying any great distance, and was anchored by four ropes, each 200 feet long, the three points which the trial was to decide—were determined in a manner gratifying to its inventor and owner. The flight was less than 100 feet, but it was a descent and final alighting on the sand were as graceful and even as that of the bird from which the machine was patterned. The trial proved that the machine is perfectly safe, a proof which was the more acceptable inasmuch as it had been asserted that the machine was dangerous and an attempt to fly it would be sure to result in the death of the operator.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

No Distinct Improvement in Business, Although Conditions Favor It.

NEW YORK, Sept. 19.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: There is still no distinct improvement in business, although conditions are favorable. Confidence slowly rises, speculative buying of ornamentals for future use continues. Imports of gold do not cease and the Bank of England has not tried to check them by further raising rates as the weight of the demand now falls upon France.

The one industry showing increase in working force is the cotton manufacturing. Restriction of output having secured more healthy demand for some goods. Most of the mills have started or are about to start, though the uncertainty of the cotton market hinders. The iron and steel manufacture is still waiting for business with nearly half its producing capacity idle, but hopefulness in the speculative buying of pig iron sustains prices. Failures for the week have been 317 in the United States, against 213 last CAPTAIN PLOWMAN is true to his name. He turns things over like a true plowman, cutting out the weeds and cultivating the useful growth, and every plowboy and plowman in the district will stand by him in November. —Talladega News-Reporter.

LISTEN to this from the Seal Register: "A political party, born of prejudice and disappointment, is of but a few days and full of worms and other small insects. It springs up in the morning like a hoppergrass and is cut down in the evening like a pepper grass, and lo, where is it at?"

THE Greensboro Beacon anxiously asks: "When the Bryan republicans, the McKinley democrats and the Cleveland populists meet the Sewall protectionists, the Watson agrarians and the Palmer and Buckner Blue and Grayites, who will care for the baby or see that the doors are locked at night?"

A MACHINE has been designed for affixing stamps to letters and circulars with extraordinary rapidity. The motions of detaching, damping and fixing are all performed by one revolution of a small wheel attached to the machine. From 4,000 to 5,000 letters an hour can be stamped, and the machine will register the number of letters thus treated.

A MAN in Lexington, Ky., has been hypnotized and buried alive for forty-eight hours. On Friday night he was dug up from the grave and released from the spell. He declared he felt all right, and still had the taste in his mouth of the sandwich he had eaten just before going into the grave. He further said that he remembered nothing after the hypnotizing process began. No time seemed to have passed since then. Oh, if we could only be in his condition till after the November election.

HON. HECTOR D. LANE, president of the American Cotton Growers' Association, has written an open letter to cotton growers, giving them the results of his investigations of the crop yield of this year, and also his advice as to the prices and how they should market their crops. He tells the planters that his investigations in each cotton state force him to the conclusion that the crop will not exceed 7,000,000 bales; that recent rains did no good; that long drouth makes the staple weigh light, and that therefore, because also of increased acreage the cost of production has increased. He therefore advises the slow marketing of the crop, so as to realize as good prices as possible, and claims the surplus on hand being smaller compared to demand, than ever before, places the situation in control of the planters instead of the buyers if the planters act prudently and judiciously. Again, he presses upon the planters the necessity of decreasing acreage and raising more food crops, insisting that the buyers make use of increased acreage to force prices down.

TAKE BACK THE LIE.

Under the above caption the Troy (Ala.) Citizens' Journal of the 19th contains the following, which should make some bolting democrats' blood boil. When this meets the eye of the old soldier, whether he wore the gray or wore the blue, his patriotism will turn to scorn as he reviews the history of comrade or foe:

"About five or six years ago, when General Palmer was elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, the ex-Confederate and ex-union soldiers were getting on real good terms, often having joint reunions and recounting again the times that tried men's souls, coming together as brothers, participating in the decorations of the graves of their fathers, floating both the Confederate and union flags. Old sectional feeling was rapidly being extinguished. One of the first orders that this commander-in-chief, General Palmer, issued, was that no member of the Grand Army of the Republic should take part in any procession or programme in which the Confederate flag was floated. He then characterized the Confederate flag as 'the emblem of treason.'

"When many members of the Grand Army of the Republic, by camps and individuals, arose and remonstrated against the insult, he, in a public speech delivered in New York, re-characterized the flag so dear to the south as that 'doubly damned rag of treason.' This is the man that General Ferguson, the commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans of Alabama, is looking to and pushing for president. He is the man that he is trying to induce the old Confederates—the democrats of the south—to support for president.

"Upon reading the speech of General Palmer's, so insulting to the south, the patriotic and sweet poet of Alabama, Dr. O. T. Dozier, of Birmingham, wrote the following poem in reply to that execrable sentiment expressed in characterizing the sacred southern flag as 'the emblem of treason':

Take back the lie, craven wretch,
Which thy vile lips have dared to speak;
Such calumny from thy vile tongue,
But proves that thou art base as weak;
From coward lips such venom vile
Can only serve to make disgust.
In hearts of all true, noble men,
Who loathe such vipers of the dust,
Then take it back, thou snarling cur,
Insult not with thy lying breath
That ensign of a noble host,
Now tending in their camps of death;
Nor should thou dare with lying tongue,
To slander men whose dauntless might
Made for that flag a name and place—
The grandest on fame's utmost height.
Time is the craven coward's course,
Hyena-like that dares to tread,
And with thy foul, polluting breath
Insults the memory of the dead;
No faintest ray, nor spark of truth,
Doth to thy lying tongue give pause;
Else hadst thou not, poor, slimy worm,
Haved dared to slander such a cause,
How worse than fool, thou poltroon knave,
To base thy lie without a reason—
To let thy lying words imply
That our just cause was one of treason.
The banner that thou dar'st malign
Shall live through never ending glory,
While all such hissing toads as thou
Shall be unknown in song or story.
What valiant hero of the blue,
Who faced our warriors in the fray,
But knows that only patriots true
Ever fought so valiantly as they.
And knows, too, that no traitor hand
In treason's cause was ever fired
To such sublimely daring deeds
As our Confederate hosts inspired.
Then hush, yea, hush, thy putrid mouth,
Go kill thyself, thou needs to gash;
Less sin'd had Ananias when God numbered him among the slain;
Nor such a crime since Judas' sin
Hath ever dammed with such just reason.
As that thou shouldst upon thy soul
In that foul, lying charge of treason.

DON'T TAKE DOWN THE FENCE.

From the Camden New Era.
As our readers know, we have all the while, during the long contest over our financial system, supported the democratic administration in its financial policy and the national democratic platform of 1892. We supported Governor Oates in 1894 because he supported the national democratic administration; in 1896 we supported Hon. R. H. Clarke for governor for the same reason. In the national convention in 1892, our silver friends supported and aided in the election of Mr. Cleveland when they knew he was opposed to the free coinage of silver; in our state election in 1894 the silver democrats supported Governor Oates after he was nominated; then in 1896, when the silver democrats were successful in nominating Governor Johnston, the sound money men or gold standard men, heartily supported and aided in the election of Governor Johnston, a silver democrat; then the national democratic convention met at Chicago and nominated the brilliant young Nebraskan and Mr. Sewall, of Maine. They are both free silver men, and the convention put them on a platform much contrary to our views, but the nominations were made in the regular way and by a clear majority of our party, and we have never been able to approve a bolt from the action of this convention, and have been giving and expect to continue to give it our decided support. But the ticket must stand as the convention made it. We note some tendency in some of the papers of the country and there has been some talk here, too, to take down Mr. Sewall and put Tom Watson, the populite, in his place. Already there is trouble in our ranks; this will make more, how much, no man can measure. The democratic party has no bitter enemy than Watson; daily he is denouncing our party; every vice president may and several have become president; no man should be voted for vice president whose political creed and personal character do not entitle him to fill the presidential chair, for he may be our next president. We have been fighting the populists for years, and that party had its birth in opposition to democracy. While we have made up our mind to swallow a great deal, and have given our word, which is our bond, to support the ticket as the regular convention made it, we freely and just as honestly say that if the ticket is robbed of its regularity by the taking down of Sewall and the putting up of Watson, then there will be no fence around our party to hold thousands of restless men in line.

The Anglo-Saxon in Paris is singularly conspicuous, if only for the extreme neatness of his Sunday go-to-meeting clothes, the perfectly fitting, smartly cut frock coat, the dapper cravat, immaculate linen and brilliantly shiny hat. The Englishman's button-hole, too, unlike that of his Gallic neighbor, is often brightened with a small posy of Neapolitan violets, and I noticed this season that dog-skin hand-covers were replaced, in most instances, by slate-gray gloves embroidered with black on the backs. Well-dressed, well-groomed and unusually well-built, the Englishman is a model to most Frenchmen.—Paris Letter to the London Telegraph.

Prof. Charles Mayer, as quoted from the Tennessee Journal of Meteorology, says: "Occasionally epidemic diseases seem to have been spread by clouds and the rain from them. The best authenticated case is that of a plague epidemic in the fifteenth century, which broke out most violently in a Swiss town immediately after a cloud, coming from an infected but distant region, discharged its rain upon that town."
The relations of the weather to the spread of epidemics are still involved in great obscurity. Without going back to the fifteenth century, there was an excellent opportunity to investigate the subject in 1889-90, when the grip spread over the whole civilized world. Its progress was so regular that for a long time there was a general belief that the active germs of influenza were carried as dust in the air by the winds, or perhaps by the upper currents. This idea was dissipated by several memoirs that established the fact that the wind and weather were entirely subordinate factors and that the spread of the disease followed the lines of travel, especially the principal steamboat and railroad routes, and that, therefore, the germs were carried by diseased individuals or by articles that had been used by or had come in contact with them, and not by the winds. Of course the wind, in the narrow sense, may have carried the germs a few feet or rods from one individual to another, but not for distances of many miles. Several epidemics, such as the yellow fever, small-pox or cholera, have been traced back to the direct importation of their contagia (whether animate or inanimate) by human agencies. Furthermore it appears probable from experimental data that few disease germs can maintain their vitality more than a few hours when freely exposed to the air and sunshine as would probably be the case if they were carried in the atmosphere as minute particles of dust. Therefore we think it probable that the winds and the rain must not be considered as the means by which diseases are spread between places that are a considerable distance apart. The limit to which living germs can be carried in the free air is not yet accurately known, but is believed to be quite small. The upper currents of air carried the vapor dust from Krakatoa, in 1883-84, over the whole Northern Hemisphere, but many months were required to do this, and what little we know of the life history of disease germs teaches that they could not survive the sunshine, the dryness, and, perhaps, the cold of the upper currents. This is not to deny that the winds and the ocean currents can carry the coarser seeds of plants and fungi for many miles without injury; but the bacterial disease germs have a far more delicate organism than those seeds, and what would seem to be an allowable analogy between the transportation of seeds and germs, fails when applied on a large scale. The wind may carry the germs to a great distance in the free air, but probably will kill them in so doing; local breezes may carry living germs a few hundred feet, but the diseased man or the convalescent, or the clothing and articles used by these, or the water we drink, or the food we eat, may carry them hundreds and thousands of miles. In the particular case of the spread of the epizootic and influenza epidemics of 1872-73 among horses and cattle, it was shown that they spread against the wind, or when there was a calm, quite as often as they spread with the wind.

HOW DO RAINS AND WINDS SPREAD EPIDEMICS.

Prof. Charles Mayer, as quoted from the Tennessee Journal of Meteorology, says:

"Occasionally epidemic diseases seem to have been spread by clouds and the rain from them. The best authenticated case is that of a plague epidemic in the fifteenth century, which broke out most violently in a Swiss town immediately after a cloud, coming from an infected but distant region, discharged its rain upon that town."

The relations of the weather to the spread of epidemics are still involved in great obscurity. Without going back to the fifteenth century, there was an excellent opportunity to investigate the subject in 1889-90, when the grip spread over the whole civilized world. Its progress was so regular that for a long time there was a general belief that the active germs of influenza were carried as dust in the air by the winds, or perhaps by the upper currents. This idea was dissipated by several memoirs that established the fact that the wind and weather were entirely subordinate factors and that the spread of the disease followed the lines of travel, especially the principal steamboat and railroad routes, and that, therefore, the germs were carried by diseased individuals or by articles that had been used by or had come in contact with them, and not by the winds. Of course the wind, in the narrow sense, may have carried the germs a few feet or rods from one individual to another, but not for distances of many miles. Several epidemics, such as the yellow fever, small-pox or cholera, have been traced back to the direct importation of their contagia (whether animate or inanimate) by human agencies. Furthermore it appears probable from experimental data that few disease germs can maintain their vitality more than a few hours when freely exposed to the air and sunshine as would probably be the case if they were carried in the atmosphere as minute particles of dust. Therefore we think it probable that the winds and the rain must not be considered as the means by which diseases are spread between places that are a considerable distance apart. The limit to which living germs can be carried in the free air is not yet accurately known, but is believed to be quite small. The upper currents of air carried the vapor dust from Krakatoa, in 1883-84, over the whole Northern Hemisphere, but many months were required to do this, and what little we know of the life history of disease germs teaches that they could not survive the sunshine, the dryness, and, perhaps, the cold of the upper currents. In the particular case of the spread of the epizootic and influenza epidemics of 1872-73 among horses and cattle, it was shown that they spread against the wind, or when there was a calm, quite as often as they spread with the wind.

The following extract shows the result of an extensive investigation by the medical department of the Prussian army into the spread of the grip epidemic of 1889-90. It illustrates what we have above said, and shows that we must not exaggerate the influence of the lower winds or the upper currents:
"If we now collect together the results of experience as to the spread of the grip in the German army, we find that the view still holds good which prevailed at the beginning of the epidemic, to the effect that the influenza is a disease that owes its origin to certain miasmatic external causes. On the other hand, there does not appear to be any sure evidence of the influence of weather, climate, wind, or soil, or the season of the year. To the contrary, the number of those cases in which the spread and the mode of spreading of the grip is to be attributed to human intercourse, is considerably increased by the experience of the last epidemic. It is not yet clear whether in this intercourse there is a direct carriage of the infectious material from person to person, or whether the infection is carried by the intervention of inanimate objects through the air. We are still ignorant of the real germ that causes the disease. A correspondent from Bavaria gives the following example, which leads him to believe that inanimate substances may house the real germs of the disease and carry them far away. The medical officer of the garrison at Gernersheim, at a time when as yet not a single case of grip had occurred at that place, received a package from a place in Russia, at which the disease prevailed severely. A short time after opening this package he fell sick of the grip, and soon after also his whole family. If it should be further demonstrated that dead substances can thus contribute to the spread of the disease germs, then perhaps in this way we shall explain the appearance of the disease upon ships on the high seas. The germs attached to the cargo carried by a ship, can, by spreading among the seamen, give rise to a violent, sudden outbreak of the grip."

The biggest bet on record, according to Mr. G. R. Sim, was made a few years back by a young American, who was assistant at "a main," held in the grounds of a notorious young sporting marquis, now deceased. One bird was badly crippled, and the other was fighting with terrible force. "Twenty thousand to a pinch of snuff on that one," said the young American millionaire, which was taken. The American won.

He threw his newspaper on the floor and waved both hands over his head, while his clenched teeth refused to give exit to the remarks which seemed struggling to come out.
"What's the matter, Orlando?" his wife exclaimed, though with less agitation than the situation seemed to warrant, for she was used to his ways.
"Every time I am reminded of it," he muttered, in a voice which shook, "I am filled with indignation."
"Every time you think of what, Orlando?"
"Of the way Europe gets our money. Our heiresses marry noblemen. European actresses and singers come over here and ship money home in barrels. They take it in so fast they're too busy to count it. The outflow of wealth from this country is something awful!"
"Well, Orlando, I suppose it's pretty bad. But didn't you know that you haven't had the leaky faucet in the kitchen attended to yet?"
"That is not the topic under conversation," he exclaimed, savagely.
"Not exactly. But you know, dear, you aren't going to have nearly as much trouble with the outflow of money as you will with the outflow from that faucet if they find out about it and make you pay a fine for wasting water."—Detroit Free Press.
Li Hung Chang's visit to France has cost the people of that country nearly $3,200, including the payments for his railway journeys and provincial excursions. The bill at the Grand hotel was just $1,900. The French papers are now asking whether or not their country will receive sufficient returns to pay for all this effort and expenditure.

LOCAL VIVISCOPE.
Cabbage and onions at J. E. Seale.

John T. Shaughter, of Gadsden, was in town yesterday.

Mrs. J. P. Christian, of Shelby, spent Monday in town.

Miss Susie McGee is a visitor here among friends this week.

Miss Rosa Graham, of Wilsonville, entered the Free School Monday.

J. G. Parker moved today into his elegant new residence on Court Square.

Miss Pearl Norris, after an extended illness, is now rapidly recovering.

Mrs. I. W. Bailey, of Calera, is a guest of her father's family at the Central.

No preaching in any of our churches last Sunday. This does not occur often.

After a lengthy visit to Mallory, Miss Mary Wagner returned home Saturday.

We regret that J. S. Falkner is unable to be at his post this week on account of sickness.

Jesse Liles and daughter, Miss Dora, of Alexandria, are guests of Rev. Mr. Liles' family.

Chancery Court was in session the first three days of this week, Chancellor Dowdell presiding.

We hope all our subscribers who owe for the paper will call in and settle when they come to court.

W. D. Kaley, of Vincent, gave us a pleasant call yesterday, and placed an order with us for stationery.

J. W. O'Hara left Monday for Howard college to wrestle with his studies for another nine months.

Hon. Cecil Browne and wife, of Shelby Springs, were guests of W. B. Browne's family Wednesday.

We have in stock 50,000 envelopes to print for the business men of this section. Send in your order at once.

A. F. Wilson, who recently purchased the property of the Calera Land Company, spent several hours in town today.

J. W. Johnston left yesterday for Talladega Springs to recuperate and regain his strength after his protracted illness.

FOR SALE.—A fine farm of 120 acres. Will sell either 40 or 80 or both, to suit buyer. Terms easy. Apply for full particulars to editor of Chronicle.

Another new building is in progress in East Columbiana. It is a dwelling being built by J. W. Johnston, to be occupied when completed by Abe Pinion.

A considerable number of Gypsies arrived in town this week and struck camps. It is almost needless to add that the horse-swappers are making things pleasant for them.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bell, of Shelby, were guests of friends in our city Monday. Mrs. Bell had been down to the burial of her brother, Mr. Louis Fort, of Marion Junction.

Lyman Clardy left yesterday for his home in Talladega, having completed his contracts here. He is a clever gentleman, does honest work and made many friends while here.

J. A. Edwards was here two or three days this week doing the preliminary surveying for the water works system, the contract for which having been signed, sealed and delivered.

J. O. Farmer will move next week into the Tom Milner dwelling in East Columbiana, and on Tuesday E. D. Hall will move into his new residence now occupied by Mr. Farmer.

Circuit court convened Monday afternoon, Judge G. E. Brewer presiding. The grand jury was organized with E. T. Witherby as foreman. Few cases have been tried so far this week.

Remember the poverty-stricken editor when you come to court. You cannot find a more convenient time to settle up. Our pathway has been thorny lately and we need the small amount each one owes.

Messrs. Joe and Ed Spencer, Clem Greek and Horace Hammond, accompanied by Misses Nellie Parker, Alma Duran and Myrtle Swain, gave several of their friends a delightful serenade Wednesday night.

We are informed that W. L. Davis has purchased from E. D. Hall the dwelling now occupied by the latter, and will move into his newly acquired property as soon as his contract at the poor house expires, which is October 1st.

J. L. Peters has moved his law office to the second floor of his two-story building on Main street, and carpenters are now at work on the lower floor putting it in shape to be occupied by W. A. Thompson and J. H. Hammond, who will open a mercantile business therein about October 1st.

There were quite a number of visiting attorneys in attendance upon circuit and chancery courts this week. We noticed J. B. Knox, of Anniston; Gen. E. W. Pettus and A. F. Reese, of Selma; Hons. Cecil Browne, S. J. Bowie and E. H. Dryer, of Talladega; Capt. W. C. Ward, Col. W. M. Bethea, Judge Pugh and J. P. Tillman, of Birmingham; Col. H. C. Tompkins and Chas. Jones, of Montgomery; Ex-Senator W. M. Lacey, of Dadeville; and Douglas Leger, of Centerville.

Mr. Bird and family, of Rockford, have moved to our city and are occupying the Smith dwelling in East Columbiana. A cordial greeting is extended them.

Jim Seale, the wide-awake hustler, who recently embarked here in the mercantile business, displays his sagacity by planting an advertisement in The Chronicle. He has a new stock of general merchandise and proposes to sell at a close margin. Read what he has to say this week.

To be out of style is the next thing to being out of the world. It is the rage now to send to The Chronicle job office for everything from a visiting card to a mammoth poster, and if you would "get in the swim" you must follow the procession. Call and see the stacks of work we are turning out. Seeing is believing, you know.

Shelby County Matrimonial Bureau.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

J. H. Cox and Mary E. Gardner, of near Vandiver.

Shed Lee and Mrs. Hattie Murphy, near Montevallo.

Reuben Townsend and Georgia Mathews, (colored) of Calera.

A serious but we trust not fatal accident befel Richard Cobb on Thursday last, near his home in Helena. He was standing on a trestle on the L. & N. railroad, holding a Winchester rifle, when he accidentally dropped the gun. In falling the gun struck a tie and was discharged, the ball striking Mr. Cobb in the right side bracing two ribs; then through his right lung and lodged under his shoulder. He is still in a critical condition, but the chances of his recovery are daily growing brighter. Richard is the youngest son of Ex-Gov. Cobb, and is a young man of rich promise. We, together with a host of friends here, earnestly hope he may soon fully recover.

Faculty of the Girls' Industrial School.

Chair of English and History—Miss Annie Kennedy, of Centerville.

Chair of Mathematics—Professor R. J. H. Simmons, of Ozark.

Department of Music—Miss Adie Lee, of Furman, Wilcox county.

Department of Art—Miss Edna McCombs, of Greenville.

Chair of Pedagogy—Miss Bessie M. Haley, of Jasper.

Typewriting, Telegraphy and Stenography—Miss Susie Fox, of Wytheville, Virginia.

Needlework, Millinery and Dressmaking—Mrs. G. Nelson, of Montgomery.

Domestic Economy, Scientific Cooking and Laundry Work—Miss Minnie A. Stoner, of Huxtertown, Ind.

A double wedding occurred yesterday morning at 9 o'clock at Stanton, Ala., in which one of our esteemed townsmen was a participant. The contracting parties were W. G. Parker, of Columbiana, and Mrs. E. A. McGee, of Stanton; W. T. Callen, of Clanton, and Miss Mary Phillips, of Stanton. They boarded the north-bound Southern train soon after the ceremony for this place. As they stepped upon the train a liberal sprinkle of rice was thrown by admiring friends and well-wishers. As the train passed through Maplesville a shower of old shoes greeted them. They arrived at 11:37, and were driven to the home of W. G. Parker, where a reception was given his friends. Mr. Callen and bride left on the afternoon train for their home in Clanton. The Chronicle extends cordial congratulations, and wishes both couples all the bliss possible in this world, and eternal bliss in the one to come.

Wilsonville Waifs.

To our surprise, we had the pleasure of noticing protector of widows, Terry, dismount the train at 11:54 on Sunday, and of course is spending a few days of pleasure at the place of luxury in the oaken grove.

How nice it is to have music taught in our little town, thereby having the pleasant smiles of the teacher glowing around our pathway.

Messrs. Mosely and Avery, of Shelby, attended the meeting at the Presbyterian church last Friday evening. The doors of our society are always open to you, boys. Come and be with us at the S. P. L. League Friday night and we will try and make it pleasant for you.

On account of illness, E. Williamson departed last Friday for Demopolis, thinking that the change would be beneficial to his health. We wish him a speedy recovery and an early return.

The series of meetings held at the Presbyterian church, began last Friday evening, conducted by Rev. W. I. Sinnott, of Columbiana, the regular pastor of the church. We trust that much good has been realized from this meeting, not yet visible. The services closed Sunday night with an addition of two members.

The regular monthly services will be held at the Baptist church next Sunday. Two more are to be baptized in the afternoon. The ordinance of baptism will be conducted by Rev. McCord, in Four Mile creek, near P. T. Ray's.

Justin C. Jackson, after a several days' visit to Tallapoosa, Ga., and thereabouts, has returned to the place of "loosest and wild honey."

W. W. McGowan, one of our most gallant young men, boarded the train last Thursday for Auburn, Ala., where he will pursue his regular course of study in his theological work. May he prosper to the very heights of theology and eloquence. We will miss him in many ways, and will often times long for his appearance before nine months shall have folded up her leaves of time. He was president of our S. P. L. League, leader in the Young Men's prayer meeting, aroma of our society, debater of our debates, and a helping hand in all that was to the upbuilding and welfare of our spiritual and mental faculties.

W. J. Weldon has resumed his course of studies at Howard college, leaving the fair ones to mourn his absence and weep for his presence.

Boys, we should have the courage and ambition of the ones who have bidden us adieu, in order to make a star of sparkling light in the future. Who would not sacrifice a moment of pleasure in youth and devote it to hard study in order to reach a glorious manhood in the future?

Compare the school of this place with that of other places in this state and of Georgia, of same inhabitants, and see where the balance of enrollment seeks the centre of gravitation. Attendance is growing larger every week, and present indications are that we will have a full school in a very short time, though in the midst of the hardest times and shortest crops in years past. There must be some attraction more than an ordinary school room. Shall I reveal the secret to you? It is the good and faithful efforts of our industrious teachers. Come, young men and ladies, and lend them your minds at "Oak Hill Park," and you will never regret the time and money expended. BOURGEOIS.

Harpersville Echoes.

T. J. Martin has been on the sick list for several days.

There were four additions to the Baptist church last Sunday by experience.

The Methodists will protract their meeting next week and the pastor will be assisted by his son, T. K. Roberts, of Montgomery.

On account of his wife being sick, Prof. Struck did not commence his school last Monday, as was advertised sometime ago, but will commence the first Monday in October.

By a unanimous vote of the church, Rev. B. F. Giles was elected pastor again of the Baptist church last Sunday, for another year.

The cotton is almost gathered, and the yield is much shorter than last year.

Late corn is a failure. Ribbon cane and sorgum are very sorry.

Mr. Martin has moved his mill from the big spring to the gin house on Broad street.

R. L. Flippin, of Birmingham, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. R. M. Borum, and will probably remain two or three weeks.

Rev. J. F. Parker requests us to state that he will be at Vandiver Saturday night and Sunday. Go and hear him preach; he is an earnest worker in the Master's cause.

Messrs. C. H. Flory, R. B. Posey, W. E. Millender, R. M. Borum, C. B. Henderson, also Messrs. Sallie Martin, Stella Posey and Rosa Wallace, all attended the Baptist Association at Cropwell last week. They report the association a grand success, religiously and financially, and speak in the highest terms of the hospitality of the good people of Cropwell and Easonville, who kindly cared for them during their stay among them.

We have a few bolters up here who are going to help to elect McKinley, by voting that bolters ticket which was put out by that party, who call themselves national democrats. Well there was a democratic party before these bolters were born, and there will be one when they are dead. They have left a hole in the party by withdrawing from it, but I don't imagine that it is large enough for any one to fall into it and hurt himself. Rah! for Bryan and Sewall.

Mrs. Hardee, of Texas, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Caldwell.

James W. Kidd, Esq., better known as the Colonel, spent all of last week in Birmingham.

This community was visited by a good rain Monday evening.

It was our good pleasure to attend the Coosa River Baptist Association at Cropwell last week. The attendance was very large and much interest was manifested. Rev. R. A. Kidd preached the introductory sermon. Rev. L. Law was elected moderator; Mr. Joiner, of Talladega, clerk and Frank Pope, treasurer. All splendid officers. Mr. Law had been clerk of the Association for 17 years, but was honored with the moderatorship at this meeting, and he holds the reins for such a "machine" very nicely. The various reports on all questions pertaining to this august body, were all well written and ably discussed, and I never attended a more harmonious session. But how sad it made me feel when I missed so many faces that used to attend this association. A few I will mention: J. J. D. Renfro, S. Henderson, W. W. Wilks, W. W. Kidd, Jesse A. Collins, the Mynatts a great many more, all good men, who are dead and have crossed over the great beyond.

JAKE.

Many years ago, Prince Bismarck bought of a Bohemian peddler a meerschaum pipe, to which was ascribed a power of forecasting the future. The man said Bismarck would serve three emperors as minister, and three important changes in life would be foretold by accidents befalling the pipe. Bismarck has since served three emperors. Two days before the present emperor refused him an audience the stem of the pipe came to pieces. Later, he chipped a bit of the bowl, and within a month the emperor dismissed him. The third sign is yet to come.

Free Pills.

Send your address to H. E. Bucklen & Co., Chicago, and get a free sample box of Dr. King's New Life Pills. A trial will convince you of their merits. These pills are easy in action and are particularly effective in the cure of Constipation and Sick Headache. For Malaria and Liver troubles they have been proved invaluable. They are guaranteed to be perfectly free from every deleterious substance and to be purely vegetable. They do not weaken by their action, but by giving tone to stomach and bowels greatly invigorate the system. Regular size 25c per box. Sold by Parker & Armstrong, druggists.

Your Boy Won't Live a Month.

So Gilman Brown, of 34 Mill St., South Gardner, Mass., was told by the doctors. His son had Lung trouble, following Typhoid Malaria, and he spent three hundred and seventy-five dollars with doctors who finally gave him up, saying, "Your son won't live a month." He used Dr. King's New Discovery and a few bottles restored him to health and enabled him to go to work a perfectly well man. He says he owes his present good health to use of Dr. King's New Discovery, and knows it to be the best in the world for Lung trouble. Trial Bottles Free at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

FLORIDA will have an election on October 6th.

On October 7th, Georgia will hold her state election.

THE Decatur Herald puts it this way: "Give us a silver dollar that can say: 'I know that my redeemer liveth.'"

THE New York World makes this important announcement: "If we do not build more school houses we must build more jails."

THE first steamer of the new direct line between Mobile and Hamburg, took on 10,000 barrels of resin as a part of her first cargo.

HON. JOSEPH WHEELER has been re-nominated for congress from the eighth district. This is Mr. Wheeler's ninth nomination.

THE enrollment of pupils at the state normal school for the deaf and dumb and blind, at Talladega, is larger than ever before.

QUEEN VICTORIA completed the 59th year of her occupancy of the British throne September 23. She has swayed the scepter of that vast realm longer than any other sovereign.

THE bolting fever seems to have taken possession of the country. Out in Colorado, for instance, a life-long democrat and patriot announces that he will support his mother-in-law in this campaign.

THEY have corn to burn out in Iowa. The school board of Buffalo Centre, in that state, has passed a resolution to use it for fuel this winter. Corn at 10 cents per bushel is cheaper than coal, they say.

FRUITFUL and Cleburne county is the place to grow grapes. One vine in a vineyard there produced 900 bunches of grapes this year, aggregating in weight 300 pounds. This vine is of the Concord variety, is 6 years old, and covers over 50 feet of trellis. All of the bunches were perfect, ripened evenly and were of excellent quality.

AN exchange that has had time to figure on the matter, says that it is probable that more than 2,000,000 young men will cast their first votes this year. During the last twenty years, the population of the country has increased about two-thirds. If the vote shows an equal increase it will reach nearly 14,000,000 in November.

INDIA'S cotton crop for this year will be the largest she ever raised. Last year she produced 3,296,000 bales of 400 pounds each. A significant fact is that of this crop her own manufacturers consumed 56 per cent, and only 44 per cent was exported. India cotton manufactures are largely exported to Asiatic and African countries. Here is a nut for England to crack.

THE Florida Daily Citizen, a paper of responsibility, and edited most carefully, says that "evidence is on record that the farmers of that state are more prosperous now than they were several years ago. A decade ago, between 800 and 900 crop mortgages were contracted in Leon county alone. This year the books at the court house show that less than 100 have been recorded."

THE appetite for alcohol can be dissipated by eating apples at every meal, says a physician, according to the Cincinnati Enquirer. Apples, if eaten in large quantities, possess properties which entirely do away with the craving that all confirmed drunkards have for drink. He says that in many bad cases which have come under his notice, he has been able to effect a cure by this means, the patient gradually losing all desire for alcohol.

THE officers of the agricultural experiment station of the Agricultural and Mechanical college offer their services to the farmers of Alabama and invite correspondence in regard to any subjects of interest, as to the use of fertilizers, injury to crops by insects, diseases of plants, and also diseases of horses and cattle, and generally in regard to any difficulties connected with agriculture that may admit of a scientific solution. All letters addressed to the Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala., will be referred to the proper officer for reply.

WILLIAM F. ALDRICH was nominated for congress at the Calera convention by the populists of this district. He claims to be the republican nominee also, and will support McKinley on a silver platform. On the other hand, H. A. Wilson says he is the regular republican nominee on a gold plank, and there is liable to be an entanglement somewhere along the lines.

DOMINIC I. MURPHY, commissioner of pensions, has made his annual report for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, to Secretary Francis. He says that there were added to the rolls during the year 20,374 new pensioners, there were restored 3,873 who had been previously dropped—a total of 44,247. During the same period the losses were 29,393 by death; 1,141 by re-marriage, (widows); 1,684 by legal limitation (minors); 2,852 because of failure to claim pension for three years, and 9,323 for other causes, an aggregate of 44,093. The net gain over the previous year was only 134. The whole number of pensioners on the roll June 30, 1896, was $70,678. While the rolls show a slight gain in numbers over the year immediately preceding, the amount disbursed for pensions was $138,214,761, a decrease of $1,592,576, as compared with the previous year.

A PECULIAR story comes from Worcester, Mass. When Bryan spoke there on Friday last his followers were aroused to a high pitch of indignation by the two flags which were displayed on the front of the building behind the speakers' platform. There was a big American flag bearing a portrait of McKinley and a red flag of even larger dimensions, emblematic of anarchy, on which was a portrait of Bryan. The silver men expressed their indignation forcibly, but no demonstration occurred. The building was occupied by W. H. Burns & Co., manufacturers of clothing. Sunday the factory was burned, the fire starting in the interior in some accidental manner. During the progress of the fire Dell S. Morgan, former chairman of the democratic city committee, sent the following telegram to Bath to candidate Bryan: "Thank God, justice has received her just dues! Burns' underwear factory which displayed the red flag in your honor Friday afternoon, is in flames."

BRYAN'S VOTE FOR WEAVER.

Much has been said about Mr. Bryan having voted for Weaver, populist candidate for president in 1892. That he did support Weaver he himself admits and nobody denies. But an explanation for his conduct is furnished by Senator Faulkner, chairman of the congressional democratic committee, who says:

"I have submitted the inquiries concerning Mr. Bryan's vote for Weaver in 1892 to Senator Gorman, who was a member of the democratic campaign committee in that year. He says that the national committee, of which Mr. Harrity was chairman, with Don M. Dickinson, chairman of the campaign committee, determined to request all the democrats in Nebraska and the states west thereof to unite with the Weaver people in carrying these states so as to prevent Harrison from receiving the electoral votes in Nebraska, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Oregon, Nevada and California, and as a rule the democrats followed the request of the democratic national committee. In addition to this, the New York World made an appeal for a special subscription to carry out the plan of the campaign determined on by the democratic committee; and therefore, whatever Mr. Bryan or any other democrat did in the support of Weaver, was at the request of the national democratic committee."

NO MONEY FOR ALABAMA.

Mark Hannah Comes to Town, But He Refuses to Listen to Southern Appeals for Financial Aid.

From the New York Journal.

Chairman Mark Hanna, of the republican national committee, arrived in the city yesterday. Mr. Hanna's coming was the signal for an unusual amount of activity at national headquarters. For the past week the return of Hanna has been anxiously awaited by a large number of southern republicans and bolting democrats, who desire financial aid, and who claim that if it is given they will be able to defeat Bryan in several of the southern states.

Two weeks ago, national committeeman Youngblood, of Alabama, called at headquarters and declared that, if given sufficient money, he could carry the state for McKinley. The money was not forthcoming, and he returned home. Yesterday, J. M. Faulkner, an attorney for the Louisville & Nashville railway, and ex-Governor Thomas G. Jones, of Alabama, arrived in the city to have a conference with Hanna. They are bolting democrats.

Mr. Hanna was too busy to talk with them. He was met at the depot by Secretary Osborne, of the national committee, who accompanied him to the Waldorf hotel. Shortly after 2 o'clock Mr. Hanna reached headquarters. He was joined there by General Horace Porter, Cornelius N. Bliss, committeeman Quay, Scott, Clayton, Secretary Osborn and Garret A. Hobart.

After the conference, it was stated that the subject of discussion had been the general situation. Mr. Hanna said McKinley would surely carry the middle West, and the feeling in the West was more favorable to him.

Teacher—"I find it impossible, sir, to keep your son from talking in school." Father—"Um! Some of these days that boy will be a United States Senator!"

Overproduction.

There's an over production of cotton.
An over production of corn.
Too much of everything is grown.
Too many people are born.
A surplus yield of wheat and bread.
Of potatoes, oats and rye.
Hog and hominy, ham and eggs.
And home-made pumpkin pie.
Too much to eat, too much to wear.
And cattle on too many hills;
Too many agricultural tools;
Too many plows and drills.
There's a surplus now of clothing.
Of every grade and kind;
Too many books and papers,
Too much thought and mind.
Too many men to do the work.
Too many women to weep.
More daylight than the people need.
Too much night for sleep.
Of Bonnets a surplus.
An over supply of wives.
Too many birds and blossoms.
More bees than there are hives.
More sunshine and more shadow,
Than is needed for the dell;
An over production of gravestones
More coffins than we'll sell;
An over production of ignorance,
A slight too many schools;
Too many poor, too many rich.
An lots too many fools.

Within Four Hours Three Tons of Basic Iron Were Cast Into Excellent Soft Steel.

From the State Herald.

Birmingham iron will produce steel. The fact now stands undisputed, as the steel is to be seen at the Jefferson Steel Manufacturing company's plant in north Birmingham.

Twice have the officials of the above plant attempted to convert Birmingham iron into merchantable steel, but as often did they fail.

Determined, however, to give the formula a fair test, the cupola of the steel plant was charged yesterday with a little over three tons of low silicon, or basic iron, made at the Alice furnace, this city, out of Red mountain ore, and in the incredible space of four hours, unprecedented in the history of steel making, the molten metal was cast into pigs. As soon as possible thereafter the product was tested in the company's laboratory, and the result developed a first-class soft steel.

The officials, when the result was made known, were highly delighted, and well might they be, for the work of yesterday is but a forerunner of what is to come.

Mr. E. F. Eusen, in referring to the test of yesterday, said to a State Herald reporter that there is now no room for doubting the efficacy of the Hawkins process in converting Birmingham iron into first-class steel. He was more than pleased with the result of the test and said he would start east in a day or two with samples of the newly made steel to prove to eastern capital that Birmingham is what she has always claimed to be, "iron center of the world."

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Tios Eggers, 139 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

LOCAL VIVISCOPE.

John Upshaw, of Coosa county, spent Wednesday in town.

Miss Myrtle Swain spent Monday and Tuesday in Talladega.

Mrs. McConaughy, of Montevallo, was a guest of friends here last week.

Mrs. G. V. Teel, of Clanton, is visiting the family of J. W. Thompson.

Fred Rogan, of Montevallo, was in town Wednesday and gave us a pleasant call.

W. J. Cannon, one of Sylacauga's cleverest citizens, transacted business here Monday.

Will Thomas is handling the yardstick at Milner's during the illness of J. S. Falkner.

Miss Susie McGee left Monday for Thomas, where she will teach school during the winter.

T. J. Martin, of Harpersville, dropped into our office today and enlivened us for a short time.

BORN—On Tuesday to J. P. Spencer and wife, a 14-pound boy. John says he will soon have whiskers.

J. W. Millstead, of Wilsonville, cheered us Tuesday with his handsome, beaming countenance.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Wortham returned home Wednesday from a visit to relatives in Talladega county.

The young people had a delightful social gathering last Friday evening at the residence of W. G. Parker.

Miss Lucy Bachus spent Monday and Tuesday in town, showing the ladies a fine line of millinery from Love-man, Joseph & Leob, of Birmingham.

The grand jury handed in their report Tuesday and were discharged. Thirty-four indictments were returned. The report is published in full in this issue.

Dr. C. C. Oliver, of Shelby, left today with his wife for Hot Springs, Ark. Mrs. Oliver has been in feeble health for several months, and hopes to be benefited by the water.

R. B. Posey, of Harpersville, our hustling agent, was in town a few hours last Friday. He will call on our friends in his town and Vincent, and we trust all will respond promptly.

C. A. Schaffter, an artistic and accomplished job printer, who knows the printing business in all its details, has accepted a position as foreman of our job department. Pile in your work and give him a chance to exhibit his skill.

We have now on hand a large stock of stationery as you will usually find in a city office—complete in every line. Call and see some of our work. We down any of 'em when it comes to first class, neat work. A trial order is all we ask.

The Chronicle Job office turned out Tuesday as handsome a pamphlet as can be printed anywhere. If you contemplate having any kind of printing done, call and see samples, or write to us for samples and prices.

Eulton-Ferrell.

On last Sunday morning at 11 o'clock the Rev. L. F. Goodwin joined in the holy bonds of matrimony, Mr. H. C. Eulton and Miss Florence Ferrell. Mr. Eulton is one of Ganadarque's most conspicuous young men, and has won for himself one of Yellow Leaf's most precious jewels. The marriage took place at the residence of the bride's father. The happy couple will live in the future at Ganadarque, and they have the best wishes of a large circle of admiring friends and acquaintances.

A FRIEND.

EDMUND H. DRYER.

Tahadega Man Nominated for Congress at Calera.

Calera, Sept. 30.—The convention of the supporters of Palmer and Buckner this morning nominated Edmund H. Dryer, of Talladega, for congress by acclamation.

The convention met yesterday afternoon but adjourned until this morning.

The officers of the convention were H. L. Stevenson, of Calhoun, chairman, and Joe A. Savery, of Talladega, and F. A. Gullledge, of Chilton, secretaries.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY.

To the Hon. George E. Brewer, Judge Presiding:

The grand jury empanelled at this term of the court, having finished its labors, submit the following as its final report:

Our examination of the bonds of the county officers satisfies us that they are good and sufficient.

The books and papers entrusted to the county officials have been inspected by us and are neatly and properly kept.

We have viewed the county jail and find it in good condition, the prisoners being well cared for.

The special committee appointed by our body to examine into the condition of the poor-house, report the unfortunate inmates as receiving proper attention.

The public roads throughout the county seem to be in good condition.

We have investigated 49 cases and returned into court 34 indictments, several being of a serious character.

Our duty requires us to make special mention of the fact that the law stipulates that justices of the peace and notaries shall make their reports to the grand jury the first two days of the term. While some have failed to comply with the statute in important particulars, others have omitted compliance altogether. As so many of our officials have but recently entered upon their duties, this grand jury has not seen fit to indict for these delinquencies, but urges that it is of the utmost importance that subsequent grand juries should not overlook these shortcomings, threatening, as they do, delay and expense to the county.

We regret to report that the illegal sale of whisky is on the increase in many parts of our county, and we earnestly ask the law-abiding people of the county to assist in suppressing this nefarious traffic.

We find from the law and workings of the county court, as now constituted, said court to be of great expense to the county and an unnecessary burden upon the treasury, absorbing the county money without giving adequate returns in the suppression and punishment of crime to justify the expense.

We therefore recommend that the present law be changed, or amended, in such a manner as to prevent the payment of any part of the expenses of said county court from other than the fine and forfeiture fund, and that no preference shall be given, claimed or created by the county court over the claims of the circuit court. We believe the time past when this court is a necessity and think it should be abolished.

This body finds that the Commissioners' court has made a contract for a system of water-works; and it desires to report that it does not approve said contract, inasmuch as the same has been made and entered into, it suggests to the Commissioners' court that the contract be modified or altered in this particular, viz: That the county shall have full and complete control and ownership of said system, and that part of the contract which allows Mr. Edwards to tap the pipe in two places, be cancelled.

At the beginning of this court the treasurer had on hand five hundred and fifty-three and 20-100 ($553.20) dollars.

We desire to return thanks to your Honor for the able and intelligent charge, and to the solicitor for his faithful services in attendance on this body, and also to our bailiff, Mr. Bailey, for careful attendance to his duties.

And, having finished our labors, we ask to be discharged.

Respectfully submitted.

E. T. WITHERBY,

Foreman.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Mr. P. W. Terry returned to his home in Birmingham last Thursday, but promises to be with us again on or about October 10th.

Miss Edna Waters, of Fayetteville, arrived in our city last Sunday and has entered school at the Wilsonville Institute in the Oak Hill Park. I wish her a pleasant and prosperous session.

William Waldrop, of Birmingham, spent last Sunday and part of Monday in our village; as the negro expressed it, "he was building mountains," I suppose.

Messrs. Will Tinney, DeRamus and Williamson, bided it to Columbiana last Sunday afternoon, and on their return one of them decided that the surest way to get home was to come in a buggy. His tire exploded.

If there was no other wheelman in town Alfred Ray would be the champion rider.

Miss Mattie Weldon boarded the train last Monday for the Judson college, at Marion. We wish her a prosperous and lively session. We will miss her in almost everything in which we participate, but cheerfully look forward to next June, when she will return to part no more.

Miss Cora Smith departed last Monday for Maplesville, Ala., to her school. She will be absent about four months. We regret very much that she has bidden us all adieu, but "the best of friends must part."

Boys, if they leave town two at a click many days, girls will be as scarce as "hen's teeth" in this town, and some of the boys will be nearly dead, won't they?

These girls have bidden us farewell. They're missed where ere we go. Their pleasing looks, their charming ways. Set pleasure in a glow.

We miss them in the parlor now. Their homes, and churches too. And ah, 'tis sad for us to know They bade us all adieu.

I know I was a friend to them. I think they were to me. It stung my heart to see them leave. But soon at home they'll be.

I am sorry to report the illness of A. A. Daniels, who has been in bad health for several months, but nothing serious until a late date. He has the sympathies of the people of this community and the hearty wish for a speedy recovery.

Amongst the visitors at the Literary Society Friday night were H. C. Dulbese, accompanied by Miss Myrtle Swain, of Columbiana. We hope to have them with us oftener; also many other friends of Columbiana as well as other surrounding towns. We are only a few miles apart; why not work together in society more than we have done in the past?

The young men's prayer meeting is improving at every meeting. Boys, come out and lend us your helping hand and you will never regret it, both converted and unconverted, great and small, short and tall.

Rev. McCord conducted his regular meeting at the Baptist church last Sunday and Sunday night. Quite a number attended the ordinances of Baptism in the afternoon.

W. J. Tinney is spending the week in Columbiana.

Juo. M. Kyth went to Helena Monday on business.

The Social, Parity and Literary League assembled last Friday night at the Wilsonville Institute. Our president and vice-president having gone away, the following were elected before the regular time of election: Justin C. Jackson, president; W. J. Tinney, vice-president, and G. E. Weldon will continue the good work as secretary. After the election of officers, the program for the evening was very nicely rendered. The recitation, by Miss Georgia Pope, was simply "out of sight." The debate, "Resolved that America has not reached her zenith," was decided in favor of the negative.

Below is our program for the next meeting, which will be at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Pope, Friday night, Oct. 9:

PROGRAM.

Instrumental Solo.....By Miss Mary Bolin
Dialogue.....By Calvin Weldon and Ose Tinney.
Vocal Solo.....By Miss Sallie Bolin
Speech.....By Justin C. Jackson—Subject, Daniel R. Russell.
Duet.....By Misses Parnie Pope and Olive Densier.

Debate.....W. R. Smith and Miss Georgia Pope. Subject—"Are the mental capacities of the sexes equal?"
Quartet.....By Jackson and Kyle, Misses Georgia Pope and Ella Brown.

Then comes the "social" part of our meetings.

Harpersville Echoes.

The long looked for rain has come. Cotton picking is on a standstill this week.

There were quite a number of our people attended court last week.

W. A. Gorman, of Howard college, was here Saturday looking after his mother's business.

Miss Mattie Kidd has returned home from Louisiana, where she has been spending several months.

Mrs. George Downs had the misfortune to fall Saturday morning and broke one of her arms.

McKinley is a Republican. Palmer is something worse; Bryan is a democrat. And is going to be the boss.

Miss Laura Davis, of Easonville, is visiting Harpersville relatives.

Prof. C. W. Florey commenced his school at Vincent Monday morning.

B. F. Moore, of near Vincent, has rented our his river farm and is to become a citizen of our town, and will occupy the Seale residence on Water street.

Prof. Strock will commence his school next Monday, and persons who have children to educate would do well to patronize our school.

George Green, a young white man, was sent to Columbiana jail Tuesday, accused of breaking into Mr. Martin's store last Thursday night. He had some of the goods in his possession when captured.

The Methodist meeting is in progress this week. Revs. T. M. Wilson, Juo. Corley and James Self are assisting the pastor, and Rev. Tom Roberts is expected tonight (Tuesday) and we hope that much good will be accomplished.

W. B. Hubbard is transacting business in Columbiana today.

"JAKE."

No Wonder. Mrs. Talcot—"What does make you talk so much in your sleep, Joseph?" Joseph—"Gosh! It's the only chance I ever get."

He—"Darling, we'll have a lot to contend with when we are married." She—"Yes, my dear, we'll have each other."

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are due to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the only remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

SHED TEARS NOW.

There Is Sickness and Suffering Down on Rocky Creek.

Some Down with the Fever, Some with the "Mullygrubs" and a General "Messment of Summer Complaints"—Talk of Blood and War.

Rufus, I do not know for certain and would rather not try to say, what is the matter where the trouble comes from—whether it is the great question of free silver or the scandalous hot weather—but anyhow, everything put together makes it look tremendous foggy on the creek to me.

Rocky Creek still runs down stream and ain't gone nowhere, you understand, but when I go out amongst the people in the settlement I find if it don't look to me like all things are coming wrong side out and tail end foremost.

"Mortal Man and Female Woman."

There is sickness and sorrow in the land this fall. Of course I recollect what the Word says—mortal man, born of female woman, is of few days and no teeth and full of various and sundry troubles. So long as a man remains over and tumbles around in this valley of dry bones he is brought as well to look for his share of trials and temptations and troubles and tribulations. But to the common run of men and settlements trouble most in generally always comes in little drops and dribbles, whilst in the durin of the present fall season of the year and to the long-sufferin people around Rocky Creek it has come in great chunks and gobs and sluices.

Everybody is "down in the mouth," as old Miss Sukey Sellers use to say. Some are sick with one thing and some with another. Some have got the chills and fever, some have got the plain slow fever, whilst some have got the mullygrubs, with a general mixtry and messment of summer complaints.

My doctrine is that if a man will pay his debts, put his trust in the good Lord, keep his liver movin and be honest and virtuous, he is bound to be happy. But right here lately I have found out that the general circumference of the surroundings has got a whole lot to do with a man's feelins. The general calamity is catchin, and if I want to feel bad and look bad, all I have to do is to get out and stir round some amongst the sorrowful and the sick.

I use to think to pour some sperits down was about the best and only way to keep my droopin sperits up. But in this present case I have now learnt that salts and snakeroot tea is the mainest thing, and I have come to that pass where I need a big dose every time I start out to visit around amongst the people.

"Rumblings of War."

Sickness and sorrow and the thoughts of free silver has got old man Pleas Warner mightly bad rattled in a general way, but particular in regards to the next war. Some of these gay and giddy people—like Andy Lucas and little Bunk Weatherford—are now wont to laugh at old man Pleas and poke fun at his troubles. But to me it is one of the most saddest cases in the recorded history of Rocky Creek.

About this time last year old man Pleas lost his wife—which they had walked hand in hand together through all these many years. Then along in the Christmas his son Tony stole a breech-loadin shotgun from one of the Watson boys over in the hill country, and consequently had to move his washin in somehwere way out west unbeknownce to the old man. And finally at last his only daughter—which they called her Sweetie, and if she had any right and proper name I never heard it—she packed up a little wallet of duds one bright and beautiful spring day and lit out and run away with a lightning rod peddler.

About that time old man Pleas was took down with a furious bad case of breakbone fever, which held him to the bed for three long and weary weeks. It was a long time that the neighbors didn't think he would ever come across, but he did. Well, right on top of that politics warmed up fast and furious, and everybody went to talkin free silver so reckless and promiscuous like till by gracious they got old man Pleas so bad rattled till he is now about ready to put on his weapons and go to war. He aint sick and he aint crazy so far as anybody knows, but he is sufferin from some tremendous fool notions concernin free silver and the next war.

He Is Ready, "Dadblame 'em."

"Hills a comin, Rufus, and you mought as well be ready and waitin when you hear the drum beat," says old man Pleas the other day when I had rid around by there to see what I could see.

"Don't the Word say there will be wars and rumblin of wars till the evenin of the last day?" he went on talkin loud and walvin his hands and gesturin and goin on like a man out of his head. "Of course the Word says that, Rufus, and you know it. You can hear the rumblin now. There is sickness and sorrow and death and ruin in the land. There is hard times and sorry crops and skeerce money everywhere. Free silver is what we want, Rufus, and free silver we will have to fight for. But the next war must come before we can bring the general government to taw."

"And as for me, Rufus, dadblame 'em, I am ready and waitin. Let the rumblin of war go on, and let the war come. When they call for men and guns Pleas Warner will be there with his old army musket, and dadblame 'em he will pick his flints and try 'em one more barrel anyhow."

And with that the old man went out and chopped some wood and built on a roarin big fire—which you understand the weather was swelterin hot right then and I didn't need any fire. But by this time I could see that he was foam-in-mad and I loved it might be a good time of year for me to lay low and say nothin. He next went down into his clothes chest and got out his bullet molds and three new bars of lead, and went to moldin bullets. As to me I soon had to go out and look for a shady place on the back porch—which you understand I want nobody's partner in the bullet business. But the first hit roared and the bullet molds they rattled, and old man Pleas got so worked up and hot till by gads he was sweat in like a free nigger on election day, whilst I could hear him talkin and goin on with himself at a high and scandalous rate:

"Let the rumblin go on and let the war come."

"There is plenty of lead in town, and my old army musket she ain't gone nowhere."

"We will fight 'em, dadblame 'em, till the cows come home and the evenin stars shint together."

"They call me old man Pleas Warner now, but I fit plume through one war and got my horse drowned in the Tennessee river, and dadblame 'em, I will pick my flints and try 'em another barrel."

When the sun went down the very native air was thick and hot. But in the main time I had throwed two buckets of water on the fire and got the old man in a notion to go down to the spring and cool off.

Now you mought maybe think old man Pleas Warner is crazy, and to be plum honest I don't raley think he knows anything for certain right now. But he don't have to do all the war talk for the settlement, and if he is crazy he can find lots of company around Rocky Creek. There are plenty of people in this pleasant skirt of woods talkin in about blood and war and the like of that. They haven't got it quite as bad as old man Pleas yet—which I believe he is the only one that's started to moldin bullets—but they have heard so much infernal fool talk about politics and free silver till they have come to the conclusion that somethin terrible is bound to drop.

It will take a whole passle of salts and snakeroot, and maybe a dose of calomel here and there, and then about three good frosts to bring this country around on her feet once more. But it will come. We must live in hopes if we die in the crazy Silliam.

"Pure Meanness and Pizen Stinginess."

The onlyst plain and reglar spell of crazy that has come to pass here lately was Jude Collins, which Jude he lives down in the old Panther Creek country, and he is the only one that's started to moldin bullets—but they have heard so much infernal fool talk about politics and free silver till they have come to the conclusion that somethin terrible is bound to drop.

"From what they tell me, Rufus, and from all the general appearments, I think it was pure meanness and pizen stinginess that made Jude's headgear jump a cog," said Ben Chris Weaver in givin out the mainest facts to me. "Of course you are bound to recollect the Collinses, which lived over there on the ridge and on yonder side of what we use to call Stinkin branch. Well, after the old folks died off Jude he turned out to be the mainest man in the family for business. The other boys was all wild and wayward, harum-scarum youngsters, but Jude he was reglar and steady as a rule old man before he got good grown. If the rest of the family made a livin Jude was dead shot to make some money, and if there was anything in the way of money—from ship plasters to free silver—floatin around the Collins place it was more than probable to land in Jude's flank pockets.

"Whereas naturally of course in the run of time it come to pass that the old Collins place belonged to Jude, and the other boys didn't have a blame thing to do but to pack up a few old clothes and move. Then I reckon it was somethin better than a year ago—some time in the fall of the year, at any rates—when a stranger from the city come bruisin around through the settlement and took up a notion all of a sudden that he would love to own the old Collins place. The stranger had plenty of money on him—which as everybody knows, Jude loves that stuff better than a town hog loves slops—and it didn't take him long to make a deal and close up the trade. He paid Jude $900 smooth and even for the whole entire place.

"Well, Jude never did git married—he was too rotten mean and stingy for that—and, consequently, he didn't have no big store accounts and feed bills to pay off. With what money he had saved up and what the old place brought in he had a gracious plenty to make any one man feel easy in regards to this world's goods.

"But durin the winter the stranger which had bought the old place sold out to a big company for $3,000, and all on account of that big spring up there at the head of Stinkin branch. You remember that big spring, Rufus, and you are bound to recollect how bad it smelt. We use to think somebody must of broke a hamper basket full of spoiled eggs into it about the first settlement of the country. Now, bless goodness, they say that water is out of sight for sick and sufferin humanity. They say it is chock full of soda and alum and iron and sulphur, and the Lord knows what not. And they are now buildin a fine hotel over there and boom in the old Collins place as the best place in the world for the sick and the sufferin to go and drink that water—which the old spring runs as free and smells as bad as ever—and git well.

"And that's what's the matter with Jude Collins, Rufus. Not that he needs any money, but jest to think of how he dropped the jug and spilt his molasses, whilst them town fellows come along and sopped it up. It is pure meanness and pizen stinginess, Rufus. But I reckon Jude is worth as much to the country ravin crazy, or even dead, as he would be livin and in his right mind."

At Least One in Rocky Creek.

The other day whilst I was layin around and lollin about—feelin worse than the outer edges of ruination—who you reckon rid up but old Misses Stinson? And that good old soul (may the tribe increase) loved she thought she would fetch me somethin that a sick man could eat. She fetched me three big baked yam potatoes, a quart of buttermilk and five corn killed eggs. Then by gracious she wanted to stay and see me clean up the pile, sayin how she did love to see me eat and enjoy myself. But I lied like a yaller dog and told her I had jest got through with a tremendous big dinner and would save the nice things she brought me for supper.

What about that buttermilk? Well, I soon climbed up on the outside of it. But you needn't to ask me what went with them yam potatoes. May the God of the widows and the orphans bless these plain old women like Miss Stinson. She was like the old lady that shot at her husband and missed him—her intentions was good.

But in the main time there is one man in the Rocky Creek settlement that ain't gone crazy by a whole tremendous big lot.

MR. BRYAN'S ACCEPTANCE.

The Democratic Candidate Hoidly Doth His Views.

Although the formal letter of acceptance made public by Candidate William J. Bryan, occupied but one-third of the space of that of his republican competitor, it managed to say ten times as much.

Mr. Bryan at the commencement of his letter takes his stand squarely upon the Chicago platform, and gives his assent to every plank. There is no doubt about his position; no hesitancy in defining his views.

In demanding that the expenditures of public money shall be conducted with economy, and in the interest of those of the people, irrespective of party.

In his denunciation of the recent bond issues, Mr. Bryan likewise appeals to the good sense of the American people. And when it is remembered that less than six months ago an issue of these bonds was marked by a gross favoritism which amounted really to a national scandal, Mr. Bryan's plain illustration of the pernicious system can be thoroughly appreciated.

In his reference to the national banking system, Mr. Bryan forcibly illustrates a bad feature of the American system of financing, which but few persons understand. This portion of Mr. Bryan's letter should be carefully studied by everyone who desires to vote intelligently. It will in a measure largely explain why the banking interests are solid for McKinley.

The hearty support of the Monroe doctrine is another feature of the letter, which will thoroughly please every true American. It is the doctrine of this country, and Candidate Bryan's reference to it shows that he is a keen observer of the hold it has upon public opinion.

By declaring his hearty support of liberal pensions for those who have suffered injury in the military and naval services of the country, Mr. Bryan reveals that the interests of the veterans can be safely confided to his care. It will nullify the effort of some to array the soldier against him.

BRYAN AND LINCOLN.

A Parallel Between the Two Great Champions of the People.

The Grand Rapids Workman draws an interesting parallel between the speech of Abraham Lincoln delivered in New York in 1860 and that of Bryan, recently delivered in the same city. Says the Workman: "The people of New York regarded Lincoln as a revolutionist and the organizer and leader of a black republican blood party."

He had denounced the supreme court in its Dred Scott decision as Bryan has denounced the same court in its income tax decision. Mr. Lincoln had behind him such men as Lovejoy, Wendell Phillips, Charles Sumner and William Lloyd Garrison, as Bryan has Altgeld, Tillman, Weaver and Teller. The slaveocracy of the nation, which included New York city, had its Brooks, who clubbed Sumner, as the moneyed plutocracy of to-day has its Herr Most.

The east looked askance at Lincoln, for they viewed him as an awkward backwoodsman, who talked with a nasal twang as pronounced as a Scotch bagpipe, wore No. 12 boots and had the facial make-up suitable for a comedian or clown. Lincoln was in the habit of speaking extempore and the eastern papers, when he spoke in Cooper union, were prepared to murder his speech, just as they had calculated to do with Bryan in Madison Square Garden, and Lincoln, to foil the duplicity of these scavengers of honesty, read his speech, just as Bryan did, for the same purpose.

The audience which Lincoln faced in Cooper union numbered 2,500, while that of Bryan was at least 12,000. Both complained of the rich and powerful, and both were ignored by that class. No Astors, Rhinelanders, Vanderbilts or Depews listened to Bryan, and the same class of men ignored Lincoln.

Lincoln was really more unfortunate than Bryan. The common people, with the exception of the blacks, were not his ardent admirers to the extent that Bryan has their good wishes, and the churches, largely the culture, and the seats of learning were against Lincoln, while many of that class are strong

This is once more enjoyed by the rheumatic wise enough to counteract their progressive malady with Hostler's Stomach Bitters. No testimony is stronger than that which indicates it as a source of relief in this complaint. It is also eminently effective as a treatment for kidney trouble, dyspepsia, biliousness, liver complaint and constipation. Use it with persistence for the above.

"I find that Walter Baker & Co.'s Breakfast Cocoa is absolutely pure. It contains no trace of any substance foreign to the pure roasted cocoa-bean. The color is that of pure cocoa; the flavor is natural, and not artificial; and the product is in every particular such as must have been produced from the pure cocoa-bean without the addition of any chemical, alkali, acid, or artificial flavoring substance, which are to be detected in cocoas prepared by the so-called 'Dutch process.'"

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

LEWIS GEHRT, of Bridgeport, Pa., has made an innovation in grafting quinces. Two years ago he grafted a white thorn tree and grafted a quince bud upon it. This year his quince-thorn tree contains a dozen large quinces, and no worms have appeared.

KING HORV took the town of St. Louis on the evening of the 2d. The keys of the city were delivered to him by Mayor Walbridge in the presence of thousands of citizens and the merry monarch, the Prince of Fauntleroy, resumed his reign amidst loud acclamations.

The United Association of Journeymen Plumbers, Gas Fitters, Steam Fitters and Steam Fitters' Helpers opened their seventh convention at the Builders' and Trades' exchange in Milwaukee on the 28th. The convention represented both the United States and Canada.

ALL the railroad telegraph operators on the Pacific division of the Canadian Pacific railroad went on strike, on the 20th, in obedience to orders from T. H. Pierson, chairman of the grievance committee at Montreal. Trains were running as usual on the Pacific division, and it was not thought any serious stoppage of traffic would result.

FIRE, on the morning of the 20th, destroyed nine business houses in Cadillac, Mich., among them the telephone exchange, causing a loss of $20,000, partly covered by insurance. The cause of the fire is unknown.

DURING the performance in the People's Palace variety theater in Aberdeen, Scotland, on the night of the 30th, a fire broke out and the audience was thrown into a panic and made a rush for the exits. It is stated that at least forty persons were injured, four of them fatally, while a number of others who are known to have been in the theater when the fire started were reported to be missing.

In Alexandria, the Virginia suburb of Washington, just across the Potomac river, the damage done by the storm, on the 30th, is estimated at not less than $100,000, and at least two lives are known to have been lost. Nearly 200 houses were badly damaged by the tornado in its course.

ONE of the worst wrecks that ever occurred in that section happened on the Lehigh Valley railroad a short distance east of Batavia, N. Y., on the 30th. As a result one man was killed and another probably fatally injured.

FRANCE has concluded treaties with Austria and Italy in regard to Tunis, and now England's refusal to renounce her "most favored nation" rights alone prevents Tunis from becoming absolutely French territory.

At Harper's Ferry, W. Va., on the 30th, an old man pushed into the thick of the crowd, declaring that he wanted to hear "The Boy Orator." Several brassy fellows lifted him to their shoulders that he might see as well as hear. He suddenly collapsed, and an examination showed that he was dead.

ANDREW NELSON, who was herding 3,000 sheep on the eastern slope of the Cascade mountains in Washington, was buried beneath the carcasses of 1,100 of the animals who were trampled to death in a stampede.

Two men, carefully disguised, committed a daring robbery at the Union Foundry Company's office, on the outskirts of Brighton Park, at Chicago on the 26th, securing $1,000 and making their escape.

EVERY department of the Pueblo steel plant of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, about which sensational reports of a general shut down were recently circulated has resumed full operation with a force of 2,000.

Two men, Thomas Gorman and Matt Gray, were cremated near Lansing, Ia., on the 27th.

CARLISLE'S COURSE.

Becomes the Mouthpiece of the Money Power.

It is fortunate for the people of this country that the money power, speaking through Mr. Carlisle, has announced the step that it proposes to take as soon as McKinley is elected. This announcement, as our readers know, is to the effect that if McKinley is elected, the money power will demand the redemption of the silver dollar and the silver certificates in gold, and that it will be able to enforce its demand.

It is fortunate that the announcement has been made at this time, for now the people of the country will be able to know precisely what they are voting for and what they are voting against. There is not a voter in the land so ignorant that he can fail to understand the nature of Mr. Carlisle's announcement.

Heretofore, the demand of the money power has been modestly confined to the redemption of the greenbacks and treasury notes in gold. It now declares, through Mr. Carlisle, that all forms of our circulating medium except gold are redeemable in gold.

In the even of McKinley's election, therefore, we confidently look forward to some very interesting experiences. Our people may imagine that they have had some very interesting experiences since 1893, when the country was placed in the mercy of the money power; but the experiences they have had during the past three years will not be remembered by the side of those they will pass through when the money power begins to contract the currency by presenting silver dollars and silver certificates for redemption in gold.

If Bryan is elected, Carlisle would not dare to carry out the policy of the gold owners, as outlined in his letter, for it would promptly lead to his impeachment. On the other hand, should McKinley be elected, the people may as well prepare for the tremendous squeeze which will depreciate the silver dollars so that, like the greenbacks and treas-

BRYAN PROGRESSING.

Success of the Representative of the Working People.

William Jennings Bryan is making splendid progress in his leadership of the forces of democracy to the victory that awaits them at the end of this campaign. He is convincing by force of clear, logical argument, and is winning votes by plain, simple statement of the truth. His speech delivered on Labor day to an enormous audience of voters was a striking indication of the temper of the time. No man is better fitted to speak to the laboring man on the subjects closest to his heart than this plain man of the people. Mr. Bryan is the friend of labor; and the men who make the strength of the great labor organizations of to-day recognize his friendship and respond to his efforts in their behalf.

The success of Bryan means the success of labor. His interests are the interests of the great working masses of the country. Their votes will elect the next president, and their votes are won for Bryan wherever he has opportunity to face and speak to them.

His efforts are meeting everywhere with success. He is educating the people. He clears away from the discussion of the financial question all the misunderstanding so cunningly created by the plutocrats. He tells the truth about silver so clearly and plainly that any man of common sense can understand it.

This is clearly a campaign of money against manhood, of plutocracy against the people. In spite of all the efforts of the millionaires, in spite of all the money so lavishly scattered by the Hanna syndicate, the party of the people is marching steadily on to success. Never in the history of this republic have the people had so splendid a leader as William Jennings Bryan.—Tammany Times.

HIS "MARK."

Given under my hand and seal.—Mark Hanna.

[McKinley, the first syndicate candidate ever introduced to the American voter, will as certainly belong to the crowd that holds his commercial paper, if he is elected, as Thurston belongs to the Union Pacific or Calfory to the sugar-planting interests of Louisiana. There is a volume of argument in the above picture. Study it.—Chicago Dispatch.]

ury notes, they can be presented to the treasury for enforced redemption in gold.

This would mean that all the silver money and all the paper currency of the country would rest on the slender basis of our available stock of gold. The inevitable result would be to double the demand for gold, and thus make that metal twice as valuable as it is now—giving us a 400 instead of the 200-cent dollar we now have.

The most conservative of New York bankers admit that our available stock of gold, for redemption purposes, is not more than $350,000,000 at the outside. On this slender basis would have to rest our whole supply of silver dollars, silver certificates, greenbacks, treasury notes, amounting to something like $1,400,000,000. One of the first results of McKinley's election would be the "depreciation" of silver dollars and silver certificates. That is to say, the associated banks of that city would decline to receive them in exchange for greenbacks and treasury notes at their face value.

Following this, the silver dollar and silver certificates would be presented at the sub-treasury for redemption in gold. The sequel would be the issue of more bonds until the total available supply of currency had been brought down to the point represented by the small fund of redemption money.

Such a tremendous contraction of the currency as this, with the constantly increasing value of money, would produce such ruin and disaster as have never been experienced in a civilized country in time of peace. That is what Carlisle's announcement means, and as the policy outlined by him can only be carried out in the event of McKinley's election, the people of the country have an opportunity of choosing Bryan and prosperity, or McKinley and ruin.—Atlanta Constitution.

If the axel grease and the Hanna fertilizer do not accomplish the desired results, it will not be because they have not been supplied in abundance by the McKinley magnates.—St. Louis Record.

United States, as shown by the census of 1890, $69,019,979,955. Annual interest on same, $397,442,792. Increase in debt from 1880 to 1890, 140.53 per cent! This annual interest charge equals the home market value of all the wheat and oats produced in the United States in 1895.

Pennsylvania's share of this monstrous mortgage debt is $312,105,893. Interest thereon annually, $34,105,663. To pay this interest charge for a single year, at present home market prices, basing product on census report of 1890, would consume all the corn, wheat, barley, oats, rye and buckwheat produced in the state in 1890, and then there would still remain a balance unpaid of about $2,800,000.

We submit that in the face of these facts it is high time for the cry of "demagogue, fanatic, rattle-brained fool and anarchist" to cease, and for the people to lay aside their partisan prejudice and as voters having the best interests of the whole country at heart to carefully study these figures and see if they cannot discover some of the reasons for the general depression in business that exists to-day.—Philadelphia Item.

To the popular recognition of this attitude of the leaders of democracy is doubtless due the great increase in democratic sentiment in this state. From present indications, this year will be one of democratic triumph in the Empire state. The progress of Bryan through New York is proof of this. Everywhere received with enthusiasm, everywhere assured of popular support, he was cheered because he was recognized by the great mass of the people as their friend.—Tammany Times.

Every trust which has contributed to the money that Hanna is said to have pledged for the Belshazzar fund is a violator of the laws of the United States. Is McKinley willing to have those laws enforced regarding the Belshazzar fund?—N. Y. World.

The best evidence that Mr. Bryan is a democrat, and a good and true one, is to be found in the study of his record in congress.—Los Angeles Herald.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

Complete Report of Failures for the Quarter Exhibiting a Surprising Increase. Partly Accounted for by Political Causes.—Continued Advance in Wheat—Reviving Confidence in the Stock Market.—Better Times Near.

New York, Oct. 2.—R. G. Dun & Co. say to-day in their weekly review of trade:

The complete report of failures for the quarter which ended Wednesday shows an increase which would be surprising if political causes were not obvious. In number 6½ per cent. less than in the panic quarter of 1893, failures for the quarter show liabilities 11.1 per cent. less, amounting to $73,285,349, against $97,859,682 in the previous half year.

The continued advance in wheat may prove of the utmost importance. It has been 1.12 cents for the week and ten cents since September 2, and is mainly due to short crops abroad and unusual foreign demand. Cotton has weakened after its sudden rise, because the demand for goods has relaxed into hand-to-mouth buying and print cloths are lower at 2.56 cents. Some injury has been done by recent storms, but the market seems not now in the humor to magnify them.

Reviving confidence is felt in the stock market, which has slowly risen an average of 79 cents per share for railroads, though trusts are weaker. While east-bound tonnage is large, from Chicago, in September, 249,108, against 241,154 last year, the westward movement of merchandise is small and rates are cut, so that earnings reported for September fall 3.0 per cent. below last year's, and 8.6 per cent. below those of 1892.

There are unmistakable encouraging signs in the great industries, although the actual gain in working force employed or in new orders received is slight. But the strong demand for materials, for pig iron, hides and wool, does not diminish, and has already gone far to stiffen prices.

In wool quotations are scarcely stronger, but represent actual sales more nearly than in past weeks, when buyers with cash almost made their own prices.

Buying of Bessemer pig again lifts Pittsburgh quotations to $11.75 without any general gain in the demand for finished products, and steel bars for the first time are sold at one cent, against 1.2 asked by the association for iron bars. Plates and rails are in less demand, but there is heavy buying of sheets at the west. Confidence that reviving business must bring a greater demand than all the works can meet induces the various associations to make no change in their prices. The minor metals are not strong, lake copper at 10½, tin at $12.50, and lead about 2.9.

The movement westward of money continues, and for the quarter has exceeded interior receipts by $31,000,000. The gold ordered for importation amounts to $43,250,000, and arrivals thus far to $40,544,550, besides $2,000,000 expected from Australia, which will raise the treasury reserve to about $130,000,000. Relief has been welcome in commercial markets, where seven per cent. is done more freely on west paper than eight per cent. recently, but October settlements cause momentary hardening.

Merchants and manufacturers are waiting, but there are not wanting signs that many have the confidence to invest and push forward as though the dawn of prosperity were close at hand.

FIVE OUTLAWS

Hold Up a Train on the Atlantic & Pacific—One of the Robbers Killed—A General Fusillade Ensues.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Oct. 2.—Atlantic & Pacific officials in this city have been advised that the west-bound passenger train No. 2, due here at 8:45 p. m., has been held up by five outlaws near Rio Puerco bridge.

United States Marshal Loomis, who was a passenger aboard, is reported to have shot and killed Cole Young, one of the robbers, directly after the train was stopped. Young's companions thereupon began shooting indiscriminately, and it is said, several passengers were either killed or wounded.

After terrifying the passengers and train hands into submission, the robbers cut the express car and engine from the train and ran them up the track a few hundred yards. An explosion followed, and it is supposed that the express car safe was blown open.

BISBEE, ARIZONA,

Washed Out by a Cloud-Burst—A Serious Disaster Feared.

TUCSON, Ariz., Oct. 3.—A report has just been received here that the mining town of Bisbee, Ariz., containing 2,500 inhabitants, has been almost entirely washed out by a cloud-burst. The telegraph wires are down, and the report cannot be verified, but a serious disaster is feared, as the town is located in a narrow canyon, which offers little chance of escape from floods.

Further meager reports from Benson confirm the death of Mrs. Ashburn and her children, Mrs. Zolk and her two boys and four Mexicans. The wires are still down, and the railway tracks are washed out in many places. The property loss will be heavy.

THOMAS E. WATSON

Confirms Not Neither Does He Deny Reports of His Retirement.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 3.—Thomas E. Watson will neither confirm nor deny the report that he contemplates retiring from the populist ticket. To a United Associated Presses representative he said this morning he had no comment to make as to the published reports further than to state that his retirement would defeat Bryan because the middle-of-the-road populists would vote for McKinley before they would for Bryan.

Joy Killed Her.

News of a strange and pathetic death comes from Tishomingo, Ala. Five years ago a young man named Charlie Vincent left home mysteriously, and during the years which followed there came no tidings of him to his anxious parents, who finally gave him up as dead. The other day young Vincent, who had been out west, came home, intending to give his parents a pleasant surprise. His mother was visiting at a neighbor's when he reached the house, so he sent another neighbor to tell her that a man wanted to see her at home. She came home immediately, and at the sight of her son, whom she had so long mourned as lost, she swooned away. Every effort was made to resuscitate her, but she died without having regained consciousness.

STATE AT LARGE.

S. W. John, J. W. A. Sanford.

The general assembly will convene at Montgomery on Tuesday, November 10—one week after the election.

KENTUCKY is sobbing over a whisky surplus of 90,000,000 gallons, whilst Philadelphia is experiencing a water famine. The human race is not easily satisfied.

DETROIT will be capable of irrigating fully 125,000 acres in course of construction in the Big Horn basin, in Wyoming.

THE French minister of agriculture estimates the wheat crop of France for 1896 at 118,965,093 hecto lites, against 119,967,745 in 1895.

THE pacing horse John R. Gentry now holds the world's record, one mile in 2:00, one second faster than Robert J. made last season.

THE letters of the illustrious John C. Calhoun, to the number of about 3,000, were recently found in an old box in the old home place.

THERE is a display of beets at the chamber of commerce, Los Angeles, each of which weighs six-five pounds and is four feet in length.

THE constitutionality of the Colorado law providing for the treatment and cure of indigent drunkards at public expense has been affirmed by the state supreme court.

"It only remains for me now," vociferated the fiery orator, "to say in the words of our eloquent leader, 'you shall not press the brow of corn upon the thorn of labor.'" And as he sat down the applause loosened the plastering.

IN the great fight this year between the people and the money power every man who desires relief from the curse of the single gold standard should cast his vote so that it will count. No man should allow his prejudice to lead him to throw his vote away.

GOVERNOR OATS has appointed the following commissioners for Alabama to the Tennessee exposition at Nashville: Mims Walker, Faunsdale; I. P. Culver, Montgomery; F. A. Vaughn, Dadeville; A. S. Fletcher, Huntsville; H. G. McCall, Montgomery; J. M. McCartin, Birmingham; and W. W. Garth, Madison.

THE recent advance in wheat is worth $36,000,000 additional to wheat growers of the United States. The rise in cotton means $60,000,000 more for cotton growers. While this has been going on the price of silver has fallen to an extent that means a loss of $4,500,000 on the silver product of the United States.

THE speed with which electricity has been adopted as a motive force throughout the country is demonstrated by the fact that of the 14,470 miles of street railway in the United States only 1,219 miles are traveled by horse cars. Of the total mileage New England has 4,684 miles; the Central West, 4,600 miles; the south, 1,900 miles, and the West, 2,317 miles.

A PREHISTORIC city, which apparently had a population of over 200,000, was discovered recently in Mexico by J. R. Kelley, an American archaeologist. This ancient city is situated in a narrow valley between two high ranges of mountains. Nearly all the buildings are of brown stone, and are in a state of almost perfect preservation.

THE people of Mobile, says an exchange, are beginning to reap the benefit of improved roads. For several years the county authorities have pursued a systematic plan of road betterment until about 120 miles are in tip-top condition. It has been done too, at a comparatively small cost. The result is that farmers and others can haul about twice as much with a team as they could under the old plan.

THE Luerne Journal, lately supporting the "national" democrats, has changed hands and again resumes work in the ranks of the Bryan followers. Speaking of future policy, however, the new editor, H. Y. Brooks, says: "The new management of the Journal propose to devote the paper to the building up of, first, Crenshaw county, second, Alabama; third, the United States. Politics will be a secondary consideration."

A MOBILE special to the Birmingham News of recent date says: Articles have been filed for the incorporation of the Mobile and Tuscaloosa coal and transportation company, Mr. Stephen Touart manager. The object of this company is to bring coal barges from the Warrior coal fields at Tuscaloosa to Mobile and New Orleans. About thirty barges will be built and two boats will bring about 3,000 tons at a tow. The company intends to commence operations early in December, when the river will be high, and will transport coal for retail, wholesale and export purposes. It expects to bring coal at 25 cents a ton, landing it in Mobile, after giving the company a moderate profit at $1.25 per ton. This is an important enterprise for Mobile. A barge line will realize the expectations of years.

ONE more flying machine has come to grief. The Albatross, the flying machine invented by William Paul, and with which he made a successful flight for a short distance, was put to a final test on the 27th ult. and smashed. The inventor said the wind was unfavorable. An ill wind has blown harm to many ambitious inventors and explorers. It prevented Andre from reaching the north pole in a balloon, so he says. It caused Dr. Nansen, who was bound for the same place, to turn back, he having expected to find an open current and drift with the wind in it to his destination. And it has smashed flying machines galore.

SAM JONES, the noted evangelist, made use of the following words in one of his sermons recently: "If I want to get a right square judgment I'd rather go into a newspaper office than a court of justice. No man whose life is true, pure and just, is afraid of all the newspaper presses in America. They are the best detective force in the country today. They have punctuated more shams, and as far as I am concerned, I say take the bridle off and let them go. The only ones that will be hurt will be the shams and frauds."

JOSE MARTINEZ, a Cuban, whose daughter and himself were nursed during illness by an American girl, Miss Elizabeth Almy, of New York state, about a year ago, died a few days ago and left to Miss Almy a sugar plantation in Cuba, said to be worth, even in its depreciated condition, $1,500,000. Such are sometimes the eccentricities of owners of large fortunes, but surely it is a delight to know that now and then there is to be found in the world such a thing as gratitude.

McKINLEY ON SILVER.

"I am for the largest use of silver in the currency of the country. I would not dishonor it; I would give it equal credit and honor with gold. I would make no discrimination. I would utilize both metals as money and discredited neither. I want the double standard."—From a speech in House of Representatives, June 14, 1890.

W. W. LEGGETT and Dr. Geo. P. Tyler, of Ripley, O., have made the following agreement: If McKinley is elected Dr. Tyler is to shave his head, gilt it and walk the length of Main street bare-headed. In case Bryan is elected Mr. Leggett is to shave his head, silver it and walk the length of Main street bare-headed.

A HEN at Anniston has gone in for the curious. She laid an egg the other day that is really two eggs, soft shelled, connected together so as to look like a dumb bell. In one egg is the white and in the other the yolk.

THE Egyptian cotton crop promises a yield of 1,250,000 commercial bales of 400 pounds each, or about 250,000 bales, the largest crop ever grown there. The quality is exceptionally high.

BRYAN IN NEW YORK CITY.

Extracts from a Speech Delivered by Him in Tammany Hall.

"The very persons who are crying that they are afraid that the law would be violated with impunity are the ones who have violated law with impunity."

"While I do not wish to array class against class, I am willing to array all the people who suffer from trusts against the few people who compose them."

"If I am elected as the chief executive I shall use all the power I have to drive every trust in this country out of existence as quickly as possible."

"It has been left to free America to set the example of a national party proposing to surrender the right of self-government and bind the people to the will of a foreign power."

"If our opponents be afraid to discuss the money question and rest the verdict on that alone, we are willing to let the public decide whether those who believe in free coinage of silver can be trusted with the government instead of the stock exchange, the money grabbers and those who are banded together to run this country."

"My friends, there is a great contest in this country which must be settled, and that is whether a few people banded together are more powerful than all the people of the country."

"There is one great consolation that I find in the opponents that have arrayed themselves against me—that by not having their aid in the campaign, I won't have their domination after the campaign."

"The various trusts of this country are collecting tribute from the people, and when we protest against it they call us disturbers of the peace and anarchists."

"I have such confidence in the justice of our cause that I believe that every day from now until election will add to the number supporting our candidates."

"Who is it that is so afraid that the law will not be enforced? It is those very persons who would suffer most if the law were enforced—the ones who have violated the law."

"Why is it that the great corporations are so solicitous about the welfare of their employees? Why is it that instead of paying wages and accepting their work as they would any obligation, they have commenced to teach financial school to those who are wiser than they are? Why do they also ask men to join clubs that are supporting the republican ticket, and why is it that they call them gold-standard clubs?"

"Mr. McKinley said in 1891 that the present president of the United States wanted to make money scarce and therefore dear, and now he stands by the platform which indorses the process and promises to carry it out and make money scarce, and therefore dear. He said in 1891 that the present president wanted to make money the master and everything else the servant, and yet he stands upon the platform that carries out the present policy which makes money the master and everything else the servant."

"If they tell you that the free coinage of silver will not increase the price of silver, ask them why it was that when India suspended free coinage the price of silver fell; and ask them why it was that when we suspended the purchase of silver under the Sherman law the price of silver fell, and ask them why it was that under the Sherman law of 1890 it increased the price of silver purchased by the government."

"There is nothing in the Chicago platform that would make the executive of the United States feeble in enforcing all of the laws of the nation, or feeble in defending the constitution of the nation, and there is nothing in that platform that assails the integrity or questions the honesty of the supreme court of the United States."

"No foreign nation has ever adopted such a policy as the republican party asks us to adopt. No party has ever gone before the country with such a proposition as the republican party now presents. So far as I know, no party has ever advocated a policy that would make the people of this nation dependent upon the decision of the people of some other nation."

"It seems to me that in the presence of the proposition made by the republican platform the people of this country ought to be awake to the dangers before them. What do we find? We find that a few men here are able to control the amount of gold, and that by sending it out of the country they are able to run down stocks, and that by bringing it back again they are able to raise the stocks and make a rich profit."

"We find that our financial system has been under the control of the stock gambler, the money-grabber, and that these men measure the prosperity of the country not by the happiness of the people, but by the stock market."

"I will call your attention to the fact that Senator Sherman, who has been the most successful politician in the republican party, declared that the people must have an increasing volume to accord with the increasing population. I said that Mr. Sherman was the most successful politician in the republican party. He has for twenty years or more borne almost alone the odium of having assisted in the demonetization of silver. His own party has not dared to commend him. The democratic party has time and again denounced him, and yet John Sherman has lived to see the day when he could make the republican party indorse his policy of twenty years. Aye, more than that he has lived to see the day when democrats who have been denouncing him for years get down upon their bended knees and kiss the dust and ask him to forgive them all that they have said against his policy."

"It is not many politicians who have the privilege of witnessing such a transformation."

"But why has he succeeded? Because he was the spokesman of a moneyed power."

"The power behind John Sherman himself has compelled the republican party to submit its neck to the yoke, and that power has taken in its grasp certain prominent democrats and torn them from their party."

A Valuable Prescription.

Editor Morrison, of Worthington, Ind., "Sun," writes: You have a valuable prescription in Electric Bitters, and I can cheerfully recommend it for Constipation and Sick Headache, and as a general system tonic it has no equal." Mrs. Annie Stehle, 2625 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, was all run down, could not eat or digest food, had a backache which never left her and felt tired and weary, but six bottles of Electric Bitters restored her health and renewed her strength. Prices 50 cents and $1.00. Get a Bottle at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

Estray Notice.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: Notice is hereby given that J. M. Brasher of Coalsville, Ala., did on the 1st day of October, 1896, take up about his plantation as estrays, one male and one female horse, both about nine years old, valued at $50.00. Also one brown colored horse about six years old, four years high, valued at $40.00. Said estray proceedings were had before P. S. Gilbert, Esq., of Coalsville, Ala., a Justice of the peace. This 2nd day of October, 1896. D. R. McMillan, Judge of Probate.

Seven pounds of coffee for $1.00 at J. E. Seale's.

W. B. Hubbard and Renfro Martin, of Harpersville, are in town for a few days.

J. F. Pope, of Wilsonville's merchant prince, was in town a few hours yesterday.

Miss Fanny Longshore returned Monday from a four week's visit to Atlanta.

Dr. J. B. Boyer, one of Wilsonville's clever physicians, spent Monday in our city.

J. T. Leeper paid the Magic City a flying visit Tuesday, returning home Wednesday.

Miss Leila Parker left Saturday for Jemison, where she goes to visit her brother, J. R. Hill.

Katie Graham, who is one of our public school pupils, spent Sunday at her home in Wilsonville.

Miss Mary Nichols, one of Montevallo's fairest daughters, spent Friday and Saturday with friends here.

Steve and Bremond Bristow, of Calera, were up Tuesday inspecting Columbiana's many improvements.

John Porter, formerly of this place, but now a resident of Blocton, was a visitor here Sunday and Monday.

W. A. Walburn, of Ganadارقة, accompanied by his wonderful (?) X ray, has been in town several days attending court.

Mrs. Flora Lefkowitz, of Bessemer, came over last Friday and will remain here during the winter with her husband at the White House.

FOR SALE—At reasonable prices, for cash, two houses and lots opposite court house and jail Columbiana. Will sell one or both. Apply to Mrs. Lizzie S. Walls.

If there is any one who doubts the advancement and prosperity of our city they have but to go about and see for themselves living evidences thereof on every hand.

The case of the State vs. Will Hartsfield, charged with the murder of Reed Page, has been continued for lack of time. The jail cases will continue the balance of the week.

The Shelby county teachers' institute, presided over by Superintendent Huston, held a profitable session here last week. The attendance was good, and considerable interest was manifested.

Dirt was broken yesterday as a starter for Shelby county's water works. Most of the material has arrived, and in the course of sixty days we hope to see the system in successful operation.

The following young people went up to Wilsonville, Monday night, to church: E. C. Parker and Miss Green, H. C. DuBose and Miss Wagner, Will Tinney and Miss Emma Wilson. They report a good time.

J. S. Bridges, city editor of the Selma Evening Journal, was in the city Monday and paid us a pleasant visit. "Sprat" has a host of friends in Shelby county who are always ready to accord him a hearty welcome. He reports business brisk in the Central City.

Public Speaking.

Hon. T. S. Plowman, democratic candidate for congress, and Hon. W. B. Browne, democratic nominee for elector, will address the citizens of Shelby county on the political issues of the day at the following times and places:

Montevallo, Monday, October 12, 11 a. m.
Shelby, Tuesday, " 13, 11 a. m.
Wilsonville, Wednesday, " 14, 11 a. m.

J. M. Kyle has returned from Helena.

Misses Virginia and Eula Mallory attended services at the Methodist church Monday.

Miss Rosa Wallace will teach a lesson in music at night, in addition to her day class, in the future. This will enable many to learn the art of music that could not otherwise, if they will only summon courage enough to engage in the study. We are glad of this, as she will be with us all the time, which means sweet music in Wilsonville.

Young men, do you know that we have a good school in Wilsonville? Board can be secured with nice families at reasonable rates, and you will have an opportunity to study music, book-keeping and short-hand at night, if desired.

The Methodists have been carrying on a series of meetings for the last week. The services were conducted by Revs. Cary and Wilson. We trust that much good has been derived from this meeting.

Protector of widows Terry, is again in our city. Present indications are that he is protecting many by means of life insurance. "It's a good thing, push it along."

Messrs. DuBose, Thetford, Grandpa Parker and Tinney, of Columbiana, accompanied by Misses Swain, Wilson, Green and Wagner, attended services at the Methodist church Monday night. After the services they went to Mr. Pope's where they passed away a few fleeting moments socially, and sad was the hour of departure.

The literary society will congregate next Friday night, if the meeting is not in session. All that are interested in the program published in the last issue are cordially invited to be present, and we will try and make it pleasant for you. Come and be with us.

FREE SILVER CAMPAIGN SONG.

TUNE—"WAIT FOR THE WAGON."

We are going to elect a president. The gold bugs will see their fate; It will never be McKinley Nor a gold bug advocate.

CHORUS—Jump into the wagon, The free silver wagon. The Democratic wagon And let's all take a ride.

The good old time will come again Of our fathers in days of yore. With plenty of money through the land Made from silver ore.

CHORUS—Good old times will come again, Long enough hard times have been; We are going to rout the gold bugs out And elect free silver men.

CHORUS—Hard times we will no longer endure, The gold bugs have had their way; You bet we are going to rout them out On next election day.

CHORUS—The gold bugs have for advocates Such as Cleveland and Carlisle; We will march them out of office In quick time, double file.

CHORUS—The silver men are on the march Throughout the entire land; They are going to free themselves From the gold bug tyrant hand.

CHORUS—Our candidates now are in the field, The silver people will combine And will elect them sure. It's Sewall and William J. Bryan.

CHORUS W. G. NORWOOD.

SUFFERING IN SILENCE.

Women are the real heroes of the world. Thousands on thousands of them endure the dragging torture of the ills peculiar to womankind in the silence of home. They suffer on and on—weeks, months, years. The story of weakness and torture is written in the drawn features, in the sallow skin, in the listless eyes, in the lines of care and worry on the face.

Inborn modesty seals their lips. They prefer pain to humiliation. Custom has made them believe the only hope of relief lies in the exposure of examination and "local treatment."

Take ten cases of "female weakness" and in nine of them "local treatment" is unnecessary. The reason why modest, sensitive women should submit to it. McLEER'S is a vegetable wine. It exerts a wonderfully healing, strengthening and soothing influence over the organs of womankind. It invigorates and stimulates the whole system. It is almost infallible in curing the peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and painful derangements of woman. Year after year, in the privacy of home—away from the eyes of everybody—it effects cures.

WINE OF CARDUI is sold for $1.00 a bottle. Dealers in medicine sell it. Five bottles usually cure the worst cases.

OUT OF THE WOODS.

Fresh from the People Around Rocky Creek.

Bill Simpkins and His Bird Dogs Make Trouble—Deacon Joiner Comes Up Most Feloniously Drunk.

The gonebyest and most tremendous fuss and confusion you ever heard tell of, perhaps, white people, is now going on between the Larys and the Simpkins.

It is all on account of a dead dog, which in the fullness of life and flesh belonged to Bill Simpkins. Whilst I haven't been down there in the thick of the fuss, as it were, the mainest facts in the case have come to me on the general rounds.

The Wherefores and Whencefores.

It would seem like Bill Simpkins sent the dog from town down there for Dan Lary to train in hunting.

"What little I don't know in regards to dogs and guns and such like must of been tore out of the books before my day and generation," says Dan, and that settled it. Bill sent his fine dog right on down to Flat Woods next day, and on the next return mail he got the news that the dog was well stricken with backshot from a shotgun in the hands of a man by the name of Lary.

Dan sent word to Bill that he was mighty sorry but the dog went mad and he was necessary compelled to kill him. But in the meantime Bill had lit out for Flat Woods to see about it—which, he says, that dog cost him $15 as a puppy and $50 wouldn't of bought him. Naturally of course he was a heap more sorry about it than Dan, but he didn't git mad till Dan put in to give him all the facts and general circumference of the calamity.

"You ought to know, Bill, that I did mortally hate to do it," says Dan, "but the blame dog was ravin mad. If there is anything in signs, and I felt like it was my private and public duty to kill him on the spot. It was rather early for huntin anyhow, and the weather was sweeter hot, but I got down my old musket that evenin and started over to the swamp, thinkin maybe I mought jump some rabbit or pick out a few squirrels. We had got way over there in my pea field nearly to the swamp, and the dog was runnin round and round like he had struck a hot trail and lost it, when all of a sudden like he stopped short and quick as if he was shot and straightened out his tail, tremblin all over, and froze stiff in his tracks. I loved at first maybe he had et somethin at dinner which went back on him—seen him tremblin all over that way like somethin was hurtin of him powerful. I called and called, and whistled and whistled till my mouth was tired, but he wouldn't budge nary inch. Then I thought I would go up close and look at him and see if I could tell what was the matter. And, man, sir, it did jest naturally beat anything I had ever saw. The blame dog was plun paralyzed from the end of his nose clean back to the tip of his tail, and he couldn't move a peg. I whistled and called, but he didn't move. I holloed at him and kiked him, but he didn't stir a hair. Bile, Bill, I don't believe the blame dog could move, and more than that I took particular notice that he was pantin and foamatin at the mouth considerable. If that want a mad dog, Bill, then I hope and trust I will never see one. At any rates, he was either foamatin mad or ravin crazy, and I loved his time had come to die. So I backed off a few steps and cocked my gun and let him have it—which you understand I had put in a load of buckshot that evenin so as to be ready if in case the dog mought jump a turkey or a deer. After that it was all over with the dog. He limbered up and fell when the load of buckshot struck him, but if it hadn't been for that I reckon no doubt he would be standin right there now stiff as a poker, or either ramblin around, creepin through the country, bitin everything in sight and given people the hidryphobus."

The Birds Were There.

"Did you see any birds around there?" says Bill.

"Birds?" says Dan. "Well, I should say. And right along there, Bill, is where my huntin luck shows up plum marvelous. When the gun fired a big drove of partridges flushed and riz and blamed if I didn't find three dead ones layin around there on the ground which I had killed with stray shot."

"That was a bird dog—the finest that ever went to the field—your long-haired, cream-eyed bird," says Bill, "and you are the dumdest biggest fool in 17 states and territories."

And from that the whole thing started. Bill got hotter and hotter as they went on till he said everything he could lay his tongue to except his Sunday school lesson, whilst Dan held out and maintained to the last that "the durn dog was either foamatin mad or ravin crazy."

The women folks have now put their fingers in the pie and stirred and talked and talked and stirred till such another mixtry and messment you never heard tell of. The dog is dead now, and I am in hopes that Bill will recover and let the rest bile down and cool off and quit. Dan Lary is hot stin and a whole passle of it anyhow, and when it comes to his shootin he not only can't tell a bird dog from a coon dog, but he wouldn't hardly know the difference between a dog and a man.

The Deacon "Feloniously Drunk."

One day week before last Deacon Joiner went to town and that night he came up "most feloniously drunk." That was none of my business, and no skin off my shins, you understand, and I wouldn't be spread in the news now if it hadn't already leaked out promiscuous in the settlement. Everybody in this country for miles and miles around knows that Deacon Joiner got drunk. A even to the deacon knows that to the extent that he don't sorter half way make out like he didn't git drunk.

But the most strangest part of the outness is that the deacon now swears and maintains that he didn't drink

"narry drop of spirit," so help him God. On Saturday night before the last Third Sunday, which is regular meetin day over at Bark Log—where for somethin better than 30 years the deacon has held forth as one of the shinin lights—he had the old rooster up before the church on a general, sweepin charge of drunk and disorderly.

Now, as I said before, it was nothin to me, and I am the last man in the world to be meddlin and mixin myself up with things that don't belong to me. But it so come to pass that I was over at Bark Log that day and heard the deacon give in his side of the strange and peccious case. From what the deacon says with his own mouth it was nothin more and nothin less than a plain and regular case of drunk, but the way in which he says it was bring on—that's where the rancid and fishy smell comes in.

The Deacon "Fesses Up."

"I will have to own up to it, brethren, that I was drunk—most feloniously drunk!"—says the deacon, as he went down into his side coat pockets after his old bandanna handkerchief and mopped out the salt water which had backed up in his eyes. "That I must go on and tell you and I would swear to it on a stack of Bibles ten feet thick and a mile high—that I never drunk nary single drop of spirit, so help me God. No doubts it will be hard for some of the brethren to believe that—particularly them that have traveled the downward road for lo these many years and are consequentially familiar with the common way of bringing on a plain, old-fashion drunk. But nevertheless, henceforth and notwithstanding, brethren, I never drank nary single drop of spirit. I have spoke the truth—the naked unwashed truth—and nothin but the truth, so help me God."

"But everybody says that Deacon Joiner was drunk. So he was—so he was—and it was the most filthiest and low downest drunk that has ever come to pass amongst the members of Bark Log church. And yet I never drunk nary single drop of spirit that day."

"How did it come to pass? Well, you see, brethren, I had went to town that mornin, and one of the hands on the place—which his wife and seven of the children was all sick abed with chills and fever—he ask me if I wouldn't be so kind, condescendin and obligin as to fetch him a quart of spirit. So I had got the spirit accordin, and as I rid along the road on my return back home that evening I broke out all over with the mad itch in spots as big as your hand. The more I scratched the worse I got with the itch till it did naturally look like I would go slap slam crazy. It was wrong, brethren. I know it was wrong, but I then got mad—mad to think that I had lived this way and had fleetin world clust up to 70 years, and then finally at last had to break out with the itch. Some people mought maybe call it skin rupture or the exemas, or by some other fancy name, but to me it was the itch—nothin but the itch, and a scoundin bad case of it. As I rid on I got so bad till I would have to dismount and git down along the road and rub and scratch myself agin the trees like a mangy, lousy hog. Then presently I thought about that quart of spirit which I had bought for the sick, and says I to myself, it maybe mought cure the itch. So I went down into my saddle bags and got out the bottle, hitched my horse and slipped off down in the woods, crawled out of my shirt and poured on the spirit, and rubbed, till my itchin skin soaked up all the spirit, and then I felt a whole lot better. I then mounted my horse and rid towards home. I didn't feel any more sufferin from the itch, but I didn't go more than a mile or so before I felt the spirit powerful. At first I didn't know what in the round created world was the matter with me—I did feel so tremendous loose and mellow and rich and good. But presently I was took with a powerful swimmin of the head, and then I got sick—so orful, mortal sick. About that time I reckon I must of fell off my horse, and henceforward after that I didn't know a blessed thing till I woke up at home next mornin with my head feelin as big as a hamper basket, and—and—but I reckon the brethren can see the pint I am drivin at. But the itch was gone—knocked sky high and cured on the first round."

"I have now give unto you all the mainest facts of the case, brethren, and I hope you will deal kind and gentle with me accordin. I am willin for you to know—I am willin for the whole discovered world to know—that Deacon Joiner got drunk—most feloniously drunk. But please remember that I never drunk nary single drop of spirit."

All Lovely at Bark Log.

The case was then turned over to a committee of 15. The committee went out and held a confabulation. Finally at last they reported back in favor of findin the deacon not guilty, providin he would promise on his word as a Christian man that he would never more use spirit in a plain case of itch.

Old Parson Travis was there, and whilst he want on the committee, he said if he was in order he would love to make a few scatterin remarks in passion. He was bound to believe what Deacon Joiner said in regards to the itch and the spirit, but yet still he thought it mought be the best thing they could do to withdraw church fellowship from the deacon for a few months at any rates. "If you don't do somethin along that line, brethren," says he, "I am fearfully afraid there mought be a general breakin out of the itch amongst the members at Bark Log."

But the committee stood footloot on their report. The deacon put on his long-meter face and gave his solemn vows accordin. And now once more all is lovely over at old Bark Log.

Searchlights as Riot Quellers.

The electric searchlight was used recently to put down a riot in Lancashire, England. A manufacturer, whose men had struck, was determined to keep his mill going and he promptly secured new hands and set them to work. At the same time he fixed a searchlight on the factory building to prevent the strikers from setting fire to the sheds erected for the new hands. During the continuance of the strike this light was used nightly in conjunction with the police established in the works, to scour the country and to illuminate the parts where pickets were placed. It was found so effective that a large number of temporary police were dispensed with.—Chicago News.

The Latest Form of Robbery.

A colon in the Indian army met with an unpleasant adventure recently while dining at a boulevard restaurant in Paris. A well-dressed young man, who was seated opposite him, suddenly rose and walked to a siphon over the colonel's shirt front, apparently by accident. The young man was profuse in his apologies and insisted on carefully wiping the officer's front and neck with his serviette. While the colonel was putting his collar and tie straight in front of a mirror, the stranger paid his bill and went out. When the officer came to his dinner he discovered that his pocketbook, containing about $1 in French and English notes, had disappeared.—Westminster Gazette.

THOUGHT HURTS THE TEETH.

Brain Workers Have More Trouble with Molars Than Laborers.

A prominent New York dentist made the statement the other day, which he said was backed by the highest scientific authority, that intellectual pursuits play havoc with the teeth, and that the more a man toils with his brain the more likely are his teeth to disappear or become diseased before he reaches middle life.

The reason why people in this country have poorer teeth than those of any other country in the world is because they live at the highest possible pitch of nervous pressure. Savage races generally have teeth superior to those of civilized races.

There are many unusual occupations, too, that have a bad effect on teeth. Quicksilver miners, bleachers who use chloride of lime, people employed in soda factories are some of those who suffer. But the most harmful trade of all, not only in its effect upon the general health, but also upon the teeth, is that of making matches. The phosphorus used in their manufacture affects in some way the health of the teeth of those who handle it.

Artificial teeth are made of all sorts of strange substances nowadays, but probably the most curious of all materials used for this purpose is compressed paper. A dentist in Germany has been making them in this way for many years past. False teeth were never so cheap as they are to-day and at the same time never so dear. They can be purchased as low as three dollars per set, or they may cost as high as $1,500. There are expensive dentists as well as expensive doctors, and it is not an uncommon thing for $500 to be paid for a new outfit of molars.

When it comes to expensive teeth—or, rather, an expensive tooth—prob-ably the most costly and most highly prized in the world is that of the sacred monkey. It is in one of the temples of Siam, preserved in a gold box. The value the natives put upon it may be judged by the fact that they paid $3,750,000 to Portugal for its ransom when the fortunes of war placed it in the possession of that nation. The Cingalese also venerate as sacred a monkey's molar, while the people of Malabar worship one of the elephant's grinders. In the Tonga islands a tooth from a shark's jaw is regarded with great reverence, and in India the faithful adore a tooth that is said to have once been in active service in the mouth of Buddha himself.

The first dentist, in fact, must have lived long before Buddha. At any rate there were dentists in plenty in Egypt and Greece 500 years B. C., who used gold for filling teeth and who were given for fixing artificial ones. Gold has even been discovered in the teeth of mummies known to be many thousands of years old.—N. Y. Times.

Effect of Open-Air Exercise on Longevity.

M. Sargent, of England, has published some remarkable facts showing the influence of outdoor occupations and exercise in lessening the rate of mortality; that of all indoor occupations, if long continued, in raising the rate of mortality among the classes following them. The greater longevity of persons living in the country appears to be almost wholly due to the fact that the greater portion of time is spent out of doors. Though occasionally exposed to all sorts of inclement weather, these ruralists attain a much greater average longevity than any class of professional men, tradesmen, shopkeepers or mechanics who spend the greater portion of their days working or sitting in a confined atmosphere. It is even shown by Mr. Sargent's splendid array of statistics that the city scavengers and sewer men, who are daily exposed to all kinds of foul odors, are longer-lived than the tradesmen and professional people, owing, no doubt, to the vital influence of the open air in which they spend most of their time.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SURPRISED HIS PHYSICIAN.

From the Courier-Journal, Louisville, Ky. "Yes, my name is A. J. Nicholson, and my address is the Bull Block, Louisville, Ky., and I am the man you have heard of as so persistently and so enthusiastically proclaiming the merits of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

"Up to the first of last March I can truthfully say that for twenty years I had suffered all the agonies of an inferno, and death would have at times been a welcome visitor. I had muscular rheumatism in its most vicious form, supplemented by what the doctors called tuberculosis of the bones. I was almost constantly under the treatment of a physician and spent a considerable portion of my time in the hospital. In 1892 I spent three months in that institution where I underwent severe surgical operations for relief. Almost all the money I could raise from whatever source went for medicines in one way or another. I would try any and every remedy that was suggested, but I finally concluded that the doctors were right in saying there was no hope for me as an invalid. My right leg became rigid and stiff, the joints refused to perform their functions in any degree. At length the pains attacked my left leg also, and my remaining life was in the lower limbs. I also suffered in the shoulders and arms, though not so badly as in the lower limbs."

"About the first of March last, I read an article on Pink Pills, and while very dubious as to the result, I concluded to give them a trial. I used one box without deriving any benefit, but the rigidity and stiffness soon began to disappear from my leg, the excruciating pains became gradually less, and my joints revived under the exhilarating prospect of getting well, and before a great while I was able to go to work. I have not yet discontinued the pills. I am just over the sixth box, which I think will be the last. I feel that I owe my life to this extraordinary preparation, for I don't see how I could have lived under the most incessant torture I was enduring. It is not strange, under the circumstances, that I should lose no opportunity to tell my friends about this remedy and to urge upon all afflicted as I was, to give it a trial."

(Signed) "A. J. Nicholson." Subscribed and sworn to before me this 28th of May, 1894.

The physician who attended Mr. Nicholson is Dr. Jas. S. Chenoweth, one of the best distinguished in the city. His office is at 245 West Broadway, where a reporter found him and asked about Mr. Nicholson's condition while under his treatment. The doctor remembered the case and corroborated what Mr. Nicholson said in regard to the latter's deplorable condition and about the operation performed on him at the hospital. The doctor seemed surprised to learn that his former patient was now almost entirely well, since he did not believe when he last saw him, that he would ever be well again.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are sold in boxes (never in loose form, by the dozen or hundred, at 50 cents a box, or by mail for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists or directly by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

NURSERY HYGIENE.

An infant's thirst is not quenched by milk; it needs clean water to drink with regularity.

Plain, boiled water, given between feedings, will often aid the digestion, and satisfy the child when restless.

Never put a bottle nipple into your mouth and then into the baby's mouth; this will often prove dangerous.

An infant is a creature of habit, and usually responds to the wish of the mother, if the mother has order in her will.

More infant's lives are taken by over-feeding than by starvation; never liken an infant's digestion or diet to your own.

Cholera infantum would be of rare occurrence if proper attention was always given to the quality and quantity of the food.

Do not feed the baby because she cries; this may be due to pain, and it is harmful to fill an infant's stomach at such a time.

Regular habits, proper food, and long hours of sleep are necessary conditions to a healthy infant. The three prime essentials in the nursery are fresh air, good food and pure water.—N. Y. Ledger.

CURRENT TOPICS.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

The great parade of democratic clubs held in St. Louis on the evening of the 2d is said to have been the greatest political demonstration ever held in that city.

HENRY H. EMORY has been appointed by the president interpreter to the United States consulate at Che-Foo, China.

JAMES COLAN was arrested in Chicago, on the 6th, by a private detective of the Wabash road, charged with selling forged passenger tickets on the Wabash system. Colan, it is said, succeeded in selling more than $2,000 worth of tickets. Twenty forged tickets were found in his possession.

On the 6th United States Marshal Cron arrested a man named W. R. Smith, at Fargo, N. D., wanted by the Chicago authorities and charged with larceny. It is understood Smith is a member of the jewelry firm of Smith, Pratt & Co., Chicago. He disappeared from that city several months ago with several thousand dollars' worth of diamonds.

On the 6th inst. 30,000 strangers were present in Kansas City, Mo., to witness the opening parade of carnival week. The keys of the city were handed over to King Ki-Ki and Queen Karnation by Mayor Jones.

On the night of the 5th W. Bourke Cockran, of New York, addressed the largest assembly that had yet crowded its way into Convention auditorium in St. Louis. Fully 20,000 persons were wedged in. Outside thousands struggled unsuccessfully to gain admission.

On the 6th the convention of Good Templars of the United States opened at Chippewa Falls, Wis., at Agnew's hall, with a general reception. Addresses of welcome were made by members of the local lodges and responses were given by visiting delegates.

At Charleston, W. Va., on the 6th, ex-President Harrison was greeted by the largest crowd ever at a political meeting in that state. He arrived from Richmond, and spoke at 2 p. m. to an audience variously estimated at from 10,000 to 15,000. His appearance was greeted with tumultuous applause.

WILLIAM EDWARDS, Q. C., fourth Baron Kensington, died suddenly, on the 7th, while hunting at Roxburgh. PASSENGERS arrived at New Orleans, on the 6th, by the Royal Mail line steamer Breakwater, from Porto Cortez, say that a revolution is fomenting in Honduras and is liable to break forth at any moment.

POSTMASTER-GENERAL WILSON has issued an order prohibiting such notices as "Please send out" or "Please post up" being placed on the wrappers of third-class mail matter. Such notices will subject the matter to first-class rates.

The house of Henry Campbell, of Westford, Otsego county, N. Y., was burned on the morning of the 6th. Mr. Campbell and his wife, both about seventy years of age, living alone, perished in the flames.

The Ohio and Kanawha river packet Columbia struck a snag at Red House Shoals, W. Va., on the 7th, and sank, breaking in twain. The passengers had narrow escapes, but the expedition work of the party with yaws prevented any loss of life.

The Spanish authorities have arrested several persons in Madrid upon allegations of their having been implicated in the rebellion in the Philippine islands.

A BLOODY SEQUEL.

To the Bank Robbery at Sherburne, Minnesota.

A Deputy Marshal Shot and Killed by John D. Sair, One of the Robbers, Who Flees, Hotly Pursued—Wounded by a Deputy, He Suicide in a Cornfield.

WELLS, Minn., Oct. 9.—John D. Sair, who no doubt engineered the robbery at Sherburne, Wednesday afternoon, is dead, as is also Marshal Gallion of Bancroft, Ia. This bloody sequel to the Martin county tragedy came a few minutes after nine o'clock this morning in a bloody battle near Elmore, Minn. A posse of 100 men, in command of Deputy Sheriff Ward, of Martin county, got on the trail of Sair shortly after daylight and tracked him to a farmhouse.

Deputy Ward knocked at the door and was answered by a woman, but before she had spoken three words Sair rushed up behind her and began firing over her shoulders at the officers. He fired seven times in quick succession, one of the bullets striking Marshal Gallion in the forehead and killing him instantly. The desperado then quickly ran out of the house by way of the back door, mounted his bicycle and dashed off toward the east.

The posse caught sight of him and followed close behind. This chase was kept up for four miles, when Sair broke a pedal on his wheel and took to the fields on foot. As he ran across a cornfield toward a clump of trees Deputy Sheriff Ward dashed up, dismounted and, resting his gun upon a tree, fired a shot from his Winchester, which took effect in the robber's shoulder. The latter fell, it was supposed from the shot from Ward's gun, but when the posse gathered around him it was found he had shot himself in the head, the shoulder wound only being a slight one.

Upon examining the body the officers found a portion of the money stolen at Sherburne in an inside pocket of his shirt, the amount being about $600. Fastened to a belt around his body were two revolvers and a wicked-looking dirk knife.

The body was taken to Sherburne. The body of the dead marshal was taken to Bancroft, back to-night. Bicyclists are being held for identification at Preston, Blooming Prairie and Dubuque, Mo.

THE STEAMSHIP PARIS

Crossing the Atlantic with Her Starboard Engine Broken Down.

New York, Oct. 10.—Capt. Albers of the Hamburg-American express steamer Faerst Bismarck, from Hamburg, Cherbourg and Southampton, on arrival at quarantine at 7 a. m. reported that Thursday, October 8, at about noon, the American line steamer Paris was sighted in latitude 41, longitude 66, lying still. At 12:30 p. m. approaching near by the Paris, engines were stopped until the cause of the trouble could be learned. A boat was lowered from the disabled steamer and came alongside the Bismarck. The officer in charge reported that the starboard engine had broken down and asked that letters be taken to the New York agents. No assistance was required and Capt. Watkins sent word that he would proceed to his destination under the port engine.

Horrible Tragedy.
An Indiana Friend Butchers His Entire Family and Himself.
NOBLESVILLE, Ind., Oct. 10.—Evidence of a horrible tragedy were discovered at the home of Albert Bray, a farmer three miles from this city. A neighbor, on going to the house and failing to get a response to a rap, forced his way in and found the bodies of Bray, his wife and their two little children, aged three and six years, upon the floor of the bedroom in which they slept. Bray was still alive, but the others were dead. The father expired shortly after the discovery, without gaining consciousness. A bloody razor was lying at his side, and it is supposed that he committed the awful butchery with it.

Bray was 30 years of age, was a member of the Friends church and sect, and had always borne a good reputation.

RIFF PIRATES

Again Committing Depredations Upon Passing Vessels.

MADRID, Oct. 10.—News has been received by the government that the Riff pirates are again committing depredations upon passing vessels, having become bolder than ever. A strong band of Rifians boarded the French ship Corinto, off Athucena, and after plundering the crew plundered the ship's cargo. The Spanish steamer Sevilla, conveying Cuban exiles, to Cuba, appeared upon the scene and fired upon the pirates. The fire was returned and a fight ensued which lasted some time. Four men on board the Sevilla were killed, including a Cuban prisoner named Oscar. The pirates finally retired, but carried with them the captain of the Corinto.

THE TURKISH BUTCHER

Calls Back the Fugitive Armenians Under Penalties If They Fail.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 10. The porte has issued an irade declaring that all Armenians who shall hereafter flee from Turkey shall lose their citizenship and will not be permitted to return. Those who have already left the country are warned that if they do not return within two months they will be forever afterward debarred from returning, even though they may be provided with foreign passports, which will not be accepted.

A QUARTER CENTURY

Has Elapsed Since the Terrible Chicago Fire and A Great Celebration Was Held in Commemoration of the Progress Since Made—The Occasion Taken Advantage of to Make Political Demonstrations.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—Twenty-five years ago to-day the city of Chicago was laid waste by the greatest conflagration of modern times. To-day, in commemoration of that day of dreadful havoc and suffering and progress of what is now the second city of America.

The anniversary was taken advantage of by local managers of the presidential campaign to make a demonstration in advocacy of the continuance of the present financial system, republicans and gold democrats joining forces under the directions of the Business Men's Sound Money association of which has never been seen in this or probably any other American city. As a counter demonstration, the command free silver forces will to-night give a torchlight parade, which promises to be quite as notable as the day parade of the gold men.

Probably in the history of Chicago there has never been such a number of people congregated on its streets. The sidewalks along the entire route of the parade were a congested mass of humanity, which was with great difficulty kept from blocking the streets by the constant activity of an immense detail of police. The day was made a general holiday. The board of trade and nearly all business houses were closed, and to swell the crowds thousands of people came from the surrounding country, the railroads reporting the heaviest traffic since Chicago day at the World's fair three years ago.

Not a street car was allowed to cross the river from the north and west sides, nor were any south side cars permitted to invade the district set apart for the parades. Every bridge was closed to vehicles, and all traffic on downtown streets was suspended.

Banners and flags waving at intervals across the streets, and from every tall building other float, while the front of almost every structure is a mass of red, white and blue. Many of the show windows also are elaborately decorated in honor of the occasion.

From the thousands of paraders arose a mighty roar—cheers, yells, music of innumerable bands, the sounding of horns, little and big, the penetrating howling of immense megaphones, and the thousand and one other noises that mark the passing of a great political parade.

At two o'clock, along the line of march immense open-mouthed telephone receivers had been attached to wires leading directly to the homes of Wm. McKinley and Garrett A. Hobart, and to various eastern cities, into which were announced the names of each organization as the great column passed, and then a mighty shout went up that was intended to be and no doubt was heard a thousand miles away.

Observation stands were erected at frequent intervals, and not only were they filled to their utmost capacity, but every building had its throng of spectators filling its window spaces—some of the thrifty tenants even renting seats in desirable windows for half a dollar apiece. Many distinguished people from outside the city witnessed the great parade, among them being Mark Hanna, who reached the city Thursday, and who, in company with the members of the Republican national campaign committee, viewed the sights from the Union League, and Generals Palmer and Buckner, the anti-silver candidates for the presidency, who watched the parade from a stand in front of the Palmer house.

Depew, of New York, and Secretary of Agriculture Morton, who were to deliver addresses here to-night, were also interested spectators; as also were Senators Teller and Pettigrew and Congressmen Towne, Dubois and Lind, who addressed the free silver forces in the afternoon and evening.

The night demonstration in point of numbers and enthusiasm was a success. The streets through which the procession passed were crowded with spectators and they came prepared to accord the marchers the greatest encouragement.

As to display the procession was scarcely as gorgeous as that of the gold advocates in the day time, but this was not unexpected, as the silver people gave it out early in the week that they would attempt nothing in the way of spectacular effects.

The banners as a rule were of an impromptu order, and many of the mottoes were trite in their application and were wildly cheered at all points. One in particular, bearing the inscription: "Our bosses are watching," caught the crowds on the sidewalks, who, perceiving the point covered, were not slow to display their appreciation.

A very pretty sight was a float, on which were seated 17 young ladies of whom 16 were dressed in white, with silver adornments, and one decked with gold. The significance of this display created unbounded enthusiasm. The young ladies enjoyed the applause and responded by waving United States flags.

Bryan lithographs in profusion were noticeable, and cries of "What's the matter with Bryan? He's all right!" resounded on all sides.

About fifty bands, each of which discoursed patriotic and martial music, were in attendance.

Scarcely a man in the parade but had a horn or other sort of instrument to add to the noise of the occasion, and those who had none used their lungs to good advantage.

Over 30,000 men were in line, the north and south divisions moving first, the west side contingent joining in when the rear of the first two reached Randolph and Market streets.

HANNA AS A JOURNALIST.

A Great Money Collector But an Editorial Failure.

As the financial manager of a political canvass Mr. Mark Hanna is an imposing success, but as a managing editor he has not as yet exhibited the smallest ability. The gold-standard press of the east is being conducted with a stupidity that amazes, and necessity must soon compel a change in the plan of campaign if the fight is not to be given up. Hauling cannot be sustained at concert pitch with good results for months at a stretch, and so far Mr. Hanna's newspapers have given their strength to hauling. Unmistakable hoarseness has ensued, as a matter of course. Everybody who can read has been long aware that the single-standard press wishes to be understood that any man who offers an argument in favor of bimetalism is a fool, a lunatic, a repudiator, a rogue and a loathly foe of the national honor, of which Mr. Hanna and the contributing trusts and syndicates are, for this occasion only, the special guardians. If the gold-standard press has anything else to say on the subject of finance, the time has certainly arrived when it should utter itself with some effort at coherency.

The readers of Mr. Hanna's newspapers this side of the Alleghenies know a good deal more about the money question than they did a few months ago. They have learned that there is plenty of sanity behind the silver cause. For one thing, they have been listening to and perusing Mr. Bryan's addresses, and such of these readers as desire to remain gold men not unreasonably yearn for something better in reply than dull jeers and cheap abuse. The humblest man who has read Mr. Bryan's Brooklyn speeches is fully competent to answer everything that he has heard from the gold advocates, and to supply them with great stores of needed information besides. In those speeches Mr. Bryan exposed the dangers, the folly, the criminality of our existing system of finance, gave sound reasons why he should reopen the mints to silver, and in his comprehensive, masterly way met and overthrew the objections, sincere and pretended, of his more rational adversaries. The average man can understand these clear presentations of fact and these strong arguments quite as well as any of the literary gentlemen who serve Mr. Hanna, and whose only response is mere yelling of the tiresome cries that insult the intelligence of the American voter.

That "ugly trail" which Mr. Bryan left behind him on his previous tour of this region, and that so alarmed the "sound money" men, is being broadened and made uglier each day. His appeal is to the good sense of his hearers, to their patriotism and the self-interest that is to be served by the general prosperity of the country. He leaves it to his opponents to make appeals to the prejudice and non-social self-interest of the rich and selfish. Votes against the gold standard, against the further manipulation of the currency, against more bond issues, against continued vassalage to Europe, by the thousand every 24 hours by these speeches. Mr. Hanna cannot, but be aware of this, yet such is his incapacity as a managing editor that he permits his press to pursue a course that enormously emphasizes the effect of the addresses. As a collector of money, Mr. Hanna is a Napoleon, but in journalism he is away down at the crossroads level, and should McKinley be beaten and himself by the loss of his fortune, find it needful to go to work, we fear that it would task all his journalistic powers to fill an editorial position.—N. Y. Journal.

WHY THIS SUDDEN SOLICITUDE?

Chorus of Capitalists and Employers (Quoting from Sound Money Pamphlet, "Facts for Working People," Form No. 6):—"The workingman who votes for free silver deliberately agrees to pay twice as much for everything he buys and to accept HALF PAY for all he sells, namely, HIS LABOR."

repudiating its principles, but they worship the shadow of democracy by falsely retaining its name. They should do openly what they are doing secretly. They should declare for McKinley and not try further to hoodwink the people.—Buffalo (N. Y.) Times.

THE ACME OF ASININITY.

Only Answer of Goldites to Bryan's Arguments.

The goldbugs have reached the acme of asininity. The renegade press gave much space the other day to an account of a meeting held by a republican club where a certain Mr. Wise, of West Virginia, took occasion to express himself. It is evident that his name is a misnomer, for this peculiar gentleman said that the only way to answer Mr. Bryan's argument was to throw back one's head and shout: "You're a liar! you're a liar! you're a liar!"

Precisely. That is the only way Mr. Bryan's arguments can be answered by his friends and supporters of plutocracy, and it is notoriously the only way in which they have attempted to answer them. We have had occasion so frequently to remind these gentlemen that abuse is not argument, and vituperation is always unconvincing, that it seems superfluous to do so now. But that is the truth of the matter, and it would be well for them to heed it.

Since they cannot advance any sane argument in support of their position, they should take refuge in silence. Their only sensible attitude is that of the Hanna automaton. To McKinley silence is golden, indeed.—Tammamny Times.

The goldbug press reminds one of the Satyr of Esop, who blew hot and cold with the same breath. At one moment they claim that the only effect of free silver would be to double the enormous wealth of the silver mine owners, by doubling the value of their product, and the next moment wail piteously that the country would be flooded with 53-cent dollars.—Nashville Sun.

One of the charges which Mr. Bryan is compelled to face is that he is not solemn enough for a presidential candidate. For that matter, Mr. McKinley is manifesting enough solemnity for all the presidential tickets in the field.—N. Y. Journal.

SECRET FRIENDS OF M'KINLEY.

Shallowness of the Gold Democrat Pretense.

What a hollow mockery is this third ticket movement, to be sure. Will anyone assert seriously that the men calling themselves democrats and shouting against Bryan will try to elect the third ticket? Such a thing is preposterous. They are McKinley men, every one, and advocacy of third candidates is the means by which they hope to retain the name of democrats, so as to participate in party affairs hereafter, should they, instead of the people, be in a position of party control.

If they were disinterested, if they believed in what they preached, if they were patriots, as they say they are, why should they refrain from doing openly and honestly what they are doing by stealth and deceit? In the name of democracy they are seeking to vitiate the will and do not the purpose of a vast majority of the party as represented in both the state and national conventions.

They say they are democrats, that supporters of Bryan are not democrats. Who is the judge of that which constitutes democracy? Does the possession of enormous wealth impart a superior intelligence? Is the man worth a million more a patriot than he who receives $1.50 a day? Is Russell Sage, the miser, a better man than an honest, charitable farmer?

If, as the third ticket men say, they are the real democrats, why didn't they elect delegates to the regular democratic state convention? They did not elect a single delegate to the convention, although they attempted to do so. Why didn't they? Because they are a small minority. They don't represent popular feeling. They are a class. They form a coterie of dissatisfied and disgruntled democrats whose personal interests would be affected by expansion of the present close-fisted currency medium. They sacrifice the substance of democracy by the shadow of democracy by falsely retaining its name. They should do openly what they are doing secretly. They should declare for McKinley and not try further to hoodwink the people.—Buffalo (N. Y.) Times.

HOT AFTER GEORGE TAYLOR.

Deputy Marshals Trailing Him in the Indian Territory.

GUTHRIE Okla., Oct. 10.—Deputy United States Marshal Frank Canton left yesterday morning with four assistants to try and locate George Taylor, the murderer of the Meeks family. The men are trying to keep all their movements secret, and it is impossible to learn the route they have taken. Taylor is supposed to be in hiding in the Creek nation, where Canton claims to have seen and spoken to him. The escaped murderer, it is said, has organized a gang of outlaws, which promises to become as dangerous as those headed by Dalton, Doolin and others. A few days since Canton reported that Taylor was living in an Indian camp, having taken up the life of the red man. He said that he had made an effort to get Taylor to talk, but did not succeed. Canton learned that the Meeks murderer appeared among the Indians on September 19, having gone into the nation by the way of the Sac and Fox agency. Canton had been given a tip that Taylor was located in the mountains near Hollings' mill, in southwest Missouri. The deputy, with a few men, started for the place, but the assistants changed their minds as to the advisability of hearing the lion in his den. Taylor, it is presumed, hearing of the intended raid, changed his quarters, going into the land of the Indian. A second raid was planned, but Taylor learned of it and again changed his location. Canton is a fearless man, and is determined to land his man and secure the reward.

CORNING, IOWA.

Visited by Destructive Fires—A Human Body Discovered in a Burned Box Car.

CORNING, Ia., Oct. 10.—Corning was visited yesterday morning with a terrible conflagration, involving the loss of a third of its business houses, of a total value of $150,000.

At three o'clock the fire alarm awakened the sleeping inhabitants to discover that the large Reynolds grain elevator at the depot was ablaze. The waterworks being out of order, little could be done, and the high wind soon spread the fire in every direction.

A GREAT OCCASION.

A Full Account of the Opening of the Girls' Industrial School - An Impressive Scene Well Painted.

Montevallo, Oct. 13.-(Special Correspondence State Herald)-Yesterday was a proud day for Montevallo. The occasion was the opening of the Industrial School for white girls. The day was all that could have been desired, and the spirit that permeated our people was in full keeping and sympathy with the surroundings. Everything was in readiness. All the members of the faculty were at their posts. The old college building had been renovated and renewed and with open doors was extending a cordial welcome.

Lovely girls from all sections of the state had been dropping into our town in beries and groups for a week or ten days. Visitors, parents and guardians were also on hand.

Early in the morning the citizens of the surrounding country began rolling in in buggies, carriages and wagons. Expectation was on tip-toe. Governor Oates and several members of the board of trustees were in town. Other prominent citizens of the state were present. It was evident long before the hour appointed for the opening that a red letter day for Montevallo was at hand. By 9 a. m. the streets were thronged, and shortly after that hour the throngs of people began to wend their way to the college building. By 10 o'clock the large chapel was full, and by 10:30 it was full to overflowing, standing room being at a premium. The overflow numbered 300 or 400, while those in the building were estimated at between 600 and 700.

At 10:30 o'clock President Reynolds rapped for order. Seated on the platform were the members of the faculty, Governor Oates, Messrs. Wadsworth, of Autauga, Plowman, of Talladega, Eager, of Montgomery, McQueen, of Jefferson, of the board of trustees of the school, and other prominent citizens. Immediately in front of the stage, arranged in three sections, were the pupils, the young ladies of the school, while in their rear were the citizens, ladies and gentlemen, friends of the school, who had turned out in large numbers to witness and take part in the interesting exercises. Order being secured, President Reynolds announced that the exercises would be opened with the singing of that grand hymn of praise, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," and requested all to join in the singing. Miss Lee, the accomplished instructress in music, presided at the instrument. As the swelling notes pealed forth the entire audience rose to their feet and joined in the singing with spirit. At the conclusion of the singing Dr. Eager, of Montgomery, offered a fervent prayer, invoking the divine blessing upon the institution and the assembled audience. A charming piano solo by Miss Lee followed. President Reynolds then introduced Rev. P. L. Abernathy, of Montevallo, who delivered a chaste, beautiful, appropriate and cordial address of welcome. President Reynolds then introduced Alabama's distinguished and honored governor, Hon. William C. Oates, president of the board of trustees of the institution. Governor Oates addressed the assembly in his usual happy and forcible manner, delivering an able, instructive and interesting address.

Messrs. Wadsworth, Eager, McQueen and Gen. R. M. Nelson, of Selma, followed the governor in the order named with pleasing, instructive and entertaining talks, all tending to show the great benefits to be derived by the girls of our state from an education secured at this school—a school here it is proposed to train not only the minds, but the hearts and hands, and thereby fit the girls to meet the practical duties and responsibilities of life.

At the conclusion of the speeches Miss Lillian Aldrich, of Aldrich, sang a beautiful solo. President Reynolds then made a brief talk, thanking the governor and others for the compliments paid him and for their kind words in behalf of the school. He also thanked the citizens of Montevallo for their willing and cordial assistance and co-operation with him in discharging the responsible duties imposed upon him. He then announced that the enrollment of pupils was between 165 and 175—he could not give the exact number—and of this number about 130 were boarders.

Dr. Abernathy pronounced the benediction and the assembly dispersed.

The Strongest Sense.

The sense of touch is the least impaired by old age. The eye is the first sense to become impaired by old age, and the sense of touch in a great measure takes its place, so that it is not at all an uncommon thing for an old man whose sight has become defective to be able to recognize different coins and other small articles by the sense of touch alone, while a younger man is quite unable to do so. Rough work impairs the tactile sensibility of the hands, but with only light employment they retain their sense of touch almost unimpaired to extreme old age. The sense of taste is probably the next persistent, for, although it is generally blunted by age, yet it is not at all uncommon for the old to have a keen relish for the most dainty flavors. The sense of smell comes third, but taste and smell are so nearly allied that it is not easy to separate them.

If castor oil is applied to a wart once a day for a month the wart will entirely disappear. In many cases it will not require so long a time.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Rev. Neal, of Easonville, has entered the school in the Oaken Grove. We wish him a pleasant and prosperous term.

Miss Lizzie Pope, of Anniston, is the happy guest of Miss Georgia Pope. W. J. Finney went to Birmingham Monday on business.

W. R. Smith and E. DuRamus went to Columbiana Sunday evening on business, I suppose.

Rev. McCord filled his regular appointment at the Baptist church Saturday and Sunday.

The series of meetings at the M. E. church closed last Wednesday night. Messrs. Smith & McGee, of Childersburg, honored us by their presence at the literary society Friday night.

Quite a number of our young people participated in a hay ride out to Jackson's mill Saturday evening to preaching. Services conducted by Rev. McCord. The evening was pleasant, as well as the girls; the roads were rough, the distance far, but nevertheless we arrived at our doors, called home, before the wee small hours of the night.

Our city is honored by the presence of the bride and groom, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Smith, (the bride formerly Miss Ivey.) Judging from the immense crowd present on the arrival of the train from which they dismounted Friday, indicates that they are well known, and that their friends are numerous in this vicinity; and it gives me pleasure to congratulate them. May their pathway be strewn with roses and their future life overcast with just clouds enough to make a glorious and glittering sunset.

We have at last succeeded in organizing a choir at the Baptist church. We will congregated every Thursday night, and we request all who aim to take part to be present.

The S. P. L. League assembled last Friday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Pope, and the program was gracefully executed. The subject for debate—"Are the mental capacities of the sexes equal?" was decided in favor of the negative side. After the arguments for the ladies by the ladies were produced, those who were at first on the affirmative and in fact produced arguments for the male sex, melted under the weight of the ladies' facts so forcibly, truthfully and oratorically delivered—the leader on the affirmative side of the question unexpectedly arose and declared to the judges that "he had been converted," and was ready to heartily cast his vote for the ladies.

The society will meet at the residence of Mrs. S. A. Deniser on Friday evening, Oct. 23. The program will be as follows:

Song.....By Society
Debate-Subject-Which is of the greatest benefit to his country, the Warrior, the Statesman or the Poet? The subject will be discussed by eight members of the society.
Recitation.....By Miss Juddie Kilpatrick
Instrumental Solo.....By Miss Olive Deniser

"There's just one thing about this financial question," said the confident young man, "that I don't understand." His father gazed at him and exclaimed: "There's no use, my son, in your coming to me for information. If you've gotten that subject mastered to such a degree that there's only one thing about it that you don't understand, it isn't my place to say a word. The only thing for me to do is to draw up a foolstool, sit down on it, look up into your eyes and drink in wisdom."

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c and $1.00 per bottle at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has it. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

In the case of the State vs. Anna F. Seale, charged with the murder of her husband, the jury failed to agree upon a verdict after being out four days, and nights, and were discharged by Judge Brewer Saturday morning. A mistrial was entered and the case continued. During the week convictions were had in other cases, and the parties sentenced to the penitentiary as follows: Will Floyd, robbery, thirty years; Will Jackson, robbery, seven years; Walter Harvey, robbery, seven years; Charley Wright, robbery, five years; Ellison Dennis, assault to murder, fifteen years; Charley Wyatt, grand larceny, eighteen months; Peyton Beasley, grand larceny, thirteen months; George Green, (white) plead guilty to a charge of grand larceny, and was sentenced to eighteen months in the penitentiary. Walter McAdams, (colored), who was convicted of wife murder at the spring term, 1895, was sentenced to be hung on the 20th day of November, but execution of the sentence was suspended pending an appeal to the Supreme court.

A New Lamp.

A new lamp which has just been invented by an Italian will, if all that is said of it be true, bring joy to the heart of the housewife. The lamp, which is declared to be no larger or heavier than one of the ordinary kind, generates its own gas. The cost, however, is only one-fifth that of ordinary gas, while the illumination is as bright as that of an electric lamp, and much whiter. A single lamp floods a large room with light, and as, in addition, it is clean and odorless, one cannot wonder that both the electric light and the gas companies dread its rivalry.

DR. JOHN B. HAMILTON, surgeon-in-chief of the Marine hospital service, tendered his resignation to the president, on the 15th, by telegraph, and it was promptly accepted.

ARCHBISHOP IRELAND arrived at the Fifth Avenue hotel, New York city, on the 16th, to bid farewell to Cardinal Satolli, late papal delegate to the United States, who sailed for Europe on the 17th.

JOHN F. KRAVNEY and Thomas Haines, the two alleged Irish dynamiters who were arrested in Rotterdam September 13, arrived at Hoboken, N. Y., on the steamship Werken-dam on the 15th.

SECRETARY OF STATE CARSON of Wisconsin has sent out word to county clerks that the democratic gold ticket must be headed "National Democratic Ticket" and the Bryan ticket plain "Democratic Ticket."

The war department has rejected the bids for mortars and small guns, some 90 in all, and called for new proposals. The prices ranged from about 29 cents to 35 cents a pound, which was considered excessive.

The republicans of Louisiana have harmonized and there will be only one ticket out. The sugar planters have agreed to take down their electors, and the regulars will withdraw their congressional candidates.

The French steamer Cordoba, from New Orleans, September 23, for Havre, which passed the Lizard on the 13th, signalled that Capt. Reven, who was in command of the Cordoba when she sailed, disappeared on the night of the 5th.

A COMMUNICATION was received by the state department, on the 14th, from the German ambassador at Washington inviting the United States to take part in the international art exhibition which is to be held at Munich next year.

A CABLEGRAM from Vienna, on the 13th, announced the death of Herr Anton Backner, the noted musical composer. He was born September 4, 1824, at Ausfeld, Austria, and received his earliest musical instruction from his father, a village schoolmaster.

The Indiana state board of election commissioners, on the petition of the National democracy for a place on the ballots under that name, unanimously decided, on the 13th, to give the party a column on the ballots under the head "Gold Standard Ticket." No protest was entered to this decision.

The brouze tablet which has been erected at Judge's Cave, West Rock, Conn., where the regicides, Whalley and Goffe, were sheltered while they were fugitives from the wrath of King Charles II. of England, was formally presented to the city of New Haven, on the 14th, by the Society of Colonial Wars.

The funeral services over the body of Most Rev. Edward White Benson, archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England, who was stricken with apoplexy during the services in the Hawarden (Wales) church, on the 11th, and died almost immediately afterward, were held in the cathedral at Canterbury on the 16th.

BANK EXAMINER COOK was, on the 15th, placed in charge of the failed Rockford (Ill.) bank. The bank has a capital of $200,000; surplus and undivided profits, $70,000, and individual deposits, $320,000. The loans and discounts were stated at $379,000. The cause of the failure is said to be due to inability to realize on assets.

The treasury receipts for the first half of October showed a deficit of $5, 739,373, and for the fiscal year to date of $30,934,009. The total receipts for the fiscal year to date have been $91, 575,670, and the expenditures have aggregated $122,509,679. The receipts for the month of October to date have been $12,400,130, and expenditures $19,140,000.

The trouble between the silver and gold monetary headquarters officials at Chicago over opening mail matter was settled in favor of the Palmer house headquarters, on the 14th, after a visit of a post office inspector to the Auditorium annex. In future the mail of the gold headquarters will be delivered to the Palmer and Buckner committee.

The Atterbury Glass Co., of Pittsburgh, Pa., and the Hazel Glass Co., of Washington, Pa., were reported, on the 13th, as having voluntarily advanced the wages of their employees, who are non-union men, 10 per cent. The action of these companies caused comment, since other glass manufacturers were demanding reductions, claiming inability to compete with non-union made goods.

The statement that the Venezuelan boundary commission had come to a decision sustaining the claims of Venezuela in the boundary dispute between that country and Great Britain is entirely without foundation. The commission is not yet in possession of all the facts necessary to form a definite judgment and will not be until the return of Prof. Burr from Europe about the end of this month.

On the 16th the proprietor of the Saratoga hotel in Chicago opened a trunk left as security for an unpaid board bill and found a package of railroad bonds and deeds to real estate in Iowa, Missouri and South Dakota, valued at $25,000. The trunk was left by a race horse man, who gave his name as George Craft, shortly after the World's fair, and who had several times written to the hotel people to take great care of it.

FAILURES throughout the United States, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co. for the week ended on the 16th, numbered 328, against 263 for the corresponding week last year; for Canada the failures numbered 40, against 46 last year.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.
PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

THE treasury gold reserve declined, on the 15th, to $129,996,116, the day's withdrawals being $318,100.

BERTIE TRIPP, whose right name is supposed to be Helen Forsland, a member of the Salvation army, committed suicide at Butte, Mont., on the 12th, by taking poison. The girl was 23 years of age, and the daughter of a farmer living near Spokane.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND and his official advisers were in cabinet session for an hour and a half, on the 15th, discussing topics to be considered in the annual reports of the executive officers and in the president's message. All the cabinet officers were present except Secretary Carlisle.

An unknown man jumped into the water at Prospect Point, Niagara Falls, Y. Y., on the 12th, and was swept over the American falls. The only witnesses, two hackmen, described the stranger as a short man about 35 years old, weighing perhaps 135 pounds, and wearing a cinnamon-colored overcoat.

SCIENCE has a new discovery to announce to a grateful world. It is a sure cure for snake bite—the specific so long sought in vain. The honor of the achievement belongs to Dr. A. Calmette, of the Pasteur Institute at Lille, France. He has succeeded in obtaining an antitoxin by inoculating horses with progressive doses of the poison of the most deadly serpents, such as the cobra. Having at length rendered the animals proof against the venom, even in large quantities, he draws from them the serum, which he calls "anti-venom." This fluid, injected into the body of a person bitten by any kind of snake, will save life, if there has not been too much delay.

A SERIOUS subterranean disturbance, very much like an earthquake on a small scale, took place at Dumbarton, Scotland, on the 12th. The steamship Circassian, which was lying off a quay, was suddenly shaken and violently moved 30 feet by a commotion under her stern. The bank was heaved up for a distance of 100 feet and the ship yard was considerably damaged.

THE president denied the application for pardon in the case of F. S. Harding, alias Sam Harding, sentenced in Alabama to two years' imprisonment and $100 fine for making counterfeit coin.

THE International Association of Fire Underwriters convened at the Clifton house in Niagara Falls, Ont., on the 13th. There were about forty-five representatives in attendance. Important questions regarding fire underwriting were discussed.

OWEN MCCARTHY, ex-city treasurer and ex-chief of police of Chicago, died in that city, on the 12th, of old age. He had lived in the city 60 years, and had been one of the leading politicians of Cook county.

THE city of Great Barrington, Mass., was visited, on the 13th, by the most destructive conflagration in its history. About sixty firms, representing all kinds of business, were burned out. The loss was estimated at from $200,000 to $300,000.

A DELEGATION composed of nearly 300 members of the Early Settlers' society of Cleveland and Cuyahoga county, O., called upon Maj. McKinley on the 14th. There were a great many very old people in the delegation, and there was a touch of pathos in the spectacle they made when they marched slowly up with their white locks and halting footsteps. Maj. McKinley's venerable mother was at her son's residence, and assisted in the reception of the visitors.

A SERIOUS battle occurred between the sophomore and freshmen classes of the State university at Madison, Wis., at the close of class meeting of freshmen on the 14th. As the latter class emerged from the gymnasium, they were set upon by the sophomores, and a severe struggle ensued, in which many were severely wounded. The victorious freshmen ducked several of the sophomores in the lake.

THREE men attempted to rob the bank at Meeker, Col., on the 13th. They succeeded in holding up the clerks and cashier and looted the bank; but when they reached the street in their effort to escape they were confronted by a crowd of citizens and a hot battle ensued. After the smoke had cleared away, the three robbers and one clerk were found lying dead.

A LONG train robber held up a Union Pacific train, about eight miles from Ogden, Utah, on the 14th. He caused the train crew and passengers to believe that he had confederates in hiding, and thus prevented resistance. After some time spent in an attempt to blow up the express safe, he contented himself with looting the mail car and carrying off a load of registered letters.

At Columbus, Ga., on the 14th, J. A. White, a colored man, and Henry White, his son, fatally murdered two policemen in that city and fatally wounded another. There was no cause for the commission of the crime other than the fact that both men had been summoned to appear before the recorder or some trivial offense.

The annual report of the third assistant postmaster-general for the past fiscal year shows that the total expenditures for the year were $90,626,296, and receipts, $82,469,308, leaving a deficiency of $8,157,088, or a reduction of $1,679,866 less than the preceding year. At two o'clock on the morning of the 15th the directors of the Bank of Commerce, one of the leading financial institutions of Buffalo, N. Y., announced that owing to the heavy withdrawals the bank was compelled to suspend business and place their affairs in the hands of the banking department for examination.

At the Manhattan state hospital on Ward's island, N. Y., on the 14th, Theodore Meyers, the chief baker of the institution, was murdered by Albert Durant, an inmate. The dead man was struck on the right side of the head with a big ax.

THE special postal delivery service made an increase of 13 per cent in business during the last fiscal year, 4,184,817 letters being delivered. The average time required for delivery was 17 minutes. The net profit of the system was about $160,000. The number of postage stamps, stamped envelopes and postal cards issued was 4,195,663,553, an increase of seven per cent over issues of the previous year.

ADVISES from Juneau, Wis., on the 14th, stated that the liabilities of W. T. Bumbusch, the banker and financial agent who disappeared on the 10th, and for whom a warrant had been issued, would amount to $300,000.

CAPT. EMIL POHLSON, Tony Maddy, Fritz Vogt and George Dushayne, of the Blue Island (Chicago) volunteer fire department, are charged with starting the disastrous fire of May 17, which destroyed the business section of the town. The object of the men was to induce the villages to employ a paid department.

On the night of the 14th a Delaware, Susquehanna & Schuylkill engine crashed into a crowded trolley car at Hazleton (Pa.) Junction, killing three men outright, probably fatally injuring two others and wounding a score more.

THE marriage of David Wells, second secretary of the United States embassy in London, to Miss Marietta Ord, daughter of a prominent London physician, was celebrated at St. George's, Hanover square, on the 15th. REV. J. M. CRAWFORD, a Presbyterian clergyman of Indianapolis, Ind., aged 60, who was visiting friends in Los Angeles, Cal., dropped dead from heart disease, on the 14th, while making a purchase in a clothing store.

J. D. KENNEDY, a banker, and one of the wealthiest citizens of Manchester, la., committed suicide, on the 14th, by hanging. Business reverses are said to have led to the suicide.

PEARSON & WETZEL's big wholesale queensware establishment at Indianapolis, Ind., was destroyed by fire on the 15th. The loss will be over $75,000; insured.

It is reported that a railway train on the Saar Eifel line, Berlin, conveying a large number of recruits, was thrown from the tracks, on the 15th, and 50 persons killed and many more injured.

THE total registration in Detroit, Mich., this year foots up 54,368, which is a gain over four years ago of 4,500. The steamship Columbia, which arrived at New York from Southampton, on the 16th, brought $1,632,500 in gold. Consignments of $1,300,000 on the Normania and $850,000 on the Etruria were expected.

THE treasury gold reserve at the close of business, on the 16th, stood at $122,007,700. The day's withdrawals at New York city were $276,200.

A SENATOR was created at Gloversville, N. Y., on the 16th, by the arrest of City Clerk Wilmarth on a charge of falsifying the city's accounts and converting money to his own use. Wilmarth, when arraigned, pleaded not guilty. He was released on $10,000 bail.

THREE firemen were killed and several were seriously injured by a fire in Montreal, Can., on the 16th, said to have been the most disastrous conflagration occurring in that city for many years. HAROLD CAVELLE, alias Kimball, the matrimonial swindler, pleaded guilty, on the 16th, before Judge Taft in the United States court at Cincinnati, and was sent to the Ohio penitentiary for 17 months and heavily fined.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

A NEGRO dance near Scullyville, Ark., on the 15th broke up in a row. Two negro men were killed.

THE estimate for the running expenses of the war office in Washington is $1,464,236, showing a reduction in the annual expenses for salaries and contingencies in that office of $621,942 from the estimates of four years ago.

A SPECIAL from Sturgeon Bay, Wis., says the big steamer Australasia, owned by James Corrigan, of Cleveland, Ohio, was burned on the 18th on Lake Michigan and now lies at the bottom of White Fish Bay.

MAJ. S. T. DICKINSON, the well-known horseman and breeder of horses, died New York on the 17th.

FAILURES for the past week have been 328 in the United States, against 263 last year, and 40 in Canada, against 46 last year.

A TRIPLE tragedy occurred in Reynolds county, Mo., on the 15th. John Imboden, with an ax, brained his sister, his brother, who was sick in bed, and an old man named Jacob Wilhelm.

THE Merchants' Bank, one of the oldest and for many years one of the soundest financial institutions of Atlanta, Ga., closed its doors on the 16th, having made an assignment for the benefit of creditors.

Six children perished in a fire that destroyed the home of J. S. Miller, a farmer, near New Whatcom, Wash., on the 16th.

THE Butter, Egg and Poultry Association is the name of a new national organization formed at Chicago on the 15th.

MRS. COLONEL VERNON, of Bod Key, Ind., on the 14th, gave her two small children a dose of poison and then purchased 10 cents worth of morphine and took it herself.

THE annual report of the third assistant postmaster-general for the past fiscal year shows that the expenditures for the year were $90,626,296 and receipts $82,469,308, leaving a deficiency of $8,157,088, or a reduction of $1,679,866 less than the preceding year.

THE treasury on the 14th lost $234,000 in gold coin and $40,000 in bars, which leaves the true amount of the gold reserve $123,534,355.

THOMAS W. FERRY, ex-United States senator from Michigan, died at Grand Haven on the 14th, of paralysis.

A DISASTROUS FIRE.

The Worst that Has Visited Montreal in Many Years.

Three Firemen Instantly Killed and Several Others Seriously Injured. Forty Streams of Water Have No Apparent Effect Upon the Floor Flames.

MONTREAL, Can., Oct. 17.—The most disastrous fire in this city for a long time occurred yesterday afternoon, having its beginning in the building at Thirty-first and Peter streets, occupied by Gilmore & Co., importers of chemicals. As a result, three firemen are dead and a dozen more or less seriously injured. The dead are: Firman Charpentier, of station No. 1. Fireman Laporte, of station No. 7. The injured are: Capt. Guthrie, of station No. 1; Capt. Morin, of No. 3; Firemen Benoit and Reynolds, of No. 3; Gordon, of No. 5, and Mirault and Caerst, of No. 11.

It is not yet possible to verify the report that 16 men were in the loft that went down, and possibly another day will be reached before the all missing are definitely accounted for.

The fire is attributed to the combustible nature of the stock handled in the building, and, once under way, the blaze spread with amazing rapidity. Before the first apparatus had reached the scene and those could be laid the flames from the fourth story of the building were reaching far out into the center of the street.

The building is a four-story stone structure, and was completely enveloped in fire before the department began effective work. The chemicals on the top floor burned with the fury of a furnace, and even after 40 streams had been brought into play, continued to blaze with unabated fierceness. Clouds of dense smoke followed the flames as the streams began to take effect, and the men on the extension ladder were for a large portion of the time enveloped in huge clouds of smoke.

The flames spread to Goldstein's cigar factory, and then smoke was seen coming out of the windows of Kearney Bros.' tea warehouse and the building occupied by Johnston's Fluid Beef Extract Co.

The arrival of the water tower was greeted with cheers by the enormous crowd of onlookers, and no time was lost in getting it to work.

A few moments later flames burst from a window immediately under a ladder on which half a dozen firemen were standing, thrusting the hose nozzles here and there. They did not cheer, however, and another great effort was made as they dropped a step on the ladder, placing themselves at once in the flames with the hose still in hand. Meanwhile another detachment was busily engaged inside with axes breaking out windows to let out smoke. No sooner did the flames appear to be under control in one place than they would break out with redoubled fury in another.

The fire was gotten under control by four o'clock, but was not entirely subdued. At 2:30 o'clock the floor of the upper loft in the Gilmore building gave way without warning and fell with a great crash. Sixteen men in all are said to have been in the place at the time, and as the smoke cleared for a moment shrieks could be heard.

At first the firemen were unable to get inside, but finally the rescuers made headway, and the first victim reached was Gordon, of No. 5 station. He was wedged down and apparently dead, but when taken to the open air he revived somewhat, and was quickly placed in an ambulance and removed to a hospital. Next came Fireman Benoit, of No. 3 station, who was not resuscitated before being taken away in the patrol wagon. Charpentier was the third rescued, and he was suffering internally. Capt. Guthrie, of No. 1 station was also found in an unconscious condition. He was taken to a hospital.

A fireman named Mirault, of engine No. 11 was rescued, but his face was so badly crushed that at first his identity could not be established. Edmund Laporte was taken from the ruins dead.

Another unidentified man was taken to the patrol hospital unconscious. He proved to be Benoit, of No. 3. Saul Carrest, of No. 11, was removed to Notre Dame hospital. Capt. Morin was rescued badly hurt. George Mirault, of No. 11, was also taken to Notre Dame hospital.

The bodies of Fireman King and Charpentier were recovered shortly after ten o'clock last night. The men were buried beneath many tons of debris and it took several hours to get at them. Both men had evidently been killed instantly.

The most seriously hurt was Fireman David Benoit, of No. 3, badly injured internally.

At the general hospital last night Bennett was reported resting easily. All the other men, who were only slightly hurt, were released from the hospital and sent to their homes.

All of the killed were married men with families. Laporte, who was regarded as one of the best men on the brigade, represented Montreal at the international tournament in London last summer.

The loss will reach $150,000. The buildings are all owned by the Grey Nuns, and are insured.

FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE.

Arrest of a Produce Merchant on a Serious Charge.

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—Edwin Wilson, of the firm of Wilson & Johnson, produce commission merchants, at No. 7 Blackstone street, was arrested yesterday, charged with being a fugitive from justice. The arrest was made as the result of an indictment brought from Kansas City, which charges him with larceny in May, 1896, of $1,000 worth of property from S. B. Willock and other commission houses in Kansas City.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

A Conservative Timidity and the Offer of the Cuban War—The President Will Not Hesitate to Act If It Should Become Apparent that the Spanish Are Unable to Suppress the Insurrection Within the Year.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their weekly review of trade say: Gold commands a small premium. The most powerful force in business at present is a conservative timidity and the foreign bankers who have been offering for a small percentage to insure people against a premium on gold until December have made an easy and sure profit out of prevalent apprehensions. From Kansas, Nebraska and other states were the silver agitation is said to be stronger, come orders by many bankers and business men to get them gold at a small premium, and there has also been some demand for hoarding from individuals in other states who are afraid even of their own best judgment. One commercial change, which more than any other insures better business in the near future, is the excess of merchandise exports over imports.

In two weeks of October the exports from New York have increased 30.6 per cent, against 31.2 in September, while imports have decreased 24 per cent, against 33.2 in September. Continued shipments of gold from Europe, not including $4,000,000 from Australia, now amount to $59,250,000 since the movement began, of which $52,250,000 has already arrived, and have not been arrested by measures taken by the great European banks.

The heavy movement of grain is the cornerstone. After an increase of $5, 923,675 in exports of breadstuffs in September, there have been shipped during the past week from Atlantic ports alone 2,134,774 bushels, flour included, and 4,203,845 in two weeks of October, against 3,510,371 bushels last year. A more important fact is that all available grain freights have been engaged for months ahead here and on the Pacific coast. The minister of agriculture in India stated in council on Thursday that distress was expected in a large part of India as the result of droughts. A high official of Russia, now in this country, confirms accounts of shortness in the Russian yield. This estimates that Europe will fall 100,000,000 bushels short of last year in supply of wheat are strongly supported, and while department estimates of yield in this country are not credited, there is every reason to expect a remarkable foreign demand. Wheat has advanced 4½ cents for the week.

Boot and shoe makers get very narrow orders at old prices, or an advance less than one per cent.

Difficulties threaten the iron manufacturers, for pig is higher, Bessemer at $11.50 and gray forge at $9.75 at Pittsburgh, while plates, angles and beams are weaker, and various combinations hold prices only by leaving outside competitors to take the market as far as they can. Steel bars are largely sold at one cent, while 1½ is demanded for iron. All the nails that outsiders can produce are sold at less than the association asks. Billets are still sold for less than the pool price, and its shipments in September aggregated only 36,000 tons, mainly on sheet and tin plate, and the demand for rails is growing small.

Wool is stronger with continued speculative buying, and sales at eastern markets have been 14,530,300 pounds for two weeks, against 21,200, 700 last year, and 13,702,900 in 1892, but consigned wool has been mostly withdrawn until after the election. No gain is at present possible in goods, and though the number of mills starting for the week is 15, against seven stopping, much of the work done is in anticipation of a better demand than now exists.

Failures for the week have been 328 in the United States, against 263 last year, and 40 in Canada, against 46 last year.

ADVANCE IN WHEAT.

The Staple Cereal Goes Kiting at Chicago and San Francisco.

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—December wheat continued to rise in price on the board of trade today. It advanced 1½ cents over the closing price of yesterday, the top price being 72½ cents. Only a few shorts were left in the market when it closed yesterday, and most of those hastily surrendered this morning when the advance continued to their bitter regret. The market started with a rise of one cent to 1½ cents. The bullish foreign quotations, particularly the advance in the Liverpool market, were considered the cause for the rise here. The American market, however, was considered strong enough to sustain the new price without the encouragement from abroad.

The Wheat Boom in Toledo.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—This was the banner day of the present wheat boom. On the morning call December was forced to $1.41 1-8, per cent, an advance of over seven cents on the best price obtained yesterday for the same option, and an advance of 17 cents since the first instant, when the best figures obtainable for December was $1.24 1-4. The advance in May was even greater than December, the regular session this morning bringing it up to $1.44 1-4, against $1.39 3-4 as the best price obtainable yesterday.

At the afternoon session December gained three-eighths over best morning prices, but subsequently dropped to $1.40. May gained three-eighths also.

DAUNTLESS CARGO.

A Portion of It Captured by a Party of Spanish Marines.

HAVANA, Oct. 17.—Gen. Molina reports that while on his way on the gunboat Contramaestre, in response to a request for assistance by the Spanish troops on account of the recent engagement with the rebels at Rio Honda, near Trinidad, he discovered a number of groups of insurgents. He landed with a party of marines and dispersed the rebels, capturing 500 rifles, a quantity of ammunition, a gun carriage, stores of medicines, etc.

THE ADMINISTRATION.

May Interfere If Spain Doesn't Soon End the Cuban War—The President Will Not Hesitate to Act If It Should Become Apparent that the Spanish Are Unable to Suppress the Insurrection Within the Year.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—A Herald special from Washington says: High officials of the administration agree that if the Spanish government does not succeed in crushing the Cuban insurrection by the first of the year it will be the duty of the United States, independently or in conjunction with the other powers, to stop the war.

A member of the cabinet said, Thursday, that the president fully appreciated the gravity of the situation in Cuba, and the great responsibility imposed upon the United States as the great power upon which would devolve the duty of deciding whether the Spanish cause in Cuba was hopeless and whether the war should be stopped in the interests of humanity. He said that no European power could be expected to take the initiative, as the geographical position of Cuba was such as to make the question practically an American question.

The president, he said, would not take any action looking to the change of policy in regard to Cuba until after the elections, but he believed that the president would not hesitate to act before the close of his administration if it should become apparent that the Spaniards were unable to suppress the insurrection within the present year.

Representatives of the Spanish government here are naturally considerably disturbed over the news from Cuba. Senor De Lora begged to be excused from an interview and sent Senor De Bosc, the first secretary, to see me.

The latter was loth to believe the report that Spain had reached a decision to let Cuba go if the rebellion should not be ended before March 1 next. He insisted that Spain would never relinquish control of Cuba, and that it was idle to talk about intervention if the war was not ended before that time, for in his opinion the rebellion would be crushed before many weeks had passed.

The belief is current here that the Spanish government would gladly abandon its so far fruitless attempt to put down the Cuban insurrection if it had an excuse for so doing that would be acceptable to the Spanish people. A high official of the government expressed the opinion that the Spanish government would be glad to give up the struggle in Cuba if it could be done without bringing on a revolution in Spain.

MONUMENT DEDICATED.

To the War Correspondents and Artists at South Mountain.

GAPLAND, Md., Oct. 17.—The army correspondents' and artists' memorial was dedicated on South Mountain with military, civic and social ceremonies. Gen. Lowndes, Gen. Boynton, George Alfred Townsend and others made speeches. Mrs. Thomas Noyes sang. The war department sent a bugler and drummer. Papers on war correspondence by S. Cadwallader, Junius Henri Browne, Henry Mosler and others were read and poems recited.

The monument is a battlemented feudal gateway of Maryland mountain stone, with one large horseshoe arch of Pennsylvania brown stone on the ground and three arches above of blue limestone from the battlefield of Cedar Creek, Va. In the rear are the names of 106 war correspondents, 11 southern correspondents and ten sketch artists. The monument is 50 feet high and 40 wide, and through its open arches affords extensive views of the battlefield country toward Washington and of Antietam and Harper's Ferry.

URGES ARBITRATION.

England's Venezuelan Claims Not Substantiated by Evidence.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Sir Edward Clarke, Q. C., conservative member of parliament for Plymouth, and who was solicitor general in Lord Salisbury's previous ministry, in speaking publicly at York, expressed great anxiety over the outcome of the Venezuelan dispute in view of the approach of the presidential election. He said the decision of the American boundary commission would be against England, not because it was a hostile commission, but because, he believed, no honest and impartial arbitrator or commission could decide in favor of England's claims upon the evidence.

"We have not recognized the commission," he said. "We were not called upon to negotiate treaties with the United States with regard to Venezuela, but if the blue book containing the Venezuelan brief represented the real and moderate contention of Venezuela there ought to be immediate consent to arbitration. England should be prepared to accept the consequence of such arbitration in the limitation line, which, after all, matters very little.

"If the United States attempts to force upon us the ultimate decision of their commission, passionate resentment would be aroused here, serious for both countries. That is why we are taking what I conceive to be a serious risk."

Killed in Election Riots.

BERLIN, Oct. 17.—Election riots in Oldenburg have resulted in the murder of two liberal voters by national Catholic partisans.

NOT SO BAD.

No Lives Were Lost in the Saar-Eifel Line Accident.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—A dispatch from Berlin to the United Associated Presses states that the Cologne office of the Herald bureau circulated the report Wednesday that 50 persons were killed and many more injured by the derailing of a train on the Saar-Eifel line. A railway authority yesterday declared that no lives were lost in the accident. The train was carrying a large number of recruits to these parts.

STATE AT LARGE.
S. W. John, J. W. A. Sanford.

LONGSHORE WILL NOT SUPPORT MR. ALDRICH.

The following from the Alabama Leader, A. P. Longshore's Anniston paper, is self-explanatory. The editor is certainly consistent in his position, and indeed his followers would all occupy the same ground if consistency cut any figure whatever. How a free silver populite can support a gold standard, high tariff republican is beyond our comprehension. But hear what Longshore says:

"Just before the populist convention met at Calera the Leader in an editorial came out favoring the nomination of Mr. Aldrich for congress. At that time we believed that he would either support the Bryan and Watson electors or occupy an independent position, as we have heard him say in a meeting of populist state executive committee that in the event his party nominated a gold standard man on a gold standard platform he would not support him. Since his nomination, however, he declared for McKinley and Hobart, and the writer has proclaimed on the stump and in the newspapers that he would not give his support to a man who would vote for a gold standard man for president; and believing as we do that the gold standard will impoverish and ruin the laboring people, we can not consistently support any man who advocates the election of a man for president who would foster this system upon the country for all time. Mr. Aldrich has made a good representative in congress, and if we could give him our support and be consistent we would cheerfully do so, but the Leader would not support Albert T. Goodwyn, S. M. Adams, or any other living man for congress if he proclaimed his allegiance to a gold standard man for president."

We again call attention to the fact that voters who do not commit the names of the democratic electors to memory will be in trouble when they come to vote on election day. The ticket that will be given them at the polling place will have the names of the electors of all the parties printed upon it in alphabetical order. There will be nothing on the ticket to show what electors are for Bryan and what for McKinley. The voter must be acquainted with the names of his electors and be able to pick them out and place cross marks opposite them on the ticket. Unless he can do this, he cannot vote intelligently. Every voter should study carefully the list of electors we print at the head of the editorial column, and be able to cast his ballot for that list. That is the democratic and conservative, Bryan and Sewall ticket. Use none other.

REGISTRATION figures in the big cities indicate that an enormously large vote will be cast this year. There are 300,000 voters already registered in Philadelphia, or 50 per cent more than usual. The first day of registration in New York City saw the names of 136,015 voters enrolled, against 99,315 last year and 95,813 in 1892, the last presidential election, an increase of 42 per cent. This would indicate a total registration of 400,000, and a total vote of 375,000 or more. In Brooklyn the registration sprang in the first day from 59,863 to 90,015, an increase of over 50 per cent. Registration in St. Louis shows an increase of 50 per cent.

WILL wonders never cease! Who would have thought that the republicans of Dallas county would ever endorse a democratic nominee for any office. Well, they did, strange as it may seem. The other day they passed a resolution endorsing T. S. Plowman for congress. What shall we look for next?

A CLOCK in a Terre Haute railway office stopped short last week at 16 to 1 and the boys are asking whether it was intended as a sign.

The republicans seem to be getting uneasy about Indiana and have engaged ex-President Harrison to make thirty-two speeches.

NEVER look for big business from a small ad. If a farmer planted a gill of wheat to the acre what kind of a crop could he expect.

figured the food products of ntry have advanced in value 30 in the past three months.

The attention of every voter must be given to the ticket which he will be called upon to vote on November 3. This ticket makes no distinction of political parties. The names of all the presidential electors appear on one ticket, arranged in alphabetical order, and the voter, if he wishes to cast his vote intelligently, must acquaint himself with the names of the eleven men for whom he is to vote, and be able to pick them out on the ticket and place a mark on the ticket opposite to them. The names of the democratic electors are printed every week at the head of our editorial columns. Let all democrats carefully commit these names to memory or otherwise take note of them, so that no trouble will be experienced and no mistake made on the day of the election.

SIXTY-FOUR senators hold over from the last congress. Of these twenty-eight are for silver and thirty-two for gold. Thirty senators will retire unless chosen as their own successors. Nineteen of these are for silver and eleven for gold. It is probable that seventeen of the nineteen will be succeeded by silver men, and that nine of the eleven will be succeeded by "sound money men." This is practically a distinction without a difference. This will give the silver men forty-seven and the gold men forty-three.

THERE is much truth in the following from the Columbus Enquirer-Sun: "The fate of this great country does not hinge on a presidential election. Its resources are too vast and its industries too varied for the success or defeat of any one party to seriously impede its growth and progress. Each faction predicts disaster and ruin in the event of the success of the other in the November election, but Uncle Sam is old enough, strong enough and versatile enough to take care of himself under any circumstances."

The natural colors of a leaf may be easily transferred to paper. Take a leaf of a tree or shrub, place over it a small piece of white linen soaked in spirits of nitre, and insert between the leaves of a heavy book, with a sheet of paper to receive the impression. Lay the book aside for a few days. The leaf will be found devoid of color which will have been transferred to the paper in all the original beauty of tint and outline of leaf.

THE process of law is seldom a matter for mirth, but the placing in the hands of a New Jersey deputy sheriff the other day of a warrant of attachment upon a hippopotamus, the only unattached chattel of a stranded circus and menagerie, with an order to see the beast safely bestowed for the behoof of creditors, passes the limit even of a farce-comedy jest.

IT is true that constant use of any organ of the human body tends to increase its size. Mr. McKinley's right hand must resemble a ham, and Mr. Bryan's tongue must be as large as a porterhouse steak.—Chicago Chronicle

A RINGING LETTER.

F. W. Cist Handles Aldrich Without Gloves and Shows Up His Record in Congress.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13, '96. EDITOR CHRONICLE: Two recent events in the political arena of the Fourth district cause me to offer, through your columns, some thoughts to the voters of Shelby county. They are such as will appear to your readers, as they do to me, as self-evident, and are only intended to remind our friends of their plain duty when they have found the true position of the different candidates for congress.

I refer to the nomination by the populists of Mr. Aldrich and the withdrawal of Mr. Wilson in favor of the gold candidate. The first of these is surprising; the second only a proof of the democracy of Mr. Plowman, and of the real interest of the bolting democrats.

It is both unreasonable and inconsistent that the populists should endorse the candidacy of a self-confessed republican, a man belonging to that party whose very fundamental principles are foreign to every demand made by the populists since their appearance as a political party, whose practices have all been in direct antagonism to the interests of the people of whom the populist party has been composed. Beyond a few untenable schemes the populists have demanded what the democratic party has always favored except when it has been controlled by the same power that has always controlled the republicans. Now that the great party of the constitution has shaken off this evil control, planted itself squarely upon the people's side, and presented a candidate in thorough accord with its principles—a guarantee of good faith—there is every reason why the populists should return to their allegiance to the party under which they long ago helped to tear the reins of government from the hands of such political vultures as Mr. Aldrich has proved himself to be. Instead their conventions endorse their greatest enemies and pledge their support to principles in which none of them believe. Evidently these conventions have been controlled by leaders more autocratic and domineering than were ever found in a democratic gathering. These leaders have given over their followers with as much assurance of proprietorship as the carpet-baggers ever gave over the negroes to the support of the deadliest enemy of their country. Fortunately, however, instead of an ignorant and vicious contingency, the rank and file of the populist party are white men of intelligence and character, men who help to make up the real body politic. These in other places are rallying to the support of Bryan and democratic congressmen. Let us hope they will do so in our district.

I have before had occasion to tell our people something of Mr. Aldrich's political character. Occupying, as he does, the dual position of a bolting republican endorsed by a packed populist convention, I feel at liberty to at least remark upon his attitude in the present campaign. The resolutions of endorsement passed by the convention were a travesty, and no man of political honesty would have accepted them. Mr. Aldrich's comparison of himself to Mr. Bryan as the nominee of two parties was a really laughable piece of conceit. Mr. Bryan, in the first place, is a man of ability, firmness, and moral strength; Mr. Aldrich has neither. Mr. Bryan was nominated first by a body of representative men, and afterward endorsed by two great deliberative bodies; Mr. Aldrich was first nominated by a bolting crowd of hired negroes and white lieutenants and afterwards endorsed by a cut-and-dried convention of dissenters from their national body. Mr. Bryan stands upon a platform of principles, plain, unequivocal, promising relief from existing evils of finance and taxation and from the greed of corporate power. Mr. Aldrich stands upon a mixed conglomeration of nothing, promising nothing but a continuation of present evils and the fostering of others, a representative of corporate power.

Mr. Aldrich declares for honest elections, and yet he belongs to that party which is spending millions to purchase and binding every energy to coerce the votes of American freemen. His own record is not free from the charge of bribery and coercion, as is evidenced by his campaign of two years ago and the aid he lent in our recent county election.

Mr. Aldrich declares for silver, and yet he seeks to aid the election of a president who is pledged beforehand to maintain the existing gold standard and who would veto any measure of relief Mr. Aldrich might help to enact. In his brief career in congress he voted at every opportunity to replace silver democrats with gold republicans, and in several instances without any legal excuse for doing so. So he would bow to the party lash and vote with his party against a silver bill as readily as he would vote for the force bill which that party hopes to revive.

He cast his vote in the same direction which cost Mr. Goodwyn 20,000 white votes, and was one of the first to welcome the negro Murray into the house.

The only words he ever spoke in the house was when he called up, on April 23, the Girls' Industrial School bill and gave Mr. Pickler a chance to kill it. This I find on page 4,706 of the Record of that date, and on no other page does his name appear as having done anything, except where he presented one or two petitions and introduced a bill to provide an American register for some foreign coal barge.

He has not even given his allowance for clerk hire to some of his needy supporters; but, having no need for a clerk, he pockets the amount.

He is endorsed by a party which demands the abolition of trusts, and yet he supports a candidate for president who is owned by a syndicate and whose election would place the government at the mercy of an amalgamation of trusts. His personal interests are affected by a gigantic coal trust which is today making the people pay an advance of $1.50 per ton on coal to repay the advance in the price of wheat.

These are some of the incongruities of his present political attitude. It is safe to predict that his candidacy will end in defeat—that end inconsistent politics merits.

Mr. Wilson's withdrawal is but a repetition of the aid the republican party has always been ready to give to anything as undemocratic as the insignificant aggregation of bolting democrats in Alabama. They are as inconsistent as Mr. Aldrich. They have a candidate for president who has belonged to every political body known in the history of his country since his time, and who has never in the senate squarely supported any measure that was really democratic. They are as great traitors to true democracy as Kolb ever was, and without half the excuse for it. I might call attention to many of their inconsistencies, but I presume no one seriously thinks of them in this fight except to record them for future scorn from the councils of the party.

Viewing the condition of our country, and believing that upon the success of the democratic party depends the hope of relief and brighter days, the comfort of our people and the happiness of their homes, the education of their children and the perpetuation of this civil and religious liberty. I have been impelled to suggest these reasons for giving an incontestable majority to Mr. Plowman, without entering into any of the details of our own platform.

Not a vote should be wasted, but every one should be polled for the ticket known to be democratic.

LOCAL VIVISCOPE.

James Seale spent Sunday in Childersburg.

J. R. White paid Anniston a business visit Tuesday.

W. R. A. Milner spent two days of this week in Birmingham.

James Harris, of Montevallo, transacted business here Monday.

Rev. Mr. Liles left Tuesday for South Alabama on a business trip.

Mrs. C. C. Elliott, of Vincent, is on a visit to the family of J. G. Parker.

Mrs. A. S. Liles and daughter, Lilly, left Monday for a visit to Selma friends.

J. R. Ray, of Lewis, gave us a call yesterday and left an order for stationery.

W. J. Cannon, of Sylacauga, came over Tuesday to look after his insurance business.

Miss Myrtle Swain left Tuesday for Cincinnati, Ohio, to finish her musical education.

E. W. Bell left Sunday for Meridian, Miss., to engage in business. May success reward him.

Quite a number of our young people took in Wilsonville Sunday. Guess Wilsonville must be an attractive place.

Dr. G. B. Crow, populist candidate for congress in the Ninth district, spoke in the court house Tuesday afternoon.

Herman Ginsley has returned to his place in the Columbiana Mercantile Co's store, after a lengthy stay in Birmingham.

Rev. W. I. Sinnott and Judge D. R. McMillan left Tuesday for Lacon to attend the meeting of the North Alabama Presbytery.

Will Hester and family, of near Wilsonville, have moved into our town, and are living at the Jackson place on Main street.

J. F. Averyt, one of Shelby's cleverest and most substantial citizens, came over Tuesday to spend a few hours with Columbiana friends.

FOR SALE—At reasonable prices, for cash, two houses and lots opposite court house and jail Columbiana. Will sell one or both. Apply to Mrs. Lizzie S. Walls.

FOR SALE—A five room dwelling on East College street, near Academy. Almost new, just been newly painted. Will be sold at a bargain for cash. Apply to editor Chronicle for full particulars.

Lester, Mason & Co., are on the lookout for more business, and a careful reading of their advertisement in this issue will convince you that they are using the proper means. There is no blow or bluster, but solid facts are given you in an entertaining and convincing way. They have a very large stock, and do not propose to be undersold in quality of goods considered.

Miss Nora Leeper and H. E. Reynolds were married at Mrs. C. Roberts' residence in Birmingham, Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock. The Chronicle and many friends here, of both, extend good wishes.

Dr. G. W. Shackelford will be at Columbiana, October, 26th, 27th and 28th only. All those having teeth to extract without pain or any other dental work, will do well to call on him while here. His work is first class and prices reasonable.

W. F. Thetford and Miss Myrtle Swain, C. E. Greek and Miss Emma Wilson, Horace Hammond and Miss Ethel Greek, chaperoned by J. W. Dyke and wife took a hay ride to Shelby last Friday night. Stags—Joe and Ed Spencer and H. C. DuRose.

The colored Baptist association held a four days' session in the Baptist church here, beginning last Thursday. A very large crowd was in attendance every service, but on Sunday it took the court house in addition to the church to hold the immense throng.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

James H. Vick and Minerva Jane Howell, of near Columbiana.

Colored—Nazareth Thomas and Hattie Johnson, of Montevallo.

We know of no more convincing proof of the fact that Columbiana is moving upward by leaps and bounds than to let the world know that we have a full-rigged, double-barrelled calaboose. Who will be the first to enter its inviting portals? Evil doers, lookout for "Long John."

Columbiana real estate is looking up. Monday W. R. A. Milner sold his residence to J. H. Robertson, of Wilsonville, for 1,250.00 cash. Tuesday a farm just east of town sold for 1,600.00 cash. What better evidence do you want that prices are good and men can be found who have the cash, and are ready to invest.

Public Speaking.

Hon. Tennant Lomax, one of Alabama's most gifted and fluent orators, will address the citizens of Shelby county at Columbiana, on next Wednesday, Oct. 28th, at 11 o'clock a. m. A large audience should greet this talented speaker, for his eloquence and logic will charm all who hear him.

Early Monday morning Alf Seale, a brakeman on the Southern, was thrown from a car at Childersburg, and sustained severe injuries. The train was making a running switch at the time of the accident. Alf was thrown off the car by its sudden stop with air brakes and fell on his feet. His ankles are fearfully swollen and bruised, but it is thought no permanent injury will result. He was brought here immediately after he was hurt.

Hon. R. F. Kolb spoke to a fair sized audience in the court house Tuesday at 11 o'clock. He advised his poplite friends to vote for Bryan and Sewall, and gave them a great many reasons why they should do so. He said he was a populist still, and that the course he was pursuing was strongly endorsed by all the national leaders of that party. He says his present position is perfectly consistent for he has always espoused the cause of free silver, and it is his anxiety for monetary reform that has caused him to sacrifice Watson. He told his hearers there was no possible chance to elect Watson, but there was a strong probability of Bryan's defeat if they would not lay aside their prejudice and vote the ticket that could and would be elected by their active support, and thus secure for them the reforms they have been advocating for years.

FOR SALE—At reasonable prices, for cash, two houses and lots opposite court house and jail Columbiana. Will sell one or both. Apply to Mrs. Lizzie S. Walls.

FOR SALE—A five room dwelling on East College street, near Academy. Almost new, just been newly painted. Will be sold at a bargain for cash. Apply to editor Chronicle for full particulars.

Lester, Mason & Co., are on the lookout for more business, and a careful reading of their advertisement in this issue will convince you that they are using the proper means. Wilsonville Waifs.

I wish that it would rain. Messrs. Averyt & Averyt, of Shelby, were in town Wednesday.

G. E. Weldon went to Harpersville and Vincent Sunday.

W. R. Smith and W. J. Tinney made a pleasant visit to Columbiana Sunday.

Messrs. Greek and Spencer, accompanied by Misses Swain and Greek, honored us by their presence at the Presbyterian church Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Jackson are visiting relatives in Tallapoosa, Georgia, thinking the change might be beneficial to the ill health of Mrs. Jackson, who had been very ill for several weeks before she left this place.

I am informed that the school is increasing every day, while they could only enroll about thirty at the beginning of the term. They now number from sixty to seventy. This goes to prove the progress of our school.

Rev. W. I. Sinnott's appointment for Wednesday night was filled by Rev. Beddinger, after which the meeting was protracted for the remainder of the week. We are very much pleased with his sermons and insist on his coming again. Two additional members were enrolled.

The newly organized choir at the Baptist church will no doubt profit by its meetings from time to time. We met last Thursday night and made a start toward learning the many new songs which we have before us. We cordially invite all that will earnestly take a part in the practice, but those who only desire to disturb the singers and to have their fun will soon learn that they are not needed in the least.

The dust is not so heavy in the Columbiana road. My authority for saying this is that the negroes kept it continually flying all day Sunday, going to and coming from the negro "sosashun."

Come to the literary society Friday night, which will assemble at Mrs. S. A. Densler's. We will promise all who may attend a nice time socially, if possible, whether they enjoy the literary part or not.

On last Tuesday evening Messrs. DuRamus, Williamson, Smith and Jackson, accompanied by Misses Lizzie and Georgia Pope, Mary and Sallie Robinson and Lula Densler, responded to a kind invitation to an infare, given by Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Weldon in favor of the newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith. This was one of the best arranged and most enjoyable festivals that has been given in this place for some time. We are sure that the remembrance of this occasion is indelibly stamped on the minds of all who were so fortunate as to be present. We cheerfully express our gratitude to Mr. and Mrs. Weldon. We are sorry to report the departure of this couple, after a six days' sojourn with kind relatives and friends at this place. Their future home will be "across the line in Tennessee."

BOURGEOIS.

Items from Creswell.

Homer Boggett returned to his old home at Irondale a few days ago.

Mrs. J. H. Coleman visited friends and relatives in Vincent Monday and Tuesday.

Miss Jennie Bates has been very sick for the past few days, but we are glad to learn she is improving.

We learn that our young friend, J. H. Lipsey, will leave in a few days for Texas, where he will make his future home. We regret to lose him from our midst, but hope that he will find his new home both pleasant and profitable.

Rev. M. N. Warren, (Presbyterian) filled his regular appointment here last Sunday, preaching an able and instructive sermon. We are sorry to be unable to give his theme. He proposes to protract the services the third Sunday in November, and we hope our people will give him a hearty welcome and lend him their aid and prayers, that much and lasting good may be done.

Miss Linnie Matthews returned to her home at Goodwater Tuesday, after spending several weeks with friends in our neighborhood.

S. V. Coleman and wife left Sunday for Parkdale where they will probably make their home.

Several of our young folks attended church at Vincent Sunday night, among whom were G. W. Wallis, Jr., and Miss Belle Coleman, Miss Laura Perryman, Miss Scottie Logan, J. F. Bates and others.

CHOCTAW.

Is wealth concentrating in the hands of the few? The sworn tax returns for the year ending April 30th, show that the net increase of the seven northeastern states was $312,110,555, against a net decrease in the balance of the United States of $412,910,985. This shows a net loss of over $100,000,000 to the country at large and looks suspiciously like the East had made the West and South sacrifice that much in order to secure her increase. When it is considered that as a producer of new wealth the East is not self supporting, while the West and South make all the surplus, this idea that all the country's addition to the world's wealth should be taken from those who made it and given to those who added nothing sets hard with us. Something is rotten in Denmark.—Talladega News-Reporter.

Cure for Headache.

As a remedy for all forms of headache Electric Bitters has proved to be the very best. It effects a permanent cure and the most dreaded habitual sick headache yields to its influence. We urge all who are afflicted to procure a bottle, and give this remedy a fair trial. In cases of habitual constipation Electric Bitters cures by giving the needed tone to the bowels, and few cases long resist the use of this medicine. Try it once. Large bottles only fifty cents at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

HOW TO VOTE.

The Law Relating to Marking Your Ballots November 3.

As there may be some of The Chronicle's many readers who are not familiar with the provisions of the existing election law, we print below a fac-simile of the ballot which said law requires must be used by voters in the election on the 3rd day of November. This ballot will be printed on thick, white paper with black ink, only, in plain type and must contain the names and candidates of all political parties on one and the same ballot. The names of candidates appear in alphabetical order without designation or distinction as to their politics.

In making out his ticket each voter must place a cross (X) mark on the left of each candidate he desires to support. The X mark on the right or in any other juxtaposition will make the ballot void.

SPAIN TO LET CUBA GO.

A special from Cadiz, Spain, of the 15th inst., says: It is said that if Spain has not put down the insurrection in Cuba by the first of next March it is the intention to give up the struggle and let the island go. It is said that the policy is being adopted of exaggerating the magnitude of the trouble in the Philippines with a view of preparing the people for the ultimate design of letting Cuba go.

W. G. Foster, manager of the Eastern Telegraphic company at Cadiz, speaking of the situation, said: "There is no question that the government is trying to use Philippine troubles to distract the peoples attention from Cuba. There is no doubt that Spain intends to do her utmost to crush the Cuban insurrection between now and March. Failing that I am informed, she will give up the struggle."

"An important issue is the fact that Cuba has a debt of some $500,000,000, and that if Spain put down the insurrection Cuba will have to pay that debt whereas, if Cuba wins, the payment of the debt will fall on Spain, who contracted it on behalf of Cuba. Naturally, the planters who have been driven from their half ruined plantations, however loyal they may appear to be to Spain, really want to see the Cubans succeed, as in that case they would not be taxed by Spain to pay the interest on the debt, and could then start again under more favorable auspices."

The Philippine Islands comprise 113,000 square miles, as against 49,000 for Cuba. In point of population the Philippines have 5,636,000, as against a population of 2,276,000 for Cuba and Porto Rico combined.

Seeing is Believing.

NOT MUCH.

YOU see too many circus posters nowadays. And the public sees too many flashy advertisements. Nay, seeing is not believing. Goods are not sacrificed at half of manufacturing cost. No honest, reputable merchant can exist with such false business methods. A plated wedding ring may be sold cheaper than one of solid gold, but where is its value after the flimsy outer plating wears away. What sane man would buy such a one, and what thinking man will buy trashy, plated, shoddy goods.

We won't sell you cotton for wool nor jute for flax. The meaner sorts of merchandise we have no time to bother with; neither have you, if we judge you aright.

Clean, Honest, Reliable Goods at Lowest Prices!

is what intelligent buyers are looking for. We keep none other, and wish you to inspect our stock by the clear light of day. By this truth-telling light you can make your selections with the utmost satisfaction.

When you are ready come in and investigate our goods, view them in every light, make your own comparisons as to prices and qualities, and we will cheerfully accord you every facility.

We have anticipated your every want in our several departments. Your needs can be supplied in our store at our usual prices, which are always right. All we want or ask is that you look over our stock and get our prices before you purchase anywhere.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

ON OLD ROCKY.

The People Are Natural and the People Are Human.

A "Variegated Fool" in Love with a Young American Woman—Essay on the Human Brain—in the Valley and the Shadows.

It is a fact that I am already married, and if I didn't have what seems to me like the best woman in the world, what you reckon I would do this beautiful Sunday morning?

I would wash my lovely countenance, climb right up into my Sunday-go-to-meet-in-clothes, sprinkle a few cinnamon draps on my wayward, wanderin' locks and pitch out and go a courtin' over to the old Pollard place. For why? There is a young lady over there which could change her name and administer on the Sanders estate before the sun went down if she wanted to. Miss Susie Bell Pollard is her name, and you might ride three days and nights before you could find more good, pure womanhood done up in one bundle of dry goods.

One Fool on Her String.

White people, did you ever take any particular notice of a natural-born blonde girl in love with a rale handsome woman?

If you never did there is yet a whole passle for you to learn in regards to the ways and means of the human race. It never was no trouble for Miss Susie Bell Pollard to catch a beau. All she ever had to do was to put on the bait and fling out her hook and pull em in, comin' and a gwine. Blamed if I haven't seen her out at picnics and parties and candy pullins and protracted meetings and the like of that, with the boys so thick around her till she put me in mind of the band wagon on a circus day.

Understand me now, I couldn't blame the boys for that. No doubt if I had been a boy myself about that time I would have been the lead dog of the pack. But along in the fall of last year Miss Susie Bell caught a natural-born fool on her string—which, of course, it want her fault, and nobody couldn't blame her for that. Gabe Rankins is the only son of old man Lum Hankins and his wife, and they are tremondus well fixed in the way of this world's goods. The old man has got land on top of land all the way from Murder Creek to Caney Branch, and the general talk around amongst the people is to the extent that he is like-wise also plumb lousy with cash money. And as to the old Rankins stock of people, they have all got sense enough to eat when they are hungry, and go to bed when they get tired, and save money. But Andy Lucas was wobbilin' around powerful clost to the bull's eye when he give it out over at the cross roads on that day. Old man Lum Hankins was way out on a back seat when they landed round the brains. Well, you raley couldn't blame Gabe for that. And neither could you blame the old folks for havin' a fool in the family. He couldn't help it, and they couldn't help it. You couldn't blame nobody. There was nobody to blame.

The big break came in when old man Lum took up a notion that he could run his hand down into his flank pocket and take his money and do what the good Lord, in His own good time and way, didn't do—make a few brains and put em in Gabe's head. The human brain, fellow citizens and friends, is a powerful skeerce and peccurious thing. The world don't give it, money won't buy it and colleges can't make it. Bless God for that. Old man Lum Hankins beat me clean out of sight in regards to savin' money on general lines. But it would of been money in his flanks if he had only come over to see me about that college business.

But the old man had the money, and Gabe he went to college. When the money was gone and Gabe come back home he had a few fancy college clothes and yet no brains to speak of. If anything he was a bigger fool—or more different sorts of a fool—when he got back than when he went away. I never will forget the little piece of good advice which Blex Scroggins give him the first time they met up together after Gabe's return back from college: "Be off to college, have you, Gabe?" "Yes."

"Didn't git lost gwine or comin'?" "No."

"Go back safe and sound ouest more?" "Yes."

"Bully for you, Gabe. Go and elicit a tree, now, and fall out and break your neck."

Something Had to "Drap."

The next Sunday, it would seem, Gabe crawled into his fine college clothes and put out and went over the creek to see Miss Susie Bell Pollard. And apparitly, of course, he feel heels over an apple in love with Miss Susie Bell. Well, I couldn't blame him for that. I think a whole passle of that girl myself—just as much as the law allows. But Gabe, he did have a tremendus bad case of it. The more he saw of Miss Susie Bell the more he wanted to see. The more he went over to the old Pollard place, the more he wanted to go. It was every Sunday for a time, and then one night in the week for good measure. Finally, at last, it was every Sunday the Lord sent and two or three nights in the week till Gabe Rankins was stickin' more closer to the old Pollard place than a sick kitten to a hot brick. He was there so reglar and so frequent and so constant, and cut such a furious high dash with his college clothes on till the other boys laid down their hands gradually by degrees and quit the game.

In the main time anybody could see, with one eye shut, that Miss Susie Bell—kind-hearted and patient and long-sufferin' as she was—was weary of life and tired to death. All along for the last six months I have been lookin' for somethin' to git ripe and drap. It come to pass on Friday night before the last third Sunday—over at the old Pollard place. Gabe Rankins was there. I was not there. But two or three days after that Miss Susie Bell was over to our house. I could tell that somethin' had come to pass the minute she lifted the latch and come in the front gate—she did look so fresh and happy and bright and reged like. She put me in mind of a young colt which had slipped the bridle and tumbled head first loose in a big pasture. And she didn't tarry around there long before she up and told me and mother the latest news—which was to the general extent that everything was over as between her and Gabe Rankins.

The Same Old Story.

"If he had told me he loved me onest, I reckon he had told me the same thing 40,000 times," says she. "But to save my life I never could respond back to him accordin'. He had went off to college and wore fine clothes, but he was such a mortal, monstrous fool. The Rankinses have got plenty of money, and I can see wherein money would be a mighty nice thing to have in the family. But Gabe he is such a variegated fool. He told me I was an angel on the earth—which, of course, anybody ought to know better than that—and it rhoved to me that he was either a fool for the want of sense, or couldn't tell the truth with a rest. I ain't nobody's angel so far as I know. I don't even make out like I am sproutin' any wings as yet. I am nothin' more and nothin' less than a young American woman in the plain and reglar way. If I ever do git to be an angel—which I hope and trust I may in the future hereafter—bless goodness I won't need any of these mutton-headed youngsters in my business. I give out my private opinions along that line to Gabe, but it was like sayin' your Sunday school lesson to a lazy mule."

"By-and-by he told me how it would jest naturally kill him to give me up—that he would die a slow and terrible death if I didn't marry him. To be certain, of course, I didn't want to break over the ten commandments and kill anybody. Yet still at the same time I felt like it would bodaciously kill me if I had to mix clothes through good and bad friends with such a unanimous fool as Gabe. Bless gracious, a man that didn't have no better sense than to turn loose and die for any livin' human woman on top side of the green earth—well, Susie Bell Pollard never was cut out to fit into a weddin' march with that sort of a man. So at last I told him I was mighty sorry, but the deed would have to be did. I had one consolation, anyhow—I loved if I killed him in a circumstantial way they never could prove it on me in the county court."

"But bless your sweet life, honey, Gabe didn't keel over and die. He poked off home and come back the next night. He come in sighin' and cryin' and blubberin' and goin' on powerful. I was good and tired by this time, but I had to stand and take it as best I could. I stood everything till the idiot fell down on his knees and went to beggin' me. That was really more than my sad and weary heart could bear. I hauled off once to spit on him, and I did at last tell him if he didn't git up and go on home I would sick the dogs on him. And he went."

"They tell me that for a common thing women are better than men. I don't know so much about that. But one thing I do know—I ain't a blessed bit better than the common run of women, and I don't reckon I am so awful much better than the right sort of men. Anyhow, I don't want no grown man cryin' and sighin' and kneelin' and prayin' around me. If I ever do git married—which I hope and trust I will in the fullness of time—give me a man as good as I am, and one that could tell the difference between a plain young American woman and a snow-white angel."

In the Valley and Shadows.

But the very next day after Miss Susie Bell came over to our house and talked a little bit and said a whole lot we got some sad and sudden news from the old Pollard place. From general appearances it would seem like Gabe had made out like he was goin' crazy—which everybody says he wouldn't have no long journey to make. But he didn't lay down and die accordin' to the promise he had made Miss Susie Bell. Instead of that he had brought the man Lum down into the valleys and shadows of death, whilst the old lady Rankins was flutterin' around on the outer edges of despair.

Right here I will have to switch off long enough to tell you that when the good Lord made Gabe Rankins—sense or no sense—He made him long for this world. Some people, you understand, jest naturally run to brains whilst others run to legs, and Gabe Rankins he is one of the others.

Nobody was there to tell the story straight, and as to Gabe he never did know anything for certain. But at any rates that night he had a bad dream or a fit, or a nightmare rid him in his sleep, and unbeknownce to everybody he straightened out them long legs too quick and sudden and kicked the bed down. The general noise and smash-up woke old man Lum, and he didn't know but what his own and only son Gabe had blowed things up with a keg of powder. Consequently he went tearin' in there to see what was what and who was who. In his big hurry, and in the dark and terrible confusion, he run headforemost into the door jam and fractured his skull. They now think he will pull through by the hair of his head and the skin of his teeth, as it were, but he had a scandalous cold call.

Come to find out about the young man Gabe, there want nothin' particular the matter with him—nothin' but the same old thing. He had run to legs instead of brains, and all the money and colleges in creation couldn't change the order. "What the good Lord has put together no man can take to pieces."

South Sea Island Nursery Rules.

When a South Sea island mother wishes to chastise her child she seldom resorts to slapping, and slippers, of course, she has none. Instead of using the forms of punishment customary among civilized mothers she pulls the child's hair or bites some part of the body, generally the fleshy part of the arm. In wandering about the village one sees many children having on their bodies sores produced by wounds inflicted by their mother's teeth. When a mother wishes to express her child she lefty draws her thumb across its eye-row or cheek or gently seizes its cheek between her teeth. HE FOUND THE VENUS.

Death of a Man Once Famous, But Long Since Almost Forgotten.

The recent death on the Island of Melos of M. Henri Brest recalls the fact that his name, many years ago, was a celebrated one on account of his connection with the statue of Venus, now one of the greatest treasures in the Louvre museum, and brings to mind some interesting souvenirs in connection with that statue. It was, indeed, M. Henri Brest who discovered the wonderful statue just after it had been unearthed by a peasant in the island of Milo, and who bought it of him for a mere song in 1820. He soon sold it to M. de Marcellus, through whom it reached the Louvre.

The wonderful statue remained undisturbed in the gallery of the Louvre, of which it was the principal ornament, till the Franco-Prussian war in 1870, when the means of preserving it against the possible pillage of the Germans caused great anxiety to the curators. Few, probably, are aware that the Venus of Milo was on that occasion placed in an immense sort of padded oak coffin, and buried mysteriously in a great trench made to receive it in the courtyard of the prefecture of police. This was done in the middle of the night, in the presence of very few witnesses, with the object of keeping the hiding place of the statue perfectly secret.

It was thought by the officials of the Louvre that the statue was in perfect safety, but their anxiety for the fate of the treasure was relieved, after the signature of peace, by the outbreak of the commune and the setting fire to the prefecture of police and to the Palais de Justice opposite. Fortunately, however, when that insurrection had been put down the curators of the Louvre, on once more unearthing the statue, found it had suffered no deterioration. The inscription on the pedestal of the statue in the Louvre does not even mention the name of M. Henri Brest. It relates simply that it was bought by M. de Marcellus for the Marquis de Riviere, the French ambassador who presented it to King Louis XVIII. in 1821.

The Pall Mall Gazette says that the peasant who found the statue had no idea that he had dug up what has since proved to be the most remunerative effigy of a goddess that the world has ever known. M. Brest, having a pretty shrewd notion of her value, asked the peasant proprietor of the soil how much. The peasant proprietor could not understand what M. Brest could possibly want with a marble woman without arms, but this, instead of inducing him, as it would nowadays, to ask an exorbitant price, merely decided to sell his Venus for a song, and M. Brest took her gleefully to Paris.

There all sorts of attempts, by all sorts of eminent hands, were made to restore to her her missing members, but, as she persisted in looking ever so much better without arms than with them, the savants ultimately decided that she must have been built that way, and that way she must be left.

As is well known, this unarmed Venus has proved an immense commercial success. Millions of copies of her have been made and sold. She has adorned the virtuosos' gallery, the middle-class drawing-room, and the lodging-house back parlor. She has descended in bronze to the prosaic use of a paper weight. She has acquired a pile for many a peripatetic Italian image seller. But all M. Brest got out of her was the academic palm. No doubt, if he had lived a bit longer—he was only 102—his buttonhole would have flowered with the red ribbon. Only, the other day, on the very spot where he found his Venus, the end found him.—London Standard.

MEASURING ELECTRIC CURRENT

Consumption Registered by Meter, the Same as in the Use of Gas.

When electricity came to be sold it was necessary to measure it commercially. To this task Edison set himself in the course of his development of that remarkable series of inventions which gave to the world a perfect lighting system.

Electricity can be measured by the work it does, either chemically or mechanically. Edison's chemical meter depends on the simple fact that one ampere of electricity will deposit from sulphate of zinc under standard conditions a definite weight of metal. This type of meter is, in fact, a small electroplating battery, through which a certain proportion of the current used is carried—the proportion being accurately determined by the relative size of the meter wires and the shunts—with the result that one of the two plates is decreased and the other increased in weight, according to the amount of current consumed within the house. This meter does not give a visible record, which is an advantage of the mechanical meters. Of these there are many varieties, those most in use in this country being the Thomson-Houston watt-meter and the Westinghouse or Schallenger ampere-meter, both of which are small meters, driven faster or slower as the demand for current is greater or less, and communicating their action to a train of wheels with dials like those of the gas-meter, so that they may be verified by burning a given number of dials for an hour and comparing the dials at the beginning and end of the time. The meter record is taken usually once a month, by the supply companies, and bills are based upon these records with as much certainty as though electricity were a visible thing.—R. R. Bowker, in Harper's Magazine.

ECZEMA.

One Physician Pronounced It Ring-Worm and Prescribed for That Ailment, But the Patient Used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and Was Cured.

From the Free Press, Cornwall, Iowa.

"I was afflicted with what physicians named me eczema and began doctoring for that disease about two years ago." Said Mrs. Eva L. Evans, of Harris, Iowa, to a reporter a few days ago. "The first doctor I consulted did me no good at all. He pronounced the disease ring-worm and gave me remedies for that ailment, but soon found out his error."

"I then tried another physician, with some better success but did not succeed in obtaining permanent relief. On the contrary, I got worse and my face and body broke out badly and a severe itching sensation constantly tormented it. This physician pronounced the malady eczema and I believe now that his diagnosis was correct. My husband saw an article on Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in the daily papers and of his solicitation I tried them."

"To make a long story short, I took twelve boxes of this wonderful remedy and am now cured of my ailment. I have not been troubled with the least sign of this disease since August, 1895. I had been taking the pills during the year. I am glad to testify to the worth of this excellent remedy. It not only cured me, but my father tried it for la grippe and was materially benefited. In fact he insists it relieves him at once. Many of my neighbors are using this remedy at my recommendation and are enthusiastic in its praise."

(Signed) Mrs. EVA L. EVANS.

To confirm this statement beyond all doubt, Mrs. Evans signed the foregoing.

ETIQUETTE AT THE BANKS.

Boston People Make the Life of the Teller an Easy One.

It would seem that most of the members of the large business concerns of our proud city understand to a degree the term "bank etiquette," as though they had basked in its element a lifetime and had been taught from childhood to understand its legitimate meaning. They arrange their deposits with a method the most satisfactory imaginable to the bank clerk, a delight to behold. This regularity, while it distinctly shows the training of a thorough business man, is attended with little or no effort on their part, but it means to the bank clerks the saving of an infinite amount of hard, trying labor. This method consists of placing all the bills, clean or ragged, of the larger denominations together on the top of whatever size package they chose to make, keeping the one and two dollar bills strictly to the bottom. Thus the clerk can, with little difficulty, make rapid headway through his arduous work, for he knows what he is facing. These deposits are meat to the eyes of the tellers on ordinary days, but more especially so on heavy days, when they have all they can do to finish up by six o'clock.

It is interesting to note the marvelous rapidity with which an expert goes through the bills, counting, sorting, straightening and proving, all at the same time. You observe that oftentimes he abruptly throws out a certain bill across the desk, far apart from the rest, with a "There!" most strongly emphasized, and immediately spurs up to resume his usual place, not the least disconcerted. The uninitiated is struck mute by the sudden exclamation, starts nervously and stares blankly at the man whom he supposes to have been bitten by an invisible scorpion or reptile. Closer scrutiny proves this particular bill to be a counterfeit, though it has taken the outsider fully 15 minutes to distinguish between it and the genuine bill, much to the disgust of the expert, who, at a single glance, detected it, going as he was at the rate of a mile a minute, and discarded it as quickly as though it burned him.—Boston Transcript.

Flies on Shipboard.

Among the things that furnish occupation for the eyes and minds of trans-Atlantic voyagers are the house flies which accompany the great steamships from one side of the ocean to the other. In fine, sunshiny weather the flies buzz cheerfully about sheltered places on the decks, and when the wind blows high they take refuge in the cabins and saloons. The flies often remain with her on her next trip, thus crossing the ocean several times in succession, and perhaps spending the entire season at sea.—N. Y. Sun.

Force of Habit.

The photographer busied himself arranging everything for the sitting. This was to be his masterpiece, he said, and he wished to have every detail perfect.

"There," he said at last, "that will do nicely, I think."

He took one last look to see that all was right.

"Now! All ready," he said, in sharp, incisive tones. "Look pleasant, please."

Then he began the actual work of photographing the fractured ankle by the Iodogen process.—Chicago Post.

Is that of dyspepsia. Few remedies do more to palliate this obstinate complaint. Try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, however, and you will find that it is conquerable, along with its symptoms, heartburn, flatulence, nervousness, and loss of flesh and vigor. Bloating and constipation frequently accompany it. These, besides malarial, rheumatic and kidney complaints, are also subduable with the Bitters.

A HEAVY snow fell at Menominee and throughout the north central part of Michigan on the 19th.

CHARLES F. CRISP, ex-speaker of the house of representatives, died at Atlanta on the 23d.

EX-SPEAKER CRISP

Dies, After a Lingerin Illness, at an Atlanta Sanitarium.

He was Subject to Heart Disease, and His Fatal Illness Had Its Origin in the Excitement Attending His Joint Debate with Secretary Hoke Smith.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 23.—Ex-Speaker Charles F. Crisp died at 2:15 p. m. He had been at a private sanitarium here for 60 days.

The serious illness of ex-Speaker Crisp and the probability of its termination

Ex-Speaker Charles F. Crisp.

Crising fatally have been known to his intimate friends for some time, but he has only been spoken of confidentially. His ailment took its origin in the excitement arising out of his joint debate with Secretary Hoke Smith last summer, when he was forced to withdraw from that debate for physical reasons, his friends persuaded him to enter a sanitarium for treatment. He was subject to heart disease. Reassuring reports as to recovered health have appeared from time to time, but they have been largely discounted by those fully informed as to the facts.

Mr. Crisp was one of the best-liked men in congress. He commanded the respect of friends and opponents by his abilities and his generally unselfish judicial fairness, which was broken upon only once or twice, during the bitter controversy with Speaker Reed over the Reed rules.

He was born in Sheffield, England, where his parents had gone on a visit, in 1845, and this fact took him out of the category of vice-presidential possibilities when some years ago his name was suggested for that office. He was brought to the United States before he was a year old, was educated in Savannah and Macon, Ga., served in the confederate army and was made prisoner. He was admitted to the bar in 1866; became successively state solicitor, judge, congressman and speaker of the house of representatives in the fifty-second and fifty-third congresses. His congressional career in the lower house extended over 14 years, and he was the choice of his party for the United States senate when he died.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.
The Sensational Advance in Wheat the Event of the Week.

NEW YORK, Oct. 23.—R. G. & Co. in their weekly review of trade say: The event of the week has been the sensational advance of wheat to 83 cents for cash on Thursday, a rise of 5½ cents, and its fall to 77 on Thursday, gaining 1½ on Friday. The rise was magnified by covering of speculative sellers who imagined the advance had gone too far, but was at the bottom based on an extraordinary foreign demand, which has engaged grain vessels from all Pacific as well as Atlantic ports for months ahead. How great the shortage in ordinary European supplies may be is the point of doubt and speculation, but none now question that shipments from the Pacific coast to India and the decrease in Russian yield are important, and the buying of enormous quantities for export, with engagements of freight room at higher rates, express the belief of European dealers.

Wheat exports from the Pacific coast are large, and over 600,000 bushels per day have been engaged ahead for some time. The Atlantic exports about 900,000 bushels larger than last year for the week, have been, in October, 6,570,213 bushels, flour included, against 5,086,388 last year. Corn moves largely and at lower prices, having declined a cent for the week. Cotton has advanced a sixteenth to eight cents, with only moderate transactions and heavy receipts from plantations. Estimates of the yield vary all the way from Mr. Neil's 9,000,000 bales to much less than 8,000,000, but the impression grows that the yield will be large.

The most striking feature of industrial returns is the number of contracts conditioned upon the election. The movement of currency to the interior has been only $8,500,000 for the week, and the market for commercial loans has been dull. The volume of business shown by exchanges has been 8.7 per cent. less than last year and 4.6 per cent. less than in 1893.

Failures for the week have been 274 in the United States, against 231 last year, and 60 in Canada, against 38 last year.

Escaped From the United States Jail at Fort Smith, Ark.

FORT SMITH, Ark., Oct. 24.—Nine prisoners confined in the United States jail here succeeded in making their escape some time during the night, and have not yet been recaptured. Their names and the crimes charged against them follow:

Phil Roberts, burglary; Ed. Rodgers, Bill Edmunds, Grant Prime, Warren Willis, robbery; Will Roberts, Jack Colbert, larceny; Bunk Parker, robbing a post office; and Henry Beecher, counterfeiting, all Indian territory criminals.

BRYAN'S ROUND-UP.

Beginning of the Week's Campaign in Illinois—Sixteen Speeches in One Day at Various Points—He Will Make Another Brief Trip Into Wisconsin the Latter Part of the Week, Going as Far as Madison.

PEORIA, Ill., Oct. 24.—Mr. Bryan's first day of his week of rounding-up in Illinois took him across the central part of the state, beginning at Danville in the morning and ending at Peoria last evening. Rain fell at some of the earlier places where he spoke, but beyond a rawness in the air the rest of the day was not bad for campaigning. There were some novelties introduced in the receptions given the candidate. He rode through the streets of Decatur in a horseless carriage and at Mattoon was carried from the train to the place where the speaking took place on a decorated platform on which he sat.

The wildness of the welcome given the candidate was almost unprecedented in his campaign. It was impossible to get through the throngs that pressed between his carriage and both the platforms from which he was expected to speak, and he addressed his audiences in each instance from the vehicle.

Two speeches were made at Springfield, the state capital and the home of Senator John M. Palmer, who is in the race for the presidency on the gold democratic ticket. Gov. Altgeld was fulfilling his engagements elsewhere in the state, and consequently could not welcome the head of the national ticket.

The meetings at Decatur, Springfield and Peoria were attended by great crowds and the enthusiasm shown was fairly rampant. Mr. Bryan spoke twice in each of these cities and also talked at Danville, Paris, Charlestown, Mattoon, Sullivan, Petersburg, Havana and Pekin.

The train was in charge of Col. W. S. Cantrell, railroad and warehouse commissioner of Illinois, and through his efforts Mr. Bryan was able to fulfill his engagements with greater promptitude than in other states where the committees persistently kept him behind the scheduled time. Sixteen speeches was the day's record. Three speeches were made by Mr. Bryan on his trip from Springfield to Peoria.

There were 3,000 people at Petersburg, about 5,000 at Havana, and 1,000 at Pekin.

At 11:30 last night Mr. Bryan left Peoria for Ottawa, where he will begin his speech-making this morning.

Another Trip Through Wisconsin.
NEWARK, Oct. 24.—The Democratic state central committee has perfected arrangements with the national committee whereby W. J. Bryan will again be heard in Wisconsin before the close of the campaign.

Mr. Bryan will make a number of speeches in Chicago and throughout the state during the latter days of the month. He will leave Chicago on the evening of Thursday, October 29, and proceed to Green Bay, where he will deliver an address at eight o'clock on the following morning. Mr. Bryan will then take a special train with Madison as the objective point, a on the trip stops will be made at De Pere, Kaukauna, Appleton, Neenah, Menasha, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Janesville, Watertown, Jefferson, Port Atkinson, Milton Junction and Janesville, at all of which places the presidential candidate will speak.

A time table announcing when Mr. Bryan's special will arrive at the several places will be made out and announced to-morrow. Mr. Bryan will be accompanied on the trip by Hon. E. C. Wall and ex-Gov. George W. Peck.

GOV. ALTGELD

Fires a Few Hot Shots at William R. Morrison.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Gov. Altgeld was at first disposed to allow the published attack of Wm. R. Morrison upon him to pass with a general reference to the disappointed aspirations of Mr. Morrison, but the governor's friends insisted upon something more specific. In reply to the question asked by a reporter:

"Did or did not Mr. Morrison beg you to assist in making him president of the United States?"

The governor replied:

"Yes, he did, and I was rather surprised at the request, for I assure you I thought that Wm. R. Morrison knew that he was a political corpse until I heard that voice from the coffin last spring beseeching me to assist in making him president of the United States. It would not be proper for me to go into details, but Morrison's animus is easily discernible. I have not read his attack on me. I understand it is not worth reading. It is a wonder that Mr. Morrison did not reflect that the man he now abuses is the self-same man he asked to assist him to the highest office in the gift of the nation a few months ago. There are several suggestive epithets in common use which are appropriately applied to creatures who act like that. I need not particularize these epithets. They will come to the lips of every manly man who despises treachery, cowardice and malignity."

Gov. Altgeld almost collapsed at the close of a 40-minute speech at the People's institute Thursday evening, but after resting 15 minutes he was able to go to the Twelfth Street Turner hall, where he delivered another address.

SIR JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE,

The British Ambassador Returns to Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The British ambassador, Sir Julian Pouncefote, has lost no time after his long absence in London in resuming his diplomatic functions in Washington. Within 24 hours of his return he had a short interview with the secretary of state, after which Sir Julian called at the executive mansion and left his card for the president.

Sir Julian's call Friday was merely one of courtesy.

HELD UP IN BLUE CUT.

The Spot Made Famous by the James Gang

The Scene of Another Train Robbery—Masked Men Capture the Engineer and Fireman and Rob the Express Car.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 24.—Blue Cut, between Independence and Glendale, Mo., was the scene of another train robbery at 5:40 o'clock last evening. Chicago & Alton passenger train No. 48 was held up by four bandits, who compelled the engineer to use his coal hammer to break open a safe. One of the robbers went through the passenger cars pretending to take a poll, while the others attended to the express messenger, fireman and engineer. It is said the robbers got but a small amount.

This is the second time that a Chicago & Alton train has been robbed in Blue Cut, which was made famous by a robbery by the James boys. Inspector Flahive, of Kansas City, left with a posse of eight men for the place where the robbery occurred. It is about twelve miles from Kansas City. The train robbed was a fast express en route from Chicago to Kansas City. None of the passengers were molested, and many of them did not know a robbery had occurred. The train was stopped by displaying a red flag. Not one shot was fired. The bandits had Winchester, and are supposed to have had horses hitched close at hand.

The train was in charge of Conductor A. J. Fell and Engineer James Walton. At the entrance to Blue Cut it was flagged. Walton reversed his engine and brought the train to a standstill in the midst of the cut. It was pitch dark. He looked out from his cab to ascertain the trouble when a gruff voice commanded him to get out of the cab and be quick about it. Walton looked into the muzzle of a shotgun and obeyed. Fireman Post did likewise. Two more men emerged from the darkness and mounted the engine. One of them picked up the fireman's coal pick.

The engineer and fireman were then marched to the express car. Messenger Andy Shields was commanded to open up. He at first refused, but finally complied when convinced that Post's life was in danger. The bandits then entered the car, rifled the money packages, securing $300 and a quantity of jewelry. The hold-up occupied altogether about five minutes. The passengers knew nothing of it until long after the engine had been cut loose.

Conductor Fell describes the men as being short and heavy with dark hair. Their faces were masked. They carried shotguns and revolvers. Inspector Flahive and eight picked men left Kansas City on a special train immediately after the report of the robbery reached here. The robbers are supposed to be railroad men, from the fact that they knew how to handle the engine.

UNIVERSALLY CENSURED.

The Dastardly Assault Upon Secretary Carlisle at Covington Severely Criticized.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The treatment of Secretary Carlisle Thursday night was the subject of earnest talk among politicians of both parties in this city yesterday. Democratic leaders denounce and disavow the actions of those who assaulted the secretary, and republicans, while condemning the acts committed, profess the belief that the insult will help the cause of sound money in that state and elsewhere.

"The conduct of the crowd at Secretary Carlisle's meeting in Covington last night," said Chairman Babcock of the republican congressional committee, "cannot be condemned in terms too severe. Secretary Carlisle is an honored son of that state; one of her representative citizens, and went there to speak for the cause in which he believed. He was entitled to decent treatment under any circumstances, but especially in his own town and among the people with whom he was personally acquainted. The conduct of the crowd in assaulting the secretary was an attack not only upon the man, but upon the high office he holds."

"This rowdism," he said, "will lose the party represented by the men who committed this dastardly attack thousands of votes."

Chairman Butler, of the national populist committee, discussing the Carlisle incident, said:

"I regret any such conduct towards any man, however much I may oppose his position or however much I may object to his views."

"Good citizens cannot," said Mr. Butler, "indorse such proceedings."

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENTS

At Washington Thinning Out at Election Day Approaches.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—The executive departments are beginning to show the thinning out incident to the approaching presidential election. All the departments have furnished campaign orators, and from the treasury alone no less than 15 officials or employees are actually engaged in campaign talk. Secretary Carlisle and the higher officials are supporting Palmer, while the under democratic officials are campaigning for Bryan.

SOUTHERN GLEANINGS.

The T. P. Leathers Bank.
At four o'clock the other afternoon, while the great lower river stern wheeler T. P. Leathers was on her way down the river with a cargo of 1,700 bales of cotton, 9,000 sacks of cotton seed and a lot of cotton seed oil, and was about three miles above Natchez, she began taking water. Her crew commenced to jettison her cargo, throwing overboard several hundred bales of cotton and several thousand sacks of cotton seed, in the hope of saving her. These efforts proved unavailing. She was run into the bank at Palo Alto point, and

LET US REASON TOGETHER.

The campaign now rapidly drawing to a close, and so far as the Chronicle is concerned will end with this issue, has been a most remarkable one viewed from every standpoint. Never before in the history of American politics have the people as a whole been so tenacious of individual views, and showed so little disposition to fall in line, or to submit to coercion by the party lash. Even now at the close of this the most extraordinary political battle ever fought in this country there are hundreds, yea thousands of voters in Alabama who are undecided as to what course to pursue. They are completely at sea, and having no fixed opinion, and for fear of voting against their interest, many have concluded that rather than take the risk they will remain away from the polls. They lose sight of the fact that in failing to vote for Bryan they are in reality aiding McKinley to the extent of half a vote. This being true, and no one after due reflection will deny it, let us reason together and see if we cannot come to a better understanding of the situation that confronts us.

There are five presidential tickets in the field for Alabama voters to select from. Three of these however are mere side shows and stand on earthy show not only of election but even of polling a respectable vote. This leaves then only two from which to select—Bryan and Sewall or McKinley and Hobart. Choose you this day which you will serve. Of course you can vote for either of the three side-show tickets if you see proper, but the only thing accomplished would be an indirect half vote cast for McKinley. Surely a majority of the voters of Shelby county do not desire the election of McKinley and the return of the republican party to power. Yet if any considerable number fail to vote they will by so doing help to bring about this result.

Now a few words as to the democratic platform. It is not entirely as we would have it, but in comparison with the republican it is far preferable. There never has been nor never will be written a party platform that every individual can subscribe to in its entirety; neither is it possible in so large a country, each portion of which has interests directly at variance with other sections, to put forth a platform that would suit all of the varied interests of these different sections. It is an utter impossibility. A party goes before a nation with its platform, and not before the east, west, north or south. Therefore any man claiming to be a democrat who refuses to support the ticket because one or more planks in the platform does not meet his approval, could not find a more flimsy excuse behind which to hide. To be plain it is nonsense.

A word to the populists and we close. The democratic party offers you every reform you have been clamoring for since your defection from her ranks. If you were sincere in your demand for the free coinage of silver, it is now possible to obtain it, but only in one way. If you vote the Bryan and Sewall electoral ticket you will aid in the election of a man pledged to free silver. If you vote for Bryan and Watson, you virtually throw your vote away since their electors have no possible chance of carrying Alabama. Don't overlook the fact that Bryan is your nominee also, and in good faith you should support him. And don't persuade yourself that it would be dishonorable to abandon Watson for we can't conceive how you can so construe it when to vote for him is not only throwing your vote away, but indirectly aiding in the election of McKinley. If you are sincere in the views you have always advocated your only consistent course is to vote for Bryan and Sewall.

A MOBILE special of recent date has this to say concerning the shipment of corn to Mexico: "Mobile has been supplying a quantity of corn to Mexico during the past few months on account of the drought, which left a large area of that country without a supply. Colonel Maguire stated that the receipts of corn from Mobile at Tampico had also been sent from Pensacola. He stated that Vera Cruz and Pueblo were free ports for sixty days longer. On account of the drought, the government had allowed the grain into the ports free of duty. Tampico had 5,000 tons free, San Luis Potosi had had her complement of 5,000 tons also, and now the only ports which have not yet received their complement free of duty are Vera Cruz, Pueblo and Guanajuata. The Colonel stated that there is a demand for at least 10,000,000 bushels."

Doctors say that an apple at night is the best kind of medicine. It is rich in phosphoric acid, excites the action of the liver, promotes sleep and disinfects the mouth. It relieves indigestion, and is one of the best preventives of throat disease. One doctor remarked to a patient who consulted him, that an apple eaten just before going to bed was so excellent in its effect upon the stomach and blood that it deserved to be called a beauty pill. Seldom is medicine prescribed in a more palatable form than as an apple, and so large is the crop that no one this year need deny himself this cure.

A DISCOVERY not pleasing has been made in regard to our crack naval cruisers. It has been found that they will not hold ammunition enough to carry them through a regular sea fight. This, after so much time and money having been spent on them, and so many reams of paper covered with mathematical calculations, looks as though there was not so much brains to the cubic inch in an expert's skull after all. It is not likely our cruisers will be called on to fight a battle. Still, we would like to think they could do so if they needed to, especially as they cost over $1,000,000 apiece.

THE Louisville and Nashville Railroad is doing the biggest business just now that they have ever done—not only here at Montgomery, but all over the entire system. To give some idea of the immense business they are doing they handled over 5,000 car loads of freight from this city south during September. In addition to this big rush of freight business—which keeps every car on the line busy—they handle every day about 40 cars of slag to be used in ballasting the road between here and Pollard.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Those who are given to smoking will be glad to learn that smoking can be made free from ill effects. Dr. Cantrelet directs that a piece of cotton wool may be steeped in a 5 per cent. solution of pyrogallol acid and inserted in the pipe or cigar-holder. He claims that this method will neutralize any possible ill effect of the nicotine. Such ill effects as headache, furring of tongue and more serious ills can be avoided by the above process.

SPAIN is surely getting in a bad way when an attempt is made upon the life of its child king. An effort was made to wreck the train on which the 10-year-old monarch was traveling, but the plot was frustrated. This hereditary ruler is not in any sense to blame for Spanish oppression or suffering. It is brutal and fiendish to try to take his life because of something for which he is in no way responsible.

FIFTY prominent ladies of Brooklyn have combined in a Dress Culture club, pledged to wear dresses three inches from the ground in fair weather and six inches on rainy or snowy days. The way to begin is to begin, and this new departure seems moderate and sensible.

THE reign of the bicycle is threatened by the coming of a new kind of roller skate, made with pneumatic tired wheels, and giving to the user a speed of about twelve miles an hour. All sorts of distinguished people in Europe have taken to this form of recreation.

THE money in circulation increased $43,132,655, in September. On October 1st, the total circulation outside the treasury holdings was $1,582,392,289. Estimating the population at 71,744,000, the money supply would be $22.61 per capita. It was $21.10 on July 1st.

THERE is a vast difference between a man who will work and a man who is willing to work. The first will starve while waiting for something to turn up, while the other will turn something up or bust.

THERE are popocrats, Hanneocrats, democrats, gold bugs, silver bugs and water bugs. These last are the prohibitionists.

WORK OF W. F. ALDRICH.

WOULD MAKE CHATTELED SLAVES OF HIS EMPLOYEES.

AFFIDAVIT OF W. R. WEAVER.

Swears He and Others were Discharged By Aldrich Because They Voted the Democratic Ticket—Had Worked in Montevallo Mine 25 Years.

In the contest in the Fourth district we have three candidates: Mr. E. H. Dryer, the nominee of the gold standard bolters; Mr. T. S. Plowman, the nominee of the democracy; and Mr. W. F. Aldrich, a republican, who intends to vote for McKinley, but who, strange to say, is the nominee of the populists. That scarcely any democrats, who participated in our primaries, and who from honor and from interest are bound by the result, will support Mr. Dryer is an assured fact. This narrows the race to Mr. Aldrich, a lifelong republican and supporter of McKinley, Hobart and Hanna on the one side and Mr. Plowman, a lifelong democrat and a supporter of Bryan, Sewall and reform on the other. The question naturally arises, which of these two is entitled to the support of the white people of this district, at least that portion of the white people which believe that the declaration of independence was not in vain, and that as our forefathers achieved their political independence from the mother country so shall we achieve our financial independence.

It is said, and it is true, that on the real issues involved in this campaign the democracy and the populists are in substantial accord and it is therefore of the utmost importance that their forces be not divided in the face of the common enemy. Mr. Aldrich is willing to accept the populist nomination, but he will not surrender his republican ties and associations. He may claim that he will vote for the free coinage of silver, but at the same time he provides in advance that his vote shall be fruitless by the election of Mr. McKinley, who is pledged to the veto of such a bill should it with Mr. Aldrich's help run the gauntlet of a republican house. Is this evidence of a sincere belief in the free coinage of silver?

The campaign committee of the populist party has recently denounced Mr. Kolb and Mr. Bowman for supporting Mr. Sewall for vice president on the ground that Sewall is a corporationist and the president of a national bank. Yet with stronger inconsistency the same men helped to procure the nomination, and are now actively promoting the candidacy of Mr. Aldrich, perhaps the wealthiest man in the district, the head of one of its largest corporations, and the vice president and director of the Berney National Bank of Birmingham. This is not said to the discredit of Mr. Aldrich, but it fully exposes the hypocrisy of those who have a case of mental hydrophobia at the mention of Sewall's name.

There is this difference, however, between Mr. Sewall and Mr. Aldrich. The one will vote for Bryan in order that his professed principles may be enacted into law; the other will vote for Mr. McKinley in order that it may be impossible for those principles to succeed.

There is another and a vital difference. We are now engaged in the most momentous struggle ever witnessed in this country. The war of rebellion was fought on the issue of black slavery. This war of ballots involves the question shall the white man be free? All over the country the cry has gone out that the corporations have ordered their employees to vote for McKinley on pain of dismissal. Men who are paid for their time must throw in their liberty. Every day we see instances of men forced to join McKinley clubs and wear McKinley badges against their will on the alternative that their wives and children shall be turned out to starve.

A sad day will it be for Alabama when such practices become general here. We have always been proud of the fact that if such things existed elsewhere we at least were free. But is it so? Not entirely.

When Mr. Aldrich was a candidate for congress two years ago he employed upwards of a hundred men. Many of them lifelong democrats who had spent their lives in his service, who had helped amass his splendid fortune and who were faithful and true. It is said that he assured his men before election that they could vote as they pleased. Whether that is true or not, this is certain: After the election every man that voted for Robbins, some sixteen in number, were discharged for no other cause than their refusal to betray the party to which they had belonged. One of them, Mr. William R. Weaver, than whom there is no more honorable in Shelby county, makes affidavit to the fact. Read it and also the certificate of Mr. C. B. West attached.

State of Alabama—Shelby County.—I, C. B. West, a justice of the peace in and for said state and county, hereby certify that I am the person before whom the affidavit of William Weaver was taken. I reside near Montevallo mines of which Mr. W. F. Aldrich is the owner. I know the affiant William Weaver and the other men mentioned in his affidavit relative to the discharge of men who voted against Mr. Aldrich when he ran for congress in 1894. The men were discharged for voting the democratic ticket. Mr. Weaver is an honorable, hard working man, one of the best citizens in Alabama who is now farming on his place near here. He worked at the Montevallo mines for twenty-five years prior to his discharge in November, 1894.

Witness my hand this the 10th day of October, 1896.

C. B. West, J. P.

State of Alabama, Shelby county.
Before me, C. B. West, a justice of the peace in and for said state and county, personally appeared William Weaver, whom is known to me, and whom I certify to be a person of good moral character and worthy of credit, who being duly sworn deposes and says as follows:

I reside near Montevallo in Shelby county, Alabama, and have mined coal in Montevallo mines for twenty-five years, and worked there up to the second Monday in November, 1894. I have always voted the democratic ticket, and when Mr. W. F. Aldrich, the owner of the Montevallo mines, ran for congress in 1894, I voted against him as he was a republican. My sons, Richard, Frank and William T., also worked there and they voted against Mr. Aldrich also. We did not work against Mr. Aldrich as he was our employer, but simply voted the democratic ticket as we had been raised up to do.

The morning after the election we went to the mouth of the coal pit to work as usual, and found a notice posted at said entrance which read in substance as follows: "All the men who voted for Robbins cannot work until they see me. (Signed) W. F. Aldrich, President."

There were about sixteen of us who voted against him, and their names and residences are as follows: Myself and Robert Kenneman, who live at Aldrich, Ala.; Richard, Frank and William Weaver, who live at Maline, Ala.; Richard Nash, Blocton, Ala.; Mick Nash, Blocton, Ala.; Nuck Kuffner, John Kuffner, Belle Ellen, Ala.; Henry Harris, Imogene, Ala.; Buck Harris, Belle Ellen, Ala.; Jim Gentry, Jim Summer, Sr., and Jim Summer, Jr., Blocton, Ala.; and Bryant Ingram, Maline, Ala.

We saw Mr. Aldrich the second morning after the election at his office. We then asked him what he meant by that notice. After talking awhile Mr. Aldrich remarked you all say this is a free country. Well I reckon it is. You have done as you pleased and I will do as I please. Work is scarce and what employment I have, I will give it to my friends. We then went to the office and had a settlement.

The men Mr. Aldrich discharged were all good, reliable and law abiding citizens, who had worked many years for him.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Drummers were not a rarity last week.

Quite a number of people were present to witness the ordinances of baptism conducted by Rev. McCord last Sunday. His appointment for Sunday night was filled by Rev. Kidd of Vincent.

H. C. DuBoise, of Columbiana, and W. W. Wallace, of Harpersville, were present at the Literary Society Friday night. Though the Literary was almost a failure we trust that they will not desert us in the future.

Amongst the hearers of Rev. Whittle's lecture at this place Thursday night were several of Shelby's most promising young people. I regret not being able to give all their names. The lecture was, to say the least, one of the grandest orations that has ever been delivered from the rostrum of Wilsonville. We are waiting with overflowing anxiety to hear him lecture from the various subjects he presents. His eloquence and oratory are worthy of much praise.

The Literary Society will convene Friday night, November 6, at Capt. J. W. Bolin's. The programme will be as follows:
Recitation by Miss Georgia Pope.
Quartet—Miss Sallie Bolin, soprano; Miss Ella Brown, alto; J. M. Kyle, tenor; J. C. Jackson, bass.
Debate by entire Society. Subject—"Which has done the greater service to mankind, the printing press or the steam engine?"
Recitation by Miss P. Pope.

RE-PUBLICATION

...OF...

Pickett's History of Alabama.

So many inquiries have been made for information of where copies of this work, by the late Col. Albert J. Pickett, could be had, and so many applications received for the purchase of the few remaining copies in the possession of the members of the family, both from this and other states, and the work has attracted such general interest, alike from the character and accuracy of its contents, that it has been determined to re-publish a limited edition of this valuable work in improved form and perfect in illustrations, and offer it for sale at such a reasonable price that those desiring copies may, by becoming subscribers, procure them.

To the inhabitants of this State, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida, there is no work that can supply the place of Pickett's History of Alabama. The early history of the Southwest must ever remain a source of attractive and profitable study and entertainment to every scholar and public man.

A devotion of a lifetime of study and investigation, by the eminent author of this work, when the events were fresh in his patient scrutiny, has been rewarded by the ascertainment of the exact truth, and has given this History a value not always distinctive of such record.

This work is being printed by an Alabama establishment, and it is to be hoped that the limited edition of 3,000 copies will be all sold in this State. Every family in Alabama should possess a copy, in order that the history of our State should be made familiar to all of its people.

The book will contain about 650 pages, in one volume, fully illustrated. Price $3.00 per copy, and will be ready for delivery about September 20.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO VOTERS.
COLUMBIANA, ALA., Oct. 26, 1896.

DEAR SIR:

The sudden and unexpected death of Hon. Martin D. Sibert, one of the Bryan and Sewall democratic electors renders it necessary that his alternate elector, Columbus C. Appleton, be voted for in his stead. His name will not appear on the ticket as it is too late to get it on, therefore pasters have been provided with the name of Columbus C. Appleton printed on it ready crossed, and gummed so that the voter can moisten the paster and paste it over the name of Mr. Sibert, thereby voting for Columbus C. Appleton instead of Martin D. Sibert. You will notice that Mr. Sibert's name is the last on the list of eleven democratic electors heretofore sent you. As heretofore instructed, make a cross mark in front of the other ten democratic electors, but when you come to this name (that of Mr. Sibert) moisten your paster and stick it right over Mr. Sibert's name. In this way you will vote for all eleven of the democratic Bryan and Sewall electors as they stand now.

The above is the plan adopted by the Democratic State Executive committee. However, if for any reason a paster should not be provided for you when you go to vote, you can still vote the entire democratic ticket by writing the name of Columbus C. Appleton in one of the blank spaces immediately under the names of the electors, and BE CERTAIN TO MAKE A CROSS MARK (thus X) BEFORE THE NAME SO WRITTEN, the same as you do before the other ten democratic electors, because you have not voted the written name until you have made the cross mark before it. Don't make a cross mark before the name of Mr. Sibert, under any circumstances, as he is dead. Please post these notices conspicuously around the voting places, and also let the managers explain it thoroughly to the voters. Also let all democrats explain this matter to all voters desiring to vote for the Bryan and Sewall electors and see that they all vote for Columbus C. Appleton.

Don't forget to vote for your congressman, Thos. S. Plowman.
Yours truly

TO THE PEOPLE.

An Appeal and Warning Issued by Chairman Jones.

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—The following appeal and warning, addressed to "The American People," was given to the Southern Associated Press last night by Chairman Jones on behalf of the democratic national committee:

"I note the fact that the great corporations, with scarcely an exception, and many of the larger employers of labor in the United States are engaged in a concentrated effort to coerce their employees into voting at the approaching election against their own convictions. I deem it my duty to call upon all those who believe in the supremacy of the law and the untrammelled freedom of the individual in the right of exercising the ballot, to use their utmost effort to prevent the success of this most flagrant act of lawlessness; for if this conspiracy succeeds, government by corporations will have succeeded government by the people.

"The corporations which thus appeal to force and fraud strike at the very foundations of republican government, and the lovers of free institutions must arouse themselves to save the country from its great peril. Especially should the workmen assert their manhood rights. If they vote their convictions and in accordance with their interests the democratic ticket is certain of election, and in that case the employing corporations will have no desire to embark upon a policy of punishment.

"In the contest that is raging the salvation of the working man lies in the assertion of the polls of his rights as a free and independent American citizen.

"The perpetration of this attempted outrage upon free suffrage will work its own cure. An indignant people, jealous of their rights, will demand that the legislatures, state and national, shall proceed at once by rigorous measures to prevent the possibility of repetition of such attempts hereafter.

"The national committee, backed by the full power of the democratic organizations in every state of the union, pledges itself that every scoundrel, whether public officer or private citizen, who is detected in any violation of the law shall be vigorously prosecuted and sent to the penitentiary, if possible.

"JAMES K. JONES,
"Chm'n Democratic Nat. Com."

Proceedings of Teachers' Institute.

The Shelby County Teachers' Institute met in Wilsonville, Ala., May 22, 1896. The subject, "Shall we have Free Schools in Shelby county," was discussed, and it was agreed that FREE SCHOOLS SHOULD BE ESTABLISHED.

The following motion made by C. H. Florey, was adopted by Institute:

RESOLVED, That we the teachers of Shelby county, in convention assembled, most heartily endorse the movement to secure a system of free public schools for our county, and do hereby earnestly petition the legislature of Alabama to grant the rights of privileges for the establishment of same in this county.

The following resolution in honor of Superintendent Houston was passed:

RESOLVED, That we heartily thank Superintendent Houston for the able manner in which he has managed the schools of the county during his entire administration. May he ever feel that he has the good will of all the teachers.

At the last Institute, which convened in Columbiana, Ala., October 2 and 3, 1896, the following resolutions were adopted:

1. RESOLVED, That we tender our thanks to Ex-Superintendent T. A. Houston for his fair and impartial treatment of the teachers of Shelby county during his term of office, and further, that we shall ever remember him for his kindness.

2. That we, the teachers of Shelby county assembled, do approve of the steps being taken to secure a constitutional convention for a new constitution of Alabama, which shall give us more liberal school laws.

3. That a committee of three be appointed to frame a bill incorporating the ideas set forth in Prof. Hammond's papers, and that we authorize that committee to subscribe our names to same, as a memorial to the legislature for public schools for Shelby county.

4. That we tender our thanks to the good people of Columbiana and highly appreciate the kind reception we have received at their homes.

5. That the thanks of the Institute be tendered the young men composing the string band for their excellent music. Also Misses Smith, O'Hara et al. for their beautiful songs.

6. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished all the county papers for publication.

HOW TO VOTE.

The Law Relating to Marking Your Ballots November 3.

As there may be some of The Chronicle's many readers who are not familiar with the provisions of the existing election law, we print below a fac-simile of the ballot which said law requires must be used by voters in the election on the 3rd day of November. This ballot will be printed on thick, white paper with black ink, only, in plain type and must contain the names and candidates of all political parties on one and the same ballot. The names of candidates appear in alphabetical order without designation or distinction as to their politics.

In making out his ticket each voter must place a cross (X) mark on the left of each candidate he desires to support. The X mark on the right or in any other juxtaposition will make the ballot void.

OFFICIAL BALLOT.
Federal Election, Tuesday, Nov. 3, 1896.
(Make a cross mark (X) before the name of the candidate of your choice.)

For Electors for President and Vice President of the United States:

For Representative in the 55th Congress of the United States, from the Fourth District of the State of Alabama:

Vote for One:

WILLIAM F. ALDRICH.

EDMUND H. DRYE.

X THOMAS S. PLOWMAN.

The candidates of the democratic party are marked with an X, just as you want to vote for electors and congressmen.

Martin D. Sibert, one of the above democratic Bryan and Sewall electors, has died since his name was put on the ticket. You will therefore vote for his alternate, Columbus C. Appleton, though his name does not appear on the ticket. For full instructions as to how to vote for him see letter from Chairman W. B. Browne, published in this paper.

Condensed Testimony.

Chas. B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturer's Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a Cough remedy. J. D. Brown, Prop. St. James Hotel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., testifies that he was cured of a Cough of two years standing, caused by La Grippe, by Dr. King's New Discovery. B. F. Merrill, Baldwinville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail and would rather have it than any doctor, because it always cures. Notice of Application to Sell Real Estate.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY.
Probate Court, October 23, 1896.

Estate of Jno. T. Cromwell, deceased.

This day came J. L. Peters, administrator of said estate, and filed his application in due form and under oath, praying for an order of sale of certain lands described therein and belonging to said estate, for the purpose of paying debts, upon the ground that the personal property is insufficient for that purpose. It is ordered that the 14th day of December, 1896, be appointed a day for hearing such application, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same, if they think proper.

D. R. McILLAN,
Judge of Probate.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

Calmly, smoothly, successfully it goes on, bringing happier results each week than was ever a store's fortune in this town before. No need for us to resort to fake advertising to boost up our sales; no need for us to lie awake nights scheming, fretting, worrying about the trade that does not come. We strive every day to give you the best values our resources can command, and you naturally give us hearty responses. There is no mystery about the store—no signs and passwords—our doors are open wide and you can come and examine our prices and goods as critically as you wish, and when that is done the cause of our success will become instantly apparent. Other stores might do as we do if they would, and our sailing would not then be so smooth, but in their eager, short-sighted grasping after profits they select the wrong course and that allows us to forge ahead of them. We are ready to compare prices with any store in this town and to meet and go ahead of any quotations you may get from anybody. You have the money to spend—why not spend it wisely—here's the right place—we are at your service to

 Help You Save Every Cent Possible. ***

Remember we deliver goods FREE to any portion of town.

Seeing is Believing. *

NOT MUCH.

YOU see too many circus posters nowadays. And the public sees too many flashy advertisements. Nay, seeing is not believing. Goods are not sacrificed at half of manufacturing cost. No honest, reputable merchant can exist with such false business methods. A plated wedding ring may be sold cheaper than one of solid gold, but where is its value after the flimsy outer plating wears away. What sane man would buy such a one, and what thinking man will buy trashy, plated, shoddy goods.

We won't sell you cotton for wool nor jute for flax. The meaner sorts of merchandise we have no time to bother with; neither have you, if we judge you aright.

Clean, Honest, Reliable Goods at Lowest Prices!

is what intelligent buyers are looking for. We keep none other, and wish you to inspect our stock by the clear light of day. By this truth-telling light you can make your selections with the utmost satisfaction.

When you are ready come in and investigate our goods, view them in every light, make your own comparisons as to prices and qualities, and we will cheerfully accord you every facility.

We have anticipated your every want in our several departments. Your needs can be supplied in our store at our usual prices, which are always right. All we want or ask is that you look over our stock and get our prices before you purchase anywhere.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

Gladness Comes
With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.
If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

ABOUT ROYAL CROWNS.

William the Conqueror, before the conquest of England, wore only the cap of a French duke, but after that event added a coronet with points.

The marquis's crown bears four strawberry leaves and four pearls. In France the strawberry leaves are replaced by leaves of parsley wrought in gold.

The oldest crown preserved among the royal regalia of Great Britain is that which was worn by Charles II., being made for him at his coronation in 1660.

The crosses on the English royal crown were introduced by Richard III., during his short and turbulent reign; the arches of the diadem were added by Henry VII. in 1485.

The mural crown, a Roman honor, was of gold, decorated with battle-memories. It was given to the soldier who, during the storming of a city, first mounted the enemy's walls.

The nephews and nieces of the English sovereign are entitled to wear strawberry leaves in their crowns instead of the fleurs-de-lis appropriated to the use of princes and princesses.

QUAINT AND QUEER.

Some Pure Philosophy from the Backwoods.

Rufus Sanders Writes About the "Bullish Influence" of Death.—The Layin on of Hands and Practicing Physic.—The Money Question.

There was singin and slow walkin over at old Pilgrim's Rest church one day last week.

A small vacancy had occurred at the county poorhouse, and now consequently a you ride along the big road by old Pilgrim's Rest you will notice some fresh dirt piled up out there in the graveyard. That is where they buried old man Steve Hasseltine—which so far as anybody knows he was the last of his generation and died with a bad case of the dropsy in the feet.

The Man and the Occasion.
There was considerable singin and cryin and carryin on at the graveyard that day, but I raley couldn't see how the people made it fit the case. I don't see how anybody could feel sorry just simply because old man Steve was dead and gone. I wouldn't be half way honest if I even sorter made out like I was sorry when I heard the news.

People have to die and be buried—somebody somewhere—every year and every day and every hour. And when the news come that there would be singin and slow walkin at Pilgrim's Rest, and who it was for, I thought to myself if there ever was a time when the man and the occasion met Steve Hasseltine was the name of the man.

Now don't you take a bad breakin out at the mouth and tell it around that the gentleman from Rocky Creek talked disrespectful of the dead. He didn't do it. From the bottom of my unholloved head to the top of my tangly feet, I respect the dead. Even to old man Steve Hasseltine, I respected him when he was dead—which that was a whole lot more than I could say—and more than anybody else could say—whilst he tarried around and remained over amongst us in the flesh. In life he didn't respect himself, and other people were most in generally of the same opinion. In the natural stage of life he never was known to do anything for the good of anybody. But when the last summons come he died for the good of his country and the whole entire human race.

I use to sometimes go over to the poorhouse induring of the campaign, whilst burning the woods and sifting the ashes for votes. And I never went there but what I found old man Steve Hasseltine at home. His mother she had died there about the time he was borned into this vale of years and tears, and it was always home to him. Many and many's the time I have heard the old man say he was sick and tired of livin—that he was nobody and no account to himself or any livin creature, and the old home want what it use to be nohow.

"I have been sick and pore and helpless and a general drug on creation from the cradle up, Rufe, and raley I can't see why I ever was borned into this world," says old man Steve to me once upon a time. "I ain't only sickly, but I am likewise also too infernal lazy to breathe free and easy, and as you know I just have got sense enough to come in the house when it rains. I am like unto a knot on a log. I don't give a darn for nobody and nobody gives a darn for me. So what's the use of livin?"

Well, as for me, I didn't git into any red-hot argification with the old man along that line. It looked to me like he was about three-thirds right, and I had the nerve to tell him so. It ain't for me to give the wherefores and the whences, and it is none of my business how it come to pass that old man Steve Hasseltine was borned and brung up to be such a tremendous big blunk in creation. I didn't make him, and you can't put the blame on me. He didn't create himself, and I raley don't see how you could put the blame on him. The good Lord don't make any mistakes, and I don't see how anybody is to blame in regards to old man Steve.

But anyhow, if he was too pore and too sickly, and too lazy and too triflin to live—if, as he was wont to tell it, he didn't give a darn for nobody and nobody didn't give a darn for him in the flesh—then what was the use of all that cryin and singin and slow walkin over at Pilgrim's Rest? If the poor old thing was raley glad to die, it looks to me like other people mought agree with him—"rejoice with them that rejoice," according to what the Word says.

The last time I was in town Bill Simpkins told me that the latest crop news had a powerful "bullish influence" on cotton. I didn't know for certain what he meant until he told me the news had thrown the price up. Now I can see how it is. Death had a powerful "bullish influence" on old man Steve Hasseltine. The last time I saw him—over at Pilgrim's Rest that day—he was as smart and as rich and as good as any dead man in all the round created world.

But to my dying day I never will see any use of all that cryin and carryin on and singin and slow walkin when they laid the old man down to rest.

A Practicing Physic.
Up to this present writin I never have had any particular use for doctors. They are most in generally mighty good men, no doubts, but somehow, I don't like their samples. But if it ever does come to pass that I mought take down sick and need a doctor I do hope they will send for old Dr. Stoudenmire. He don't claim to know so awful much about books and medicine, but he has got great goods of common sense, and what little he don't know about yerbs and roots and people and things wouldn't scarcely be worth the trouble of learnin.

They worked up a tremendous bad case over in the hill country the other day, and if it hadn't been for that good old doctor I reckon there would of been some more singin and slow walkin in the settlement before now.

Josh Galloway was a mighty sick man about that time from what they tell me. He had so many different things the matter with him in general, and yet nothin in particular, till nobody couldn't say for certain what it was. But at any rates, he was sick, and his folks all thought he was sick unto death. He was mopin and droopin around tellin everybody that the dew damps of death was on him, and he was bound to go. He got worse and worse, till finally he laid out in bed and sent for all the family kinnery to come and tell him good-by, and look upon his face for the last time in this life.

Now, in the main time the Galloways have all got a strange and peccurious kind of religion to me. They don't believe in doctors, and medicine if they can help it. When Josh got to his worst they took and bought some sweet oil and "nointin" him, as they call it. Then they sent out and called in the elders to lay their hands on him. But with all of that Josh he got worse and worse. The good Lord looked on it and he would. So at last they sent for old Dr. Stoudenmire. Josh told the folks they needn't to send it. It was all vanity and vexation of spirit. His time had come. He was bound to die. But they sent unbeknowen to him.

And when the old doctor got there the women and the elders was crowded around the bed "nointin" Josh with sweet oil and layin on the hands. The old doctor he politely poked off and took his seat on the back porch and lit his pipe, and then took life easy for about two hours. And by and by the folks wanted to know what he was going to do for poor Josh.

"I got a dadblame thing," says he, "till the women and the elders take out and quit. When they quit layin on the hands I will then go to practicin."

From the Jaws of Death.
By this time, you will understand, it looked like every breath would be on the last one for Josh. But finally at last the women and the elders give up the case and went out, and the doctor he went in to practice.

"What's the matter with you, Josh?" says the doctor.

"I am dyin, doctor, dyin," says Josh. "Hanged if I don't believe you are," says the doctor. "though I can't find nothin particular the matter with you. But if you will die, Josh, dadblame it, straighten out them long legs and die like a man. I wouldn't die all curled up there like a wet and hungry dog."

Well, Josh he straightened out, he did, so as to die decent, but you could see he didn't love the doctor to talk so infernal plain and rough around his deathbed. But the doctor went on: "There, now. That looks a little more like a white man fixin to die. Now, see here, Josh, if nothin else will do you I reckon you will have to die, and the next thing is to take your proper measure so we can make the black box to fit the man."

And with that the old doctor went out and cut him a long stick to take the measure with. Then he came back and measured Josh all around and all over. Presently he put one end of the stick under the dyin man's nose so as to take his measure from that pint to his toes. Then all of a sudden like he jabbed Josh under the nose with that stick as hard as he could drive it.

Well, man, sir, from what they tell me, Josh Galloway riz up from there, he did. And when he riz he riz fightin mad and a cussin. Sick and weak as he was, it took three or four women and elders to hold him off of the old doctor. And then, bless gracious, by the time they could git him back on the bed he had give out the notion of dyin and forgot all he had ever heard about death and the grave.

The old doctor then told the women folks to give Josh a good, healthy dose of calomel that night, and follow it next mornin with plenty of salts and snakeroot tea. It was right after supper time that night when the old doctor rid by our house on his return back from the hill country to tell me the general difference between the layin on of hands and practicin.

Josh Galloway is now so as to be up and about and from all appearances I reckon it will be a long time before they will have to do any shgin and slow walkin for him.

And that's what makes me say what I do. If it ever comes to pass that I mought be took down rale bad sick give me a doctor that knows the difference between the layin on of hands and practicin. Send for old Dr. Stoudenmire.

Blissful Ignorance.
Now as for me and mine we don't know a blame blessed thing about the great question of free silver. And what difference does it make—whether they turn out gold or silver or paper—to the man that ain't got no money and no prospects to speak of.

Only the other day I heard Andrew Lucas and one of the Milligan boys havin the dadblamest most furious disputation in regards to gold and silver, when both of them put together would lack about four bits of havin enough money to pay spot cash for two square meals. They made me think of the old story wherein the two cats fell out and fit about the cheese whilst the monkey climbed up around the whole chunk. Blamed if I don't sometimes wish the politician to take the everlasting money question and fight it out in that foreign country where they don't have to wear overcoats nor shovel any snow.

GOT JUDGMENT.
Did the Grocer, But the Judge Came Out Ahead.

A Washington attorney is rather noted for the facility with which he forgets financial obligations. He has owed a certain grocer eight dollars a year or two. The other day the merchant concluded to try a new course with him. Meeting him in his store, he said: "Judge, I have a customer who owes me a small bill and has owed it for a long time. He makes plenty of money, but won't pay. What would you do?" "I'd sue him," said the lawyer, emphatically.

"Well, I will put the account in your hands," and the merchant presented a statement of the account against himself.

"All right. I will attend to it," said the disciple of Blackstone.

A few days later the merchant received the following note from the lawyer: "In the case of — against — I took judgment for full amount of your claim. Execution was issued and returned 'no property found.' My fee for obtaining judgment is ten dollars, for which amount please send check. Will be glad to serve you in any other matters in which you may need an attorney."—Washington Star.

HUMOROUS.

"Papa, why do they call language the 'mother tongue'?" "Because the father so seldom gets a chance to use it."—Chicago Record.

"How did the critics treat Jingo's music?" "Un. Well, the kindest thing they said about it was that it was not original."—Washington Star.

"Then she doesn't look with favor on your suit?" "No, I made a mistake in proposing to her in golf costume."—Philadelphia North American.

"Mother (instructing her little son's devotions)—"And, now, Willie, pray for grandma's safety." Willie—"Does she want a bike, too?"—N. Y. Herald.

"Wagman—"My wife says I'm a veritable kidnaper." Friend—"I'd resent that if I were you." Wagman—"Why resent it? That's a tribute to my ability to put the baby to sleep."—Boston Courier.

"Mrs. Ferry—"Don't you feel ashamed of wasting your time the way you do?" Perry Patetic—"I don't see how you kin call it wasted, m'n. How kin you wait anything that ain't worth nothin?"—Cincinnati Enquirer.

"Sore on the Wheel—"I see by the papers that they have the bicycle ambulance now," said Miss Grumpey at the dinner table. "There ought to be a law requiring an ambulance to go with every wheel," muttered old Grumpey, who is marked for life because of his one attempt to master the silent steed. —Detroit Free Press.

THIBETAN ANIMALS.

Marco Polo's Description of the Yak and the Musk Deer.

There are wild cattle in that country almost as big as elephants, splendid creatures, covered everywhere but on the back with shaggy hair a good four palms long. They are partly black, partly white, and really wonderfully fine creatures, and the hair or wool is extremely fine and white, finer and whiter than silk. Messer Marco brought some to Venice as a great curiosity, and so it was reckoned by those who saw it. There are also plenty of them tame, which have been caught young. These the people use commonly for burden and general work, and in the plow as well; and at the latter they will do full twice as much work as any other cattle, being such very strong beasts.

In this country, too, is found the best musk in the world; and I will tell you how it is produced. There exists in that region a kind of wild animal like a gazelle. It has feet and tail like the gazelle's, and stag's hair of a very coarse kind, but no horns. It has four tusks, two below, and two above, about three inches long, and slender in form, one pair growing upward, and the other downward. It is a very pretty creature. The musk is found in this way. When the creature has been taken, they find between the flesh and the skin some thing like an imposthume full of blood, which they cut out and remove with all the skin attached to it. And the blood inside this imposthume is the musk that produces that powerful perfume. There is an immense number of these beasts in the country we are speaking of. The flesh is very good to eat. Messer Marco brought the dried head and feet of one of these animals to Venice with him.

The people are traders and artisans, and also grow abundance of corn. The province has an extent of 60 days' journey. Pheasants are found twice as big as ours, indeed nearly as big as a peacock, and having tails of seven to ten palms in length; and besides them other pheasants in aspect like our own, and birds of many other kinds, and of beautiful variegated plumage. The people, who are idolaters, are fat folks with little noses and black hair, and no beard, except a few hairs on the upper lip. The women too have very smooth and white skins, and in every respect are pretty creatures.—Noah Brooks, in St. Nicholas.

A Queer Family.
On the farm of Amos M. Collins, near Bainbridge, O., dwells in undisturbed bliss a most curiously assorted family, presided over by a demure house cat. Several weeks ago Tabby gave birth to a pair of healthy kittens, who, in the course of events, grew apace. When old enough to get about they went on a foraging expedition in a woods near by, accompanied by the mother. In their peregrination they discovered a gray squirrel's nest in which two young squirrels lay sleeping. The curiosity of the kittens was aroused, and they soon found friends with the squirrels. Their overtures were received in the same spirit, and while the mother cat sat contentedly on a log kittens and squirrels enjoyed a frolic. When it finally became dusk the cat took one of the squirrels in her mouth and carried it to the farm, returning for the other one in a few minutes. The squirrels are now safely housed with the kittens, and the cat watches over the children of her adoption as carefully as over her own offspring.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

An African Salt Works.
Karembwe's is one of the salt-making villages; a sandy clay is dug out of the marshes, and placed in glass funnels; water poured on this dissolves the salt; this solution trickles through the green filter into a trough, after which it is boiled and strained, and a fine, large-crystal salt is obtained. It is a great trade in this part of the world. All villages make salt, which is put up in loads about five inches in diameter by four feet long. All these people, the Waitwa, are very polite; most of them hail you with "Mornin"; they do not seem to be able to manage the "good."—"Glave in the Heart of Africa," in Century.

That Was Different.
Maid—Shall madame wear her new gown to-night?
Madame—No, I guess not. This is the night my husband comes in from town, is it not?
Maid—Yes, madame; with a gentleman friend.
Madame—On second thoughts, Celeste, I think I will wear the new dress. —N. Y. Truth.

Impudence.
Laura—You remember Chollie Boggs, don't you?
Flora—I rather think I do. He is the impudent wretch who began whistling the koochee-koochee the time I got that bug down my back at the picnic.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Not a Successful Experiment.
Wiggles—Well, did you make him take his words back, as you said you were going to do?
Waggles—Yes, he took them back, but he used them over again more emphatically than he did before.—Somerville Journal.

Mind Reading.

You can read a happy mind to a happy countenance without much penetration. This is the sort of countenance that the quondam bilious sufferer or dyspeptic relieved by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters wears. You will meet many such. The great stomachic and alterative also provides happiness for the malarious, the rheumatic, the weak, and those troubled with inaction of the kidneys and bladder.

180,000 Copies of Demorest's Magazine

THE increasing popularity of Demorest's Family Magazine, a popularity extending over thirty years, is ample proof that each succeeding year finds it improved in its vitality, beauty and attractiveness. There must be something in a magazine that increases its subscription list from 80,000 to 180,000 names (a clear gain of 100,000) in less than a year. Don't you think so?

READ THIS.
"Demorest's Magazine is a literary conservator of the article and the useful. Got up in America, where it is the most remarkable work of the class that has ever been published, and combines the attractive and the useful. London Time."
"We have received another number of this delightful Magazine, and we find ourselves bound to reiterate with greater earnestness the high encomiums we have already pronounced on preceding numbers. We are not given to disparage unduly the literary and artistic publications which emanate from the London press, but we are bound, in simple fairness, to assert that we have not yet met with any publication pretending to a similar scope and purpose which can at all compare with this marvellous shining work."—London Budget.
The American Bookeller says: "There are none of our monthlies in which the beautiful and the useful, pleasure and profit, fashion and literature are so fully presented as in Demorest's."

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

A Market with Nothing but Politics to Rule and Business Almost Abolished—An Extraordinary Pressure for Money Prevailing, with an Inclination to Sell in Hopes of Soon Realizing Better Prices.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

A market without anything but politics to rule it is not often satisfactory. Business is almost abolishing until after the election by the extraordinary pressure for money, but the disposition of anybody to sell who thinks a great change for the better is near, by the feeling that it is now of no use to contract or buy when so little time remains before a decision and by the general absorption of business men in political activities. The indications show a gratifying confidence in probable things, but an enormous volume of contracts and orders depend upon the election, and while prices of materials are strong, with heavy speculative buying, the absence of demand makes products generally quiet in price, though with evident expectation of strength.

The feature of the week has been the pressure in the New York money market in spite of the heavy arrivals of gold. Quotations of call loans at 100 per cent. or more have no real meaning except that, with practically four holidays to come in succession, there is really no market. Commercial loans are almost a lost art, except as banks sustain their regular customers, which they do generally with a fair degree of liberality. The hoarding or engagement of gold to provide against contingencies has far exceeded the receipts and in exchange brought ahead gold actually withdrawn and contracts to deliver gold if required, probably exceeds in amount $100,000,000. The makers of contracts to deliver gold on demand have imported over $10,000,000, it is believed, and ordered $500,000 more this week. These withdrawals of gold from banks for temporary deposit elsewhere, or by country banks at the demand of customers have been quite heavy, and the buying of foreign exchange has made the market entirely abnormal and quite out of relation to the existing state of foreign trade.

The railroad earnings in October have been 5.7 per cent. less than last year. Wheat has declined sharply, but is rising again, closing about one-half cent lower for the week. Heavy realizing on spot sales, extreme monetary pressure in carrying supplies and belief of foreigners that they can get what they want at lower prices by present abstention have materially helped the powerful Chicago influence which has labored to depress prices. But the evidence of great demand abroad grows clearer, and while western receipts are heavy, and the eastern receipts are light, 28,766,927 bushels for the week, and 28,766,944 for the past four weeks, against 31,150,964 last year, the enormous milking returns are of especial value, showing that foreign orders are preparing a great quantity of flour for export. These returns, not heretofore given elsewhere, will be especially instructive whenever the market turns on foreign demand. Atlantic exports for four weeks, flour included, have been 8,025,558 bushels, against 6,235,412 last year. Higher prices are really less important to the American market than the news of the decreasing supplies from Russia.

Cotton has held up remarkably well, in spite of trade estimates that the yield will be close to 9,000,000 bales. The trade believes such estimates erroneous and also believes that present prices will not be found too high if with such a crop there should be good business in this and other countries. The mills are selling staple goods somewhat preedy and print cloths are a shade higher, but there is neither much selling nor much effort to buy goods of this class. The demand in wool continues and has continued during the past four weeks 28,321,100 pounds, against 29,788,850 last year.

IRON has been bought largely by speculators, 25,000 tons of Bessemer at Pittsburgh raising the price to 11.90, large quantities of gray forge raising the price 10.40, and 200,000 tons, nearly all of iron, at Chicago.

FAILURES for the week have been 270 in the United States, against 278 last year, and 40 in Canada, against 32 last year.

THE MANITOBA SCHOOLS.

A Settlement Finally Reached in the Vexatious Matter.

MONTREAL, Oct. 31.—L'Union Des Cantons De L'est, the French paper published at Athabaskaville, where Premier Laurier resides, and where he now is, announces that the vexatious Manitoba school questions have been settled at last after a great deal of negotiation between the two governments. The understanding arrived at, the paper says, is that the present system of national schools will continue to exist, but that religious instruction is secure from Catholics as well as for the French, in districts where a majority is French, and Catholic teachers are to be employed in districts where the majority are Catholic. There will be no need now, the paper adds, of any federal remedial legislation. The full terms of the settlement will be made public as soon as it is formally ratified by the Manitoba cabinet.

ANTHRACITE COAL

Of Good Quality Discovered Near Sudbury, Ont.

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 31.—Coal has been discovered near Sudbury in the Algoma district, which is believed to be identical with the anthracite found in the Lehigh Valley, Pa., except that it contains no sulphur. The extent of the deposit has not been definitely ascertained, but as far as investigation has progressed, it is known to cover an area of at least 100 acres. Samples brought to this city have been pronounced to be of good quality.

SPAIN'S CUP OF WOE.

The Possibility of Insurrection in Porto Rico—The Situation in the Philippines—More Awful Stories of Barbarities Practiced on Both Sides—A Scintillating Fight in the Province of Batagals.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—A Herald correspondent in Porto Rico, writing under date of October 22, says:

Spain's cup of woe will certainly be filled to overflowing if, as some suspect is possible, a spark from Cuban camp fires blows Porto Rico skyward and proves sufficient to start the flame of insurrection here.

Far from failing to realize the situation the government knows full well the inflammable nature of the material with which it is dealing, and carries its precautions almost to the verge of exaggeration. If the people tell the truth, however, there is no likelihood of any trouble here, at least while the struggle in Cuba goes on. That bitter contest won by the insurgents, their ends gained, there can be no doubt but that there would be an uprising in Porto Rico; but until that time comes the island is not likely to give Spain any trouble other than may be made by contributions to the cause of Cuba through the junta in New York.

The great difficulty in finding out what, if anything, is going on behind the scenes in Porto Rico is that the natives are too frightened to talk, even to the extent of telling the simple truth. I was told that it was equally dangerous to receive letters from abroad from friends, for if they contained any allusions to the state of affairs in Porto Rico or commented on the probable outcome of the Cuban trouble, the receiver would be summoned before the authorities and be called upon to explain why he was in receipt of correspondence of such a nature.

In Cavite, the position appears to remain as last reported, the rebels being in possession of the province with the exception of the town and arsenal.

More awful stories are circulated of shocking atrocities committed on both sides. A woman who confessed the plot to a priest is now under the protection of the government, while the priest who divulged the secret was among those caught in the convent at Imus, and he was flayed to death and then roasted.

Arrests of rich natives continue to be made and no one knows what their fate will be.

From the province of Batagals it was reported that late in September there had been a seditious rising in the parish of Tuy, in which it was estimated that 1,000 persons took part. Seventy men of the government forces stationed there defended themselves heroically and next day large reinforcements arrived, bringing the number up to 1,200, when the rebels were dispersed with great loss.

It was stated that the force in the provincial capital was sufficient for all contingencies. The convent was fortified and 23 priests from the surrounding parishes had taken refuge there. A volunteer force had been formed.

RUSSIA AND DENMARK.

An Entente Said to Be in Existence Between the Two Powers.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A dispatch to the Pall Mall Gazette from Copenhagen says an entente was concluded between Russia and Denmark during the premiership of M. Estrup, who resigned from the presidency of the Danish ministry in 1894, which places at the disposal of Russia, in the event of her engaging in war with Germany, or in a war involving France and Russia against the dreadnought, the whole of the available forces of Denmark, with power on the part of Russia to occupy Copenhagen and other Danish harbors and fortified works. In return Russia guarantees the integrity of Denmark with the restoration of Danish Schleswig to the kingdom. On the part of France and Russia the scheme in the event of an attack upon Germany makes Copenhagen the points of concentration for the allied fleets and army corps, the latter of which could be landed in Germany at an unexpected point within a single night.

The Pall Mall Gazette adds: "The government in Berlin has for a long time scented this danger, hence they expedited the completion of the Baltic-North Sea canal, and made other preparations. The agreement explains why, though the annual budget of Denmark was a little over $3,000,000, millions were spent in fortifying Copenhagen, which is now provided with the best modern armament and the latest projectiles and fort works, thus securing to Denmark the key to the Baltic."

ONE KILLED AND TWO SERIOUSLY BURNED BY A KEROSENE EXPLOSION.

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 31.—By the explosion of a can of kerosene oil yesterday afternoon the three-month-old baby of William Altenbach, 814 Greenfield avenue, was burned to death, and Mr. and Mrs. Altenbach, the parents of the child, were so severely burned that recovery is extremely doubtful.

In order to hurry the fire that was to cook his dinner, Altenbach started to pour a portion of the contents of a kerosene can into the stove. An explosion followed, with the result named. Mr. and Mrs. Altenbach were removed to the Emergency hospital.

SUDDEN DEATH

Of Michael Castle, a Pioneer Merchant of San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31.—Michael Castle, a pioneer merchant and one of the founders of the house of Castle Bros., of this city, died suddenly at his home in this city Wednesday night. The family did not know of his demise until they called him for breakfast Thursday morning. The deceased was an uncle of Mrs. Castle, who is now waiting trial in the Clarksenwell sessions, London (charged with shoplifting).

SHORT STORIES.

Full of Quaint Humor and Rugged Philosophy.

Death of a Poor Old Man—The Bridgroom Didn't Know Where to Sleep—Andy Lucas and the Riddle.

Poor old man Luther Blanton is dead and gone the common way of all human flesh. He was way yonder the richest man in all the regions around Rocky Creek, and yet still I do reckon he was the gonestest man that ever breathed the breath of mortal life or planted his footsteps on the broad bosom of God's green earth. He had three or four big plantations—which for the most part was all swamp lands and just naturally turned to corn and cotton once a year—and made money over and under, givine eye in his front yard and down there under the ginhouse which had been there for years and years. And as to the cash he had put away in his old sock, and in the big family chest, and at the banks in town—nobody could tell the full extent thereof. And I doubt right serious if old man Luther could tell for certain how much he had raked and scraped together of this world's goods.

But all at the same time he was forever and eternally hard run and so blasted poor till, to hear him tell it, he didn't know how he would manage to keep out of the poorhouse. He was too poor to wear anything but the plainest clothes and but precious few of them. He was too poor to spare any money for the church or the cause, and as to the widows and the orphans, I valed don't reckon they had ever heard tell of a man by the name of Luther. He was too poor to eat enough when he was hungry, and too poor to sleep sound when he was tired and broke down.

What do you reckon made the old man so felonious poor with all that land and cotton and mules and money? I put that question to Blev Scroggins once upon a time, and Blev he answered it in his own plain, blunt way. "I can tell you what makes old man Luther suffer so from the aches and pains of poverty," says Blev. "He would walk across hell on a rotten rail for two bits."

She Thought He Must Be Drunk. Uncle Josiah Jernigan is one of the men which, owing to the scoundrelous hot weather and sorry crops and politics, got so melancholic and low down along in durin of the summer.

So Uncle Josiah he goes around to see old Dr. Leatherwood, and told him a great long rigamarole about his broke down and long-sufferin condition. After feelin and thumpin around considerable, tryin to find somethin the matter with the sick man, the old doctor had to give it up. "There aint a blame thing the matter with you, Josiah, exceptin a fearful bad case of the mull-y-bugs, with a little mixtry of pure meanness," says he. "Now you go on back home and eat and sleep and be virtuous and happy. Sing a scorp and two along the road as you go, and whistle a few tunes—somethin quick and devilish if you can, Josiah. And then, when you git home, look as jolly and cheerful like as you can. Kiss the children all around and then pitch in and hug and kiss your wife two or three times, like you used to some thirty or forty years ago. Play young and well—that's the idea, Josiah. I know you feel worse than the devil, but make out like you feel just simply bully, and the good feelin will grow on you as natural as dirt. You may not be so very young and well, but you aint too old to play the game that way for a few days anyhow, and that will be better than medicine and doctors for you."

Well, uncle he took the old doctor's advice and went home that evenin in a good humor with everybody and everything in the whole discovered world. He sung songs and whistled tunes along the road as he went—anything from "Amanin Grace" to "Mollie, Put the Kettle On."

And then when he rid up at home he dismounted and got down as quick and nimble as he ever did in his younger and gallin days, when he went-a-comin' Matilda Ann Dudley some forty years ago. He kissed the children one and all, and jest naturally loaded em down with sweet crackers and stick caudy. Then he paid his double-breasted regards to his good wife, Aunt Matilda Ann, and hugged her and kissed her, and kissed and hugged her over and over three or four times.

Aunt Matilda Ann she caught a long breath and sniffed the air and looked mighty bad puzzled and pestered and surprised.

"I can't smell no whiskey, Josiah," says she, "and it aint fer me to bring a scandalation on the family, but you do act to me powerful like you mought be drinkin, if not drunk."

But anyhow, the old doctor's head was as level as it was long. And Uncle Josiah Jernigan has now about recovered from his bad low-down spell.

Where They Do Run Trains.

Billy Trammel, one of the Murder Creek set of Trammel boys, has jest here lately returned from a long trip to the Pan-Handle country of Texas. "You hear people talk about railroads and railroad trains, Rufe, but they never will know a blame thing about it till they take a trip to the Pan Handle," says Billy to me the other day. "There is where they do run railroad trains to a dead hellacious certainty. You see, Rufe, they don't have no creeks and rivers to cross, and no hills and hollows out there like you have got here. They don't have no up grades nor down grades, but everything on a smooth dead level. And when they start a train out on a trip all the engineer has got to do is to pull the darn thing wide open and let her go.

"One Sunday mornin out there in the Pan Handle I went down the road about 50 miles to the next station to see a young lady, which I was tremendous bad gone on about that time. I spent the day with her and that evenin she went to the station to see me on and off. I had got on the cars, you understand, Rufe, and jest as the bell rung and the train started I stuck my head out of the window to kiss the girl good-by. And what do you reckon, Rufe? Durned if I didn't kiss a cow in the mouth two miles up the road. Out there in the Pan Handle, Rufe—that is where they do run railroad trains."

What with the pneumatic tube project in Boston, the scheme for propelling street cars by compressed air, the prospect that a successful flying machine invention will be brought out in this vicinity, and the unquestioned pre-eminence of Boston as the centre for the manufacture of pneumatic bicycle tires, it is a question whether we shall not soon need to have a salaried official whose business it shall be to look after all kinds of machinery that has important relations to the atmosphere. In case of the creation of that office, The Boston Advertiser nominates to fill it, that eminent statesman celebrated by Mr. Lowell in the Bigelow Papers, Hon. Mr. Rag O'Wind.

An ingenious device for testing the purity of the air in workshops and other crowded places is on exhibition in Zurich. A closed vessel filled with a chemical solution, sensitive to carbonic acid gas, sends out a drop through a glass syphon every two minutes; the drop soaks through a cord suspended from the end of the syphon. If the air is very bad the drop changes its natural color—red—to white at once at the upper end of the cord. It keeps its color along the cord in proportion to the purity of the air, not changing at all if the air is perfectly pure. A graduated scale affixed alongside the cord marks the degree of impurity.

An Appeal For The Orphans.

The executive committee of the Synodical Orphans' Home at Talladega, held its annual meeting today, and on review of the work for the fiscal year from October 1, 1895, to October 1, 1896, it is found that the cost of supporting the home has exceeded its income to the amount of $1400, and the undersigned, chairman of the executive committee, was directed to make an earnest appeal through the religious and secular papers to the churches of the synod and of the charitable public for prompt contributions of money to meet this deficit. In order to show that this deficit has arisen under the strictest economy in administering the affairs of the home, we wish to note the following facts: 1. Additional room has been provided and the number of orphans in the home has been largely increased, and owing to the financial stringency of the times the contributions of money of the churches have greatly diminished. 2. There was a deficit in the support fund brought over from last year of $800, which has been paid out of the income of this year. 3. It was absolutely necessary to build a new barn on the premises, and to make other repairs which could not be postponed without serious damage to the property and loss to the work of the home. The cost of these necessary works was over $300, and it was paid out of the support fund for this year.

We have no paid agents in the field to raise funds for the support of our dependent orphans, therefore all our appeals are made by circulars and in the columns of newspapers, and every cent contributed goes directly to the benefit of the orphans. The money for which we now appeal is owed and due to generous merchants who, besides making generous donations, have supplied the daily necessities of the home, believing that the churches would replenish the treasury in time to have their bills paid this autumn. The balance is due to our faithful and self-sacrificing superintendent, who has contributed to the support of the home $100 of his small salary of $600. We do now most earnestly appeal to a generous public and to the churches throughout the synod, especially to such churches as have not paid in full the amounts subscribed at the last synod, for means to liquidate this debt, so that we will not have to draw upon the income for the coming year to pay back dues. In the percentage of the children now in the home every denomination in the State is represented, including Romanist and Israelites, and therefore we feel free in addressing this appeal in behalf of these fatherless and dependent children to all christians and to the generous public at large.

Let all contributions be presented to Mr. J. B. McMillan, treasurer, Talladega, Ala.

Punctuated.

From the Selma Journal.

The following sentence was recently given to one of our citizens prominent in banking circles and he was asked to punctuate it: "Ten one dollar bills—for such they were—were blown down the street." The aforesaid banker who is ever up to snuff replied: "I would make a dash after ten one dollar bills. Next!"

Your Boy Won't Live a Month.

So Gilman Brown, of 34 Mill St., South Gardner, Mass., was told by the doctors. His son had Lung trouble, following Typhoid Malaria, and he spent three hundred and seventy-five dollars with doctors who finally gave him up, saying: "Your son won't live a month." He tried Dr. King's New Discovery and a few bottles restored him to health and enabled him to go to work a perfectly well man. He says he owes his present good health to use of Dr. King's New Discovery, and knows it to be the best in the world for Lung trouble. Trial Bottles Free at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

Calmly, smoothly, successfully it goes on, bringing happier results each week than was ever a store's fortune in this town before. No need for us to resort to fake advertising to boost up our sales; no need for us to lie awake nights scheming, fretting, worrying about the trade that does not come. We strive every day to give you the best values our resources can command, and you naturally give us hearty responses. There is no mystery about the store—no signs and passwords—our doors are open wide and you can come and examine our prices and goods as critically as you wish, and when that is done the cause of our success will become instantly apparent. Other stores might do as we do if they would, and our sailing would not then be so smooth, but in their eager, short-sighted grasping after profits they select the wrong course and that allows us to forge ahead of them. We are ready to compare prices with any store in this town and to meet and go ahead of any quotations you may get from anybody. You have the money to spend—why not spend it wisely—here's the right place—we are at your service to

 Help You Save Every Cent Possible. ***

Remember we deliver goods FREE to any portion of town.

Seeing is Believing. *

NOT MUCH.

YOU see too many circus posters nowadays. And the public sees too many flashy advertisements. Nay, seeing is not believing. Goods are not sacrificed at half of manufacturing cost. No honest, reputable merchant can exist with such false business methods. A plated wedding ring may be sold cheaper than one of solid gold, but where is its value after the flimsy outer plating wears away. What sane man would buy such a one, and what thinking man will buy trashy, plated, shoddy goods.

We won't sell you cotton for wool nor jute for flax. The meaner sorts of merchandise we have no time to bother with; neither have you, if we judge you aright.

Clean, Honest, Reliable Goods at Lowest Prices!

is what intelligent buyers are looking for. We keep none other, and wish you to inspect our stock by the clear light of day. By this truth-telling light you can make your selections with the utmost satisfaction.

When you are ready come in and investigate our goods, view them in every light, make your own comparisons as to prices and qualities, and we will cheerfully accord you every facility.

We have anticipated your every want in our several departments. Your needs can be supplied in our store at our usual prices, which are always right. All we want or ask is that you look over our stock and get our prices before you purchase anywhere.

That Tired Feeling!

Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.

You Feel Relieved—

The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.

The Feeling Grows—

When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.

Trouble is Forgotten

When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. We don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.

Happiness is Supreme

When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

MY LITTLE QUEEN OF HEARTS.

My little queen of hearts is she—
 The loveliest of lasses!
 The rosy hours,
 The dewy flowers,
 Smile on her as she passes.
 I would that I were keen of wit
 And skilled in Cupid's arts,
 To ravish her,
 And capture her—
 My little queen of hearts!
 My little queen of hearts—Ah, me!
 All through summer weather,
 In shade and moon
 My little queen
 And I romped on together.
 Her saucy mouth was Cupid's bow,
 Her eyes were Cupid's darts,
 In cunning glee
 She wounded me—
 My little queen of hearts!
 My little queen of hearts is she,
 And yet I bow in sorrow,
 I'm forced—forthwith!
 To tell the truth—
 She's one year old to-morrow!
 Ah, there's the selfish reason why
 My little queen has imparted—
 I fear that she May some time be
 Another's queen of hearts!

MY BURGLAR STORY.

BY C. H. ARGUR.

WHEN I went to bed that night my hair was as black as it used to be. When the day dawned it was light. So you may see how badly I was frightened.

I was paying the penalty for overwork at the time by taking a health trip, and I carried along $475 to pay it with. I also took a fishpole and a north-westerly direction for the Michigan woods.

When I was leaving Detroit on the steamboat I wrapped up $400 in a rubber band and stowed them away in the inside pocket of my vest, and I soon acquired the habit of touching myself every time I thought of it to see whether my cash balanced, or to speak more accurately, to see whether I still had the bulge on my vest.

As soon as I found this nervous habit fastening itself upon me I was sorry that I had not always carried large sums of money and got used to the sensation, but it was too late for vain regrets, and I determined to make the best of it. But I decided that I would always in the future have plenty of money.

It was a little too early in the season for the summer run of schoolma'ams on the lakes, and there were only a few passengers on board the steamboat. These were made up mostly of commercial travelers and a fair assortment of those dusty-booted, slouch-hatted, shoddy-clad men who travel on trains and boats everywhere without any apparent reason or object. There was one lady on board.

There was also another passenger—a red-headed man with a sinister eye and a smell of horse about him so pronounced that the lady passenger asked for "the radish" at dinner, thinking to avoid hurting his feelings by saying horse-radish in his presence.

If I had not been carrying a wad of money into a lonely country I should have paid little attention to this ill-favored person, but I was carrying a wad of money, and I suspected that he knew it. For the life of me I could not help pressing that wad with my fingers every time I met him or heard his voice or smelt horse. I was certain that he noticed this involuntary action and that he knew the reason of it, and I came to believe that he was on the boat because I was, and that he would get off when I did.

He did get off when I did, at 11 o'clock at night, on the lonely dock in the town of Gravelton, and no one left the boat there but us two. I saw him disappear in the darkness when I took my seat in the hotel bus.

ACQUIRED THE HABIT OF TOUCHING MYSELF.

Those large, cheaply-built houses which one will find in all the lumbering towns of the west where land is cheap and pine is cheap, and regular boarders are cheap and numerous, but my room was clean enough and reasonably secure. The window had no fastenings, but the sash had swelled, and the casement held it in a grip which all my strength could not loosen. The door was provided with a bolt and a lock, and the transom was too narrow to admit the body of a man. I felt pretty secure, but I was made nervous by the fact that the curtain failed to cover the lower part of the window. I was morally certain that my ugly fellow-traveler stood outside in the darkness, watching me with hungry eyes.

I did not feel sleepy enough to go to bed, neither did I find it particularly cheerful to sit in the one little wooden chair which the room afforded and gaze at the cheap wall paper covering the pine partition, or the "skied" picture of a flaming red, long tailed bird of paradise, with his head set backward on his neck. My books were in my trunk, and there was nothing at hand to read except an old newspaper, which was doing duty as a cover to the washstand.

Glancing at this paper, I saw that the page exposed to view was made up of "syndicate" matter, and that the prominent article was, by a startling coincidence, the story of an adventure with a burglar. I began reading it.

The narrator told how he found himself in a strange room seeking for a safe place to bestow his money for the night; how he determined to place it between the leaves of a dictionary, and wishing to remember the exact place he thought he would open the book at the word money, but behold, when he opened it the first word he saw was murder.

Here the narrative was broken by a soap dish, which adhered firmly to the paper in spite of my careful efforts to remove it, and I read no further.

I arose and shook myself. "Pshaw!" I said, "what a fool I am. He's probably just an ordinary hostler come up here to work, or perhaps to see his old mother. No doubt he's as honest as I am. I wonder what word he would have found if he'd opened the dictionary at cash." I soliloquized, and out of mere idle curiosity I took from my handbag the nearest approach I had to a dictionary—a little paper-covered book of synonyms, and opened it at C.

Clutch—grasp—lay—hold-on—catch—seize.
 This was the line that met my gaze. I laughed, threw the book on the table and began to undress.

"If anyone enters my room to-night," I thought, as I folded up my vest and placed it under the pillow, "I'll clutch him, grasp him, lay hold on him, catch him, seize him, and yell for help."

When I went to sleep I dreamt that I was wading up a trout stream fishing for black bass with a wad of money for bait and that as fast as I caught fish I was robbed of them by a red-headed horse.

From the number of fish I had caught I judge that I must have slept two or three hours; then I found myself suddenly awake, listening intently, and anxiously sniffing the air. I was certain of two things. Some one was moving in the room, and I smelled horse.

It is easy to write of this thing now in a spirit of levity, but I had no such feeling as I lay there straining my eyes to no purpose in the inky darkness, but hearing that fellow move about the room boldly, without caution, as though it mattered nothing to him whether I slept or wakened.

"If I move," I thought, "he is ready with his knife or club to silence me forever."

I did not know whether or not he had already taken the vest from under my pillow and I did not care just then to investigate. I moved not a muscle, but when the first tumult of sudden fright had subsided I tried to think—to reason.

MY VISITOR.

"I am here for my health," I thought, "Now won't it be healthier to lie still and let him take my money than to move a finger and let him take my life—what little I have? How did he get in here? Ah, of course! the window. I couldn't budge it, but he is muscular. I should have thought of that."

What was the man doing? The sounds he made were exactly such as a man makes in dressing. Heavens! would he exchange clothes with me, leaving his horse old suit in my room? He was at the wash-stand pouring out water—washing his hands. My fright was giving way to anger at the cool impudence of the man. Doubtless he had on my clothes now, including the vest, with the wad of bills in the inside pocket. Coward that I was to lie there and let him take my property!

I hesitated no longer, but sprang from the bed and with one cry of "Help!" rushed with resistless fury slam bang against the partition over where I thought the man stood.

Some one tried my door, then knocked on it for admittance. Backing toward it so as to guard myself from an attack by the burglar I found the bolt and lock and threw the door open. A flood of light filled the room; the window was closed and the only persons present were myself and my visitor—a gentleman fully dressed, with a lighted lamp in his hand and a trout basket slung over his shoulder.

"There was a burglar in my room," I began. "I couldn't see the scoundrel, but I heard him washing his hands and putting on my—"
 I stopped, for I saw my clothes hanging where I had left them.

"I think you must have heard me washing and dressing," said the gentleman, "and I must ask you to pardon me for disturbing you. I should have remembered that the walls between these rooms are very thin."

That is my burglar story. I might devise a better ending for it if my imaginative powers were equally distributed, but they seem mostly to center in my olfactory nerves. I could have sworn that I smelled horse.—Detroit Free Press.

Worldly Philosophy.
 You can't tell by the reserve of a peaceful man how much of fight there is in him. A piece of flint is an innocent-looking thing, but give it a good blow and you'll see the fire fly.

A TIMELY INTERRUPTION.

Youth and Age Are Much the Same After All.

After Caspeley was through laughing to himself he consented to tell us the reason for his hilarity.

"I have two old uncles visiting me. One is 82 and a bachelor and the other 84 and a widower. Their conversation is of the courtly character that prevailed in the earlier part of the century, and neither the theater nor the club has any attraction for me when I can get within earshot of those old fellows. Last evening they thought themselves alone and positively grew sentimental in reviewing the experiences of some of their younger days."

"Josh," said Uncle Tom, "do you remember that stage coach trip we made up into Virginia? I'll never forget those mountain roads where we pitched from cushion to ceiling and from side to side as though in a storm at sea!"

"Yes, and then fell over a precipice. That was a strange experience, Tom, being taken in by the very first family of Virginia and being carried for until we were able to go home."

"You played possum, Josh, just because of that pretty daughter, and stayed three weeks longer than I did. You were pretty hard hit, my boy. Now own up."

"No harder hit than you were. You kept me awake at night talking about her. You declared her more beautiful than any of the pictured beauties of history and vowed that her movements were graceful enough to be set to music."

"Yes, and if I'd had a clear field I am satisfied that I could have won the peerless creature. But no, you must be haunting her like a shadow and I had no chance."

"See here, Tom, I flatter myself that my attentions were just as welcome as yours would have been and had you generously kept in the background I might have been accepted. You were clearly an annoyance to her as well as to me."

"Josh, you're becoming childish. I was always more popular with the ladies than you were, and you know it."

"Childish? Don't talk that way to me. That you should be jealous at your time of life suggests the probability that it is you who is in his dotage. It is no fault of mine that I took precedence in female society."

"I presume I will have to humor you."

"Don't anger me. Mine is like the Douglas blood."

"Uncle Tom had commenced a hot retort when I advanced from my hiding-place and talked them into a good humor. But they're a great old pair."—Detroit Free Press.

ATTRACTIVE SKIRTS.

The Newest Petticoats Abound in Many Ruffles.

The latest skirts abound in ruffles. One big ruffle often hides five or six smaller ones, and the whole petticoat looks as though it were made more for skirt dancing than ordinary wear. All the skirts are cut umbrella fashion, and are usually tight across the hips. The deepest ruffle is apt to measure 14 inches, and the others vary from this in depth to a tiny foot ruffle of two inches. Groupings of fine tucks are much used in the new skirts.

Besides the white skirts of muslin and fine cambric, there are many of delicately colored batiste trimmed with both lace insertion and lace frills, but these colored skirts are only suitable for home wear.

Each year the silk skirts, so dear to the feminine heart, grow more elaborate, and, consequently, more expensive. But no longer must they rustle—that is, if they are made according to the latest French idea. Soft broadcade is preferred to crisp taffeta. A ruching of pinked ribbon or silk is the newest trimming to head the ruffles.

A magnificent silk petticoat is of black satin brocaded with yellow flowers. It fits tightly over the hips, and begins to spread out just above the knees. It is made with a deep under flounce of black taffeta, finished with a pinked foot ruffle. Over the taffeta flounce is one of broadcade satin. This is made most elaborate by insertions of black silk lace headed by a group of silk cordings, while the bottom of the flounce is finished with a frill of the silk lace.

A number of new silk skirts to be worn with evening gowns have a series of different ruffles at the bottom. The inner one will be of taffeta, with the edges pinked; then will come a corded silk ruffle; over this one of chiffon accordion plaited, and then an outside ruffle of lace.

The latest drawers are so wide that it is hard to distinguish them from a short petticoat. In many of them each leg measures 20 inches around. They are trimmed not only with lace, but narrow beading, and generally a bow of ribbon.—St. Louis Republic.

Deviled Crabs.

The picked meat of one dozen boiled crabs, five tablespoonfuls of cracker dust, one tablespoonful of mustard, half a cup of sweet milk, one spoonful of vinegar, pepper and salt to taste. Beat the eggs and add to the crab meat; add all the other ingredients except the mustard and milk; these should be rubbed to a paste and added last of all. Wash the upper shells of the crabs, which should be removed with care, and hence not broken. Fill the above mixture with care in the upper shells, and put a speck of butter and a sprinkle of cracker dust on the top of them, and bake in a hot oven five minutes. These can be eaten either hot or cold.

Deviled crabs are suitable for breakfast, luncheon, dinner or tea. They are served at luncheon with a salad, at dinner as a course with green peas, and at tea as a side dish with rolls, or with bread and butter. Whoever served them form a most appetizing and satisfactory dish.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Dress Predictions.
 Fur will be seen on the gauziest of gowns this winter.

The all-violet hat promises to be decidedly popular this winter.

Black moire is being much used in combination with cloth on strictly tailor-made gowns.

And now the modiste blames the skirt for using up so much material. She can't put it on the sleeves, you know.

The hat that has not standing frills, coques, plumes of a bird of paradise feather is quite out of the general run this season.—Chicago Record.

SATISFIED SISTERS.

What Postponed the Trip to Hot Springs.

From the Tribune, Cullman, Ala.

Two well-known ladies of Holly Pond, Cullman county, Alabama, are the Misses H. A. and M. F. Shepard, and they are held in the highest esteem.

Two years ago, Miss M. F. Shepard was stricken with terrible sickness, from which she suffered long. The history of the case is so interesting that we publish the lady's own version as it is every way worthy of perusal:
 "Two years ago last February, I was stricken with a terrible pain around my heart, which prostrated me for hours, and from then on I grew weaker until spring, when from impaired circulation and impoverishment of the blood, a stomach difficulty set in, bloating my body fearfully. Of course I was confined to my bed and to all sorts of sorrows a general attack of rheumatism followed, so that motion was painful, and locomotion impossible.

Several physicians were consulted but they gave me no relief until the last came who so helped my stomach difficulty, that after several months I was able to sit up. The rheumatism, however, stubbornly stayed, and I was advised that my only hope was the Hot Springs of Arkansas. I was preparing to make the journey when I was recommended to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"During my illness, I had taken two boxes of these self-same pills, but not in the way recommended, as I was taking other remedies. Now, however, I determined to try them properly, as I was no longer under a physician's care, and could do as I pleased, and my sister, Miss H. A. Shepard, at my request, ordered six boxes of Pink Pills for me, as I could not leave the house and could only hobble about with the aid of crutches.

"By the time I had finished the pills, I had given up crutches, though I was still almost a skeleton from the ordeal through which I had passed. I am now quite fleshy, and the only agent that has caused the change is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for I used no other medicine. My right hand is still drawn so that I can only use the thumb and first finger, and my back is still lame, but I am in better health than for many years.

"Now, having stated my own case, let me refer to my sister, Miss H. A. Shepard, who had a serious growth on her right temple. This was terribly inflamed and spreading so fast, that I prevailed upon her to order five boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and test their virtue as a blood cleanser, as the only means of arresting the rapid growth of the cancer. This she did, and has taken about seven of the boxes, and is still taking them. The sore has stopped spreading, and appears to be healing. When she began to take the pills she was the thinnest living being I ever saw, but now she is better than it has been in many years. God grant she may be spared the horrible death with which she was threatened.

"My case, moreover, my own, has induced me to write this statement, in order that it may be made public.

(Signed) M. F. SHEPARD, Cullman Co., Alabama.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50. Ask your druggist, or write to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

A Rich Man Talks of His Very Many Troubles.

"Do you know," said a rich man, seriously, to a Star representative, "that there is a good deal of discomfort on that score in the possession of great wealth? I presume I am worth a couple of millions, which, of course, in a general way, is supposed to be twenty or more, and it is at that figure the I pose in the minds of those cranks who make men sign big checks at pistol points, or make them whack up the cash on pain of dynamite. Five years ago, when I made a million on a lucky rise, it occurred to me that I might be made a victim, and as a precaution I instructed my bankers to pay no checks of mine that called for more than $100, and to arrest the party presenting it. I did my business in three banks and carried blank checks on them all.

"Well, one day it came, and sitting in my private office two men popped down on me, and before I could make any outcry, or even get out of my chair, they had me covered with their revolvers. My office force consisted only of a typewriter and stenographer, and he was out for an hour, so the thieves had it all to themselves. Indeed, they had been waiting for the chance, because my stenographer took an hour off every day at the same time, and they had carefully acquainted themselves with the fact. In any event, there I was and there they were, and with the door locked and two guns staring at me I had little chance to do otherwise than as I was bidden. I tried to parley, but they would not permit my monkeying, so they informed me, neither would they give me 90 days, as was strictly a cash transaction, and I'd better hurry. They ran through my desk and safe and found no money, and at once demanded a check, putting the amount of their own free will at $11,432.55, so that they would not overdraw my account nor excite suspicion by making an amount in round numbers. I had $20,000 or more to my credit and told them so, but they were afraid I was putting up a job on them, and said that they weren't hogs, and would be satisfied with the amount they had selected.

"I drew up the check and signed it as they suggested, and then one of them took it and said he would go to the bank and see about it, while the other would remain and see to it. I hadn't quite expected this, and didn't know what might happen, but I braced myself and waited. The man with the check looked the door and as the bank was only half a block away he said he would be back in ten minutes. It wasn't that long, but it seemed to me like a month, and when I heard the key rattling in the door I could hardly sit in my chair. When the door opened, however, I was easy in a minute, for, instead of the thief there were two bank detectives and before the gentleman waiting with me could offer an objection they had him collared."

"But how did they get on?" inquired the reporter, whose wits were slightly dulled by the novelty of the story. "Easy," responded the millionaire. "The bank clerk knew something was crooked when he saw that big check, and without any disturbance at all he gave the tip to the men on the watch, and they had the fellow at the window before he knew he was even suspected. The rest of it was easy, for my office key, with its number, was in his pocket, and they had had experience enough to know what the layout was and how to finish the game to win."—Washington Star.

The Presbyterian Synod of Alabama will hold its annual session in Anniston, Nov. 16th and 17th. One hundred delegates will probably be in attendance.

FINANCIERS have been claiming that as soon as the presidential election is over that money matters will be restored to their normal condition. Now let us see how much of a prophet they are.

AN exchange gives the following wholesome advice: "Don't bet, don't cuss, don't get hot in the collar, nor try to prove that your neighbor stole a horse or he would do so if he had the chance, solely because he doesn't agree with you in politics."

The legislature of Alabama convened Tuesday in Montgomery. Hon. A. D. Sayre, of Montgomery, was chosen to preside over the senate, and Hon. N. N. Clements, of Tuscaloosa, will be the presiding officer of the lower house, both thoroughly competent men.

The work cut out for Major McKinley by the Washington newspaper men includes the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands, the building of the Nicaraguan canal, the stoppage of the Armenian atrocities and the freeing of Cuba. If the Venezuelan dispute is not settled before March 4, he will settle it, although it is intimated that President Cleveland may take the job off his hands. Arrangements are making by the newspaper men to provide the new president with a full line of interesting work to do.—Mobile Register.

The New York Sun excerpts Turkey only, saying: "If Turkey were out of the way Spain would form the most appalling spectacle of any nation in the world. Her name stands for the tragedy of the times. Her overwhelming vanity and abject poverty, her internal perils and external troubles, her Carlists and her Anarchists, the wrecking of her treasury, the baffling of her armies, the prostration of her power, and the cries of her people furnish material for chapters in the history of the age such as can be written of no other European power, Turkey excepted."

JOHN H. INMAN, head of the great cotton house of Inman, Swan & Co. died of heart failure in New York on the 5th. His estate is estimated at $10,000,000. Mr. Inman was born in Tennessee and was fifty-three years old at the time of his death. He entered the Confederate service when he was seventeen years old. After the war, in 1865, he went to New York and embarked in the cotton business from which time his career has been a continued success. He has been a great investor in southern enterprises and it is believed that he has been instrumental in securing the investment in the south of more than $100,000,000.

"Our whole currency system," says the New York World, "is chaotic in a degree that not only invites confusion and panic but renders their occurrence from time to time inevitable. It should be a first care of congress to reform it: to take the treasury out of the banking business; to destroy the 'endless chain' of greenback redemption and reissue which has been so disastrous; to reduce our nine kinds of currency to a coherent system, and to provide effectually for the permanent maintenance of all our dollars at par. A monetary commission would perhaps afford the best means of doing all this, but in some way the next congress must accomplish it or fail in the duty it accepts."

PRESIDENT-ELECT MCKINLEY it is pleasant to observe, has placed himself on record in opposition to sectionalism. In a letter to Mark Hanna recently he used the following patriotic words: "The victory is not to party or section, but of and for the whole American people. Not the least of the triumphs of the election is the obliteration of sectional lines in the republic. We have demonstrated to the world that we are a reunited people in purpose as in name. We have manifested in the great cause the spirit of fraternity and brotherhood that should always characterize our common and equal citizenship, and have proven conclusively that in a country of equal privileges and equal opportunities the insidious doctrine of hate or sectional distinctions cannot prevail."

Out for a dog law that will thin out the number of worthless curs in Alabama and enable our farmers to make sheep husbandry profitable. There is no reason why the wool crop every May should not bring into the country as much money as the cotton crop in November, except that our people think more of lazy dogs than they do of profitable sheep. These mountains the Almighty intended should be as useful to man as the valleys and if we do not make them so it is our fault. A law that would tax every dog a dollar for a sheep fund from which the sheep owner could draw three dollars for every sheep lost by dogs, would be a boon to all classes. There is no excuse for a family feeding three or four worthless dogs when the children have hardly enough to satisfy them. What will keep a dog will keep a hog, and every year the hog means 300 pounds of meat, while the dog means fleas, hydrophobia and death to sheep.

We long for the day when our people can see this matter in its true light and stop their foolishness worshipping dogs.—Talladega News-Reporter.

GROWING GOLD PRODUCTION.

Director of the Mint Preston announces that the gold production of the world will be $220,000,000 for this calendar year. The United States will lead with a yield of at least $50,000,000 and possibly several millions more. South Africa will come close to America and Australia will have about $48,000,000 to its credit. Colorado is now at the head of the gold-producing states, and its mines are reckoned upon for $16,000,000 or $17,000,000. California will not be much behind, while Montana will produce $4,500,000. South Dakota $4,000,000 to 4,500,000 and Utah and Alaska will make increases over 1895. Mexico is counted upon for a gain of $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. Russia will add $5,000,000 to the 1895 figures.

The outlook, too, is that the above production is but an indication of what the future has in store. The best engineering opinion is that there is gold enough in the world to occupy with profit the labor of man for hundreds of years. There is still an immense part of the earth unexplored, but the gold fields already in sight are extensive enough and rich enough to last a century and perhaps longer. There need be no apprehension of a lack of sufficient gold to maintain the gold standard in enlightened nations.

ALABAMA is beginning to realize fully the value of river improvements. The inauguration of navigation upon the Warrior river promises to be worth millions to the people of the state in the sale of coal alone. Referring to this the Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph, published in a rival region, says: "The claim is made that Mobile will henceforth be the cheapest coal port in the world. The mines opened are only 413 miles above tide, and the statement is made that coal can be set down in Mobile at a cost of $1.25 a ton. This claim is based upon an estimated freight charge of only 25 cents a ton. Even if this is not attainable the margin up to $2.20, the present figure of good steam coal, is so large that the profit will still be attractive to enterprising operators. Mobile is less than sixty hours' sailing from the new railroad across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, and it is by no means unreasonable to hope that not only Gulf ports, but also the Pacific coast will be opened to Alabama coal. This may show the way to New Orleans shippers for an extension of the coal trade to the same regions which now exclusively depend upon English coal, which is sold at from $8 to $14 a ton." The Pittsburg paper might have added that Alabama coal will also reach New Orleans and the lower Mississippi river region by water route from Greenville, Miss., and drive out the Pennsylvania product, thus taking its own rightful territory.

"Van Buren was elected over the whig candidates in 1836 by a majority of only 2,628 popular votes. General Harrison was elected in 1840 over Van Buren by a majority of 145,900 popular votes out of 2,400,000, yet he received 234 electoral votes to Van Buren's 60. Polk defeated Henry Clay in 1844 by only 97,370 popular votes in a total vote of over 2,500,000. Garfield in 1880 received only 7,028 more popular votes than Hancock, out of over 9,000,000. Cleveland in 1884 received only 2,005 more popular votes than Blaine, out of over 9,500,000, and Harrison in 1888 only 96,658 more popular votes than Cleveland, out of nearly 11,000,000. In the presidential election of 1892 eighteen states were carried by pluralities of less than 10,000 votes. They were: South Dakota, republican, by 8,344; Oregon, republican, by 8,047; Indiana, democratic, by 7,125; Washington, republican, by 6,657; Wisconsin, republican, by 6,544; Kansas, people's, by 5,874; Connecticut, democratic, by 5,370; Nevada, people's, by 4,453; West Virginia, democratic, by 4,174; Nebraska, republican, by 4,079; New Hampshire, republican, by 3,547; Rhode Island, republican, by 2,637; Montana, republican, by 1,270; Ohio, republican, by 1,072; Wyoming, republican, by 732; Delaware, democratic by 498; North Dakota, people's, by 181; California, democratic, by 147."

Is the Sun Burning up?

Thousands of curious and ingenious theories have been advanced to account for the effect that the sun, although he has whirled his burning disk across the heavens for untold ages, continues to burn without being consumed or his bulk being lessened in the least. Some of our most learned astronomers believe, or pretend to believe, that the great orb is a ball of gas, but even a great globe of gas would be consumed to its utmost atom in the course of a few thousand years. Others say that fires are kept up by the burning of the remains of wrecked worlds which are constantly falling into its mysterious, burning depths. But even this seems far from probable and those who take an opposite view declare that it is a monstrously absurd conclusion. In summing up his opinion on the last conclusion one of the most eminent astronomers of the day has figured that a mountain range consisting of 176 cubic miles could fall into the sun and yet not furnish fuel enough to keep up the present rate of heat for a single second, and that a mass equal to our earth would only furnish heat for 93 years. If these conclusions are correct, we may well ask, Of what wonderful, indestructible substance is our great light giver composed?—Exchange.

PROCLAMATION.

By the President, Setting Apart November 26th for Thanksgiving.

By the President of the United States. The people of the United States should never be unmindful of the gratitude they owe the God of Nations for His watchful care which has shielded them from dire disaster, and pointed out to them the way of peace and happiness. Nor should they ever refuse to acknowledge with contrite hearts their proneness to turn away from God's teachings and to follow with sinful pride after their own devices.

To the end that these thoughts may be quickened, it is fitting that on a day especially appointed, we should join together in approaching the throne of grace with praise and supplication.

Therefore, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 26th day of the present month of November, to be kept and observed as a day of thanksgiving and prayer throughout our land.

On that day let our people forego their usual work and occupation and assemble in their places of worship. Let them with one accord, render thanks to the Ruler of the Universe for our preservation as a nation and our deliverance from every threatened danger; for the peace that has dwelt within the year that has passed; for the pious rewards that have followed the labors of our husbandmen, and for all the other blessings that have been vouchsafed to us.

And let us, through the mediation of Him who has taught us how to pray, implore the forgiveness of our sins and a continuation of Heavenly favor.

Let us not forget on this day of thanksgiving the poor and needy, and by deeds of charity let our offerings of praise be made more acceptable in the sight of the Lord.

Witness my hand and the seal of the United States, which I have caused to be hereto affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 4th day of November, in the year of the Lord, 1896, and of the independence of the United States of America 121.

GROVER CLEVELAND.
By the President, Richard Olney,
Secretary of State.

HOW A PRESIDENT IS ELECTED.

Considerable diversity of opinion exists among the masses as to the method of electing president and vice president. We vote for electors and the electors who receive the most votes cast the vote of the state for whomsoever they please. They are not required by law to vote for the party nominee, they usually do so. Each state electors for the state at large—also one elector for each congressional district.

The electors meet in their respective states on the first Wednesday in December next, and vote for president and vice-president. A certificate of the result is sent to the president of the senate at Washington.

On the second Wednesday in February the president of the senate in the presence of the senate and house opens the certificates and the votes are then counted. If any person has received more than half of the votes of the electors for president, he is elected to that office, otherwise the election of president is thrown into the house. When the house votes, it votes by states, each state casting but one vote, and a majority of states is necessary to a choice. The house must choose from the highest three in the electoral college. The house cannot take up a new man, but must make its selection from those already in the electoral college.

The house that is in session February next following the election is the one elected two years before, as the new house takes hold on March 4th. If no candidate for vice-president receives more than half of all the electors the election is thrown into the senate, which must select from the two receiving the highest numbers in the electoral college.—EX.

THEIR SONS MEET.

The other day at McMinnville, at the meeting of the Bimetallist League, Samuel Brown son of John Brown, of "soul goes marching on" fame, met William Booth, son of Sheriff Booth, who hanged John Brown. As is the custom of all conventions in Oregon, every delegate does his best to get acquainted with every other delegate, and all delegates speak, whether acquainted or not. Several delegates were going about introducing a rather handsome man of 40 or thereabouts, whom they called Mr. Booth, of McMinnville. They would say of him: "Mr. Booth is the son of the sheriff who hanged John Brown, of Osawatimie at Harper's Ferry."

All of which caused people to take more than a common interest in Mr. Booth. Finally Mr. Booth was introduced to a man of excellent appearance, whose name was Samuel Brown. After the introduction Mr. Booth and Mr. Brown chatted very pleasantly for a minute or two.

"Mr. Booth," said Mr. Brown, "was it your father who hanged John Brown at Harper's Ferry?"

"Yes," said Mr. Booth. "He was sheriff at that time, and it was his duty to officiate at the execution. No relative of yours, I hope?"

"Only my father," was the quiet reply.

She—Oh, Jack! Do you know, Mr. Gibson punctuated his tire yesterday?"

He—You mean punctured, my dear.

She—Well, anyway, he came to a full stop.

A MEDICINE CRAZE.

An Englishman Who Swallowed Over 250,000 Pills.

A man in Vienna has developed a mania for medicine, of which he swallows large doses daily, although suffering from no illness, says The New York Journal. This is a form of lunacy not altogether unknown.

To Keckington, in England, belongs the honor of being the birthplace of the largest consumer of medicine the world has ever known. This was Mr. Samuel Jessup, a rich glazier, who died in 1817. He was in many ways eccentric, but in none so much as in pill-taking, or what a chronicler of the period describes as "a most inordinate craving for physic."

The following figures may be regarded as incredible, but there seems to be no reason to doubt their accuracy. In the twenty-one years from 1795 to 1816 Mr. Jessup consumed 228,934 pills which is at the rate of 10,806 a year, or twenty-nine a day.

Many more of these were taken in the earlier years. From 1811 to 1816, a period of five years, the rate of consumption averaged seventy a day, while in one single year, 1814, Mr. Jessup swallowed as many as 51,500 pills. These astounding figures came out in the course of an action tried at the Lincoln assizes in 1817, when an apothecary of Botesford, who had supplied the whole of the medicine, sued Mr. Jessup for the amount of his bill. In spite of taking all these pills, with the addition of 40,000 bottles of mixtures and juleps and electuaries, Mr. Jessup, who was unmarried, lived to the age of 65. The apothecary's bill for the amount of which he was sued, covered no less than fifty-five long and close-written columns.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 139 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else, then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of the medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

Now for an Election Machine That Can't Be Made to Lie or Cheat.

From the New York Evening Post.

There can be little doubt that future improvements in voting methods will be in the direction of machines. The adoption of the blanket ballot, with its parallel columns of party tickets, has been a long step in that direction for the machine simply hangs the blanket ballot on the wall and supplies a knob to be pressed in place of a pencil to mark with. The expense of printing ballots, the annoyance and delay of folding them, and mistakes in the counting are all eliminated by the machine. The counting becomes automatic and instantaneous. The result is ascertainable with unquestionable accuracy within a few minutes after the closing of the polls.

There can be no tampering with the count and no disputing of the returns, for there are no ballots in existence to be altered or wrangled over, nothing but the registered figures of the voting. No bribed voter can leave a trace or sign of any kind as evidence to his briber that he has kept his bargain. In fact, the perfected voting machine, when it shall have been secured, will give us the ideal secret ballot, and until we can get this it is scarcely worth while to experiment with further changes in our ballot laws beyond such amendments as will increase facility for the voter and give equal justice to all classes of candidates. All propositions for a radical change in the system of voting, other than by the adoption of machines, should be received with scant courtesy.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of a Fa Fa, issued from the Circuit Court of Shelby county, and to me directed, I will proceed to sell, in front of the court house door, in the town of Columbiana on the 30th day of November, 1896, within the legal hours of sale, to the highest bidder for cash, the following described real estate to-wit:

Bounded on the north by land owned by R. A. Steele, on the east by the land known as the John B. Wilson place, on the south by the land known as the Isaac Wilks land, on the west by land of Isaac Thompson, being as believed to be the $\frac{1}{2}$ of sec. 16, and $\frac{1}{2}$ of the sec. 17, and a small part of the $\frac{1}{2}$ of sec. 18, section 16 township 24 range 12 east containing 166 acres more or less.

Levied upon as the property of C. C. Vandevitt, to satisfy said Fa Fa in my hands in favor of R. E. Bonar & Co.

This 19th day of October 1896.

Notice of Application to Sell Real Estate.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY.

Probate Court, October 26, 1896.

Estate of Jno. T. Cromwell, deceased.

This day came J. L. Peters, administrator of said estate, and filed his application in due form and under oath, praying for an order of sale of certain lands described therein and belonging to said estate, for the purpose of paying debts, upon the ground that the personal property is insufficient for that purpose. It is ordered that the 14th day of December, 1896, be appointed a day for hearing such application, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same, if they think proper.

RE-PUBLICATION

...OF...

Pickett's History of Alabama.

So many inquiries have been made for information of where copies of this work, by the late Col. Albert B. Pickett, could be had, and so many applications received for the purchase of the few remaining copies in the possession of the numbers of the family, both from this and other states, and the work has attracted such general interest, alike from the character and accuracy of its contents, that it has been determined to re-publish a limited edition of the work, in improved form and perfect illustrations, and to offer it for sale at such a reasonable price that those desiring copies may, by becoming subscribers, procure them.

To the inhabitants of this State, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida, there is no work that can supply the place of Pickett's History of Alabama. The early history of the South-west must remain a source of attractive and profitable study and entertainment to every scholar and public man.

A devotion of a lifetime of study and investigation, by the eminent author of this work, when the events were fresh in his patient scrutiny, has been rewarded by the ascertainment of the exact truth, and has given this History a value not always distinctive of such record.

This work is being printed by an Alabama establishment, and it is to be hoped that the limited edition of a 600 copies will be all sold in this State. Every family in Alabama should possess a copy, in order that the history of our State should be made familiar to all of its people.

The book will contain about 675 pages, in one volume, fully illustrated. Price $3.00 per copy, and will be ready for delivery about September 20.

Columbiana Mourns an Honored Son.

We doubt if in the history of our town have our citizens been more deeply grieved than was the case Tuesday morning when the announcement was made that our honored druggist, Joseph G. Parker had passed peacefully away that morning at 6 o'clock. True his death was not unexpected, especially to many who had ministered constantly at his bedside, yet even these hoped against hope up to the last, and when the summons came, they were unprepared to realize fully at the time the irreparable loss they and the entire community had suffered.

Two weeks ago he took his bed and up to within a few hours of his death he suffered the most intense agony from a carbuncle on the back of his head, which was the primary cause of his death. The writer was at his bedside many times during his illness, and never once did we hear a murmur of complaint.

J. G. Parker was born in Griffin, Ga., March 27, 1850, and was therefore in his 47th year. When but a boy of seven years of age his parents moved from Georgia and settled in the Waxahatchie neighborhood, about three miles west of this place, where he spent most of his boyhood and young manhood behind the plow. Soon after they came to this county his father died, leaving Joe and his brother Henry, two youths, to care for their widowed mother—a task they faithfully performed until her death a few years later.

On September 1, 1875, the deceased was married to Miss Mary E. Nelson, daughter of Francis Nelson, Sr. From this union there were three children, only one of whom survive, Miss Nellie, a young lady of 16 years of age.

In 1876 Levi Armstrong and J. G. Parker formed a partnership, and embarked in the drug business here. By strict attention to business, close economy, rigid honesty and commendable promptness they each laid by a snug sum for their families, besides leaving a business record stainless and irreproachable.

Joe Parker was every man's friend. He had no enemies. His genial, jovial disposition, together with his kindness of heart and his goodness of nature made him friends everywhere and among all classes. No man worthy the name ever went to him for a favor and was refused, if it was in his power to comply with the request. As far as his means allowed he was a philanthropist, being known of all his acquaintances for his noble generosity. Upright, liberal, free-hearted friend, you have gone to your reward, but the memory of your genial, unselfish life will remain with us until we join you in the great beyond.

The funeral services were held in the Baptist church yesterday morning at 10 o'clock, conducted by Dr. E. B. Teague, pastor, and Rev. T. P. Roberts, of Easonville. The church was filled to overflowing with friends of the deceased, not alone from this place but from Shelby and other points. After a most impressive service the remains were taken to the grave to be laid away until the resurrection morn.

To the bereaved family, relatives and friends The Chronicle extends sincere, heartfelt sympathy, and commends them to the Holy Comforter who alone can heal their broken hearts.

IN MEMORY OF J. G. PARKER.

Leaves have their time to fall, flowers their time to bloom, but death hath all seasons in which to visit the human family and bear away from the fond embrace of loving relatives and friends those who are sent into this delusive world to cheer us but a short time with their presence and then to depart, leaving a void in ach-ing hearts which time alone can fill. The subject of this notice was a man of superior worth, noble in character and pure in mind. But notwithstanding all these excellencies of mind and character, death has no respect of persons and has entered this happy family circle and claimed as his victim the pride of a wife's heart.

Yes, our friend has gone, never again to cheer us with his bright presence, never to mingle again with those who loved him, but the memory of this true and noble friend will live fresh and green in our hearts forever. Weep not, dear friend, for thy lost one. No longer does pain and anguish wring his manly brow. He has entered into that rest beyond this vale of tears, and still lives in that bright and better world. Oh, what a glorious exchange for a Christian to leave this world of sin, suffering and temptation for the holy atmosphere of Heaven where he shall be near and like our God. It is hard to know that he is gone, but the will of the Lord be done.

We know, dear friend, that he is not far. We can see him waiting stand; And when the sunset gates unbar, He will welcome us with a beckoning hand. □ New Orleans, La. K. D.

Wilsonville Waifs.

A. L. Jackson has returned from quite an extensive visit to Tallapoosa, Georgia.

W. R. Smith went to Columbiana Sunday.

J. M. and A. N. Ray started on their "bikes" for Piedmont, last Saturday.

The election passed off very quietly here, and all was merry and gay until the general result became known, which was a surprise to many of our citizens.

Wilsonville has organized a minstrel troupe and the boys will give an entertainment in the near future.

Rev. McCord's appointment at the Baptist church last Sunday morning and night was filled by Prof. Kilpatrick of this place. He also conducted the Earnest Workers' meeting in the afternoon. We are always glad to have him preach to us from the pulpits of our churches.

The S. P. I. League participated in a jolly ride to Capt. Bolin's, last Friday night, where it had a kind invitation to meet. The program was a complete success. The recitation by Miss Georgia Pope, and the vocal solo by Miss Sallie Bolin, I am sure met the heartiest approval of every one present. The debate, "Which has been of more benefit to mankind the printing press or the steam engine?" was ably discussed and decided in favor of the press. The visitors, other than those from Wilsonville, were Messrs. Moseley and Avery, of Shelby, DuBose and Greek, of Columbiana, and Sam Wallace, of Harpersville.

We extend them a hearty welcome at any time they decide to honor us with their presence. The society will meet on November 20th at Mr. Pope's. The program will be as follows:

Instrumental solo—Miss Juddie Kilpatrick.
Recitation—Miss Purnie Pope.
Debate—"Which has the greater number of inconveniences, the old bachelor or the old maid?" by Embrew Weldon and Miss Blossom Densler.

Duet—Misses Mary and Sallie Bolin.
Song—Miss Georgia Pope.

BOURGEOIS.

CONTRACTOR'S SCHEME.

With a Hand Organ's Aid His Men Worked Faster.

From London Tit-Bits.

Standing in front of his uncompleted flat building, a contractor unasily watched the laborers as they slowly performed their work. The men who carried in the bricks and tiling from the street were especially annoying to him. They moved about at a sleepy and turtle-like pace, and did not appear to be worried in the least when their slowness was the cause of delay on the inside work.

While he was watching them in disgust an Italian with a barrel organ halted just across the way and began grinding out a lively march. He had been playing for several minutes before the contractor observed the mar-velous effect of the music on the men who were carrying the bricks. They came out of the building like circus horses in a grand entree, hurriedly filled their hods and then marched back into the building at double quick, stepping high.

The builder went across the street and gave the Italian a shilling, in return for which he played lively tunes for a half hour. During that half hour the laborers did half a day's work. Next day the contractor ran across another Italian, and sent him over to the corner to play. And the laborers never discovered what a shabby trick had been played upon them.

"That's a curious typographical error," said Mrs. Partridge. "The title of this new book is printed The Viking Age."

"Well, why not?" asked Mr. Partridge. "What ought it to be?"

"Why, biking, oughtn't it?"

Old brick are being used instead of sand to make lime mortar, in the re-building of the new Union station in Columbus, O. The refuse brick from the old walls are ground in a crusher. It is said that a quality of mortar for color work superior to that obtained with sand is produced.

Notice.

I have this day sold my entire interest, with good will and all in the grocery business of Hammond & Thompson of this place to J. H. Hammond, who will continue the spot cash grocery business at the same place. He will pay all the claims for goods in transit upon arrival of same, and assumes all obligations.

Thanking a generous people for their kind patronage and soliciting a continuance of same for J. H. Hammond, I am yours, &c., W. A. THOMPSON.

Nov. 3, 1896.

J. H. Hammond will continue the SPOT CASH grocery business at the old stand of Hammond & Thompson.

New Firm.
Having recently purchased the stock of Groceries of J. E. Seale, we want to announce to our friends and the public generally that we are not in business for our health, but to sell goods.
* No Man or Firm Shall Undersell Us. *
Bear that in mind please, and give us a trial. We will give you HONEST WEIGHT, a FULL YARD, and a HEAPING BUSHEL. Talk is cheap, it is true, but drop in and see if we don't do just what we say.
Yours in haste,
J. H. PAGE & SON,
Columbiana, Ala.

Seeing is Believing. *
NOT MUCH.
YOU see too many circus posters nowadays. And the public sees too many flashy advertisements. Nay, seeing is not believing. Goods are not sacrificed at half of manufacturing cost. No honest, reputable merchant can exist with such false business methods. A plated wedding ring may be sold cheaper than one of solid gold, but where is its value after the flimsy outer plating wears away. What sane man would buy such a one, and what thinking man will buy trashy, plated, shoddy goods.
We won't sell you cotton for wool nor jute for flax. The meaner sorts of merchandise we have no time to bother with; neither have you, if we judge you aright.
Clean, Honest, Reliable Goods at Lowest Prices!
is what intelligent buyers are looking for. We keep none other, and wish you to inspect our stock by the clear light of day. By this truth-telling light you can make your selections with the utmost satisfaction.
When you are ready come in and investigate our goods, view them in every light, make your own comparisons as to prices and qualities, and we will cheerfully accord you every facility.
We have anticipated your every want in our several departments. Your needs can be supplied in our store at our usual prices, which are always right. All we want or ask is that you look over our stock and get our prices before you purchase anywhere.
Yours for Business,

That Tired Feeling!
Nobody is particularly anxious to spend their money. Everybody has to. Your wants must be satisfied and it takes money to do it. A person is not apt to look cheerful over the prospect of spending money. Lots of buying is done with a long face. This is all wrong. I offer a change for the better.
You Feel Relieved—
The minute you see our Grand Stock of New and Popular Goods it looks fresh and desirable. The first glance shows you that you are on the right track. No mistake about this being a modern up-to-date line of goods. You wake up to the fact that you have got into the right store.
The Feeling Grows—
When you commence to go into details, you feel as if the goods were bought on purpose for you. No trouble to make a satisfactory selection; it gets down to a question which is the most satisfactory.
Trouble is Forgotten
When you learn our prices, they are always at the low-water mark. You don't give goods away—we can't. We can sell goods very low—we do. This is a fact. We might brag about it, but what's the use—a word to the wise is sufficient. It's as true as truth that we sell goods cheap—we prove it.
Happiness is Supreme
When you get just what you want at less than you expected to pay—we are treating customers to this kind of a surprise every day. We sell you a good article and let you off cheap. You will find our selections choice, our goods reliable, and prices satisfactory. A fair deal makes the buyer happy—we give it. To spend money and be happy at the same time go to

LOCAL VIVISCOPE.

Horace Hammond paid Montevallo a business visit yesterday.

The best 5-cent cigar in town.
J. H. HAMMOND.

Jas. Milner, of Birmingham, struck town this week with a drove of horses.

Mrs. C. C. Elliott, of Vincent, is spending a few days here with home folks.

W. A. Walburn, of Ganadarque, spent the latter part of last week with relatives here.

The new calaboose has been initiated, christened or—well it has had an occupant anyhow.

Miss Anna Duran, now a pupil of the Girls' Industrial school, was a visitor here Saturday and Sunday.

Six pounds of best Rio coffee or five pounds of Arbuckle's coffee for $1.00.
J. H. HAMMOND.

Ex-Governor Cobb, of Helena, has purchased a residence at Fulton station, Woodlawn, near Birmingham.

C. L. Meroney and wife left yesterday for their home in Montevallo, after a visit of several days to relatives in town.

Rev. George Mason and wife, who have been out at Mrs. Seale's for some time, are again at their home at I. D. Mason's.

Columbiana needs a marshal, or the marshal needs a billy, or the billy needs somebody to handle it, or—we give it up.

H. H. Parker, formerly of our town, but now of Whitewright, Texas, arrived yesterday morning to attend his brother's funeral.

Will Thomas is duly installed behind the counters at J. H. Hammond's store, where he will be glad to see his numerous friends.

Miss Jessie Ellis, who has been spending some time with her sister, Mrs. J. O. Farmer, returned to her home in Birmingham Friday.

Miss T. Hammonds came home Friday from the Industrial school quite sick. We hope she may soon be restored to her usual good health.

Try Gold Dust Washing Compound—the best thing on earth for dishes or laundry.
J. H. HAMMOND.

E. L. Spencer took the road again yesterday for the Equitable Manufacturing Co., of Iowa City, Iowa, with which firm he has been connected some time.

FOR SALE—A five room dwelling on East College street, near Academy. Almost new, just been newly painted. Will be sold at a bargain for cash. Apply to editor Chronicle for full particulars.

S. H. Gist, of Calera, gave us a pleasant call yesterday. He was a candidate for doorkeeper of the state senate, and had a flattering following, but was defeated. However, Representative Burns, of Dallas, presented him with a handsome cane, and with this solace he takes his defeat philosophically. We would have been truly glad could he have secured the coveted position, for he richly deserves the honor.

Yesterday J. E. Seale sold his stock of groceries to J. H. Page & Son, who will continue the business at the same stand. The new firm have started off right by planting an ad in The Chronicle, and we bespeak for them a thriving business.

I have a nice, clean, new stock of groceries which I propose to sell as cheap as any firm in town. Turnips, onions, apples, coconuts, potatoes, pickles or in fact any edible you want cheap for cash. Give me a call.
J. H. HAMMOND.

J. F. Varderman, foreman of the water works gang, was called to his home in Sylacauga Sunday by the illness of his little boy, who has since died. Mr. Varderman, has only been with us a short time but has made many friends in our midst who deeply sympathize with him.

The official count last Saturday made Mr. Aldrich's majority in this county 814. McKinley's plurality was 102. E. H. Dryer, sound money democrat, received 64 votes in the county. The Bryan and Sewall, and Bryan and Watson vote combined, was 605 over McKinley.

A change of schedule went into effect on the Southern Sunday. Trains now pass here as follows: North bound passenger, 11:54 a. m.; south bound passenger, 2:51 p. m. The local freights, which carry passengers, meet here at 12:35. This schedule may suit the Southern, but it don't suit Columbiana a little bit.

The sad news reached us yesterday of the death at Wilsonville of Austin A. Daniel, aged about 25-years. He was a young man of exceptionally good character, and was universally admired and respected. The Masonic Lodge was invited as a body to participate in the funeral exercises, but owing to the burial of J. G. Parker on the same day it was impossible for them to attend. To his sorrowing relatives and friends we extend hearty condolence.

The city of Columbiana will swing her doors wide open on Saturday the 21st to that very large and thrifty class of gentlemen known as horse-swappers. On that day a convention of these gentlemen is to be held here to decide if it would not be advisable under existing circumstances to make a few swaps thereby enhancing their enjoyment and mutual profit. If they deem it expedient such will be the order of the day. Come, gentlemen, from every quarter, and welcome.

This is a good time, when Thanksgiving and Christmastide are in sight, to urge on the people to catch on and help up the town. Buy what you need at home. If you don't find just what you fancy, send for it through your local dealer. Keep your money at home and in use among your neighbors. If you don't then hold your peace when hard times come. The fellow that never helps his town, unless he can by the same token put money in his purse, deserves nothing but disappointment.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the true remedy in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alternative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding nature in the performance of the functions. Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents per bottle at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

ALEXANDER P. GARESCHE, aged 76, for half a century a member of the St. Louis bar, died of paralysis on the 10th.

ALL of the newly-elected republican members of the Kentucky legislature have been served with notices of contest by their late silver-democratic opponents.

PROF. JOHN AUGUSTUS HUGO GYLDEN, the celebrated Swedish astronomer, died in Stockholm on the 10th. Mr. Gyliden was born in Helsingfors, Finland, in 1841.

THE Transvaal government has decided to claim £1,000,000 indemnity from the British South Africa Co. to cover the damage sustained by the Jameson raid.

THE Madrid Epoca denies, upon official authority, the report that Senor Dupuy de Lome, Spanish minister to the United States, is to be replaced by another envoy.

ALL the Erie railway shops along the system are working full time for the first time in years, giving employment to 2,500 men. The shops at Meadville, Pa., resumed on the 10th.

CASH wheat, No. 3 red, the standard grade, sold in New York, on the 10th, at 94 cents a bushel. On August 14 last it sold at 94 cents. The gain, therefore, in less than three months, was 30 cents a bushel.

THE St. James Gazette says that Rt. Hon. H. E. Asquith, M. P., formerly home secretary, and Sir George Baden Powell, M. P., will be appointed to represent Great Britain on the Venezuelan arbitration tribunal.

JAMES A. WETMORE, of Hornellsville, N. Y., assistant chief of the treasury department, was, on the 13th, appointed chief of the law and record divisions in the supervising architect's office, to succeed W. B. Fleming.

A ROCHESTER (N. Y.) evening paper, on the 13th, published interviews with over fifty leading Rochester business men showing that confidence is restored, and that all look forward to plenty of work and better times.

FAILURES throughout the United States, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., for the week ended on the 13th, were 276, as against 283 for the corresponding week last year. For Canada the failures were 44, against 49 last year.

PRESIDENT PRUDENTE DE MORAES of Brazil, who has been ill, though somewhat improved, is unable to continue at the head of public affairs, and has called Vice-President Manuel Victorino Pereira to assume his duties during his illness.

THE third day's session of the Farmers' National congress at Indianapolis, Ind., on the 12th, had two important features. One was an address by Gen. Harrison, and the other was the adoption of a memorial to congress. Gen. Harrison was in a happy mood and was greeted enthusiastically.

JAMES FAGIN, who threw a lighted cigar into the face of Secretary of the Treasury Carlisle after the gold democratic meeting held in Covington, Ky., last month, was fined $20 and costs on the 12th. This was the meeting at which eggs were thrown at the secretary while he was speaking.

ROBERT PECONGEA, leading member of the remnant of the celebrated Miami Indian tribe, dropped dead at his home near La Fontaine, Ind., on the 9th. He was a grandson of the famous old Miami chief, Me-Shin-Go-Mesia, and a brother of William Pecongea, who, in 1875, was appointed chief by President Grant. He was 52 years old.

TO A friend who had mentioned the fact that there was talk of electing him to the senate Secretary Carlisle said, on the 11th: "I sincerely hope they won't do it. I have been in politics 30 years, and I am tired of it. My sincere desire and intention is to have nothing more to do with politics after the end of this administration."

THE sixteenth annual session of the Farmers' national congress began at the state house, Indianapolis, Ind., on the 10th, with about 500 delegates in attendance. Many more who were interested in the matters to be discussed by the congress were present. The body is a non-political organization, and its sessions were open to the public.

THE Columbian Liberty Bell is in the hands of the sheriff. The Henry McShane Manufacturing Co., of Baltimore, Md., which cast it, has never been paid for its work, and the firm's agent and Deputy Sheriff Goodman went to Evanston, Ill., on the 9th, loaded the nine tons of priceless relic into a six-horse truck and carried the bell to Chicago.

THE National Civil Service Reform league will hold its annual meeting in Philadelphia on December 10 and 11 next. Among those who are expected to be present are Carl Schurz, Theodore Roosevelt, Charles Bonaparte, Hon. Moorefield Storey, Richard Henry Dana, William Dudley Foulke, Richard Watson Gilder, Everett P. Wheeler and Lucius B. Swift.

MISS ANNIE HOWARD, daughter of the late Charles T. Howard, of New Orleans and New York, who was to have been married to Mr. Carter Harrison, mayor of Chicago, shortly after the date on which Mr. Harrison was murdered by Prendergast, was married, on the 11th, in London, England, to Mr. Walter Parrott, of that city, whom she met while traveling in Egypt.

Mrs. MARY SHREVE RANSON, who recently attained some notoriety on account of a $4,000 plunge on McKinley's election, announced, on the 12th, that she had collected her bet, and stood ready to apply her winning to deserving charity.

CURRENT TOPICS.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

THE president of Brazil, Dr. Prudente Moraes, is seriously ill.

NEARLY all the rivers of central and northern Italy have overflowed. A quarter of the town of Chi di Castello has been flooded, bridges have been swept away, several persons have been drowned and large tracts of land have been desolated.

PREPARATIONS have begun in Washington for the greatest inaugural fete, upon the occasion of the installation of President McKinley, March 4 next, that has ever taken place in the history of the national capital. Local republicans and gold democrats are already at work making arrangements.

DR. JARED D. WETMORE, who had been in jail at Grand Haven, Mich., for three months, charged with complicity in the murder of Enos Lawrence, at Holland, for which Ray Coates is serving life imprisonment, was discharged, on the 10th, on Mrs. Lawrence admitting that her testimony against him was perjured.

AT Bonner Springs, Kas., Peter J. Greenwald, a former preacher in the Reformed church, was found hanging from the rafters in his barn on the 9th. He had become despondent over business affairs. Greenwald was 48 years old, and had a wife and eight children.

THE Lowell astronomical observatory is to be removed from Flagstaff, Ariz., to the City of Mexico.

BELLEFONTAINE, the famous local option town in Ohio, which was recently compelled to discharge its police force, is now on the eve of giving up its electric lights. The electric light trustees have notified the city council that they must have at least $3,000 immediately or shut the works down.

A TRAMP discovered dynamite on the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern track east of Washington, Ind., at one o'clock on the morning of the 10th. He signaled a passenger train with 300 people aboard. The train wreckers fired at the tramp, shooting him through the leg. The engineer saw the signal and stopped his train just in time. The train wreckers escaped.

ON the 10th the secretary of the interior approved a schedule of allotments of lands to 304 Chippewa Indians in Minnesota.

WINDY glass advanced 10 per cent. within three days, prior to the 11th, and an additional advance of 10 to 15 per cent. is expected soon.

THE new battleship Iowa went to sea from Lewes, Del., on the 11th, on her builders' trial trip.

A TERRIBLE railway disaster occurred at Sokolka, in the Russian government of Grodno, on the 11th. The St. Petersburg and Warsaw express, while running at a high rate of speed, collided with a freight train, completely wrecking the engine and all the cars comprising the express, and killing six persons and injuring 13 others, some of them fatally.

WALTER WALTERS, colored, was returned to New York city, on the 10th, from Providence, R. I., where he was arrested while attempting to pawn some of the jewelry stolen from the residence of Mrs. E. C. Jones, of New York city, on October 16. Walters later confessed to the burglary of the entire $5,000 worth of jewelry, most of which was recovered.

THE treasury gold reserve, at the close of business on the 11th, had increased to $22,000,492. The net gain at New York for the day was $375,000, and the withdrawals were $7,100.

ON the 11th Gov. Mitchell of Florida issued a call for a southern states harbor defense convention to assemble at Tampa, Fla., January 30, 1897.

THE Spanish war office is preparing to send 20,000 more troops to Cuba.

THE twenty-eighth annual meeting of the general missionary committee of the Methodist Episcopal church convened in Detroit, Mich., on the 11th. There was a full attendance.

ARTHUR PORTER, of Yukon, Okla., formerly residing at Wichita, Kas., was kicked in the head by a mule, on the 11th, while he was driving in Lincoln county, Okla., and was instantly killed.

FOURTEEN buildings in the business portion of Traverse City, Mich., were destroyed by fire, on the 11th, entailing a loss of $50,000; partially insured. Ed Newberry, porter in the Front Street hotel, was burned to death.

SOME were brought down from the coast north of Vancouver, B. C., and assayed for gold or silver, but pronounced by the assayer at Vancouver to be cassiterite, or tin ore.

A SPECIAL dispatch from Bombay says that in 11 districts of the Deccan and Concan 1,250,000 people are believed to be on the verge of starvation.

WALTER M. CASTLE, of San Francisco, expected to sail from England for the United States on the 14th, accompanied by Mrs. Castle, on board the American line steamship St. Louis.

THE Penn Steel Casting Co., of Chester, Pa., has cast the ram for the battleship Kearsarge, now being built at Newport News, Va. This is believed to be the largest casting of the kind that turned out in this country, weighing when ready for shipment, about 70,000 pounds.

WENT ON THE ROCKS.

A Race of Destruction Between Fire and Water.

Loss of the Steamer Wallula—Twelve of Her Crew Taken Off by Life-Savers, but Two were Drowned—Ownership of the Vessel and Insurance.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 14.—The steamer Wallula, ore-laden, from Ashland, Wis., to Conneaut, O., went ashore while trying to make the latter port during the storm yesterday forenoon. When it appeared as though she was going to miss her pier, the crew scuttled her, hoping to make her right up. The effort was a failure and she went on to the rocks. She pounded heavily and it was with the greatest difficulty that part of her crew were rescued. Two seamen were drowned. Just as the last man was rescued the ship burst forth in a blaze and last night was still burning.

Shortly after eight o'clock the big steamer was first noticed coming in. She was laboring hard in the heavy seas, and as she bore down toward the harbor she sent up signals of distress. Two tugs tried to get out to her, but were beaten off by the seas, and finally were forced to return within the breakwater. So heavily laden was the Wallula that she rolled and rocked, and finally the crew entirely lost control of her. A rudder chain broke, and the big vessel became the plaything of every sea that rolled in. All efforts to steer with the wheel were in vain. A big crowd gathered on shore and watched the ship as she was tossed about.

As it became evident that nothing could save her from going ashore, the captain resorted to heroic measures to get her ashore as safely as possible. He ordered the sea-cocks opened in order to let water in. In this way he thought to steady her in her fierce battle with the seas. The ship was accordingly scuttled. Either the captain's orders were misunderstood, or else the sailors acted with too great energy, for too many sea-cocks were opened, and one was broken. The result was that the water rushed in in great volume, and the steamer rapidly settled. She was in great danger of going down more than one-half mile from shore. The crew were called to the pumps and ordered to pump for their lives. It became almost impossible to work the pumps, but the men clung to their work like grim death. She rolled and filled, the water gaining rapidly.

At this juncture a life-saving crew put off from shore. The captain gave orders to the men to abandon the pumps and look to their personal safety. The life savers neared and a wild scramble for their lives ensued among the members of the crew. Lines were sent aboard, and ten of the 12 men aboard were taken off. Two others, seamen, whose full names could not be learned, were lost overboard. The missing men were known as "Wilson" and "Pat."

After the ship was abandoned she remained up longer than had been anticipated and did not sink, but was driven hard ashore. Immediately after she struck a spiral flame shot up from her. This broke into a fierce blaze, which mantled her fore and aft. From the shore the fire appeared to be largely in the vessel's interior and continued to burn until darkness fell. The rescued seamen were cared for on shore.

The Wallula was owned by Thomas Wilson, of this city, and was valued at $90,000. She carried an unusually large cargo of ore, the value of which is not known. The vessel is insured for $75,000. She was in command of Capt. Holmes. Capt. Holmes said yesterday afternoon that the storm was the worst he had encountered for many years.

The Wallula was of wooden construction, and was built ten years ago. A dispatch received here at ten o'clock says that the ship was entirely destroyed by fire.

THE BATTLESHIP TEXAS.

Startling Developments About the Structural Weakness of the Vessel's Hull.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—It is stated at the navy department in extenuation of the fact that the court of inquiry on the battleship Texas is held behind closed doors, that it is not thought advisable to give publicity to the possible weaknesses in the ship just at the present juncture, when the eyes of other nations are directed to our naval and military establishments. It is learned that the investigation is developing evidence of a somewhat startling nature about the structural strength of the ship's hull which has caused so much concern since her keel was laid. The most remarkable thing about the recent flooding of the ship was that the watertight doors leaked and other compartments were flooded in addition to that in which the accident occurred. It is now developed that on account of lack of stiffness in all the bulkheads of the ship and consequent warping of the frames and plates, none of the doors when closed fitted hermetically, as they should, and the cellular system of the vessel is therefore practically worthless. This gives rise to doubts as to the utility of the vessel in action, as the wrecking of a single compartment might sink her.

MISS ANTHONY'S RETURN

From California, Where She Had Been Waging the Suffrage War.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 14.—Miss Susan B. Anthony, president of the Woman's Suffrage association, and head and front of the suffrage movement everywhere, reached Kansas City yesterday morning from California, where she has been waging the suffrage war. Speaking of that campaign, she said to a United Associated Presses correspondent:

"Well, we met defeat, but we made a magnificent battle."

THE VANDALIA SYSTEM,

Formerly One of the Most Prosperous Roads in the Country, to Go Into the Hands of a Receiver Against the Protest of Interested Parties, Who Claim that the Suit is a Collusive One and Intended as a Freeze-out.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 14.—Judge Woods of the United States circuit court last evening appointed a receiver for the Terre Haute & Indianapolis Railway Co., naming as receiver Volney T. Malott, president of the Indianapolis national bank. The receiver was appointed upon the suit of Mark T. Cox, James A. Blair and James W. Paul, Jr., against the company, and the ground for the receivership was the admission of the company in court that it is insolvent.

The Vandalia has been known as one of the most prosperous roads in the country, and until a year ago, when it passed into the control of the Pennsylvania company, which purchased a majority of its stock, it met its dividends and all charges with the utmost promptness.

During the hearing yesterday Judge Woods remarked in court upon the peculiar fact that all the attorneys seemed to desire a receiver and he did not make up his mind to appoint one until last evening. Some of the parties interested in securities of the system who were not made parties in interest are declaring that the suit is a collusive one for the purpose of freezing them out and selling the system to the Pennsylvania at a low figure. The plaintiffs in the suit were represented by John G. Williams, formerly general manager of the Vandalia system; George Wickersham, of New York; Samuel Dickinson, of New York, and Mr. Golden, of St. Louis. The defendant company was represented by S. O. Pickens, who is also attorney for the Pennsylvania Co.

The bill sets forth that in 1870 the defendant company acquired possession of the St. Louis, Vandalia & Terre Haute railroad, and that in 1892 it took charge of the Terre Haute & Peoria railroad, entering into a contract with it for 99 years. Prior to this latter consolidation—in 1897—the Terre Haute & Peoria had, by deed of the Union Trust Co. of New York, to secure first mortgage gold coupon bonds to the amount of $1,000,000, due March 1, 1927, with interest at five per cent.

In 1892, while the negotiations for consolidation with the Terre Haute & Indianapolis were pending, the Terre Haute & Peoria authorized the issue of bonds to the amount of $2,500,000, payable to the Union Trust Co. for the purpose of improving the road and for retiring the first issue of bonds. The consolidation was effected in October, 1892, and the bonds were issued.

By the terms of the contract entered into between the defendant company and the bondholders it was agreed that 30 per cent. of the gross earnings of the Terre Haute & Peoria railroad should be devoted to the payment of the interest on the Terre Haute & Peoria bonds, taxes and rentals, the remainder of the 30 per cent., if there be any, should first be paid to the Terre Haute & Peoria railroad. The complainants aver that the interest has not been paid, though the 30 per cent. of the gross earnings would have been sufficient to have paid it. The gross earnings since the defendant company took possession of the Terre Haute & Peoria have been as follows:

For the 13 months ending October 31, 1893, $49,320.33; for the year ending October 31, 1894, $99,014.69; for the year ending October 31, 1895, $145,483; October 1895, up to September 1, 1896 (estimated), $340,000; all of which money, it is alleged, has been appropriated by the defendant.

According to the complaint, the total amount due on the interest coupons September 1, 1896, and which still remains unpaid, is $55,750, "and," continues the complaint, "our orators are the owners of $5,000 of said bonds secured by the deed of trust of March 1, 1887, and of $1,410,000 of said bonds, secured by the deed of trust of September 1, 1892, and as such, there is due them the principal sum of $3,375, together with interest from September, 1896.

The bill recites that the defendant company is operating the Terre Haute & Logansport railroad, and has agreed to pay the interest and principal on $1,500,000 of its bonds, that it is operating the Terre Haute & Indianapolis railroad, and has agreed to pay the interest and principal on an issue of first mortgage bonds to the amount of $300,000. It is then shown that the Pennsylvania company owns about half of the stock of the Vandalia. It is set forth that interest to the amount of $91,000 on bonds of the St. Louis, Vandalia & Terre Haute will fall due November 1, and that it is the belief of the complainants that it will not be paid. The complainants also aver "that the principal and interest on the first mortgage bonds due January 1, 1897, will not be paid when due; that upon this contingency the obligations of the Terre Haute & Indianapolis and of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati & St. Louis will become enforceable; that in that case the Terre Haute & Indianapolis will be unable to comply, and a claim will be created against the defendant for reimbursement of its secured proportion."

THOMAS BRAM,

Mate of the Barentine Herbert Fuller Charged With Triple Murder.

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—Thomas Bram, the first mate of the barkentine Herbert Fuller, was brought before the United States circuit court yesterday charged with the murder, on the high seas, of Capt. Nash, of the Fuller, his wife, Laura, and the second mate of the vessel, Augustus W. Bramberg. Judge Gill continued the case until today, when it is expected a decision will be rendered on a motion to quash the indictment.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW

No Room for Doubt that a Brighter Day is Dawning—Greatest Change for the Better Ever Known in a Single Week.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—R. G. Dun & Co., say to-day in their weekly review of trade:

No one now doubts that a brighter day is dawning, and it is common remark that never before has business shown so great a change for the better within a single week. Dispatches telling of about 500 works which have opened or materially enlarged their forces, give only a partial report, for throughout the country the gain has been surprising even to the most hopeful. Foreign need of American wheat continues an important factor, and the price went to 80 cents, gaining six cents for one week, ten cents for two weeks, and 24 cents since early in September. The price is the highest since June, 1892. Western receipts were only 4,491,033 bushels, against 8,202,864 last year, but the election cut off much work during the days in which these receipts were started to market.

Many textile works have been started or increased in force, many on orders booked weeks ago. But there has not been much increase in the demand. After purchases of 46,000,000 pounds of wool in five weeks, the transactions fell to 6,243,700 pounds last week; but prices were strong and in some grades one cent higher, and even greater advance is demanded at the west, while foreign markets are higher and Australian fully one cent per pound up. The market for cotton goods is not yet active, but more liberal estimates of the cotton crop are generally credited causing an one-eighth cent decline to this. The output of iron furnaces in blast November 1 was 124,077 tons weekly, having increased 11,295 tons, or ten per cent. in the latter part of October by confidence in the future.

All the markets were stronger, although the enormous purchases of pig iron in advance of needs causes comparative inactivity at present.

The billet pool is in protracted meeting here this week to decide upon its course and is still undersold. The beam, bar, rail and wire nail associations meet this week, and the underselling of wire nails by outsiders has gone so far that a decline of 45 cents is openly quoted. It is noteworthy that the prevailing expectation, notwithstanding the general improvement in business, is that some if not all these combinations will decide to reduce prices. The coke combination, it now appears, has not prevented large contracts for future delivery at less than two dollars, its fixed price, and even less than $1.75, but the output last week decreased. A heavy sale of copper to foreigners, said to cover 10,000,000 pounds, has raised the price to 1 1/2, and tin actually sells at 13, though less is quoted.

The change in the money market is striking. Instead of $2,500,000 going out to the interior, as before, $2,500,000 have come in this week; instead of 80 cents discount, New York exchange at Chicago is at 70 cents premium; instead of merchants and manufacturers vainly hunting lenders, banks are hunting for more commercial paper. Commercial rates are down to five per cent. on best paper. Foreign exchange is higher, owing to sales of $4,000,000 of government bonds taken by the bank of England as a member of the syndicate, early in 1895; to payments of $3,000,000 loans, and to foreign realizing on $3,000,000 of securities; but all these are, in effect, taking profits for confidence in American honor.

Failures for the week have been 276 in the United States, against 283 last year, and 46 in Canada, against 49 last year.

THE TRUE VALUE

Of the Sultan's Promises of Reform Properly Estimated by the Ambassadors.

LONDON, Nov. 14.—The expression of English, French and continental opinion generally is a veritable chorus of celebration over the restored vigor of the powers in regard to Turkey as indicated by Lord Salisbury in his speech at the lord mayor's banquet in the Guild hall last Monday. The sultan's acceptance of the large scheme of reforms submitted to him is alleged to be due to the concert of the powers which the French press credits to M. Hanotaux's mastery seizure of the proper moment to coerce the Porte.

In London diplomatic circles all this talk of the sultan's acceptance of the reforms is considered to be extremely fishy, and the whole trend of the facts derived from official sources in Constantinople points to the certainty that the sultan is pursuing his old course of deceit.

Before the extraordinary tribunal trying the persons arrested for participation in the Galata riots was closed under the pressure exerted by M. Cambon, the French ambassador, the sultan's judges sentenced to death or to long terms of imprisonment the whole crowd of Armenians brought before them and liberated all of the Moslems, and M. Cambon now asks for the appointment of a European commission to report upon the sentences imposed by the tribunal. The ambassadors at Constantinople, view the sultan's promises of reforms in the light of taking a holiday upon the chiefs of their respective governments decide what to do next.

THE CAMPBELL BROTHERS

Soon to Meet After a Separation of Forty-Seven Years.

FORT SCOTT, Kas., Nov. 14.—James Campbell, the Sandwich Island millionaire sugar grower, who was kidnapped a few months ago at San Francisco and held for a $50,000 ransom, is expected here soon to visit his brother, George Campbell. They have not met since they separated in Londonderry, Ireland, 47 years ago. Each was lost to the other until they were recently reunited by means of items in the newspapers.

SOUTHERN GLEANINGS.

The Mobile, Jackson & Kansas City.

President F. B. Merrill announces that work on the proposed railroad to Jackson, Miss., to be known as the Mobile, Jackson & Kansas City road, will begin at once. The road is to be 185 miles long, and passes through most valuable timber country in Mississippi. The enterprise has been ready for six months, but has been delayed by financial agitation. An outlay of $1,800,000 is contemplated immediately. The road crosses the New Orleans & North-eastern at Hattiesburg and connects with the Illinois Central at Jackson, thence running west to Kansas City. There is practically a straight line of rail already in operation.

Fractured His Adversary's Skull.

William J. McMill, a wealthy old farmer of the Sulphur Springs community, 15 miles west of Armonist, Ala., died from injuries received in an altercation with Dan Boozer, a merchant and farmer of the same neighborhood. Boozer went to McMill's blacksmith shop to see a negro who owed him some money, and he and McMill began quarrelling over a charge by Boozer that McMill had been talking about him. McMill drew his knife and Boozer fractured his skull with a shop tool. Boozer surrendered, and claims that the killing was done in self-defense.

Threatened Insurance Boycott.

Selma, Ala., is on the verge of an insurance boycott. The city council has changed the insurance license from the present system, based on the amount of business done, to $25 for each company. A score or more of special agents have started a movement to withdraw all of the 53 companies represented from the city. A few of the larger companies paid the license, and an effort is being made to have them sign the agreement to withdraw. If they sign the boycott will go into effect at once and all outstanding insurance will be cancelled.

Wrecked By Robbers.

A train on the Louisville & Nashville railway, bound for New Orleans, was wrecked four miles from Montgomery, Ala., in a very wild country, by train robbers. The engineer saw an obstruction on the track, but too late to stop the train, which went crashing down a steep embankment. A rail had been torn up and nailed down again, three or four inches out of line. The train was completely wrecked. The track was torn up for fully 200 yards. Three persons were seriously injured. Damage, $50,000.

Killed Over a Small Debt.

O. J. Jackson shot and killed George Wade at Gainesville, Fla. Wade owed Jackson a small debt and became enraged when requested to pay. He drew a knife and started at Jackson, who ran to his office, where there was a gun. Jackson seized the gun and fired, as Wade was almost upon him. The entire charge entered Wade's left eye, tearing off his face from the nose up and causing instant death.

At the Age of 120.

Henry Blankinship, who claimed to be the oldest man in Kentucky, died at his home near Fairview, ten miles east of Hopkinsville, of a complication of diseases, aged 120 years. He was born in Virginia, and moved to Kentucky and married years before the war of 1812. He was the father of 15 children, 11 of whom are still living, the oldest being past 80.

The Negro and Consumption.

A medical paper prints statistics showing that in eight of our largest southern cities the proportion of deaths from consumption among the colored race, as compared with the total mortality, is more than 50 per cent. greater than that of the white population.

Death By Fire.

Incendiaries fired James Abbott's house, near Hamlin, Va. Cora, his daughter, aged 20, was burned to death. She was recently acquitted for alleged blowing up of Squire Vance's house with dynamite, killing one and injuring another.

The War Department Awakening.

Gen. Miles, commanding general of the United States army, urges the importance of further liberal appropriations for fortifications, and says that New Orleans was not at least $450,000 during the coming year.

An Experiment.

China Grove, Rowan county, N. C., will be granted free delivery in accordance with the experiments now being made by the post office department for the establishment of such service for rural districts.

Young Murderer Burned to Death.

Near Empire, Ky., Mrs. Jerome Murphy was burned to death by her clothing catching fire from a grate near which she was seated, nursing her infant. She was 17 years old. The child escaped uninjured.

A Proud Warden.

The warden of the Missouri penitentiary claims that his Sunday school is one of the largest in the state. Between 700 and 800 of the members are convicts.

Killed Her Husband.

Mary White killed her husband, George White, at their home near Maplesville, Ala., shooting three pistol balls into his breast. He threatened her.

Lore Veal and Mutton.

The stockmen in the counties west of San Antonio, Tex., report heavy losses of young cattle and sheep from wolves and mountain lions.

Destructive Storms in Florida.

The storms in Florida are said to have destroyed about 1,200,000 acres of timber. The monetary loss to the state will reach $1,

CONSIDERATION for others creates a like measure of respect for ourselves from the world around us.

No MAN should make himself, or allow himself to become a burden to his friends, if he expects to keep them.

CLOSE application, reflection and the experience of years are necessary to complete success in any legitimate business.

Last week a bill was introduced in the legislature to appropriate $250,000 for the purchase of a mansion for the governor of Alabama. We're willing.

LAST Friday the house adopted a joint resolution raising a joint committee of the house and senate to prepare a bill calling a constitutional convention. It's a good thing, shove it along.

MISS HELEN GOULD has recently given $250,000 to the Presbyterians of Roxbury, N. Y., for the purpose of building a new church. Her father, Jay Gould, was born in Roxbury, and Miss Gould has a beautiful home there.

THE net earnings of 133 railroads up to September 1st, show a gain of $2,500,000 over the net earnings of the first eight months of 1895. These figures do not include the heavy cotton movement which has taken place since September 1st.

WHAT is claimed to be the most powerful locomotive in the world has just been completed by a firm at Liege. At a trial trip a speed of forty-six miles an hour was attained with a load of 100 tons, each containing a dead weight of twelve tons.

IF EACH man fully understood his fellow-man, there would be less anger and acrimony about politics. There is more patriotism among the people than is generally conceded. Let us forget the bitterness and anger of the campaign and return to the paths of peace and the ways of pleasantness.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX sagely remarks: "The highly educated American men and women are more or less culminations of former generations." When the poetess of passion makes up her mind to think, remarks the New York World, something of permanent value is sure to be given to a thoughtless world.

NIAGARA has been harnessed at last and it is now engaged in turning the wheels of industry. Sunday night at 12 o'clock the machinery started to humming, and the street car system of Buffalo, N. Y., twenty-seven miles distant is being operated by electric power transmitted from the falls. The power will be furnished any plant in the city at the astonishingly low rate of $36 a year per horse power. Truly this is a wonderful age we live in.

IT is General Pettus of Dallas no longer. He is now Senator Pettus of Alabama. This distinguished honor was conferred upon him by the caucus of the democratic members of the general assembly Monday night. He will succeed Senator Pugh whose term will expire March 4, 1897. General Pettus is a native Alabamian, but has never before, though a staunch and uncompromising democrat all his life, has been asked for an office of any kind as a reward. He has been a prominent figure in state politics for many years, and can be depended upon to represent Alabama creditably in the senate.

REPRESENTATIVE A. P. LONGSHORE has introduced a bill in the legislature entitled, "An act to regulate the trial of misdemeanors and certain felonies in Shelby county." We have not seen the bill, but we are informed that its object is to make our county court more useful and at the same time less expensive. The new bill if it becomes a law will save the county, it is estimated, about $2,000. Following are the main features of the bill: Witnesses and jurors are to be paid the same as in circuit court. There are to be four courts a year, but only one week each. The solicitor has no claim except upon conviction. The court has jurisdiction of grand larceny, burglary and assault with intent to murder or rob. As we stated above we have not seen the bill but from what we can find out it repeats the present law almost in toto and we are inclined to the opinion that it is quite an improvement upon the one we now have.

ONE of the largest advertisers in London says: "We have hit upon a novel expedient for ascertaining over what area our advertisements were read. We published a couple of half column 'ads', in which we purposely misstated half a dozen historical facts. In less than a week we received between three hundred and four hundred letters from all parts of the country, from people wishing to know why on earth we kept such a consummate idiot, who knew so little about English. The letters came pouring in for three or four weeks. It was one of the best paying 'ads' we ever printed, but we do not repeat our experiment, because the one I refer to served its purpose. Our letters came from school boys, girls, professors, clergymen, school teachers, and in two instances from eminent men who have a world-wide reputation. I was more impressed with the value of advertising from these two advertisements than I should have been by volumes of theories."

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION.

F. W. GIST, Our Washington Correspondent, Takes Issue with the Sentinel.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 10, 1896.

To the Shelby Sentinel:

Permit me to differ with you in your views as to the result of the recent election, as expressed in your editorial in the issue of the 5th inst. I do not agree with you that there was only one issue in the campaign. While the financial issue was the one great question most prominently discussed, the democratic platform presented issues of vital importance to the people, all more or less hinging around the financial problem.

In the first place there was presented the same question of state sovereignty against concentrated federal power, an equal distribution of the weight and responsibilities of government and an equal enjoyment of its privileges and benefits as against the absorption of wealth and the control of the government by corporate power. Upon this issue no democrat could have mistaken his duty, and certainly none can but look with regret upon the election of Mr. McKinley, as the embodiment of all the republican party has stood for in the past and portends for the future.

The republicans do not even claim that their success is a victory for the gold standard or that they intend to perpetuate it. Mr. Hanna has declared that they are not gold monometallists, but favor international bimetalism. Of course in effect they will continue the present system so unfavorable to silver and which has contracted the volume of our currency to the extent of a burden upon the struggling masses. They will attempt to increase the revenue by an increase of tariff duties, thereby enhancing the price of commodities to the consumers, and benefiting neither the laborer nor the producer. The holders of great wealth and enormous incomes will continue to escape a proportionate share of the burdens of taxation; no effort will be made to destroy the evil effects of gambling in the necessities of life nor to break up the trusts and monopolies which have fastened their clutches upon the great body of legitimate business. The dealers in money and bonds; the large manufacturers; the stock brokers will be protected by all needed legislation, but no thought will be given to the great horde of small business concerns dependent upon the prosperity of the people for their success. These, with all the other contingencies of republican rule, will be the result of the election of Mr. McKinley. I can see in all this no cause for congratulation even by a gold-standard democrat.

Again, I do not agree with you that the agitation of the silver question was begun by the populists and taken up by the democrats. I have the authority of political history that the democratic party has always favored the equal use of gold and silver, or the double standard. Mr. Jefferson certainly favored it, as did Mr. Jackson, both of whom repeatedly raised their voices against the contraction of the currency and the power of concentrated wealth, and it was only left for a republican platform to denounce the democratic party under Mr. Cleveland for the hostility to the white metal. The declaration of the democratic platform of this year was only a repetition of that of 1892, upon which Mr. Cleveland was elected, only it spoke more certainly in the face of broken pledges. We heard no charges of fraud in the selection of delegates to the national democratic convention, and it was certainly a representative body, and the majority for silver overwhelming.

I do not agree with you that the election of Mr. McKinley is an endorsement of the present administration. That would be an anomaly. The republican platform was particularly severe upon this administration, and only for the sake of the large defection of democrats did they refrain from denouncing it upon the stump.

I do not agree with you that "it is a repudiation by a host of democrats of the populist heresy." You have but to look at the surroundings of these democrats to be convinced that they are influenced by personal interest in the perpetuation of corporate power and a small currency volume, and that they have nothing in common with the great body of toilers. I rather believe the facts show them to be repudiators of the democratic faith, in a spirit of rule or ruin. Of course I allow for an honest difference of opinion, always to be respected, but I have no respect for a difference carried beyond that point of settlement in convention by majority.

The stand taken by our party was right. There is no heresy, no repudiation of national honor, no unsoundness, and the same battle will be fought over again. The arguments of our leaders have been wholly unanswered, and I do not agree with you that the American people have spoken against silver. The facts do not show it. The loss of Indiana, Maryland and West Virginia are due to the solid negro vote for McKinley, which together with the irresponsible masses of unorganized and uneducated labor in Illinois and the middle west, defeated Mr. Bryan. Sixty thousand negroes in Maryland, 30,000 or 40,000 in Indiana and West Virginia, bought a great horde of unscrupulous laborers in Ohio and Illinois, bought.

It means that the American presidency has been bought, and the people will pay the interest on the purchase money. It means an increase of the cost of living, with no more money for the laborer—a few more days' work, perhaps, at starvation wages—the denial of the right of self-protection by the workingman, the same old mortgage on the farm.

I fail to see any cause for congratulation by democrats in the election of a republican president.

SOUTHERN INDUSTRIES.

Highly Encouraging Reports Received by The Tradesman.

The remarkable change for the better that has characterized trade since the election shows no sign of abatement, and advices received from the Tradesman's large coterie of southern correspondents as to industrial conditions are very encouraging. The number of idle mills resuming increases daily, and many concerns already in operation are working longer hours and adding to their forces. The wages of employees are also being increased. The change of feeling in the iron trade is fully confirmed and the tone of the market is decidedly stronger. The demand is good and prices continue to have an upward tendency. The output at the iron furnaces has been largely increased, but there seems to be no immediate danger of an accumulation of stocks.

The lumber industry is also feeding the good effects of the business revival and conditions are reported favorable for a more active trade, both among manufacturers and dealers. Yellow pine prices have been slightly advanced, and a still further advance is expected.

Cotton goods are firm, the tendency in print cloths being upward. Wool is higher and a more active demand is noted.

The prospect of further advance in prices has brought many orders into the markets during the past week that would not otherwise have been received.

THE INCREASED CONFIDENCE IN BUSINESS CIRCLES.

From the Scientific American.

There is a growing feeling that the tide of our commercial fortunes has turned and that the ebb which set in three or four years ago has brought us to a low water mark from which we are sure to see a flow of steady prosperity. As we go to press there are pleasant tidings of industrial establishments being started on full time, of others which have been long silent resounding with the busy hum of activity. Wholesale houses are sending out their travelers and conditional orders are being set in execution. One can hear a great sigh of national relief go up that the tremendous tension of the past few months is over, and there is a very distinct quickening of the national pulse and a general spirit of expectancy of good times to come.

How far these hopes are justified, how early will be their fulfillment, we do not undertake to say; but we wish to remind our readers that if the good times are to be permanent, they must come in a natural way, and not as the result of any artificial and therefore evanescent stimulus. There is a tendency in the daily press to push the thing along faster than is natural or expedient. The sick man must learn to walk before he can run. The credit of the country has been prostrated even to the point of death, and we must not expect that it will recover its full strength and vitality in a day. Indeed, the past commercial history of the country shows that recovery is very slow and it takes very little to give the patient a serious relapse. If we refer back to a period of which the present is strongly suggestive—the year 1873—it was not until the year 1880 that the country had fully recovered from its depression; and while we do not for a moment suppose that prosperity will be so belated in the present case, we do not believe that we are going to move at a bound from the one extreme to the other. Nor would it be desirable. "Boom times" are in some respects very bad times. Better a steady, legitimate growth than a hasty, artificially prompted, boisterous sprouting.

The nation has been learning valuable lessons during the last few years of depression, and we shall do well to make the present hour of restored confidence a starting point for a fresh growth in wealth and power whose motto shall be "make haste slowly."

MIGHT BE UNLUCKY.

If the year were divided into 13 instead of 12 months, with 28 days in each of them except the 13th, which should have 29 days in ordinary years and 30 days in leap years, then calendars would be practically unnecessary and many calculations, as of interest, the maturing of notes, etc., would be matters of great simplicity. For, with such a division of the year, each day of the week would come at the same dates in each month. If January 1, say, were Monday, the 1st, 8th, 15th and 22d of each month that year would be Monday; the 2d, 9th, 16th and 23d Tuesday, and so on. The advantages of this system are obvious, and scientific persons are seriously discussing what chance there is of persuading the world to adopt it in 1900.—New York Times.

McKINLEY IS ELECTED
And "They Say" Good Times Are Ahead!

Good enough. I've no objection to that—I refer to the good times; but if they come I am ready, yes more than ready. This is no joke, but is a cold, solid fact. I have a very large stock of goods this fall, the largest and most complete ever seen in Shelby county, and I can Suit the Taste and Purse of Everybody.

THE LADIES

Should see our beautiful DRESS GOODS, magnificently beautiful (the goods and the ladies), ribbons in abundance and pretty--don't mention it--draperies, eiderdown. See our beautiful facinators and feather boas for the girls (pretty things). They should see all goods just mentioned, and a lot of candy, chewing gum and other nick-nacks bought especially for them.

THE MEN

Should inspect our CLOTHING department, Shoes, Hats, the latest and the cheapest, Furnishings, etc., to say nothing of the actual necessities which we have in almost endless variety.

THE BOYS AND GIRLS

Need my nobby and substantial Shoes, Hats, Caps, Hose and various and sundry small articles kept for their especial benefit.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of a Fa. Fa. issued from the Circuit court of Shelby county, and to me directed, I will proceed to sell, in front of the court house door, in the town of Columbiana on the 30th day of November, 1896, within the legal hours of sale, to the highest bidder for the cash, the following described real estate to-wit: Bounded on the north by land owned by R. A. Steele, on the east by the land known as the John B. Wilson place, on the south by the land known as the Isaac Wilks land, on the west by land of South Thompson, being as being believed to be the w. g. of n. w. 1/4 of section 9, township 24, range 12, east containing 160 acres more or less.

Landed upon as the property of C. C. Vandegraft, to satisfy said Fa. Fa. in my hands in favor of R. E. Bonar & Co.

This 19th day of October 1896.

Notice of Application to Sell Real Estate.

THE STATE OF ALABAMA, SHELBY COUNTY.

Probate Court, October 26, 1896.

Estate of Jno. T. Cromwell, deceased.

This day came J. L. Peters, administrator of said estate, and filed his application in due form and under oath, praying for an order of sale of certain lands described therein and belonging to said estate, for the purpose of paying debts, upon the ground that the personal property is insufficient for that purpose. It is ordered, that the 14th day of December, 1896, be appointed a day for hearing such application, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same, if they think proper.

D. R. McMillan, Judge of Probate.

Notice.

I have this day sold my entire interest, with good will and all, in the grocery business, of Hammond & Thompson, of this place, to J. H. Hammond, who will continue the sport cash grocery business at the same place. He will pay all the claims for goods in transit upon arrival of same, and assumes all obligations of firm.

Thanking a generous people for their kind patronage and soliciting a continuance of same for J. H. Hammond, 444 years, etc.

Nov 3, 1896.

J. H. Hammond will continue the sport cash grocery business at the old stand of Hammond & Thompson.

Notice No. 18511.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Clerk of the Circuit court, at Columbiana, Ala., on December 18, 1896, viz: Henry N. Hammond, Homestead entry, No. 25,445, for the s. 1/4 of sec. 8, T. 24 S., R. 12 E.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz: John Harmon, William A. Harmon, William Henderson, James R. Harmon, all of Bond, Ala.

Memorial of a Worthy Brother.
WILSONVILLE LODGE NO. 510, A. F. AND A. M.
November 14, 1896.
WHEREAS, It pleased the Grand Master of the Universe to remove from us, on November 10th, from the residence of Brother J. H. Weldon, our faithful and beloved brother, Austin A. Daniel; therefore be it RESOLVED, First, that we bow in humble submission to His will who doeth all things well;
Second, That the untiring nursing and earnest prayers of a faithful christian community and a burial with Masonic honors, beautifully attested his high christian worth;
Third, That our Baptist church has lost a devoted member, and its Sunday school a faithful secretary; that our lodge has lost a sympathetic, helpful counselor, our community a genial friend who was ever ready to assist in every laudable undertaking, and whose fidelity and practical advice will be greatly missed by all, and whose sweet christian influence can never die;
Fourth, That we tender our sincere sympathy to the bereaved brothers and sisters who have lost so noble a brother;
Fifth, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of our lodge, published in our county papers, and that a copy be furnished the bereaved brothers and sisters.

RESOLUTIONS OF S. P. L. LEAGUE.
On Tuesday night, Nov. 10, 1896, at 8:25 o'clock, the spirit of Austin A. Daniel took its flight from the tabernacle of clay to dwell forever in the presence of its Maker. He was indeed a model young man for purity of purpose and uprightness of character. He may have had equals, but no superiors. For some time the pendulum seemed to swing between life and death, and finally stopped on the other side of the river. His was certainly a beautiful life.
WHEREAS, It has pleased our Heavenly Father in His allwise providence to remove from our midst our beloved brother and associate, Austin A. Daniel; and,
WHEREAS, The intimate relation long held by the deceased with the members of the society render it proper that we should place upon record our appreciation of his services as an earnest worker and his merit as a man; therefore RESOLVED, That we deplore the loss of Austin A. Daniel with deep feelings of regret, softened only by the confident hope that his spirit is with those who have fought the good fight here and are enjoying perfect happiness in the better world.
RESOLVED, That by his death the Social Purity Literary League has lost an earnest worker and beloved brother, and that the members of this society will ever cherish his noble character as a monument to his memory.
RESOLVED, That we hereby tender to his afflicted relatives our sincere condolence and our earnest heartfelt sympathy in their affliction in the loss of one who was a good citizen, a devoted christian and an upright gentleman.
RESOLVED, That as a mark of our respect, we send a copy of the foregoing resolutions to his sorrowing loved ones, and have them placed on the record of our S. P. L. League.

CHOCTAW.
GOLD.
Huntsville Tribune.
Yesterday gold dollars were circulating freely in our city. The circumstances and amusing feature about it is this: The silver men said there was no gold in this country, that it never would circulate. Yesterday there was probably six hundred bales of cotton sold on the streets. Negro cotton raisers were paid off in gold twenty-dollar pieces. Absolutely paper money and silver were at a premium as no one felt easy with twenty dollars wrapped up in one gold piece, or in a five-dollar piece. A five-dollar piece felt too much like a silver quarter in a man's pocket. W. R. Rison & Co. were shoving the gold over their counters in great shape all day. We presume the other banks were too. The hoarding of this gold prior to the election, and the putting it in circulation since shows that the gold holders were simply protecting themselves against a financial craze. That gold has been out of circulation we cheerfully admit, that it is in circulation again, the free silver men must admit. That its absence from circulation was an order of contraction which produced hard times, we concede. That its return to circulation will relieve the contraction and give us good times the free silver men must admit.
A Valuable Prescription.
Editor Morrison, of Worthington, Ind., "Sun," writes: "You have a valuable prescription in Electric Bitters, and I can conscientiously recommend it for Constipation and Sick Headache, and as a general system tonic it has no equal." Mrs. Annie Stehle, 2625 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, was all run down, could not eat or digest food, had a headache which never left her and felt tired and weary, but six bottles of Electric Bitters restored her health and renewed her strength. Prices 50 cents and $1.00. Get a Bottle at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

New Firm.
Having recently purchased the stock of Groceries of J. E. Seale, we want to announce to our friends and the public generally that we are not in business for our health, but to sell goods.
 No Man or Firm Shall Undersell Us. ***
Bear that in mind please, and give us a trial. We will give you HONEST WEIGHT, a FULL YARD, and a HEAPING BUSHEL. Talk is cheap, it is true, but drop in and see if we don't do just what we say.
Yours in haste,
J. H. PAGE & SON,
Columbiana, Ala.

Seeing is Believing. *
NOT MUCH.
YOU see too many circus posters nowadays. And the public sees too many flashy advertisements. Nay, seeing is not believing. Goods are not sacrificed at half of manufacturing cost. No honest, reputable merchant can exist with such false business methods. A plated wedding ring may be sold cheaper than one of solid gold, but where is its value after the flimsy outer plating wears away. What sane man would buy such a one, and what thinking man will buy trashy, plated, shoddy goods.
We won't sell you cotton for wool nor jute for flax. The meaner sorts of merchandise we have no time to bother with; neither have you, if we judge you aright.
Clean, Honest, Reliable Goods at Lowest Prices!
is what intelligent buyers are looking for. We keep none other, and wish you to inspect our stock by the clear light of day. By this truth-telling light you can make your selections with the utmost satisfaction.
When you are ready come in and investigate our goods, view them in every light, make your own comparisons as to prices and qualities, and we will cheerfully accord you every facility.
We have anticipated your every want in our several departments. Your needs can be supplied in our store at our usual prices, which are always right. All we want or ask is that you look over our stock and get our prices before you purchase anywhere.
Yours for Business,

RE-PUBLICATION
OF
Pickett's History of Alabama.
So many inquiries have been made for information of where copies of this work, by the late Col. Albert Pickett, could be had, and so many applications received for the purchase of the few remaining copies in the possession of the members of the family, both from this and other states, and the work has attracted such general interest, alike from the character and accuracy of its contents, that it has been determined to republish a limited edition of this valuable work, in improved form and perfect illustrations, and to offer it for sale at such a reasonable price that those desiring copies may, by becoming subscribers, procure them.
To the inhabitants of this State, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida, there is no work that can supply the place of Pickett's History of Alabama. The early history of the South-west must ever remain a source of attractive and profitable study and entertainment to every scholar and public man.
A devotion of a lifetime of study and investigation, by the eminent author of this work, when the events were fresh in his picture gallery, has been rewarded by the ascertainment of the exact truth, and has given this history a value not always distinctive of such record.
This work is being printed by an Alabama establishment, and it is to be hoped that the limited edition of 3,000 copies will be all sold in this State. Every family in Alabama should possess a copy, in order that the history of our State should be made familiar to all of its people.
The book will contain about 575 pages, in one volume, fully illustrated. Price $3.00 per copy, and will be ready for delivery about September 30.

Physicians Wise in Their Generation.
The above class of scientists recognize and have repeatedly borne testimony to the efficacy of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a remedy and preventive of fever and ague, rheumatism, want of vigor, liver complaints, and some other ailments and infirm conditions of the system. Experience and observation have taught them its value. They but echo the verdict long since pronounced by the public and the press. Only the benighted now are ignorant of America's tonic and alterative.

Love has a long way to go to reach the heart of the modern young man. When he looks for a wife, he expects a good deal. Probably he expects more than he deserves. He wants good looks, good sense, good nature, good health. They usually go together.

An observing man learns that a woman who is physically weak and nervous and incapable, is likely to be ill-natured too. The sweetest temper is ruined by continual sickness.

A woman whose nerves are constantly racked and dragged by debilitating drains and inflammation, cannot be a genial companion or happy wife; and she is totally unfitted to be a mother.

These troubles prevail almost universally among women largely because of carelessness and neglect. There is no real need of them. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive specific for the weaknesses and diseases of the feminine organism.

It cures them radically and completely. It heals, strengthens and purifies. It is the only scientific remedy devised for this special purpose by an educated, skilled physician. It is the only medicine that makes motherhood easy and absolutely safe.

Miss Lauretta McVee, of Reno (P. O. Box 723), Washoe Co., Nev., writes: "I have discontinued taking the 'Prescription' and will not take any more (at present). Last month I had no pain at all and worked every day without inconvenience whatever. It was the first time I never had pain during that period. I cannot say too much for your medicines, especially the 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Pleasant Pellets.' I know of a lady who took one bottle of your 'Favorite Prescription' and she says she was not sick like she was with her first baby. This was her second baby. She thinks it a grand medicine. So do I."

Dr. Pierce has had a life-time of experience in this particular field. His 100-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," contains several chapters devoted to woman's special physiology. A paper-bound copy will be sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. For a cloth-bound copy send 31 stamps.

By the time they got into the house Dunk was comin around to his sober senses, but Miss Dixie took him in her lap, she did, like he was a baby, put the bottle to his mouth and held him down and drenched him to the last drop. Dunk kicked and he cursed, but it wint no use, and when she did let him go he raised a merry ruckus. He kicked over the chairs and tables and then went to the dinin-room and smashed the dishes right and left. Miss Dixie didn't say stop, but it made her blood boil and her heart bleed. She didn't do a blame thing, but take the ax and went out to Dunk's young pear orchard and lit into it with both hands. In less than two hours every tree in the orchard was cut down and chopped up in stovewood length.

So Dunk he slept on the kitchen floor that night, and when he woke up next mornin he was the sickest and sorest man in 17 states and territories. But when he walked out to the orchard and found his young pear trees—which stood white with blossoms the day before—cut up into stove wood and Miss Dixie's tracks all around, he lifted up his voice in waste places and cried like a schoolboy with his big toe stumped.

And that was Dunk's last spree. He told his wife if she would quit he would, and they swore off together henceforth and forever. In the run of time they bought some new dishes and planted another orchard. They have now got nine promisin children and you wouldn't find a happier family in a long day's drive.

Three Blessings.
An old clergyman who formerly lived in an old New Hampshire town was remarkable for his eccentric modes of speech. His way of asking a blessing was so peculiar as to sometimes affect the risibles of his guests, although he apparently was entirely unconscious of this fact. When he seated himself at the breakfast table, and saw spread upon it a meal greatly to his liking, he said: "Lord, we thank Thee for this excellent breakfast of which we are to partake." A more simple meal, but one which he still regarded as comparatively satisfactory, would cause him to say: "Lord, we thank Thee for this good breakfast set before us." But when the minister's eye roamed over the table and saw there nothing which was especially to his taste, although (as time in which he uttered his petition was not lacking in fervor, his sentiments were clearly to be discovered. "Lord," he invariably said on these occasions, "fill our hearts with thankfulness, we beseech Thee, for this meal set before us; for with Thee all things are possible."—Youth's Companion.

A Humane Man.
She handed him his evening clothes. They had been packed away all summer with a moth-extinguishing substance. As the odor of tar and camphor assailed him his face grew sad.

"What is troubling you?"

"I was thinking of these clothes."

"It seems to me that you ought to look pleased. There certainly is no moths in them."

"I can't help my sympathetic nature," he responded. "Sometimes it leads me to an absurd extreme. Of course, I'm glad that the moths are gone, but—and he sighed deeply—it must have been a horrible death."—Washington Star.

A Graceful Tribute.
It is not every man who knows how to compliment a woman gracefully. The following dialogue took place between a very pretty lady singer and a celebrated composer, who is by no means addicted to flattery:

RUFUS SANDERS.

Writes About the Great American Crop of Fools.

A Fool Notion Breaks Up a Wedding Match—One Woman's Way of Bringing a Whisky Fool to His End.

Rain or shine—wet or dry—hot or cold—free silver or no free silver—every year the good Lord sends brings the usual crop of fools. The late cool snaps, the spring freshets, the sweeter heat of summer, the long dry droughts in the fall of the year and the tremendous cold spells in the dead of winter have all got nothing to do with the great American fool crop. It comes up and grows off and turns out its produce as regular as pig tracks in a plum thicket.

Two Hearts That Beat as One.
What makes a stop and tell you that? Well, mostly from the fact that we had one of the most proper and loveliest wedding matches you ever heard tell of perhaps fixed up in the settlement this fall, and everything was comin right on across in nice shape till old man Dave Bowen took up one of his fool notions and gummed up the cards and busted the game.

As everybody knows, old man Dave Bowen is one of the best-fixed men for miles and miles around. He lives on the old Bowen plantation down there on Deer Creek, where he was born and bred and brung up. The old stock of Bowen people passed away in the fullness of time, and then Dave's brothers and sisters died up one by one till finally at last he is the only one left. Consequently the whole plantation and everything on it belongs to him in his full name. He had went on for two or three long and weary years livin there all alone by himself with no better company than the niggers and his mules. And naturally of course everybody was glad when he lit out and put in visitin and courtin around Miss Mary Williamson—which I do know she is one of the best and most smartest women in the round created world. Miss Mary is like old man Dave in one regard—her people have all died up and left her alone in the world. But they left her without any home that she can call her own, or lands, or mules, or cattle, or anything. She is also way yonder different from old man Dave in regards to sense. She has got a gracious plenty of it, whilst he is a monstrous poor man in that way.

But anyhow it did look to me like the very best thing for them to do, under all the surroundin circumstance, was to go and get married. Dave had the money and the home, whilst Miss Mary had everything else. He was some the oldest, but she had also shed her colt's teeth, as it were, and it would raley seem like they had been predestinated to marry from the foundations of the world. Everybody in the settlement thought so. And at one time old man Dave and Miss Mary thought the same way. After a right smart fumbilin and foolin and visitin and courtin and carryin on, at last they give out the news and set the day—Friday evenin before the last Third Sunday.

The Machinery Silps a Cog.
But in the meantime Aunt Nancy Newton had heard the news and come bilin up from Panther Creek to see the show. She had been good close friends with Miss Mary for years and years, and the dear, delightful old soul jest simply couldn't keep her finger out of the weddin pie.

So that Friday mornin Aunt Nancy and mother they looked up and driv off down to Bunk Weatherford's where the weddin was to come off, to get Miss Mary dressed and ready. On the way down there Aunt Nancy had to tell everybody where she was goin and what she had to do. Whereas, durin the day old man Dave heard that mother and Aunt Nancy had went on down to Bunk Weatherford's to dress Miss Mary for the weddin.

Well, from then on the fat was in the fire and the weddin cake turned to dough. That wouldn't make a continental bit of difference with me and you. But old man Dave swore he'll be doubly dabburned if he would marry any woman under the sun that couldn't dress herself.

"Something is the matter with her if it takes two women to dress her," says old man Dave, "and by gollys that lets me out."

The neighbors soon got wind of how the machinery had jumped a cog, and some of them went over to see old man Dave to try and talk some sense into his head. But it was pluperfect vanity. He wouldn't move a peg. And he maintains till yet that if he ever does take unto himself a wife she must be a full grown woman and able to dress herself.

One Self-Made Fool.
There is at least one more man in the Rocky Creek settlement which come up with the general crop of fools, and his name is Dunk Strickland. To some extent Dunk was raley what you might call a self-made fool. He did have sense enough to squeeze through if he had but only kept it cool and sober all the time. But Dunk was powerful prone to look long and lovinly upon the early runnings of the corn. And moreover, a spoonful of brains and a pint of mean whisky, mixed and shook up together and taken before and after eatin and between meals, will soon make the goneyest biggest fool in the world. The devil couldn't beat that prescription if he tried day and night for a thousand years, and so long as men make the mixture the Fool Killer ain't in no danger of losin his job.

There was the trouble with Dunk. He went on makin that terrible mixtry till at last he bore the name and fame of a natural-born fool. But by and by he took and married Miss Dixie Standenmire, which she was about the most handsome young woman in the settlement, and presently she fetched him to law. Miss Dixie was tall and buxom and high strung, as well as good looking. Her arms was white as milk, but big as a bed post, and she had the keenest, pritiest blue eyes you ever looked into perhaps.

Along at first Miss Dixie she would cry every time Dunk come up drunk, but that was such a regular thing till she had to get use to it, and I reckon her stock of tears run out. She tried and tried in her tender, womanly way to break Dunk from his fool ways. But Dunk he didn't do a blessed thing but make great promises and then went right on drinkin and rowdyin to beat six bits.

One bright and beautiful spring mornin some 15 years ago, Miss Dixie she called for a new deal and give it out that she would now play a different game with Dunk. So when he started to town that mornin she went out to the front gate with him and read the law in his hearin.

Taking Down the Check Rein.
"We are now standin at the forks of the road, Dunk," says Miss Dixie, "and the time has come for me and you to have a family reckonin together. I don't want any more of your promisin and quittin. You have been promisin and promisin and quittin and quittin till bless gracious I am sick and tired of that. You have now got to let down the check rein and change your gate, or I'll bless if there don't be a smash-up somewhere in the neighborhood. I am plum willin for you to play big and boss the concern if you will but only stay sober. But if you come home drunk to-night you will be the sorriest man in the county to-morrow."

It was deep dusk, with the stars shinin and the whippowills singin when Dunk got home—drunk as usual, if not a little drunker. But Miss Dixie she was standin there at the front gate when he rid up, and she want cryin any to speak of.

"Dunk Strickland," says she, "you dabbled, slow-footed, good-for-nothin set, got down off of that horse and give me a drink!"

"What smatter wid you sevenen, honey?" says Dunk.

"Don't come honeyin around me," says she. "You ain't fitten to honey a wet dog. Git off of that horse like I told you!"

And with that she went right on up into Dunk's shirt collar and landed him on the ground flat on his back. Then while he was scumblin to his feet she got holt of his whisky bottle, turned it up to her pretty mouth and bit off a good big plug.

"That is mighty sorry whisky, Dunk," says she, "but if you can stand it I can, and we will go on a regular family drunk together. If you won't stay sober and go with me, then bless the heavens I'll git drunk and go with you."

By the time they got into the house Dunk was comin around to his sober senses, but Miss Dixie took him in her lap, she did, like he was a baby, put the bottle to his mouth and held him down and drenched him to the last drop. Dunk kicked and he cursed, but it wint no use, and when she did let him go he raised a merry ruckus. DANIEL BOONE.

A Descendant of the Pioneer "Pathfinder" of Tennessee Interviewed by a Reporter.

He Is a Firm Believer in the Efficacy of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. His Friends Also Have Used Them With Benefit. Recommends Them to Others.

From the Journal, Cleveland, Tenn.
Six miles south of Cleveland, Tenn., live the descendants of Daniel Boone, the pioneer "pathfinder" of Tennessee and Kentucky.

Probably the oldest descendant of the immortal Daniel is Mr. Jack Boone, of Black Fox Station, who is now an old man, seventy-six years of age. He is held in great esteem in his vicinity, having held at various times offices of honor in the county, which he has filled with honor.

Two years ago Mr. Boone was reported very ill, and his familiar figure was no longer seen in the streets. To the surprise of many, a few weeks ago Mr. Boone came to town looking as well as ever, and then it was reported that he owed his recovery to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

To verify this a reporter of the Journal was sent to interview Mr. Boone, and after a ride of six miles the Journal man found him sitting on his porch looking extremely well for a man of his years. With a quick, firm step the descendant of the pioneer descended the steps to greet his visitor, and after a few preliminary remarks the reporter came to the point by saying:

"Mr. Boone, I was told by Druggist Phillips and also by your brother, that you attribute your recovered health and strength to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I would like to hear your version of the tale."

"Well, young man," said Mr. Boone, "I don't usually have much to say about medicines, but this is one that I feel I can't praise too highly. If I could have seen me twelve months ago, and look at me now, it would not be necessary for me to say anything. Just ask the neighbors about the difference. And yet I don't feel that I have given the pills a thorough test. That is, I am still taking them, and feel that I am being benefited every day. And while you are down here, you might go by and see one of my neighbors, Mr. Daniel Atchley, he is also taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and he has been greatly benefited by them."

"Yes," said Mr. Atchley, "I am now taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and is also my daughter. I heard them so favorably spoken of and how they could give new life and vigor from general debility and rheumatism, that I thought I would give them a test. I have only taken a portion of one box, but I can see that they are giving me new life and vigor. If my daughter was at home she could speak even more highly than I can."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nervous system. They are sold in boxes (never in loose form), by 100 boxes or hundred boxes, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $3.00, and may be had of all druggists or directly by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. FROM BOBOLINK TO REED BIRD.

As They Fly South They Devastate the Rice Fields.

Pop! Bang! The swamps and marshes of the Atlantic coast are full of sportsmen these days, shooting reed birds. The drowned birds will ride along the shores of Delaware bay and the Chesapeake are vocal with their call of "Chink, chink!" Thanks to the pot hunters, great numbers of the feathered delicacies are now finding their way to the markets of the great cities, and no gourmet pauses while devouring a round dozen of them for breakfast to consider that he is attacking an ornithological problem of extraordinary interest.

The story of the reed bird is a romance. It is a tale of the most destructive feathered animal known to the continent—an animal against which man has waged vain war for more than two centuries. The rice fields of the south are well-nigh ruined by it every year. Its periodical migration from the far north to regions below the equator is one of the most astonishing performances credited to birds, part of the journey being a flight without pause or rest across 400 miles of sea. But strangest of all is the annual transformation which the creature undergoes from the reed bird into the bobolink, and again from the bobolink into the reed bird. It is like two birds in one.

Most people in the northern part of the United States are familiar with the bobolink—a bird of tuneful song and pretty plumage, black beneath and grayish white on the back, with a buff spot on the back of the neck. Its breeding grounds are north of the latitude of southern New Jersey, West Virginia and central Illinois, extending northward to Montreal and Lake Winnipeg and westward almost across the great plains. Over this wide area it feeds on seeds, insects and whatever it can pick up. It makes its grass nest in fields and meadows, building on the ground, and it lays from four to seven grayish-white eggs, blotched with olive and brown spots. The nest is so inconspicuous as to be very hard to find.

By the middle of July the bobolink is through breeding and has begun to molt. It doffs its pretty plumage and puts on a sober coat of mottled yellowish gray all over. At the same time it stops singing and for many months utters no other note than a call of "chink." In a word, it has assumed the guise or disguise of the familiar reed bird and now it is ready to start on its annual journey southward.

From north to south the birds wing their way in great flocks, all heading toward Florida. They are rapid travelers and pretty soon they strike the swamps and estuaries of the middle Atlantic coast. It is the season of the ripening of the wild rice and they pause for awhile to feed upon it.

The voracity of the birds is such that fear is secondary to the passion for eating. When disturbed in one part of a field they fly just far enough to be out of gunshot and alight again. Sometimes the entire crop is lost and the planter thinks he is doing very well if the damage amounts to only four or five bushels an acre. The aggregate loss runs up into the millions of dollars. At length the time arrives when the robbers must take their departure and they go almost as suddenly as they came, winging their way onward to the peninsula of Florida, whence they leave for a more southern clime—Philadelphia Times.

AYER'S ARGUMENT.

If there is any reason why you should use any sarsaparilla, there is every reason why you should use Ayer's. When you take sarsaparilla you take it to cure disease; you want to be cured as quickly as possible and as cheaply as possible. That is why you should use Ayer's: it cures quickly and cheaply—and it cures to stay. Many people write us: "I would sooner have one bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla than three of any other kind." A druggist writes that "one bottle of Ayer's will give more benefit than six of any other kind." If one bottle of Ayer's will do the work of three it must have the strength of three at the cost of one. There's the point in a nutshell. It pays every way to use

180,000 Copies of Demorest's Magazine

THE increasing popularity of Demorest's Family Magazine, a popularity extending over thirty years, is ample proof that each succeeding year finds it improved in its vitality, beauty and attractiveness. There must be something in a magazine that increases its subscription list from 80,000 to 180,000 copies (a clear gain of 100,000) in less than a year. Don't you think so?

READ THIS.

"Demorest's Magazine is a literary conservator of the art and the useful. Got up in America, where it has been the most successful work of the kind that has ever been published, and combines the attractions of several English magazines."—London Times.

We have received another number of this delightful Magazine, and we find ourselves bound to reiterate with greater earnestness the high encomiums we have already pronounced on preceding numbers. We are not given to disparage unduly the literary and artistic publications which emanate from the London press, but we are bound, in simple fairness, to assert that we have not yet met with any publication pretending to a similar scope and purpose which can at all compare with this marvelous shining work."—London Budget.

The American Bookeller says: "There are none of our monthlies in which the beautiful and the useful, pleasure and profit, fashion and literature are so fully presented as in Demorest's."

Of course, you know the one I mean? They're Christmas an' Thanksgiving, An' on those days I'm very glad That I have kept on livin'.

I don't know I did know it is the best; But I p'posed I did know it? I wouldn't dare to tell my choice Nor anyway to show it: For Santa Claus or gran'ma would be jealous in a minute. I should say that either had More fun than 't'other in it.

But when I go to gran'ma's house An' smell the turkey cookin', An' see the yellow punkin' pie 'Till I'm most tired a-lookin', An' when the dinner comes at last, An' gran'pa asks the blessin', I think Thanksgiving's awful nice—An' pass my plate for dressin'.

An' when my gran'ma cuts the pie, I get a great big quarter. Ma says: "She oughtn't have so much." But gran'ma says: "She'd order." An' as my ma is gran'ma's girl She has to just keep quiet. While gran'ma laughs an' says to me: "I guess I want my pie et."

There's one thing, though, that makes me sad. I've got a little brother; He's only five months old, an' can't tell one day from the 't'other. Thanksgiving dinner doesn't mean A thing, for he can't eat it. So I'll just take one meal for him, Then for myself repeat it.

There's two days in the year I like, They're better than all others I like. That's when old Santa comes to me, An' I go to gran'mother's. One day I'm served by Santa Claus, An' one by gran'ma tend; I can't tell which day is the best Because they're both just splendid. —Stanley Wood, in Chicago Times-Herald.

"What is it?" Mrs. Matthews asked, as she regarded the oatmeal of Maude, the larger one of the twins.

"The day after to-morrow is Thanksgiving. Had you forgotten it?" Edith Matthews paused before replying to her husband's question. The pause might have been accounted for by the fact that Maude, the other twin, insisted that her oatmeal should likewise be resugared.

After attending to this, Mrs. Matthews said, listlessly: "No, I had not forgotten it. But it doesn't make any difference anyway."

"What, Thanksgiving not make any difference? Why, Edith, what is the matter?" and Hiram Matthews set down his coffee cup and stared at his wife.

She shrugged her shoulders. "Is it the dinner you mean? Well, send up anything you like. As to the real spirit of Thanksgiving, I've nothing to be especially thankful for. Oh, dear! The baby is crying," and leaving her breakfast, Mrs. Matthews hurried away.

"Poor little woman," thought her husband. "She has to work too hard. I wish I could afford to keep a girl for her. But nothing to be thankful for, that doesn't sound like Edith."

When baby Faye had been hushed to sleep it was time for Hiram to start for the store. He had lifted the twins from their high chairs and untied their bibs. He had also thoughtfully put the coffee pot on the stove and the steak in the oven, that Edith might not find her breakfast cold when she had time to finish it.

"Good-by, little wife," he said, drawing her to him. "I'll send up something for Thanksgiving, and see Mrs. Murphy about coming to help you to-morrow. Don't do much extra work, for there will be just ourselves. How I wish we could have gone to the old home. Still I feel like giving thanks, Edith, for my home, my babies and you."

Words like these are usually sweet to a wife. But Edith had been kept awake the greater part of the night by a teething baby, so she replied, wearily: "Get whatever you like. Perhaps I should feel thankful if we were rich."

"I hope we may be some day," Hiram began, but she interrupted him, impatiently.

"Some day! When I'm old and gray. It is now I want the things money can buy, luxuries for my babies, leisure for you and me, time to develop my nature. Well, I'll postpone my thanksgiving till I have something to give thanks for."

In spite of her flippant words, Edith clung for a moment to her husband. His face was grave, but he whispered, tenderly: "My darling," and going out attempted to close the door softly behind him.

But the sharp November wind caught it from his hand and it slammed so loudly that Faye started up with a fearful cry. At the same moment Maude managed to upset a glass of water for which she had been reaching, and added her cries to Faye's.

"Thankful indeed," Edith said, as after a few moments of alternate soothing and scolding she succeeded in quieting both children. She sat down at the sitting-room window with Faye in her arms and looking at the house across the way.

"The nurse is dressing little Bernice Ashley," she thought. "I can see her. And there is the cook at the door giving the grocery boy his orders. Mrs. Ashley was at the ball last night. She is sleeping this morning, undisturbed by work or children. Plenty of money, three servants, the entrance into cultivated society, yes, I'm sure Mrs. Ashley can truly observe Thanksgiving."

"Oh, I fear I'm wicked," she went on as Faye nestled her curly head on her mother's shoulder. "But I'm so tired of being poor. Of course, I appreciate my husband, my babies, and my cozy home. These are just common blessings, though, everyone has them and some so many others."

The next day Edith was sitting by the window waiting for her husband's coming. Mrs. Murphy had just gone home, and in the pantry was the turkey all ready for the oven, mince and pumpkin pies, cranberry tarts, and a dainty rice cake.

The table was laid for tea in the dining-room. When Hiram came there would only be the oysters to cook. Little Faye was asleep while Maude and Mabel were building an imposing block house on the rug in front of the open fire.

"How happy they are!" the young mother thought. "If I could have a nurse to care for them and leisure to teach them! As it is I've hardly time to listen to their prayers."

Just then a loud cry reached her. The hall door of the house opposite was dashed open and a woman came flying down the steps shrieking for help. It was Mrs. Ashley, and close behind her came the half-dressed figure of a man. Edith could see his clenched fist uplifted while dreadful shouts reached her ears.

In a moment the scene was one of confusion. The servants rushed out screaming. Edith hurried to the door in time to see a policeman trip up the frantic man and to hear the nurse girl, who had the Ashley child in her arms, say:

"Oh, he'll be all right in the morning. I wish they'd hurry up and get things quiet. This baby is shivering with the cold."

"Will you bring the little girl in by the fire?" Edith asked.

"I'll be glad to, ma'am, for a minute. Was you scared, or did you know?" the girl continued, as she followed Mrs. Matthews into the sitting-room.

"Know what?" Edith asked, lighting a lamp. "Who was that man?"

"Land! It was the master, Mr. Ashley," and Nora proceeded to rub little Bernice's hands in hers. "I don't believe you understand," she went on. "Is it possible we have lived so near for three months and you never knew that Mr. Ashley had them times whenever he went on a spree? The mistress was watching for him, too, but he most caught her."

"Oh, how terrible!" Edith cried. "He might have killed her."

"He come precious near it when this baby was three months old. He knocked her downstairs. There, there, dear," for little Bernice was crying.

"Let me get her a glass of warm milk," Edith hurried away.

When she returned she had regained her composure. She noticed Nora's tenderness with the child and also noticed what a wan little face it was that turned away from the milk to watch Maude and Mabel.

The child was dressed in a pink cashmere trimmed with costly lace. There were a couple of rings on her tiny hand. But Edith turned from these details to study the peculiar look in the dull blue eyes.

"Is she ill?" she asked, gently. "Her eyes are so heavy."

"They're always so," Nora answered, with a sigh. "I've nursed her since she was born, and I love her better than the mother who bore her does. But, ma'am, it's easy to see Bernice isn't just right. The doctor says she can't live long. There was two babies before her and they both went suddenly. No constitutions, you see."

An exclamation of horror broke from Mrs. Matthews' lips. "The poor mother!" How can she bear it!

Nora shrugged her shoulders and rose. "I must be going. You've been very kind, ma'am. As to the mistress, she has society and fine clothes. Don't blame her too much. I think that brute killed her woman's soul years ago. We give a big dinner to-morrow night. The master will be sobered by that time. Giving thanks, you know. Now, Bernice, pet, Nora will take you home and put you to bed."

Edith accompanied her caller to the door. As she stood watching her cross the street a brisk step came up the walk.

"I'm late, little wife," and Hiram Matthews stooped for the kiss which he never forgot. "Why, Edith, you are crying."

"Oh, Hiram, I am so glad to-morrow is Thanksgiving! So glad. May the dear Father in Heaven forgive me for my wicked words and thoughts. I've so much to be thankful for. Come in by the fire and I'll tell you all about it."—Hope Daring, in Womankind.

The Spirit of Thanksgiving.

If there were nothing more to Thanksgiving than the cynics would have people believe the day would soon disappear from the calendar. Nine-century business methods will not tolerate the loss of any time for trifling reasons. The fact is that the atmosphere and spirit of this peculiarly American holiday are still felt deeply by the mass of people. The customs of an extremely practical age have not deprived the day either of its significance or of the sentiment which it awakens. There are thousands upon thousands who either in action or in thought accord to the period its original meaning as a day on which to return thanks for manifold blessings received. If this is true in the city it is far more so in the country, where the sentiment is fresher and old memories are kept green long after they have withered in the stale air of metropolitan life.

Let the people enjoy Thanksgiving

Further Accounts of Fighting—Unreason-able Spanish Claims.

HAVANA, Nov. 21.—It is officially announced that on Wednesday last the column commanded by Gen. Lopez Amor and the forces under Col. Arriaga, met 2,000 rebels, led by Sarandia Sanchez. The insurgents occupied good positions, which commanded the passage of the River Zazas. After an engagement which lasted two hours the troops forced their way across the river, dispersed the rebels and encamped in the position that had been held by them. The insurgents carried their wounded with them in their retreat. It is stated that the rebels buried 60 of their number killed in the fight.

Cuban sympathizers question the truth of the government report, and say it is incredible that the insurgents should stop to bury their dead. The Spanish losses are said to have been one lieutenant killed and two lieutenants and 20 privates wounded.

Several other reports of unimportant engagements, in which the Spaniards were uniformly victorious, are issued by government. Operations in the province of Pinar del Rio are apparently at a standstill. There has been no serious encounter with the rebels under Munoz. No information is vouchsafed regarding the movements of Gen. Weyler, and the impression grows that the authorities here know nothing about him. He is unofficially located at San Cristobal, but nothing more is known as to his whereabouts.

Gen. Leque reports that the rebel leaders Sanchez and Moles have been killed and Carrillo wounded.

CHARLES O. KAISER.

Will Have to Stand Trial for Wife Murder.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Nov. 21.—Charles O. Kaiser will have to stand trial for the murder of his wife, Emma P. Kaiser, who was shot and killed on the night of October 28. Kaiser was also wounded at the time, and claimed that he had been robbed by highway-men who shot him and his wife. Some of the alleged stolen articles were afterwards found, and Kaiser was arrested charged with the murder of his wife. The inquest took place yesterday morning and the evidence produced was decidedly against Kaiser.

The jury rendered a verdict that she came to her death as the result of a conspiracy entered upon by Kaiser and others.

Can We Do So?

EATEN BY CANNIBALS.

A Party of Gold Hunters on the Solomon Group

Betrayed by Their Native Guides, Surrounded, Killed and Probably Eaten—One of the Guides Captured—Property of the Prospectors Found.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—The Bulletin prints the following: Following close upon the details of the massacre of Baron Von Norbeck and the party of scientists from the Austrian guardship Albatross by natives of the famous Solomon group of islands, comes another story of death and treachery at the hands of these violent cannibals.

News is received per steamship Alameda from Sydney that the steamship Titus was recently dispatched from Australia to visit the coast of New Guinea and the Solomons is now at Port Jackson on her return voyage from Mauru Sound, Solomon group. The vessel lay near Bougainville for some days and started a search for a party of gold hunters, six whites and five natives, who started in a whale boat for the new gold fields at Moubara from Samaria. The officers of the Titus, which arrived at Port Jackson on the 15th of October report that it is their opinion the entire party of whites were massacred, either on Bougainville by the head hunters or on the coast directly across the straits. The Titus fell in with the revenue cutter Lily Rock, which was also cruising on a search for the party and learned from Capt. Oates of that craft that investigation instituted by the government officers proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that the gold hunters had put ashore to pitch camp on the beach and were betrayed by their native guides, surrounded, killed and probably eaten.

The Lily Rock cruised along the coast of the several islands, and finally came across one of the natives who had acted as a guide for the miners. The fellow was surprised, seized and brought on board, and told a remarkable story about the whale boat having been capsized and all hands being drowned. He said he had floated across the straits for several days, and finally had been picked up by a native canoe.

The officers did not believe the story and sent a detail of men ashore to investigate. After a long search a Winchester rifle and a revolver were found in a native village, neither weapon showing any signs of having been in the water. The weapons were identified as the property of the gold hunters.

Later it was learned that the whaleboat was the possession of a chief on one of the Solomon islands and that various other property of the prospectors was scattered along the coast villages of the islands.

DEFENSE OF CANADA.

The Military Preparations Going On in the Dominion, According to a Montreal Special, Are of a Nature to Invite the Attention of the United States—Garri-guous at Halifax and Bermuda Being Strengthened.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—A Sun special from Montreal says:

The military preparations going on here in Canada are of a character to prove that England is not making ready merely for the defense of Canada against possible attack from the fleets or armies of any other power, or combination of powers. They are of such a nature that it is every day more evident that England is creating in Canada a great place of arms against the American republic.

So little attention is given by the American press to Canada and the inwardness of the policy pursued by the party that has been in power for over 40 years that it may come as a surprise to them to learn that it is seriously believed here that not only can Canada hold her own against the United States with the help of England, but that it is only a question of time as to when a large part of the New England states and a portion of the state of New York will be asking for admission into the Canadian confederation.

Reinforcements for the regiments in garrison at Halifax and Bermuda are on their way out from England, which will raise them to their full war strength. In connection with the warlike preparations England is making in Canada, it is noteworthy that some of the papers that have been most insulting in their language toward the United States now deprecate the idea being entertained that they can possibly be directed against them. They are only intended for a possible war with Russia and France. What the preparations going on for arming vessels on the upper lakes has to do with Russia or France requires an imperialist mind to discern.

According to a cablegram received here the Pacific cable conference now sitting in London will no longer issue reports of its proceedings. The reason given for this is the jealousy which the movement excites in other countries, notably, so says the cablegram, in France and the United States. The Canadian commissioners, it seems, assured the conference that the idea that has been entertained that the new Canadian government was lukewarm toward the scheme is an entire mistake, that on the contrary they have definite instructions to co-operate in the heartiest manner, "because of the imperial ends to be served by the cable."

FOUND HIS FATHER.

After a Separation of Twenty-Three Years from Infancy.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 19.—Perry C. Merriam, 24 years of age, yesterday succeeded in finding his father, from whom he has been separated since he was a babe 12 months old.

The young man was born at Mattoon, Ill., his mother being a daughter of C. C. Eggleston, a machinist of Cincinnati. According to Merriam's story, he and his mother were kidnapped one year after his birth by his grandfather, who strenuously opposed the marriage of his daughter to C. P. Merriam. The mother pined away and died at the home of her father six months afterward, and Perry was brought up on a farm near Athens, O., until his nineteenth birthday, when he started out to see the world and, if possible, find his father.

An aunt living in Marietta, O., gave him the clue which eventually resulted in the bringing together of father and son, at the home of the former, 344 Van Buren street, this city, yesterday.

C. P. Merriam, the father of the young man, is an engineer on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad.

FRIGHTFUL FATE.

Three Prominent Young People Dashed to Death at Concord, Ky.

CONCORD, Ky., Nov. 21.—A frightful accident occurred in this city at 11:17 Thursday night, in which three prominent young people were dashed into eternity. The unfortunate victims were the Misses Lulu and Lizette Lind, daughter of the proprietor of the Lind hotel in this town, and Al Pollick, a young attorney. They were returning home in a buggy from a party some miles west of town, and while crossing the Chesapeake & Ohio tracks at the First street crossing, "Flyer No. 4" struck the buggy, hurling the three occupants some 40 feet into the air and killing them almost instantly. The train was going at about 50 miles an hour, and as the depot was between them and the train, it is supposed they did not hear it coming.

RAILWAY CONDUCTORS.

Holding Their Annual Convention at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—The twenty-second annual convention of the Railway Passenger and Freight Conductors' Mutual Aid and Benefit association is in session at the Palmer hotel. The organization has a membership of 924. The secretary's report showed a loss in membership during the year of 194. There were 17 deaths and $39,835 were paid out in death benefits. Since the organization of the association death benefits aggregating $805,674.50 have been paid.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

The Gain in the Volume of Business Continues to be Entirely Without Precedent—Every Day Adds Thousands to the Numbers of Those Who Are Able to Buy a Week's Supplies.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

The gain in the volume of business continues entirely without precedent. More than 300 establishments have started work since the election, which were idle, and at least 300 have increased working force. Every day thus adds thousands to the number of those who are able to buy a week's supplies and then make up gradually for many months of enforced economy. Already this brings great increase in the volume of business and the clearinghouse exchanges, for the first time in several years, not only exceed those of last year by ten per cent. but also exceed those of the same week in 1892 by nine per cent. Business men are all anxious to prevent anything like the fictitious excitement of last summer, and in nearly all branches an excessive rise in prices is prevented.

But with more hands at work there is inevitably a greater demand for supplies, materials and products.

The speculative markets have been reacting, which is also natural. Wheat has risen with wonderful rapidity, so that exports had been checked by the higher prices, and realizing started a break which made the close 3½ lower for the week.

The demand for freight room, both here and on the Pacific coast, is still so large as to disclose an extraordinary foreign demand.

Cotton has declined from 8 to 7.62 cents in spite of the starting of many cotton mills, and the controlling factor for the moment is that reports of a yield smaller than 8,000,000 bales are now entirely discredited. The quantity coming into sight has exceeded last year by 820,000 bales, and it is noted that the decrease in the remaining months of the year will bring the aggregate below 8,500,000. The export demand does not abate, although temporarily checked while prices were above 8 cents, and the increase of $3,400,000 in value of cotton exported in October contributed more than any other single item to make the aggregate exceed that of the same month in any previous year.

In a transition period industries record gains slowly, but the slight decline in prices of Bessemer pig iron and of finished products of iron and steel is partly due to realizing on speculative purchases before election, and partly to the selling of nails by jobbers below the combination price. For most manufactured products of iron there is a better demand and a slow advance in prices. Shipments of boots and shoes for three weeks of November have been 183,027, cases against 174,178 last year, but while the works have orders for some time ahead, neither manufacturers nor dealers are disposed to do much because of the uncertainty about prices, those of boots and shoes being about 11 per cent. above the lowest point; leather, 3.3 per cent., and hides 51.4 per cent., the latter again rising at Chicago. In cotton and woolen goods no serious change appears, though there is continued weakness in cottons, and print cloths are a sixteenth lower. Stocks of wool purchased before and immediately after the election now prevent a further advance, but to November 15 wool had risen 10 per cent. on the average.

Failures for the week have been 314 in the United States, against 320 last year, and 40 in Canada, against 42 last year.

THE FUR SEAL HERD.

Return of Dr. Jordan from His Investigations in Behring Sea.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Dr. D. S. Jordan, of the Leland Stanford university, California, the civilian member of the commission that has been engaged in examining the condition of the fur seal herd in Behring sea and adjacent waters, is here to make his report to the treasury and the state departments. Dr. Jordan was closeted with Assistant Secretary Hamlin Thursday evening and yesterday morning, but, acting upon the advice of the secretary, he declined to talk on the subject until he has submitted a preliminary report to Secretary Olney.

It is understood that the report bears out the contention of the United States in the seal question. Last summer the British government sent a commission to investigate the subject and this government then did likewise. If the two reports agree that the present regulations are insufficient to protect the seals it is not unlikely that new regulations will be agreed upon and possibly a revision made of the existing treaty between this government and Great Britain.

UGLY DEVELOPMENTS.

Succeeding the Disappearance of a Prominent Whiteboro (N. C.) Lawyer.

WHITEBORO, N. C., Nov. 20.—Mr. J. B. Buxton, a prominent lawyer of Wilkesboro, is missing. He disappeared from his home a few days ago and some very unpleasant developments have since been made. A warrant has been issued for his arrest charging him with forgery and embezzlement, signing the certificates of the county clerk and register upon a mortgage deed by which he obtained money from A. L. Richardson, of New York.

DAUGHTERS OF CONFEDERACY.

Give Their Sixth Annual Ball at St. Louis—Honored Guests.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 21.—The sixth annual ball of the Daughters of the Confederacy for the benefit of the ex-Confederate Home of Missouri was held Thursday night at the Merchants' exchange, and will long live in the memory of all who were present for one reason, if no other—Mrs. Jeffers Davis and her daughter, Miss Winnie Davis, were among the guests. The honored visitors were the recipients of marked attention.

A Large Pumpkin.

Bluff City, Tenn., boasts of a pumpkin 65 inches in diameter, which is still growing on a vine belonging to Mrs. William Berry.

SOUTHERN CLEANINGS.

Defense of Southern Harbors.

Gov. Mitchell of Florida has sent the following letter to the governors of states:

In view of the danger which threatens the defenseless gulf and South Atlantic seaports of the United States, we have deemed it proper to issue a call for a convention in the interests of the gulf and South Atlantic harbors, and their defenses and their improvement. The object of this convention, which will assemble at Tampa, Fla., on the 30th day of January, 1897, is to discuss methods for the proper defense of southern harbors, and also to devise means for their betterment.

The growing importance of southern seaports and their prospect in the near future of a large increase in maritime business should stimulate the citizens of the southern states to provide in season for the improvement and defense of their seaports. As loyal citizens of this republic, it behooves us to heed the admonitions of wisdom and endeavor to speedily place our defenseless southern ports in a condition to protect us from the possible peril of foreign invasion.

In the interest, therefore, of this important subject, we respectfully request your excellency to honor this convention with your presence, and also to send a delegate from your commonwealth to attend the same.

Kindly forward the names of such delegates when appointed by your excellency to H. J. Cooper, secretary of the board of trade, Tampa, Fla. Respectfully, H. L. MITCHELL, Governor of Florida.

Murdered by a Jealous Husband.

Charles Bowne was killed late the other night at New Smyrna, Fla., by T. H. Roberts. The shooting occurred while Bowne was sitting upon the piazza of Robert's house with the latter's wife. Roberts came up unexpectedly and shouted "Throw up your hands." Bowne cried out "Don't shoot," and drew his pistol. Roberts took aim with a double-barreled shotgun and fired. Bowne fired twice in reply, staggered down the steps and into the street, where he fell, and 20 minutes later was dead.

The suspicions of Mr. Roberts were aroused, it is said, by an anonymous letter which said: "If you keep a close watch you will find that your wife is receiving attentions from Bowne while you are away."

Roberts did not come out of the affair unscathed. A bullet from Bowne's pistol struck him in the breast, and ranged downward, but did not penetrate the abdomen.

Mr. Curry's Views.

Rev. Dr. J. M. Curry, ex-minister to Spain, and trustee of the Peabody and Slater funds, made an address recently before the colored students of Shaw university, Raleigh, N. C. Speaking of the negro, he said: "I never could understand why the negro population remains so compact in the south, instead of becoming scattered all over the Union. The northern men freed the negro. Why is it the negro does not go north to be with his friends, instead of staying in the south among his enemies?"

As to suffrage, Dr. Curry said: "I believe a man who can not read his ballot ought not to be allowed to put it into a box." (Applause among the negro students.)

Don't Exterminate the 'Possum.

It has remained for Representative McCook, of Chattanooga, Ga., to raise his voice for the protection as well as in praise of the 'possum. He insists that Georgia shall take the 'possum into her arms, so to speak, and give it a chance against its enemies. The quail, the snipe, the deer are all the objects of tender solicitude by Mother Georgia; yet not one of these, in point of excellence, from the gourmet's standpoint, are to be mentioned in the same breath with the delectable 'possum. Nevertheless, the unassuming, ever-merciful 'possum is left to the tender mercies of whomever may go out to seek and devour him.

"Wild Man" Hangs Himself.

George McDonald, known throughout the country about Chattanooga, Tenn., as the "Wild Man of Walden's Ridge," was found dead, hanging from the bough of a tree. The old man recently gave evidence of insanity, and it is thought that

THE Thanksgiving dinner of the American society in London was given, on the night of the 26th, in the great hall of the Hotel Cecil. The decorations were American and British flags and the coats of arms of the different states of the Union. Ambassador Bayard was absent, having been summoned to Windsor castle by the queen. Among the toasts was one to President Cleveland, who was handsomely eulogized.

SECRETARY CARLISLE was recently asked by a friend if he had seen the reports printed that if he desired he could retain his position as secretary of the treasury in the next administration. He replied that he had, but the reports were too silly and absurd to require from him a thought, much less an answer. He claimed to be as good a democrat as he ever was, and said he could not hold office under the McKinley administration.

THE post office department has complaints against 50 or 60 presidential postmasters throughout the country, charged with violating the order of the president prohibiting them from taking an active part in politics.

BENJAMIN ANTHORP GOULD, famous as a teacher and astronomer, died at Cambridge, Mass., on the 27th.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Grover Cleveland's Official Farewell to the American People and to the Fifty-Fourth Congress Promises to be an Interesting State Paper and, Probably, the Most Notable of any Yet Issued by the Present Chief Executive.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—A Herald special from Washington says: President Cleveland has been devoting a great deal of time to his annual message during the last week, and how has it all in hand, so that it can be finished in a couple of days.

This message is expected to be one of the ablest public documents Mr. Cleveland has written during his two terms. It will be, in a sense, his farewell to the American people as their chief executive, and there is little doubt that he will embrace the opportunity to mark out the course he believes ought to be followed by the national government for the maintenance and advancement of the prosperity of the country.

Foreign affairs will naturally claim considerable attention, and the president will have an opportunity to congratulate congress and the country upon the solution of the Venezuelan boundary controversy as alike honorable to the United States, England and Venezuela. Affairs in Turkey will be discussed in detail, and the president will be able to show that the ordinary diplomatic agencies have sufficed for the protection of American life and property in the Turkish empire.

The last paragraph of the message to be written will be those dealing with the situation in Cuba. He will avail himself of the latest possible information as to the military situation in the island, and the prospects for the early success or failure of the insurgents may have much to do with shaping his policy. Present indications are that he will make no radical recommendations on this subject.

Although there is no prospect for the enactment of any revenue or financial legislation during the rest of his term, Mr. Cleveland is understood to be preparing for an elaborate discussion of those subjects, and will recommend legislation which, he believes, if carried out, will put the treasury and the financial system of the country on a sound basis.

The president will doubtless express his approval of recommendations for increasing the revenue by imposing revenue duties on tea and coffee and increasing the internal revenue tax on beer. The financial reform recommendations of the message will be along the lines of Mr. Cleveland's former recommendations, and will have as their basis the advocacy of the single gold standard as the foundation of the monetary system of the country.

The retirement of the greenbacks and the Sherman notes will be recommended, so as to take the government entirely out of the business of issuing promissory notes. Banking reform will be recommended at the same time, to enable the banks of the country to issue circulating notes which will be safe and which can be expanded or contracted in volume to meet the needs of the business of the country.

Mr. Cleveland is alive to the necessity of continuing the expansion of the navy and of constructing coast defense forts in the country in a condition to resist foreign aggression, and the recommendation on these lines made by Secretaries Lamont and Herbert in their annual reports will be seconded in the message.

FOR A PERMANENT HOME

President Cleveland Purchases the Most Desirable Location in Princeton, N. J. Princeton, N. J., Nov. 27.—Prof. Andrew West, of the university, returned yesterday afternoon from Washington, where he had been laying the claims of Princeton as a place for a residence before President Cleveland.

Prof. West, when seen last evening, authorized the following statement for publication:

"President Cleveland has to-day purchased the residence of Mrs. Sidel on the Princeton road, in Princeton, and will make Princeton his permanent home as president. Negotiations looking to this end have been in progress for about three weeks, and were consummated Friday by the purchase of the property. A number of reasons have attracted President and Mrs. Cleveland to Princeton.

"The president's father was educated for the Presbyterian ministry here. The quiet and independent home life of the place, its healthfulness, its convenience to New York, the attraction of a university society, as well as other reasons, have been influential in his decision."

The actual purchase price of the property could not be learned last night, but it is generally understood that the president paid between $45,000 and $60,000 for it. The property is beautifully located in the western part of the village and overlooks a picturesque stretch of farming country three or four miles in extent, directly across the avenue is the residence of Prof. William Mulligan Sloan, and the location is by far the most desirable one in town.

More Troops for Manila.

BARCELONA, Nov. 28.—A steamer sailing hence yesterday for Manila carried two battalions of troops to reinforce the Spanish columns operating against the insurgents in the Philippine islands. She also carried a quantity of war material.

Gold Certificates.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The treasury department has taken no action in the matter of issuing gold certificates, and it is not believed anything will be done for several days. Meanwhile applications from the bank for such certificates are accumulating.

Are an Extra Session Will Be Called.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 28.—Congressmen Wm. Aldrich, who returned from a visit to President-elect McKinley at Canton, Thursday night, says he is sure an extra session of congress will be called.

THOSE RECENT BATTLES

In Pinar del Rio Discussed by Horatio Reubens, Counsel for the Cuban Junta at New York.—The Accounts Probably Colored, But Substantially Correct.—Weyler Crowded Too Soon.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The Jacksonville dispatch giving the details of the two bloody battles recently fought between Maceo's forces and those of Gen. Weyler in Pinar del Rio, caused great rejoicing among Cubans here yesterday. Official details of the fighting have not yet been received by the junta, but it is expected that Col. Jose Reyes, with Maceo's dispatches to the delegation, will be here to-day. Horatio Reubens, who is counsel for the junta and very close to Delegate Palma, talked to the reporter yesterday. Senator Palma himself was too busy.

"We do not care to boast of the victory," he said, "as we have only the newspaper accounts of it as yet to enable us to judge of its importance."

"There is no reason to doubt, however, that the report is substantially correct. Possibly there has been some exaggeration in the account of the Spanish losses. John Linn, the electrician who had charge of the dynamite mines, is a Jacksonville man. I notice the dispatch bears a Jacksonville date, and it is not unlikely that local pride may have caused Linn's share in the victory to be more or less magnified."

"We expect to have Maceo's own account of the engagements by to-day and will then be in better shape to discuss the campaign and its probable results. We are particularly anxious to hear of the conduct of Maceo's dynamite gun. It is quite certain that this gun has been brought into action and it may have wrought much of the havoc reported in Weyler's columns."

"This campaign shows how much Weyler amounts to in real warfare. He started out by saying that he was going to wipe Maceo and his army off the face of the earth. Now he is back in Havana saying he could not find him. He crowed too soon. According to his own statement Maceo had 6,000 men. Well, the earth has not swallowed them. It will be hard for Weyler to make the world believe but that he did find Maceo and is now sorry for it."

WEYLER'S TROOPS.

Badly Defeated by Maceo, Said to be Demoralized.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—A Times special from Key West, Fla., says: It is now positively known in Havana that Gen. Weyler and his army have been defeated by Maceo and his forces in the province of Pinar del Rio. Full details of the battle are lacking, but it is known to have been the fiercest and most disastrous of the revolution.

The battle was desperate, and Gen. Weyler, seeing his men were fighting at a disadvantage and were being slaughtered, ordered a retreat, leaving over 1,000 dead and taking his wounded men reached Havana Wednesday night, and several train loads are en route.

Weyler's troops are said to be demoralized.

FROM HAVANA.

Awful Mortality in the Spanish Army From Sickness—Sanjullia's Case.

HAVANA, Nov. 28.—Nothing special has been received concerning the operations in the field.

The official statistics show that there are now 17,340 soldiers sick in the various military hospitals. Of this number 1,458 are suffering with yellow fever. The mortality is said to be 163 per thousand.

One hundred and fifty persons who have been condemned for various political crimes and sentenced to exile will be sent to penal settlements.

The case of Julio Sangui, the American citizen, who is charged with conspiracy against the government, was called in the supreme court yesterday and trial set for December 21.

A rain which arrived here yesterday from Artemisa province of Pinar del Rio, brought 17 officers and 48 privates who are so sick that it was necessary to bring them here for hospital treatment. The steamer Bolivar brought yesterday seven officers and 240 privates, all sick, from the same province.

Gen. Weyler arrived safely at Artemisa by way of Mariel, yesterday, and it is stated that it is his intention to leave at once for the field.

CUBAN ENTHUSIASM

Aroused by Bourke Cockran and Other Speakers in Chickering Hall.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—W. Bourke Cockran addressed a meeting of Cuban sympathizers at Chickering hall last night, the occasion being the twenty-fifth anniversary of the execution of the eight medical students at Havana. He stirred the patriotism of the crowd to fever heat. He said he hoped the government would not interfere with view to annexation, but for liberation alone. When Cuba is independent she can wait without for annexation. This sentiment provoked terrific applause. Mr. Cockran criticised the administration earnestly.

Hon. Charles A. Dana, both in English and Spanish, addressed the meeting, and aroused intense enthusiasm. Gen. Sangui, a brother of Manuel Sangui, now in a Spanish prison, and several other gentlemen, spoke. Several of the speeches were in the Spanish language.

COMMANDER M'GOWAN

Assigned to One of the Most Eagerly-Sought Billets in the Navy.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Secretary Herbert has settled the succession of one of the most eagerly-sought billets in the entire navy, the command of the naval training station and training ship Constellation at Newport, by selecting Commander John McGowan for the post, and that popular officer, who is now chief of detail on Admiral Ramsay's staff, will receive his orders in a day or two. Commander Francis W. Dickins, at will succeed to the vacancy.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

The Phenomenal Increase in Business Since the Election is Reasonably Well Sustained, Notwithstanding Combination and High Prices in Iron and Steel and Shoes Retard Orders—Money Coming Forward.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—R. G. Dun & Co. say to-day in their weekly review of trade:

When the rush of orders after the election slackened, many began to think business dwindling. But subsidence of deferred orders is not decrease in business. Disappointment is observed in the iron and steel industries, because various combinations have been and are still retarding orders by prices which buyers believe cannot be maintained, and the same is true in boots and shoes and in a few branches of textile goods. But business is on the whole, enlarging, and the employment of many more hands will extend purchasing power. The settlement of the window glass controversy, starting many thousand hands, and the collapse of some important iron combinations, with the same effect, give promise of more business. Broadly speaking, the gain has been greater than anybody expected, and it is not surprising if a small part of it is in excess of the present consuming demand.

Reports from all parts of the country show clearly the enlargement of trade, not at all points in the same branch, but everywhere helped by a more confident feeling. Monetary difficulties have vanished as if by magic and banks with an uncomfortable large supply of idle money are hunting borrowers, as the borrowers were recently hunting lenders. Enormous gains in bank deposits—$37,000,000 in two weeks—indicate something of the amount of funds recently hoarded.

Wheat has risen over six cents for the week without material change in foreign advice, which have been, on the whole, less stimulating. Corn has sympathized with wheat only a little and is coming forward freely. The important factor in the wheat market is that the visible supplies do not gain as much as has been expected.

Cotton has gained only a sixteenth after its considerable decline, and the remarkably heavy movement puts the speculators for an advance in constant difficulties, and yet there is all the time to be remembered the fact that the crop was nearly one month earlier than usual, and the present excess over last year's movement may be materially reduced hereafter. Nevertheless the fact appears that northern mills are taking much less cotton than in previous years, and the demand for goods is evidently disappointing. It cannot be said that prices in this department are the hindrance, for even with some recent reduction in quotations the sales of staple cottons are comparatively small.

Wool was and is still bought largely for speculation and earlier purchasers are unloading, but the mills are not yet doing much more than in October. A few more have been started, but there is scarcely more demand apparent for staple goods. The boot and shoe industry is still hindered by the general refusal of dealers to pay the advanced prices demanded by manufacturers, except for the limited quantities which are immediately required, and while most manufacturers are working on orders taken weeks ago at lower prices, which will keep them busy for some weeks to come, very little new business is coming.

No further advance of importance has been made in leather, and the market for hides has sharply reacted, so that the average of prices is slightly lower than November 19. The collapse of the rail combination and probably of the beam combination and considerable reduction in quotations for nails and beams, give reason to look for a larger demand for products of iron and steel, but at present the sales against speculative purchases made some time ago are depressing prices, and Bessemer pig has sold at $12.25, and according to some reports a little lower, at Pittsburgh. The demand for such products as are not controlled by the combinations is somewhat increasing, but by no means as rapidly as expected. In minor metals tin is scarcely as strong as it was a week ago, but copper and lead are stronger.

Failures for the week have been 300 in the United States, against 279 last year and 38 in Canada against 47 last year.

MARLEY'S MISTAKE

Liable to Land an Overzealous Partisan in the Centennial.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Several days ago the attention of the civil service commission was called to the case of William K. Marley, employed as engineer at the public building in Denver, Colo., who was charged with collecting political assessments for the democratic campaign fund. Investigation showed that several employees of the post office, who had been approached by Marley, had subscribed sums of money and had held meetings in Marley's rooms which were used as headquarters. The matter was laid before the secretary of the treasury, who at once ordered Marley's dismissal in accordance with the recommendation of the commission. The case will now be presented to the department of justice for action. The penalty for such an offense is a fine not to exceed $5,000 or three years' imprisonment, or both.

THE FLOODS IN GREECE.

The Living Drowned and the Dead Washed From Their Graves.

ATHENS, Nov. 28.—The loss of life by the floods is much larger than was first reported. Forty bodies have been recovered at the Piræus, and boats are searching for persons who are missing and who are supposed to have perished. The cemetery at the Piræus was inundated. The water swept across the burial place with such violence that a number of bodies and skeletons were washed out of their resting places.

MACK AND THE FARMERS.

The farmers are after McKinley to give one of their number a cabinet position. This is right. It is high time that the farmers were represented in national affairs. Mack may not feel as we do on this subject. He may feel that his position will appear more effete and recherche by the admission of only full dress gold-bugs into his cabinet, and he may not care to associate with a man who wears his pants stuffed in his boots, and combs his hair with a curry comb, and brushes sweet new-mown hay out of his whiskers. Mack may rather have the idea that potato-bugs and gold-bugs can't mix up socially and order the drinks consecutively as it should be done.

But Mack should not allow such considerations as these to figure in this request of the farmers. He owes it to the farmers to reward them for their earnest toil in his behalf, and especially for their votes. He must have got near ten or fifteen votes from among the farmers. Surely he will not neglect this opportunity to repay such heroic devotion.

We hope that Mack will look at this thing from the right standpoint, and give us a real farmer as secretary of agriculture. Then let the secretary rehabilitate the broken down custom of sending us nice little installments of turnip seed that come up onions—mighty sorry onions at that—and cabbage seed that sprout up into mushrooms and dog fennel, and corn that prefers the quiet tomb to the excitement of industrious existence. We know those old seed. There are many needed reforms in the agricultural department that should be entrusted to a man who knows his business, but we are afraid that Mack will have to give the job to a democrat in order to secure a real farmer.

The inaugural ceremonies on the 4th of March, it is stated, will be on a magnificent scale. There will be pomp, pageantry and paint, and Mack will sail into the White House in a manner that will scare the servant into fits. The servant should not be treated like this. We can't blame her for being frightened if, as she is scouring the floor or dusting the cottage organ or the whatnot, or packing Grover's valise, or sweeping up the crumbs dropped by Little Ruth or Esther or the baby, or having a quiet talk with the policeman over the back fence, McKinley should burst in on her with all that noise and want to know why in thunder dinner isn't ready. We respectfully ask Mack's attention to this little matter. It may not seem of any great importance to him, but a servant should receive some consideration in such cases as this. And another thing, Mack: You might come bouncing into the sitting room too suddenly and find her in tears over the departure of the children, and your entrance in that manner will fall harshly upon her gentle nature. She will feel that you are hardhearted and cruel, and in after times when you get comfortably ensconced in the arm chair by the cheerful, popping, chestnut fire, and want to spend an hour with Hick's annual novel, this poor servant girl of yours will find a good many ways of getting even. You will have to move your chair about from spot to spot to allow her to sweep the floor clean. She will come in suddenly in the midst of your reveries over national affairs and tell you that the cow and the calf are together again and what must she do, or that the hired man has broken his leg playing with a mule out in the lot and must she go for the doctor. Servant girls are not bad people, but they feel most keenly any encroachments on their tender sensibilities. If you could arrange to let her know about what time she may expect you, and whether you will bring a few friends along with tin horns and red torches, she will be grateful and will no doubt have everything neat and clean for your arrival. Now, Mack, understand We want you to have all the fun you can, but do try to think of these little things.

Rev. IRL HICKS, who has been an ardent supporter of the silver idea, has this to say in the last issue of his paper, Word and Works: "The vital issues of the late campaign were thoroughly discussed—the people deliberately made up their minds and the verdict of the ballot box was clear and final. No real patriot or lover of humanity and peace, will now place one pebble under the wheels of the incoming administration. If its policy is right and righteous, in God's name let it triumph; if it is wrong and unrighteous, do not so interfere as to allow any of the consequences or blame to fall upon you. Give loyal support, give free and untrammelled swing. Let us as the greatest nation on the globe patiently and patriotically stand out the best way and then pursue it."

The dress reform movement at Montgomery reads like a lot of children playing doll baby. Let our legislators get to work on the commissary question, the bi-weekly pay question, the good road question, and the other needed reforms. The women of Alabama know best what they should wear, and they are not going to rush into pants without giving the country due and ample notice of the same. Until that time comes, our brainy representative should turn their attention to enacting their salaries.

In 1720 over 12,000 houses were burned in Constantinople and 7,000 lives were lost in the fire. In 1745 a fire again raged in the Turkish capital during five days, and a series of terrible calamities also occurred in the year 1750.

We notice in some of our exchanges that the editors are anxiously figuring on what sort of presents they will make to their families and friends on Christmas. In some instances lists are compiled showing anything from a transfer of real estate to a jumping-jack. We have also given this important matter some very serious thought and the result is about as follows:

We hope that our friends will appreciate our generosity. Now is the time to subscribe.

IN THE midst of the vacillations of political ambition, Grover Cleveland stands out prominently and pre-eminently a man of unswerving steadiness and unapproachable honesty. His name will rank with the world's greatest and noblest of men as long as there is history. Grand, magnificent and noble his figure stands out against the political sky, and man cannot change, or enemies destroy.

THE mayoralty contest is red hot. The candidates didn't have time to eat Thanksgiving dinner on account of all their time being occupied in answering questions put by the rival candidates. A man who runs for office these days, and comes up successfully ought to be speedily promoted to a position as editor-in-chief of the conundrum department of a great newspaper.

PRIME MINISTER CANOVAS of Spain says "Cuba is a nest of vipers." It is the habit of nations as with individuals to call names when they are getting licked. The "nest of vipers" in Cuba is making it interesting for the Spaniards who are trying to stamp them out.

WHEN McKinley gets settled back into the presidential chair, he will probably turn his attention to the settlement of some of his private debts. Or has Mr. Hanna already fixed that?

WHEN congress sends over a bill for President McKinley's approval, that little tin divinity will poke his head back behind the curtains and whisper: "Hanna, how is your maw?"

McKINLEY has been successively a silver man, a tin man, and a gold man. Mack ought to be a pretty good man to tie to. You can't phase him.

THE Armenians were amply revenged on Thanksgiving day. The Turks were slaughtered world without end.

WHEN Hanna takes snuff President McKinley will sneeze. Then the Lord help the nation standing under.

THE bowl of republican pap is brewing. Don't burn your fingers, gentlemen.

Why didn't Hanna buy the presidency for himself?

Now watch the scramble for pie.

SPAIN'S DESPERATION.

Spain is in a desperate situation, financially as well as otherwise. The fact that the country has exhausted its credit abroad, and was forced to the extremity of floating an internal loan give evidence of this desperation. A flat failure was made by the Madrid government in its efforts to borrow money of the French banks, though it was negotiating with them through September and October. National bankruptcy was only averted by the prompt subscriptions on the part of Spain's own citizens, many of whom even went so far as to sacrifice their jewelry in order to raise money for the government. This action, while highly patriotic, was only proper. But the loan just floated, amounting to $50,000,000 with $20,000,000 over-subscription, will afford only temporary relief.

The London Economist, in detailing the disposition to be made of the proceeds of the loan, says that the Spanish Trans-Atlantic Mail Steamship Company is to receive $4,000,000 as part payment for carrying to Cuba 178,000 men and their supplies during the past twenty-one months. The Banque de Paris et Pays Bas must be paid $10,000,000 in equal installments during this month and next for credits opened for the Cuban treasury in 1875, which the bank has refused to renew for another half year. The bank of Spain is to be paid another $10,000,000 for advances to the Cuban war fund during October. As the monthly expenditure of the Cuban war exceeds $15,000,000, the proceeds of the new loan will be exhausted by the latter part of February.

In view of the fact that the rebellions, both in Cuba and the Philippine Islands, are not diminishing in the least, but seem to be growing, the chances are that the expenses of carrying on the wars in both places will increase at such a rate as to deplete Spain's resources, even before the time named above. The return of General Weyler to Havana after his fruitless search for Maceo's army and the defeat of the Spanish forces in a battle on the Philippine Islands, where 300 Spaniards were slain, illustrates the headway the rebellious subjects are making in both colonies. Spain is in desperate straits. Unless something is done soon she will be forced to abandon Cuba from the lack of funds to prosecute the war further.

In 1720 over 12,000 houses were burned in Constantinople and 7,000 lives were lost in the fire. In 1745 a fire again raged in the Turkish capital during five days, and a series of terrible calamities also occurred in the year 1750.

THE POWER OF THOUGHT.

From Word and Works.

There are a number of invisible forces in the world, such as electricity and magnetism, whose power can scarcely be estimated. We stand awe-stricken before an electrical storm that generates the fearful tornado, which destroys everything in its path. Yet electricity is an unorganized force that is rapidly coming under the dominion of the power of human thought. Steam owes its discovery to thought, but more advanced, or vital thought, discovered something better and more powerful in electricity. This wonderful force is yet in its infancy, so far as its application to human wants have been made. But even now there are indications of a more powerful force than electricity. The Keely motor and the Roentgen X rays, are instances of this. Heretofore, thought has only been recognized as a wonderful power in organizing and applying the unorganized forces. But now it is fast coming to be recognized as the greatest power in the world. It is a living, intelligent substance. It is creative, which cannot be said of any of the unorganized, invisible forces.

"As a man thinketh in his heart, so he is." If man is the highest expression of Being, or God, and has dominion over all the forces of the world, and no one disputes this fact, then it follows that he has this power because he "thinks," or has reasoning faculties. He gets this power from being "created in the image and likeness of God." The right use of this power brings him only good, and the wrong use, or abuse of it brings him only evil. Then it follows, a man owes everything he is, or acquires, to his power of thought, whether it be good or evil. Thought can make sick and it can make well. Thought can make divinely beautiful the human face and form, and it can make it hideous in ugliness and deformity. Thought can make us rich, and it can make us poor. Thought can make conditions that are harmonious and pleasant, and it can make discordant conditions and surroundings. Thought can make a heaven on earth, where heaven ought to be, and it can make a hell, enough for any body on earth. We live in our thoughts. They make us just what we are. Vital thought based on absolute truth, or a correct understanding of our relation to the law of Being, or God, creates for us health, beauty, riches, harmonious conditions or surroundings, and heaven on earth. Thought based on error, or a misconception of the law of Being, or God, creates sickness, ugliness, poverty, discordant conditions or surroundings, and a hell on earth. The only way to escape disease, and discordant conditions is to "think God's thoughts after Him." "While you muse, the fire will burn."

HENRY CARR HORNADY.

Is There any Incentive to Live.

Not if you are going to waste your time in superficial work, or study, or reading works of fiction. Not if you look upon the theatrical side of life only. Not if you expect to live and grow on the dead thoughts of a dead past. Not if you think that the world owes you a living. Not if you are waiting and wishing for a relative to die and leave you a fortune. Not if you are living off your friends, or expect them to keep you in idleness. Not if you expect to be a political boss or a saloon keeper or both. Not if you expect to marry a rich young lady just for her money. Not if you are a libertine seeking to destroy the virtue of every young lady you meet. Not if you are a dude who parts his hair and name in the middle, wears toothpick shoes, eye glass and cane, stands on street corners and insults young ladies. Not if your thoughts do not rise higher than yourself, and your world is self. For any or all the above, there is no incentive to live, no necessity in fact.

McKINLEY IS ELECTED

And "They Say" Good Times Are Ahead!

Good enough. I've no objection to that—I refer to the good times; but if they come I am ready, yes more than ready. This is no joke, but is a cold, solid fact. I have a very large stock of goods this fall, the largest and most complete ever seen in Shelby county, and I can

A DISPATCH to the London Daily Mail from Constantinople, on the 3d, said that another massacre had occurred at Erevak, in which 100 Armenians were reported to have been killed.

A DISPATCH from Bombay, on the 3d, said that the mortality from famine in the Belapur and Belaghat districts was steadily increasing. Hundreds of persons had died from starvation in the Gona district.

MR. HATCH, the Hawaiian minister to the United States, accompanied by Mr. Cooper, minister of foreign affairs of the republic of Hawaii, called upon Secretary Olney at the department of state on the 2d.

BISHOP KEANE, late rector of the Catholic university in Washington, will sail for Rome, on the 5th, in response to the commands of the pope to go to that city and perform such duties as may be there assigned him.

The fifth accident in three weeks in the wheel pit extension of the power tunnel at Niagara Falls, N. Y., occurred, on the 3d, when the fastenings in the bucket carrying some stone, gave way, fatally injuring two laborers.

The report published in the London Daily Mail, on the 1st, that Sir Matthew White Ridley, the home secretary, had ordered the release from Holloway jail of Dr. Jamieson, the Transvaal raider, is confirmed upon official authority.

The announcement was received in London, on the 4th, of the death, on November 11, of Joseph James Chesapeake, president of the republic of Liberia, and the inauguration, on November 13, of Vice-President W. D. Coleman as president.

THIRTEEN signed letters from George Washington to Arthur Young, the agriculturist, dated from 1780 to 1793, on farms in America, were sold at auction at Sotheby's (London) on the 1st. After some smart bidding the documents were sold for $470.

The annual report of Postmaster-General Wilson will not be made public until after the president has submitted his annual message to congress. This is taken to indicate that matters of great importance pertaining to postal affairs are under consideration.

A BREATH of persons suspected of being concerned in plots against the Turkish government continue. Many of those taken into custody have been seized while in bed and taken at once to the central prison. The suffering and distress in Constantinople is increasing.

The cabinet meeting, on the 4th, was attended by all the members except Secretary Lamont, and Attorney-General Harmon. It is understood that such portions of the president's message as relates to foreign affairs were discussed and financial recommendations considered.

The Manchester Guardian says that Lord Salisbury, British prime minister and secretary of state for foreign affairs, will make very strong representations to the Spanish government with reference to the detention in Cuba by the authorities there of Richard and John Beatty, residents of British Columbia.

The state of Minnesota will probably realize $10,000 by the seizure, on the 3d, of 30 tons of venison by the state game warden, because it was being illegally shipped from that state to Boston, New York and Chicago. The fines for the illegal transportation of the game will amount to over $40,000. This seizure is said to be the largest ever made in the United States.

The United States court of claims has ordered a rehearing in the celebrated La Abra mining case, involving a claim for large amounts against Mexico, which was disputed on the ground of fraud, and referred by congress to the court of claims for final judgment. The rehearing will not take place until after the Christmas holidays, the persons chiefly interested in the claims being in New York.

BECAUSE of repeated unfriendly acts shown toward this nation President Cleveland, on the 3d, issued a proclamation revoking his former proclamation of January 26, 1888, suspending the collection of port duties imposed upon foreign vessels upon "vessels entered in the ports of the United States from any of the ports of the German empire; this revocation to take effect on and after the second of January, 1897."

FIVE HUNDRED young men, members or former members of the Virginia militia, have signed papers to go to Cuba at the first opportunity and assist the insurgent army. John W. Starke, editor of the Virginia Volunteer, organized the movement.

THE 650 employees of the Standard silk mill, at Philipsburg, N. J., who have been working on short time for several months, went to work on full time on the 30th. The knitting establishment of Seifert & Eitonheart, at the same place, which had been idle several months, has been purchased by Carly & Sanders, who also commenced operations on the 30th.

GEN. WEXLER, as acknowledged by himself in interviews with prominent Spaniards of the Junta de Defensa in his palace at Havana, has resolved to exterminate all the Cubans in the province of Pinar del Rio not engaged as soldiers in the Spanish ranks, and many have already perished. The prospects are for a very prosperous winter.

A FIRE ENGINE called out by a false alarm at Everett, Mass., on the 1st, was run into by a locomotive. The engineer of the steamer was killed, and the driver and both horses were fatally injured.

ALL the logging camps in the neighborhood of Manila, Mich., are making preparations to begin work, and many have already started. The prospects are for a very prosperous winter.

THE Wisconsin board of election canvassers completed its labors, on the 2d, finding that McKinley electors received 268,135, as against 102,528 for the Bryan electors.

The situation at Chippewa Falls Wis., was very critical, on the 2d, the entire city and much of the Chippewa valley being liable to destruction and devastation at almost any moment by the giving way of the immense ice gorges that had formed in the river at intervals for many miles. The residents were rapidly moving their merchandise and household effects to higher ground.

The official count of the votes cast in the recent election in the state of Rhode Island is 1,000 larger than at first supposed. The correct figures are: McKinley, 37,347; Bryan, 14,459; plurality for McKinley, 22,878.

The body of Sheriff William E. Herron of Plymouth county, Ia., was found, bruised and frozen, beside the railway track near Merrill, Neb., on the 2d, where he had evidently fallen from a train.

On the 2d Kansas City (Mo.) police officials arrested Jeff Paget and Albert Ellis, two of the bandits who held up and attempted to rob Alton express train at Blue Cut, near Independence, Mo., on the evening of October 24. Evidence against them is conclusive.

JOHN W. INOXS, secretary of the Fulton county board of health, reported to the Indiana state board of health, on the 3d, the death of five children in that county from diphtheria. Their parents belonged to the sanctified sect, and positively refused medical aid for the children. Finally, however, they submitted to allow a physician to prescribe, and the disease was broken up after five children had died.

The ladies' committee, which during the past year has been engaged in raising the $100,000 endowment fund for a chair of English literature in Lawrence university, at Appleton, Wis., have completed their work. Mrs. J. T. Witter, of Grand Rapids, gave $8,000, on the 3d, making $110,000 raised, and thus securing Senator Sawyer's conditional gift of $25,000.

ELIZA CUMMINGS, 55 years of age, of Hillsboro, O., a guest at the Empire hotel, Sixty-third street and Boulevard, New York city, while in a fit of insanity, on the 3d, jumped from the fifth story of the hotel to the yard, and was instantly killed.

The guns of the vanguard of the army of Gen. Maximo Gomez are thundering uncomfortably near the gates of Havana, while the captain-general is ostensibly in pursuit of Antonio Maceo in Pinar del Rio.

EUGENE W. HARRINGTON, deputy city comptroller of Buffalo, N. Y., has been arrested on a charge of grand larceny. An investigation had shown that Harrington had been "stuffing" a pay-roll.

HAVANA newspapers are urging the necessity for carrying on farming operations in the island to avert a disastrous famine.

It is claimed by the Uruguayan minister of foreign affairs that the threatened revolution in that country is unimportant.

ALL the candidates on the silver municipal ticket of Boston withdrew on the 4th.

The strike committee, on the 4th, called out all of the Hamburg harbor workmen, irrespective of the character of their employment, in order to assist the strike of the dock laborers. The men called out include the engineers, bargemen and others employed by the state and city.

The proposition of Englishmen, acting unofficially, to present Ambassador Bayard, at the close of his mission with a substantial recognition of the esteem in which he is held by individuals, is said to find no expression of disapprobation at the state department.

ECUADOR has had another disastrous fire, Daule, an important town in the province of Los Rios, being the scene. More than thirty houses in the business section of the town were destroyed, the losses aggregating hundreds of thousands of dollars.

ARTHUR PALMER, of Montezuma, O., and E. L. Godfrey, of Embleton, Pa., both oil men, were drowned in the reservoir at St. Mary's, O., on the 4th. Palmer broke through the ice and Godfrey went under while endeavoring to rescue his companion.

THE Milwaukee health department reported, on the 4th, a wholesale poisoning of families in the northern part of the city, supposed to have been caused by eating bread from a certain bakery, containing arsenic.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

ENORMOUS quantities of American corn are being shipped to Mexico, one hundred carloads having crossed the Rio Grande at Laredo, Texas, in one day.

SHERIFF MORFETT of Randolph county, N. C., was shot and killed in Ashboro on the 6th while making a raid on moonshiners.

A HEAD-ON collision between two freight trains on the Southern Pacific road near Waelder, Texas, on the 6th, resulted in the death of two engineers, two firemen and a brakeman.

THERE is practically no longer any doubt of the intention of President-elect McKinley to convene the fifty-fifth congress in extraordinary session early next spring.

ATLANTA pig iron is in such demand that shipping room at Mobile is not sufficient. January will probably witness more furnaces in blast than during any month since 1892.

A NEGRO named Davis murdered the two sons of Joe Williams, a planter near Pine Bluff, Ark. He has not been captured. The murder was committed because the negro desired revenge against the father.

DYNAMITE DICK, the notorious Territory outlaw, was shot and killed in a fight with deputy sheriffs near Newkirk, O. T., on the 4th.

NETUWON, the famous stallion, king of the Highland stock farm and sire of many noted race horses, died at Dubuque, Ia., on the 4th. His owners paid $25,000 for him thirteen years ago.

FAILURES the past week have been 379 in the United States, against 324 last year, and in Canada 55, against 52 last year.

THE report of Secretary Francis, issued on the 4th, shows that $2,034,818,769 have been paid out for pensions in the last thirty-one years.

THREE highwaymen went to a St. Louis brewery on the 3d and robbed the cashier of $400. Half a dozen clerks stood by while the robbery was in progress.

A FIGHT between old man Harrison and two sons and Morgan and two sons, Tom and Caleb, occurred on the 3d in one of the mountain counties of Kentucky. As a result the elder Morgan is dead and both sons are dying.

AT Arcade, N. Y., on the 3d the thermometer registered from eight to twelve degrees below zero.

FRANCIS' REPORT

On Affairs and Condition of the Interior Department.

The Public Lands and Irrigation—The Indians and Their Needs—The Year's Penalties—Appropriations—Roads and Railroads—New Buildings—Accommodations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Francis has submitted his annual report to the president:

The Appropriation for the Last Fiscal Year.

Amounted to $187,170,650. The estimates for the present fiscal year are about $1,000,000 more than was appropriated last year. The actual public domain is now 1,549,072,867 acres. The public lands still vacant amount to over 600,000,000 acres, not including Alaska. About 85,726,761 acres have been patented to railroads, and there are yet, out of the railroad and wagon roads under their grants an aggregate of 114,788,039 acres. The total acreage segregated from the public domain was 146,319,180 acres.

Waste Acreage Should be Taken up by Actual Settlers.

Who should be given every encouragement, and says if the rate of settlement continues in the future in the past, little vacant land will be left in 13 years' time. He urges legislation for the preservation of forests, and states that a report will be submitted to congress by the forestry commission, which has lately returned from a tour of inspection.

The Des Moines river land grant matter has been adjusted. About $188,854 in awards was agreed upon, of which $117,638 has been paid, the remainder will be paid at the end of this year.

Secretary Francis calls the attention of congress to the necessity of legislation.

He speaks of the necessity of Act of Lands and says that out of 500,000 acres of arid lands, 100,000,000 acres might be reclaimed by the conservative use of water, but it is impossible under the laws in operation to control the aridity of the arid lands, and to prevent the improvident use of water over which the general government has no control.

This should be done by a system which centralizes the reclamation of the entire territories from a common source of supply and the utilization of that supply; or the adoption of the suggestion of the commissioner of the general land office, that the lands in the direct control of the states for reclamation. He briefly mentions the Difficulties between the Otos and Missouri which he states is a complicated one. No settlement has yet been agreed upon.

In speaking of the decision of his predecessors that the eastern terminus of the Northern Pacific Railway Co. has been fixed at Duluth, he states that the effect of this decision was to exclude from the land grant of the company all lands lying east of that city. Prior to the adoption of this decision, the land grant of Duluth had been appropriated by settlers and paid at the double minimum rate of $2.50 per acre, upon the assumption that they fell within the limits of the company's grant, and therefore within the operation of section 2,332 of the Revised Statutes.

After the Promulgation of These Decisions.

Numerous applications were made by persons who had paid the double minimum price for lands to have the excess of $1.25 per acre refunded, pursuant to the provisions of the act of July 1, 1882.

Inasmuch as the railroad company had never acquiesced in the decision of the department, all such applications have been refused, and it is now being east of Duluth, he states that the effect of this decision was to exclude from the land grant of the company all lands lying east of that city. Prior to the adoption of this decision, the land grant of Duluth had been appropriated by settlers and paid at the double minimum rate of $2.50 per acre, upon the assumption that they fell within the limits of the company's grant, and therefore within the operation of section 2,332 of the Revised Statutes.

The director recommends that authority be given the secretary to have experiments made to determine the best means of preventing the counterfeiting of silver coinage. At the prevailing price of silver, the difference between the bullion and the nominal value of our silver coins is about 100 per cent, and this constitutes a great temptation for the stamping of such coins by unscrupulous persons, affording them an opportunity to place in circulation counterfeit silver coins at about 100 per cent. profit as good as those stamped by the mints, and which cannot be distinguished from them, even by experts.

THE WORLD'S COINAGE.

Report of Director of the Mint Preston—An Important Recommendation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The report of R. E. Preston, the director of the mint, shows in elaborate details the operations of the mints and assay offices during the fiscal year 1896, together with statistics of foreign countries, relative to the production, coinage and monetary conditions of each. The total coinage of gold and silver by the various countries of the world was as follows:

Gold, $281,087,438; silver, $121,610,219. Total, $402,697,657. The total metallic stock and uncovered paper in the world was estimated, on January 1, 1896, to be $10,938,800,000.

The director recommends that authority be given the secretary to have experiments made to determine the best means of preventing the counterfeiting of silver coinage. At the prevailing price of silver, the difference between the bullion and the nominal value of our silver coins is about 100 per cent, and this constitutes a great temptation for the stamping of such coins by unscrupulous persons, affording them an opportunity to place in circulation counterfeit silver coins at about 100 per cent. profit as good as those stamped by the mints, and which cannot be distinguished from them, even by experts.

MONEY FOR PENSIONS.

The Appropriation for the Next Fiscal Year Will be Fully $140,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The appropriation for pensions for the next fiscal year will not be less than $140,000,000, and it may exceed that sum. The subcommittee of the house appropriations committee, which is now drafting the measure, find that the most rigid economy will not enable them to reduce the amount necessary for the maintenance of the pension offices beyond the sum of $50,000 in the appropriation for fees for examining surgeons. This saving will result not from reducing the fees, but because a surplus to that amount will remain unexpended from this year's appropriations.

The bill will be reported to the full committee to-day or Monday and will be placed on the house calendar with the executive and legislative bill next week.

IMPORTANT ISSUES INVOLVED

In a Series of Suits Just Begun at Wichita, Kas.

WICHITA, Kas., Dec. 5.—In the district court Thursday, the Anglo-American Land Mortgage and Agency Co., an English corporation, which owns a great deal of Lombard securities, begun suit against the Lombard Investment Co., of Kansas City, for $200,000. The suit is the beginning of numerous suits against eastern stockholders of the latter company, and is attracting much attention because of the important issues involved. Eastern courts have held that the double liability which is imposed by the laws of this state upon corporations and stockholders applies with equal force to corporations and stockholders outside of the state. Both sides to the contest charge fraud.

Assigned.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Dec. 5.—The Rock City Falls Paper Co., doing business at Rock City Falls, this county, has made a general assignment. The company employed about fifty people, all of whom will be thrown out of employment.

Burned Without Insurance.

BANGOR, Me., Dec. 5.—Half a dozen small stores, a flat house and the post office at East Corinth, were burned yesterday. Loss, $10,000; no insurance.

THE WAR IN CUBA.

The Movements of Gen. Weyler Still a Mystery—Many Rumors Regarding Gen. Maceo—Several Minor Engagements Reported in Which the Rebels are Said to Have Been Worst—Decision Against American.

HAVANA, Dec. 4.—The people of Havana are still in the dark so far as the movements of Gen. Weyler are concerned. If the authorities have heard anything definite from him since he went into camp near Los Palacios they are keeping their information to themselves. They state that they are ignorant of his present position, but that they know he is carrying out in detail the plan of campaign prepared before he left Havana.

Rumors regarding Maceo are many but little attention is paid to them. The only definite news from the province of Pinar del Rio is that the commands of Generals Melgizo and Incian have had encounters with the rebels.

The fight in the Gobernadora hills yesterday, mention of which was made in these dispatches last night, was between Gen. Incian's command and a band of rebels. No details of the engagement have been made public and it is not known which side was victorious.

SOLDIERS' HOME OFFICIALS

To Be Presented in Iowa for Violation of a United States Statute in Regard to Pensions and Pensioners.

DES MOINES, Dec. 5.—C. D. Fulton, federal attorney for the southern district of Iowa, announces that he will, next week, swear out warrants for the arrest of the commandant and trustees of the soldiers' home at Marshalltown for violations of federal statutes for the protection of pensioners. They will be charged with the violation of sections 4747 to 4749, Revised Statutes.

Two years ago a law was adopted requiring that all pensioners pay the home their pensions in excess of $4 per month. The inmates took the matter to court, and the Marshall county court held against the rule. The supreme court reversed this, and the rule is now being enforced, the money raised being turned over to the support fund of the institution.

Attorney Fulton has discovered that the rule seems to be in violation of the statutes referred to, which make it a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, to hold or attempt to enforce any lien against a pensioner.

The rule in Iowa prevails in the homes of several other states, and if the court decides against the Iowa institution, it will apply to all alike. The only exception made by the federal statute is in the case of the national soldiers' and sailors' homes, which are allowed to hold in trust for pensioners all their pensions above five dollars per month, to be turned over to them at their discharge, or to their heirs in case of death; no part of it can be confiscated.

RUMORS OF A BATTLE

Between Weyler's Vanguard and Some of Gen. Maceo's Forces.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—A Times special from Tampa, Fla., says: Passengers who arrived from Havana Thursday evening report that a fight has taken place between the vanguard of Weyler's army and some of Maceo's men, a large force on each side being engaged. While no details are known, it was learned that the Spanish army did not come off with flying colors, and it is thought in Havana that Maceo has gained a victory, though to what extent it is impossible to say.

The palace people seemed more than usually vigilant and active Thursday, carrying out the impression gained by outsiders that something had been heard from the front. Over 200 sick and wounded Spanish soldiers were brought into the city hospitals Thursday from near Mariel and San Cristobal.

It is reported in Havana that Weyler has lost two railroad trains from dynamite explosions, losing much needed army supplies for his men that had been sent from Havana. Fifty persons arrested the past week were deported Thursday, their future residence being a mystery, though Africa is supposed to be the point of destination of the ship.

The rumors about regarding an attack on Havana by Gomez seem unfounded. From the best information obtainable, it is scattering guerilla bands who are hovering around Havana suburbs, ten to twenty miles out. These encounters are of daily occurrence almost.

SPANISH COMPLACENCY

That is Positively Amusing in the Face of Well-Known Facts.

HAVANA, Dec. 5.—The "Daily Comercio" has the following outlook for Cuban affairs and the attitude of foreign governments towards the question:

"Spain, during two years, has treated the rebels and their accomplices like gentlemen. We have made sincere protests, full of dignity, to the United States against their jingoism, calumniating Spain and calling us bloody tigers in spite of the noble conduct of the army toward the Cubans. These proceedings and the language of the press are reflections upon the Yankees."

The Comercio protests against the insulting and Spanish attitude of the American press and its favorable attitude toward the insurgents, and says: "Spain has gained no consideration through diplomacy, and must in future depend upon material force to command respect for its rights. Time has shown this and teaches us to sharpen our nails for the fray."

The paper criticizes the inconsistency and vacillating policy of the New York newspapers and of the London Times, and says:

"Americans are totally incapable of good faith, and it is time the Spaniards were convinced that only the army and navy will avail to settle the question. We suggest that a restored Spanish fleet and 300,000 men will be able to go anywhere."

Fears of Famine in Cuba.

MADRID, Dec. 5.—A dispatch from Havana to the Imparcial says that the local newspapers there are urging the necessity for carrying on farming operations in the island, otherwise a disastrous famine is inevitable.

In Aid of Struggling Cuba.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The Daughters of Cuba opened a fair at Tuxedo hall, in this city, yesterday, to raise money for the relief of wounded and sick Cuban soldiers. There was a large attendance, with every promise of getting considerable money for the struggling Cubans.

Burned Without Insurance.

BANGOR, Me., Dec. 5.—Half a dozen small stores, a flat house and the post office at East Corinth, were burned yesterday. Loss, $10,000; no insurance.

SOLDIERS' HOME OFFICIALS

THE CHRONICLE

C. C. DUBOSE, Editor and Proprietor.
COLUMBIANA, DEC. 10, 1896.

It is painful to watch that struggle in Cuba.

MONTEGOMERY was covered with mud and glory on inauguration day.

MR. BRYAN will begin his series of fifty lectures, for which he is to receive $50,000, on January 5, 1897, in Atlanta, Ga.

When people raise a hue and cry about lynching negroes who assault helpless women, we feel like extending the courtesy to the kickers.

The governor has reappointed Jno. H. Caldwell and M. L. Stansel trustees of the University and has appointed Wm. Richardson to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of R. B. Rhett.

TIMBERLAKE will have to take to tall timber when he gets back home, unless he comes down from his present position as head milliner of the state legislature. We are willing to bet a full page display ad against a three line local that Timberlake can't find the pocket in a woman's dress within three weeks from a given time.

It looks like a shame to see a big strapping fellow like Uncle Sam standing around with his hands in his pocket, whistling "The Star Spangled Banner," and bragging about the cute way in which he shook the society of big John Bull, while little Cuba is scrapping for dear life with Spain for the same thing that Uncle Sam got hot and licked Johnnie about. If Uncle Sam had the nerve that we always thought he had, we would hear something drop down about Cuba that would remind us of a soft squash slammed into the side of a barn.

The Chronicle believes in the soundness of democratic principles and policies, but it is not going to swear at the republicans until they break their promises of prosperity. We are going to give them a chance to perform all they have pledged themselves to perform, without frustrating or hindering their efforts by any harsh words of ours. We would not treat a yaller dog that way. We are going to lay right still and let the blamed galoots go ahead, and if they trot out a nice layout of assorted prosperity, as advertised, we won't do a thing but brag about it like the mischief and no questions asked. We believe in giving every party a chance to redeem its obligations in the coin of real performance. We are not going to howl hard times till they get harder than they were when the democratic party quit the nest. If the republicans hatch out a brood of prosperity with longer tails and better fighting qualities than the old democratic hen did, the Chronicle will be the first to call the people's attention to it. But we would be unkind if they try to work off any mellifluous eggs on us, labeled "good times." In that event we will arise in our awful might and make this republic tatter on its throne. We are not hard to please, but we won't stand any foolishness.

UNPARALLELED CALL.

We received one of those circulating "chains" the other day, with the usual request that we handle it carefully and not let it get broken. Also that we enclose a silver ten cent piece, with the names of three of our friends who would just love to give away a dime on any old thing and send it all back to Mr. Brown, of Bradford, Pa., and thereby help along a worthy cause and get our name embalmed in their memory like a happy dream. We don't want our name embalmed. It is not even dead. And even if it were dead, we would much prefer having it embalmed at the bottom of a big insurance policy, so our widow could marry the man she loves. We love our wife so well that we want her to be perfectly happy, even after we are laid away in the silent hereafter.

We wrote Mr. Brown as follows: My Dear Mr. Brown: I am sorry to have to break this chain. I am sorry for anything that gets broke, therefore I am most sorry for myself. But I would like to ask, as a matter of curiosity, why you are so infernally careless with your chains. It strikes me that they should not be sent about over the country, always imminently in danger of getting broken and causing you such enormous losses. You probably know your business, but it seems to me that if you incurred any great loss when one of your circulating chains got busted somewhere by some hard, unfeeling person, you would be more careful of them and keep them at home locked up in a casket with a padlock and a night watchman. I hate to see extravagance in any form, and the spectacle of your valuable chains leading a precarious existence in the mails and in the hands of people who have no respect for chains as a rule, unless they are gold chains with a watch tied to them, is harrowing in the extreme.

I am sorry that I have been referred to you as a man who takes an interest in chains. Your informant was probably the man who came through here several years ago, when I was quite young and irresponsible, and sold me a fountain pen for three dollars. I have led a different life since then. But the fact remains that I have no more respect for your chain than I have for a chained dog.

Sincerely trusting that you and your family are enjoying good health, and that your mother-in-law is not as robust as in former years, I beg to remain, as ever, &c.

THE OLD SONGS.

The songs my father sang were old.
But, O how sweetly tender,
And soft and low and brave and bold
They sound as I remember.

He sang the old and tender songs
Of love and war and story;
The song of him who feels and loves
For grand and martial glory.

And, O, his voice, 'twas sweeter far
Than fabled songs of angels,
Whenever he sang of love and war,
Of bravery and dangers.

'Twas like no sound that ever came
To my enchanted slumbers,
But sweeter far than songs of fame,
Of soft poetic numbers.

Then sing to me the songs of old,
So dear and sweet and tender,
And soft and low and brave and bold,
The old songs I remember.

THE JAYVILLE JOSHER.

A Weekly Paper Published Just for Fun and Other Collateral.

Our esteemed fellow townsman, Johnnie Bloomfield, who used to be editor of the Josher, until we busted up his business by buying him out, is coming to the front as an orator. We are willing to give him credit for that much, although he couldn't get credit for a glass of beer at any saloon in town. He has at times been rather harsh on us, and at one time put out the erroneous assertion that we came into possession of the Josher by unfair and wholly arbitrary means. To use his own words "we tumbled into the Josher office one morning and broke up all the material, and wound up by throwing him out of the window into a barbed wire fence." Now, everybody in town knows that there isn't a barbed wire fence in the county. It is such statements as these that Bloomfield has been making that have kept us all the time at work informing the public of their entire falseness, instead of hitherto devoting our space and matchless genius to the work of supplying the news. But we do not feel badly over this. We never allow ourselves to feel badly. As soon as the feeling begins to come on we go down to the Spotted Alligator saloon, where we have a stand-off, and immediately proceed to quell all tendencies towards going off somewhere and weeping on the vest of a friend. We have been known to become absolutely happy in this way, notwithstanding the mean things Bloomfield said about us. But, as we stated before, we cherish no feelings of revenge regarding Johnnie, and now that he has become an orator that a much bigger town than Jayville might be proud of, we are not going to throw any bad eggs in his way, or in any manner cause him to feel that we are after him. In fact, we are going to do all we can for Johnnie. That is why we started out to write this article. We are going to give his speech in full, that not only those who heard his matchless eloquence may be his admirers, but the whole country, through the agency of the Josher, may acknowledge his forensic supremacy. There was a mass meeting of the citizens on Tuesday night to consider the matter of digging a bored well on the public square. It was at this meeting that Mr. Bloomfield came into prominence as an orator. Mr. Bloomfield spoke as follows, amid deafening applause and cries of "beer-beer!"

"Follow citizens: I want to state in the beginning that I am not a well bred man. Wells were never in my line at all, and I shall kill the man who attempts to saddle one on my premises. I am unalterably opposed to the infamous measure that a favored few are trying to inflict on an innocent and unsuspecting people. I shall strenuously oppose this measure that seeks to undermine the principles handed down to us by our fathers. Whoever says of them—those grand old heroes who now lie beneath the green sward, wrapped in eternal slumber and wooden overalls—that they ever surrendered to the vicious habit of digging artesian wells? I have heard my great uncle, who would now be several hundred years of age, had he not in a moment of mental aberration been induced by a strolling prohibitionist to taste of a gourd of water—I have heard him say many a time that that whiskey was good enough for him. Now, fellow citizens, if whiskey was good enough for my great uncle in those days when they only had the straight whiskey without any frills, why should we who live in an advanced age, and know how to mix a great many new drinks that were then unknown—why should we be hankering after bored wells? I ask you as a man who has a profound and everlasting reverence for the old customs and the old folks, why we should stoop to take a drink of water?"

In conclusion, I will say, with the immortal Patrick Henry, "give me whiskey, or give me beer!" (Wild applause, and Bloomfield taken on men's shoulders and carried about the hall.) Mr. Bloomfield will address the citizens in a few days on the subject of lynching. He will attempt to show up the fallacy of the argument advanced by some of the people that a man can be successfully lynched on a telegraph pole. He holds to the old custom of using a tree in all cases. Bloomfield is a stickler for the old customs. Come out.

The defunct patent medicine advertisements that appear in this week's issue of the Josher are no good. Our subscribers will please refrain from sending these concerns anything in the way of money, as the medicine has all been either sold out or the firms have busted since the cuts were first made. We use them this week to fill in a pious form, which was the result of a little altercation with Bill Corker, the lively stable man, in our office just as we were getting ready to put the forms on the press. Bill came in with a war whoop and a pair of six-shooters and began to pepper up the office in fine style. But his aim was a little off if he was shooting at us, and we had to knock him down stairs with the door mat for fear he would hurt the office cat if he kept on shooting. In the small excitement incident to this little disturbance the office goat butted the local form off the stone and ran his broad intellectual forehead through the exhaustive account of the Smith-Stiggins wedding, and a lot of other local misfortunes that we had set up. If Bill comes back up here any more after he recovers from a broken nose and gets so he can sit down without using a feather bed for a cushion, we hope he will come in a little better practice than he was on this occasion. We don't want to have to bury our cat. Funerals cost too much to be pleasant.

In order to secure a large and constantly increasing subscription list before Christmas we will give away to every cash subscriber for the next three weeks a large crayon portrait of ourself or President McKinley, just as preferred. Some people say that we are better looking than the president, but that is a matter of taste, and you can have our broad, intellectual brow, or McKinley's handsome physiognomy, just as you like. We won't feel badly about it if you order Mack's. Now is the time to subscribe and be happy in the possession of a picture of a great man, along with a newspaper that is read by the nobility as well as the bourgeois.

We have a lot of spring poetry left over which we will sell to make room for the new stock now beginning to come in, at the low price of three cents per pound; reduced rates on carload lots. This poetry is nearly all written on both sides of the sheet, which renders it invaluable to the student who has to do chores. He can carry home a pound of steak wrapped up in this poetry and read as he runs. It is all good. The authors said so themselves.

We are going to leave the Josher in charge of the devil for one week before long, while we take a much needed hunt and fish over on the north side of Horn mountain. Our subscribers will please excuse any errors that may creep into that edition. Our devil slings a rather careless pen, but he says he doesn't believe there is anybody in the county who would wantonly lick a small boy like him for the little that he could say about them in just one issue.

If the world was inhabited by only good men, how many political offices would be vacant?

It used to be the custom to say "God bless you" when a person sneezed. Now the one who sneezes says the other thing.

A man should not kick when told that he is on his last legs.

A bright fire, a good book, and a wife who doesn't love another man, are three things that I would like to have.

A good thing—the young lady Sunday school teacher.

The best man at a wedding is sometimes the worst man everywhere else. "Everything is coming my way," remarked the actor, as he dodged the decayed poultry-ware.

"People are giving me the cold shoulder now," said the lump of ice, as winter set in. "Yes, and they are making it devilish hot for me," replied the lump of coal.

If you love woman too well she gets disgusted; if you love her too little she gets mad. The blessings of a generation of men await the one who shows us the happy medium.

If killing time were a felony rope factories would prosper.

A train of thought is often derailed by an ass on the track.

A stationary engine makes as much noise as a moving locomotive.

A great many people in this country close the door in hot weather and leave it open in winter; and yet we are spending millions of dollars yearly for foreign missions. Twice-told tales are tedious, but they acquire an added gloom, not unmixed with that tired feeling, when told to the bill collector. A messenger boy may be slow, but he stays with the lightning just the same.

Gunns laughs at locksmiths, but the gunsmith is right in it when the old man arrives on the scene.

I look on every man as knowing his business until he interferes with mine. Hunting jail birds is one kind of sport that I never cared for.

We should not be too hard on the bigamist. The poor man has been sat on often enough.

"I will now take a change of air," remarked the bicyclist, as the rider got out the pump and began to work.

A woman said "yes" in a letter and mailed it before she changed her mind.

When introducing a new idea, don't give its full name unless it is patented. If I were a dead man I would regard it as highly insulting for a coroner's jury to sit on me.

THE LADIES

Should see our beautiful DRESS GOODS, magnificently beautiful (the goods and the ladies), ribbons in abundance and pretty--don't mention it--draperies, eiderdown. See our beautiful facinators and feather boas for the girls (pretty things). They should see all goods just mentioned, and a lot of candy, chewing gum and other nick-nacks bought especially for them.

THE MEN

Should inspect our CLOTHING department, Shoes, Hats, the latest and the cheapest, Furnishings, etc., to say nothing of the actual necessities which we have in almost endless variety.

THE BOYS AND GIRLS

The fossil remains of a hog have been recently discovered in the "band lands" by an expedition led by Prof. J. E. Todd, state geologist of South Dakota, and are said to prove that the animal must have been as large as a medium-size elephant.

Inquiries as to the best preventives for hog cholera suggest the publication of the prescription recommended by Dr. Salmon, of the bureau of animal industry. It is: One part wood charcoal, one part sulphur, two parts sodium chloride (salt), two parts sodium bicarbonate (soda), two parts sodium hypophosphite, one part sodium sulphate, one part antimony sulphide. Pulverize and mix thoroughly. Dose, one tablespoonful for each 200 pound weight of hog once a day.

The picturesque gray moss which hangs from the trees of the south in great wisps is now an article of commerce. Within the last ten years it has been used extensively for packing by upholstering establishments. The demand has lately so increased that thousands of poor people in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama make their living picking it off the trees and it forms a very important branch of business in New Orleans. It is most plentiful along the bayous and in the swamps, and the moss pickers with their flat bottomed boats are among the most picturesque sights of the south now.

A lady was telling us the other day in a very aggrieved manner about a little experience she had just had. She said she was walking across the street at a point where the street convicts were at work, one of them threw a big shovel full of mud in a puddle directly in front of her. The mud and water splashed all over her, ruining a nice new cloak and a lot of other clothes the names of which have escaped us.

"Do you know what I would do to that man if I had that gang in charge?" we asked in a stern and angry tone of sympathy.

"No; what would you do?" the lady asked.

"Why, madam, I would discharge him on the spot."

We made our escape.

Condensed Testimony.

Chas. B. Hood, Broker and Manufacturer's Agent, Columbus, Ohio, certifies that Dr. King's New Discovery has no equal as a Cough remedy. J. D. Brown, Prop. St. James Hotel, Ft. Wayne, Ind., testifies that he was cured of a Cough of two years standing, caused by La Grippe, by Dr. King's New Discovery. B. F. Merrill, Baldwinville, Mass., says that he has used and recommended it and never knew it to fail and would rather have it than any doctor, because it always cures. Mrs. Hemming, 222 E. 25th St., Chicago, always keeps it at hand and has no fear of Cough, because it instantly relieves. For Trial Bottles at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

Christmas goods, now opening at J. H. Hammond's Cash Store.

John Davis, of Avondale, is on a visit to friends here this week.

Mrs. Mary Parker spent Sunday and Monday with Montevallo relatives.

F. W. Lull, Esq., of Wetumpka, transacted legal business here yesterday.

Dr. Neill McMillan and Mrs. D. R. McMillan spent Tuesday with Shelby friends.

Miss Leila Parker returned yesterday from a three days' visit to friends in Calera.

Mrs. Kate Hendrix, of Munford, spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives here.

Harvey Nabors and family, of Longview, are on a visit to the family of E. W. Chapman.

Mrs. John Upshaw, of Talladega Springs, was a guest of Mrs. A. D. Wortham Sunday.

Mrs. M. A. Mooney, who has been visiting the family of E. W. Chapman, returned home Saturday.

E. W. Chapman left Monday for his former home, Loflin, Russell county, Ala., to be absent a week.

Mrs. John Edwards and little son Joe, of Childersburg, visited relatives here the first of the week.

Only two more weeks until Christmas. Why don't the merchants advertise their holiday goods?

Dr. F. D. DuRose passed through our city yesterday on his return home from a business visit to Selma.

Miss Mary Wagner left yesterday for Danville, Ala., where she will remain some time with relatives.

Flour in wood and sacks at 25 cents a barrel less than it now costs at J. H. Hammond's Cash Store.

Mrs. Martha Lee, of Pelham, is now a resident of Columbiana, and will live with her daughter, Mrs. A. W. Strickland.

Coffee at 7 pounds to the dollar. Also 5 pounds of Arbuckle's roasted coffee for one dollar at J. H. Hammond's Cash Store.

Frank Nelson, Jr., and little son Thea, accompanied by Miss Lucy Leeper, all of Anniston, came down yesterday to visit relatives here.

W. M. Calahan and wife returned yesterday from Virginia, where they were called by the illness of the former's father, who is still very low.

Mrs. J. W. Johnston returned from New Orleans Tuesday, where she visited her sister and mother. Her mother, Mrs. Armstrong, returned with her.

Mrs. H. Johnston, who has been here two or three weeks, under the treatment of Dr. H. I. Williams, left last week for her home in Abbeville, near Shelby.

Rev. T. K. Roberts left Saturday for Montgomery. He is very much improved in health, and his friends here wish him a speedy and permanent recovery.

A. M. Elliott has completed and moved into his large new livery barn. It is both commodious and conveniently arranged, and its proprietor is now strictly in it for all the business in sight.

J. K. Milner had his smiling countenance on exhibition here yesterday. He says that while he has not been able to do his house any great amount of good lately, he thinks he hasn't done it any harm. Perhaps so.

Captain H. C. Reynolds, president of the Montevallo Industrial school, passed through our city yesterday en route to Washington in the interest of his school. We hope he may be amply provided for by congress.

Messrs. T. L. Seale and James Milner have a drove of horses in town. Monday night one of their best horses fell in a well and was killed. It strikes us they could find less expensive material with which to fill up wells.

The young people of our city are hard at work getting up a dramatic entertainment to be given during the holidays. The proceeds are to be applied toward completing the Baptist church. They should be liberally encouraged.

A Card to the Public.

Having recently resigned the position of marshal of the city of Columbiana, I desire the public to know that on the day I handed in my resignation my books were thoroughly scrutinized and every dollar, yes, even every penny of money which passed through my hands was accounted for. I want this known as a simple matter of justice to myself.

JOHN T. CROWWELL.

BEAVERS-WALLACE.

Married, at the residence of the bride's father, Major W. W. Wallace, three miles north of Wilsonville, on Thursday night, Dec. 3, 1896, at 7:00 o'clock, by Rev. Dr. E. B. Teague, Mr. J. R. Beavers and Miss Sarah V. Wallace.

Mr. Beavers is a prominent young attorney of this place, and his charming wife was one of Wilsonville's fairest belles. The Chronicle joins their many friends in wishing for them a long and happy life.

Last Friday afternoon our town was taken completely by surprise by the announcement of the failure of Johnston & White. They were considered perfectly solvent, and their credit was A. 1. Their liabilities are $12,000 and their assets $20,000 or more. Poor collections was their sole trouble, as clearly appears from the above figures. Realizing fully the situation and being unable to force collections to meet their paper they made a voluntary assignment to L. D. Mason. It is believed by the firm that in a reasonable time their creditors will be paid dollar for dollar. The stock of goods is now being invoiced, and we can soon give the exact figures of assets and liabilities. We regret exceedingly that this firm has gone under, and we trust they may soon make satisfactory arrangements with their creditors and enter again into active business.

As our readers have noticed Mr. Henry Carr Hornady, one of the neatest, cleverest and withal the most original writers in Alabama, is a contributor to The Chronicle. To many of our patrons he needs no introduction as he was a resident of Shelby county several years, but to those unacquainted with him we say you will soon know and like him if you read his rich productions. He is no slouch as a humorist. If you think so read the Jasher from week to week. Of course if your face is a yard long from having soured on the world and the inhabitants thereof, and you are incapable of a smile for fear you might not appear quite as sanctimonious as you would like, in that case his writings might appear too fresh for you. But to the average American (one of whom we are which) who is on the alert for all the fun he can find, Mr. Hornady will prove very entertaining. At any rate try him a whirl and be your own judge.

Yesterday afternoon Contractor Edwards informed us that the water works plant had been completed. In company with him we looked it over carefully and our opinion is that it is an unqualified success. It is the first and only water system we ever saw that was automatic and was supplied solely by gravitation. It is able to take care of itself without any assistance whatever. The water is piped from two springs on the mountain east of town, about a mile and a quarter, which are 116 feet higher than the base of the tower supporting the reservoir. The tower is forty feet high. The pressure is ample to throw a stream of water over any building in the town. The water is clear, pure, freestone, the finest and purest to be had anywhere. We are as proud of this plant as a child is of a new doll and we want to say of our own accord, without a suggestion or intimation from any one, that Mr. Edwards has not only fulfilled his contract to the letter, but he has done more. He has been even generous—a strange freak for a contractor. We congratulate him heartily on his success.

From Lewis and Four Mile.

Geo. W. Riddle has been very sick, but is convalescent.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Riddle attended services at Mt. Olive Saturday and Sunday.

J. S. Jackson's little son, McCoy, is quite sick, but hope he may recover.

Jap Ray, of near Wilsonville, spent Sunday in Lewis with his brother, J. R. Ray.

John Powell was in Vincent two or three days last week buying dry hides.

Died, at his home on Four Mile, December 1st, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Farr.

Miss Lula Milam, of Vincent, spent two weeks with her friend, Miss Jennie Hadaway, on Four Mile, returning home Sunday accompanied by Miss Hadaway.

B. R. Smith, of Weldon, spent a few days with relations in Lewis last week.

Wm S. McEwen spent Friday night with his sister, Mrs. Ida Jackson.

Fayette Ray has been quite sick for several days but is some better now.

John Hartsfield, who has been residing in Bessemer during the past year, has returned to his former home at Four Mile.

Wilsonville Waifs.

J. P. Pope went to Atlanta Monday to buy Christmas goods.

Miss Cora Smith, who has been teaching school at Maplesville, Ala., for some time, paid us a flying visit the latter part of last week and returned to her work Sunday.

Prof. J. B. Kilpatrick is now occupying his new "portable" dwelling. It is a perfect novelty.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Jackson, a 34 pound boy. It ain't got no teeth either, nor can't talk.

W. R. Smith and E. William/son went to Shelby Sunday to have their wool abstracted.

The minstrel troupe resigned their work in favor of the S. P. L. League, and the society is arranging a program for Christmas. The members are anticipating a pleasant and profitable undertaking. The society will meet Friday night, which will be the last meeting, except those who are given parts to practice, until after the entertainment.

The Sunday schools of Wilsonville have decided to have a Christmas "house," which will be different to anything we have ever had here. A short program will be prepared and we hope to have a house full of presents and a jolly up-to-date time.

Rev. Parrish, the new pastor of the M. E. church, arrived about 11:30 a. m., last Sunday, which was too late to fill the appointment that he had made a few days before. He preached an eloquent sermon at night. We trust that he will be pleased with his new field of labor and that much good may be done by his coming.

The S. P. L. League met at Mrs. S. A. Denler's Friday night. The Wilsonville Dispatch (a newspaper) was an entire success in every particular. It seemed to meet the hearty approval of all present.

WINTER.
She comes and finds the world so fair,
From autumn's pure and pleasant air;
She brings the cold unpleasant breeze
To all the lands to all the seas.

And then the winter days doth come,
They hide the brightest days of sun;
For days and nights with clouds o'ercast,
The rain, the snow falls thick and fast.

We have no cheering birds to sing,
The flowers all die from Jack frost's sting,
And nothing can revive these things
But golden days of lovely spring.

They say that money is scarce.

That a good many of our farmers killed hogs last week.

That we have one of the best schools in the county.

That our young people are preparing for a grand entertainment on Wednesday night before Christmas.

That it is very probable that every vacant house in Harpersville will be occupied next year.

That a good many of our people attended meeting at Vincent Sunday.

That Mrs. Strock came over from East Lake last week to assist Prof. Stock in the school and the attendance now is somewhere between eighty and one hundred.

That if our young friend Tandy Key, of Vincent, will agree to treat to a dozen cigars Christmas I won't tell that he is seen down at Harpersville every day or two.

That the funniest thing that happened during the last campaign was the populists trying to fuse with the democrats and the boltercrats trying to fuse with the Mannacrats.

That the Presbyterians are speaking of having preaching at their church next year. They have been without a pastor seven or eight years, and there has not been any services of any kind held during that time.

That the colored Baptists bought two new stoves for their church last week.

That a drove of Tennessee horses paraded our streets several days last week.

That most of our farmers have sold their cotton and will plant a larger crop next year to buy more guano with.

That Dr. Sam Welch, of Alpine, was among his many friends here for a few hours one day last week. He was on his way home from Montgomery where he had been to see gallant Joe Johnston inaugurated governor.

That girls ought to throw their garters in the highways and hedges, for "aligators" are dangerous.

That Governor Oates made a splendid officer, and I believe that Governor Johnston will fill the place equally as well.

That a young lady was heard to ask, one day last week, what kind of coats those were that Messrs. Hubbard and Renfro were wearing. That they were very becoming to them, especially those large "bibbs."

That the Chronicle is always a welcome visitor to our fireside and for fear that these everlasting locals will find their way to the waste basket, I had better close until next week.

Resolutions of Regret on the Death of Brother A. A. Daniel.

WHEREAS, It has pleased God in his tender mercy and loving kindness to remove our beloved brother, A. A. Daniel, from his suffering here and transplant him in his heavenly mansion, therefore, be it RESOLVED 1st, That in the death of our brother, the Sunday school of the Wilsonville Baptist church, has lost one of her brightest and most earnest workers and one who loved God's cause and filled the position of secretary with much credit.

RESOLVED 2nd, That we deeply deplore his death, at an age when his life seemed to be so full of promise; that the church has lost a conscientious member; that we murmur not at the will of our Heavenly Father, but bow in humble submission to His holy will, and live in expectation of meeting him in bright mansions above.

RESOLVED 3rd, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on our Sunday school records and a copy be also sent to the family of the deceased.

This Dec. 6th, 1896.

TIMBER STEALING.

Alabama Mineral Land Company Making it Hot for Depredators.

The Alabama Mineral Land company, which owns much land in this county, is making it quite hot for those who steal timber from its lands. During this week one party was convicted of stealing tan bark from the company's land, and, after spending one night in jail, he paid $49.00 fine and costs therefor; and another was convicted of stealing timber to make charcoal, and he was assessed $37.00, fine and costs, a rather high price for the timber from about two acres.

It is an unusual thing for men to be convicted of timber theft, but the sentiment of the people seems to be changing, and ere long it is to be hoped that convictions for stealing timber will be as certain as for stealing a hog or a horse. People who own timber lands are entitled to the protection of the law as well as other people, and those who have been cutting timber for ties, saw logs or tan bark from other people's lands should realize that they have been stealing, and would do well to learn where the land lines are, and keep on land which they have bought. Ignorance of land lines does not excuse this offense, as some have paid dearly to learn.—Ex.

WINTER.
She comes and finds the world so fair,
From autumn's pure and pleasant air;
She brings the cold unpleasant breeze
To all the lands to all the seas.

And then the winter days doth come,
They hide the brightest days of sun;
For days and nights with clouds o'ercast,
The rain, the snow falls thick and fast.

We have no cheering birds to sing,
The flowers all die from Jack frost's sting,
And nothing can revive these things
But golden days of lovely spring.

Did You Ever

Try Electric Bitters as a remedy for your troubles. If you get a little row and get relief. This medicine has been found to be peculiarly adapted to the relief and cure of all Female Complaints, exerting a wonderful direct influence in giving strength and tone to the organs. If you have Loss of Appetite, Constipation, Headache, Fainting Spells, or are Nervous, Sleepless, Excitable, Melancholy or troubled with Dizzy Spells, Electric Bitters is the medicine you need. Health and Strength are guaranteed by its use. Large bottles only fifty cents at Parker & Armstrong's Drug Store.

NEW FIRM.

NEW PRICES!

Of course a few people know that we have gone into the drug business, but we want everybody to know it, and we also want them to know that

Our Prices Are 20 Per Cent Cheaper

than drugs were ever sold for before in Shelby county. We propose to put our prices down within the reach of all, and we are going to do the drug business if reasonable charges cut any figure.

Lots of New, Fresh Goods.

We have added largely to our stock recently, and it is our intention to keep every article likely to be called for. Our motto is "Live and Let Live." We don't want the earth, nor do we want all the land that "jines oun." All we want is a living profit. A purchase of us will prove our claims.

Hoping to merit your patronage we are Yours to Serve,

J.E. SEALE & CO.

Seeing is Believing. *

NOT MUCH.

YOU see too many circus posters nowadays. And the public sees too many flashy advertisements. Nay, seeing is not believing. Goods are not sacrificed at half of manufacturing cost. No honest, reputable merchant can exist with such false business methods. A plated wedding ring may be sold cheaper than one of solid gold, but where is its value after the flimsy outer plating wears away. What sane man would buy such a one, and what thinking man will buy trashy, plated, shoddy goods.

We won't sell you cotton for wool nor jute for flax. The meaner sorts of merchandise we have no time to bother with; neither have you, if we judge you aright.

Clean, Honest, Reliable Goods at Lowest Prices!

is what intelligent buyers are looking for. We keep none other, and wish you to inspect our stock by the clear light of day. By this truth-telling light you can make your selections with the utmost satisfaction.

When you are ready come in and investigate our goods, view them in every light, make your own comparisons as to prices and qualities, and we will cheerfully accord you every facility.

We have anticipated your every want in our several departments. Your needs can be supplied in our store at our usual prices, which are always right. All we want or ask is that you look over our stock and get our prices before you purchase anywhere.

Yours for Business,

RE-PUBLICATION
OF
Pickett's History of Alabama.
So many inquiries have been made for information of where copies of this work, by the late Col. Albert A. Pickett, could be had, and so many applications received for the purchase of the few remaining copies in the possession of the members of the family, both from this and other states, and the work has attracted such general interest, alike from the character and accuracy of its contents, that it has been determined to republish a limited edition of this valuable work, in improved form and perfect illustrations, and to offer it for sale at such a reasonable price that those desiring copies may, by becoming subscribers, procure them.
To the inhabitants of this State, Georgia, Mississippi and Florida, there is no work that can supply the place of Pickett's History of Alabama. The early history of the Southwest must ever remain a source of attractive and profitable study and entertainment to every scholar and public man.
A devotion of a lifetime of study and investigation, by the eminent author of this work, which the events were fresh in his practical scrutiny, has been rewarded by the ascertainment of the exact truth, and upon this history a value not always distinctive of such record.
This work is being printed by an Alabama establishment, and it is to be hoped that the limited edition of 3,000 copies will be all sold in this State. Every patriotic citizen should possess a copy, in order that the history of our State should be made familiar to all of its people.
The book will contain about 675 pages, in one volume, fully illustrated. Price $3.00 per copy; and may be secured for delivery about September 20.

Get Hood's Sarsaparilla

The Best—In fact the One True Blood Purifier. Hood's Pills are prompt, efficient and easy to take. 25 cents.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven, however, that it is a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hood's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with any families, and everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the only remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are not then needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

THE OLD SPRING.

Puts the Sage of Rocky Creek "In Mind" of Sundry Things.

Taking a "Tremendous Big Dost" of Fatherly "Chastisement"—The Old-Time Sweetheart—Fell Out and "Fit in a Dream."

Do you know, sometimes I think that I would love to be a boy once more——just to spit on the old slate and spill out and start over and be a thoroughbred American boy—free from crosses and care and innocent of ambition's vaulting lust, the greed for gain and gold and place and power—knowing nothing of the tumult and the strife, the toil and trials and struggles that come to all of us with man's estate. I do believe I would be happy to-night if I could but only turn round and go back once more to walk, with bounding step and bare feet and breeches rolled up, the windmill path that led us down under the hill where the old spring bubbled up and the wild flowers lifted their gay and bannered bosoms to the sun.

It Puts Him "In Mind."

Every time I return back to the old Panther Creek settlement—to the old home place where I was borned and bred and bring up—somehow my wanderer feet will tote me off down there to the old spring under the hill. A tremendous big change has come over the general appearance of everything around there—everything excepting the old spring. It is the same thing—then and now—henceforth and forever.

And it is plum marvelous, friends and fellow citizens, but there is nothing else in the round created world that puts me in mind of the dim and distant and dreamy past like the old spring down under the hill.

It puts me in mind of one time when me and Joe Nick Stringer had to stand up and take a large dose of fatherly chastisement. A gang of us boys had went possum hunting the night before and broke into old man Tom Jernigan's sugar cane patch. Sugar cane at home—plenty and to spare, you understand—but not much to do but we must break in way long in the dead hours of night and take something that didn't belong to us. Human nature was human then—like it always was to be and like it is still yet—and somehow old man Tom's sugar cane was a whole lot more softer and sweeter than any we could find at home. So, consequently, we went in and broke out with fifteen or twenty stalks, and then climbed up around the juice thereof and toted it off.

The next day Joe Nick he had come over to our house and me and him had slipped off down there to the spring to hold a private confabulation. But bless gracious the next news we got here come the paternal ancestor of your humble fellow servant and busted up the meetin'. He had heard the news in regards to the sugar cane crop, and he maintained that stealin' was stealin'. We found out that that it was all vanity and vexation of spirit to argify the case. Our time had come. We had to shed our coats and take the medicine, which it was particular hot stuff and a whole passel of it. It was then three or four days before I could tell for certain where it hurt me the worst, and Joe Nick he was troubled with the same complaint. Anyhow, I never go down to that old spring but what it puts me in mind of the time when me and Joe Nick Stringer had to balance accounts on the sugar cane crop.

That Old Sweetheart.

The old spring down under the hill—it likewise puts me in mind of the first sweetheart I ever had in this vain and fleetin' world below—which you recollect I have always held to it that the old-time sweethearts are the sweetest. And even unto this blessed day I can look down into them bubblin' waters and see the new sun bonnet, with pink llin and blue trimmin'—and the plain checkered dress, and the same similar face which I saw at the old spring down under the hill that day, when I kissed her for the first time, and hand in hand together we passed a joint resolution and loved to mix clothes for better or for worse, so long as we sought live. Years and years ago the wedding come to pass in pursuance of adjournment, but every time I see the old spring down under the hill it puts me in mind of heart leaves and honeysuckles, and the most loveliest, sweetest girl that ever run a reel or jumped a jig on the broad bosom of God's green earth.

A Little "Teckinallity."

The old spring down under the hill always puts me in mind of something tremendous funny which come to pass way back in my young and gallin' days, but in another settlement. It was way over there in the hill country, but at any rate the scandalization which followed was the old spring on the Hasseltine place.

It would seem like Wash Trammel and Miss Louisiana Hasseltine (flat-footed Lou, as us boys were wont to call her) had been playin' sweethearts, and courtin' and carryin' on to beat six bits. But all of a sudden like Wash he laid down his arms, as it were, and quit the fight. What next? Well, Miss Louisiana she went to court and put in heavy claims for damages, and took out papers of compellment to make Wash come to law. Then Wash he didn't do a blame thing but fight the case. Right now I can't remember all the wherefores and whenceness, but I recollect the same as if it was yesterday how Handy Stribblin' held his hand in a scrap with the judge and one of the lawyers.

It seems like Handy was on the witness stand and he wanted the lawyer to explain his questions. But the lawyer he wouldn't explain any to speak of.

"If the court please," he would say, "this is only a little legal technicality and the witness has nothing to do with it."

Now presently Handy give it in that he had saw Wash and Miss Louisiana down at the spring late one evening "lallagaggin' and carryin' on scandalous."

"What do you mean by lallagaggin' and carryin' on?" says the lawyer.

"Now judge," says Handy, "that is one of them little technicalities amongst us country folks and the lawyer ain't got a dadblamed thing to do with it."

The crowd broke loose right there in the courthouse and laughed all over itself. The judge held that Handy was right about it, and so far as I know that little country "teckinallity" never has been explained.

They "Fit in a Dream."

One Sunday mornin' some two or three weeks ago old man Turner Simpkins and his wife showed over at Dark Log church—which their names, you understand, are written there—lookin' like they mought of rode a thrashin' machine through a cyclone.

The old man he had one arm in a sling and his face was scarred and scratched from Dan unto Habbersham, as it were, whilst one section of his whiskers had come up missin'. The old lady she was black and blue in spots as big as bed quilts so far as you could see, and she had all the general appearances of a female woman which had whipped her weight in wildcats.

To be certainly of course everybody wanted to know when and where the war had busted loose and what it was all about. The old lady didn't do any talkin' to speak of with her mouth, but the old man put in to explain the wherefores and the whences thereof, which you must remember explanations don't sometimes always explain.

"Me and Puss we had the gosh-byeest most a'traight dream the other night you ever heard tell of perhaps," says he. "I dreamt that I had went to the county fair and got into a scandalous bad fight with one of the Rankins boys 'n regards to a horse race, whilst Puss dreamt that she had met up with a felonious big wildcat down about the spring. So there we was in our dream—me a fightin' Puss for Newt Rankins and her a fightin' me for a wildcat. And there we had it—up and down and over and under—till presently the dogs they got to barkin' loud and furious and we woke up. When finally at last we did git woke and come to our senses there was Puss and there was me fightin' and scratchin' like 14 cats in one meal barrel. But we had jest simply got mixed up and fell out and fit in a dream."

News from the Settlement.

Old Misses Pepperfield has now fell out with the preacher and took her name off of the church books.

"The preacher preaches too many doctinal sermons, Rufus," says the old lady to me one day last week; "he preaches too everlastin' many doctinal sermons."

One of our old family niggers—John Sanders, colored person, married number, African gender—talked to me one way and voted the other in regards to congressmen. He was hangin' around the front door last night tryin' his level blametest to let a plug of my store-bought tobacco take up with him. When I hemmed him up in a corner on his vote he owned the corn. "Course I didn't raley vote for your man, Marse Rufus, but I knowed it would come out and count one for him anyhow in the general figgeration."

He got the plug of tobacco.

RUFUS SANDERS.

FAMOUS NATURAL CURIOSITY.

Vermont Has a Well Where Ice Forms at All Seasons.

One of the most famous natural curiosities in the United States—the wonderful "frozen well" at Brandon, Vt.—is the work of man played upon by a freak of nature. The well was dug in the year 1858 and has been a noted wonder since the first 15 feet of the excavation was made. It was started in gravel, which extended to a depth of ten feet, where a four-foot bed of sticky, yellow clay was encountered. After this clay stratum had been pierced and the total depth of the well was pronounced to be 14 feet a deposit of solidly frozen gravel was struck. Work which was done on the well during the next three or four weeks revealed the fact that this glacial deposit was exactly 15½ feet in thickness.

After the excavation had been extended through the frozen gravel a layer of sand (unfrozen) was revealed, and it was in this that water was found. A basin was then dug out (which gave the well a total depth of 25½ feet) and the hole was walled up. Since that time the water in this peculiar well has never been more nor less than two feet in depth, and this is always frozen over with a sheet of ice of greater or less thickness. During the summer of 1895 the temperature at the bottom of "Brandon's frozen well" was phenomenally low—so low in fact, that ice at one time formed to the depth of 22 inches on the two-foot sheet of water. At all times of the year there is ice from four to eight inches thick on the walls of the well, where they come in contact with the frozen stratum.—St. Louis Republic.

Unexpected Greeting.

The gentle Elsie sat drowsily in the gloaming in the front room. She was very miserable, for on the previous night she had words with her own, and now she fears her haughty Harold will not call.

She hears a step, a ring, a voice she knows, and some one speaking to the servants in the hall.

She will not wait until a light is brought, but gently calls "come in!"

The visitor enters, and, with a sigh of awful volume, the fair Elsie casts herself into his arms, and softly murmurs:

"Oh, my darling, I am so glad you have come! I have so wanted to make it up and settle."

And he of the embrace remarked:

"Well, miss, it's very nice of you, and I'm very glad, too, that you're going to settle up at last."

It was the gas collector.—Spare Moments.

Seemed Reasonable to Him.

"I am just tired to death," began Mrs. Whimper.

"I am not surprised at all," said her husband.

"Why should you be?" asked the lady, tartly.

"As I said before, I ain't. Some people might be surprised at your continuing to talk after you are dead, but I am not."—Indianapolis Journal.

How a Lobster Uses His Legs.

The lobster's legs, all told, are ten in number, but only eight of these are largely used for walking. The front pair, or big claws, have been specialized, as in the crab and most other of the higher crustaceans, into prehensile organs for catching and crushing the prey. Their use is obvious.—Chicago Tribune.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC GOVERNOR.

He Evidently Believes in the Natural Advantages of His Own State.

"Nowhere in all the republic can more prolific response be had from the soil to the intelligent cultivation of man. Nowhere can purer water, a more genial climate, or summer skies be found to bless contented homes."

These words were spoken of Alabama by her enthusiastic governor, Joseph E. Johnston, in his recent inaugural address, and one not living there, is tempted to believe it all when that one follows Gov. Johnston as he enumerates the resources and capabilities of his state:

"With an area of but little more than 50,000 square miles," says Mr. Johnston, "there is no territory of like size in the known world so prolific in the variety of its resources; were a wall erected around our state, cutting off all access, we could produce within our borders everything necessary for the comfort or convenience of man. Great veins of iron ore and seams of coal put at our command almost boundless resources in fuel, iron and steel. Splendid forests of yellow pine here stand ready to build homes for millions of people. Building stone and marble, fire clay, kaolin and lime exist in great abundance; walnut, maple, oak, cherry, ash and other hard woods, await the hand of man for manufacture or the adornment of his homes."

"In the production of pig iron we take rank as the fourth state in the union; in iron ore, third; in coal we stand fifth; in the production of cotton, fourth, and in its manufacture, fourth."

"In lumber we are near the head of the list."

"It would be unjust should I fail to include in our minerals copper, lead, graphite, marl and gold; indeed the only mineral that we seem to be without and to want most is silver."

"Leaving forest and mine and coming to our fields we find that they produce generously cotton, corn, wheat, rye, oats, tobacco, rice and the grasses, and here is the home of the pear, the peach, the grape and all small fruits. Vegetables are grown with great success, and this industry is steadily developing."

Our splendid rivers, the Alabama, Coosa, Tallapoosa, Warrior, Cahaba, Highbee and the Tennessee are the liquid arteries of the commonwealth, fed by innumerable creeks, all fruitful in power to convert our raw products into articles of merchandise.

"Over 3,000 miles of railroads traverse our state from north to south, and east to west, furnishing quick transportation to market for our products."

"When we come to our climate we find that the Giver of all good things has not stayed His hand, and that He has blessed us with opportunity to labor 12 months in the year without detriment to health or comfort. Indeed, we can scarcely appreciate the blessings we enjoy in this respect when compared with less favored regions, for even now we are seemingly unconscious that roses are blooming in our gardens, and the fragrant air is sweet with their perfume."

"The Piedmont region of our state shows that its average thermometer in summer and winter corresponds almost exactly with that of Berlin and Hamburg, whilst Mobile and the lower part of the state correspond largely with the climate of Frankfort-on-the-Main, and Karlsruhe. The average temperature for the whole state shows about 40 degrees Fahrenheit for January, 75 for July and 60 degrees for April and October."

"Our streams abound in fish, our woods are fragrant with flowers, and our beautiful seaport supplies an abundance of fish and oysters for all our people. Nowhere in all the republic can more prolific response be had from the soil to the intelligent cultivation of man. Nowhere can purer water, a more genial climate or sunnier skies be found to bless contented homes."

"These are our opportunities, these the substantial groundwork upon which a great commonwealth can be erected."

Of course all of this was not said without a direct object, and continuing he pointed the way in which his dream of a great commonwealth could be realized. This for citizens of the state, both actual and prospective. We wonder if the same, or similar, wise things might not be said of many another state, highly favored by natural resources and dormant wealth, of our great union.

"This is the age of industrial development, and to that task the legislator and citizen should bend their energies and weary not in well doing. When we consider that we are now cultivating and utilizing less than one-third of these resources, and that the other two-thirds produce taxes only, it behooves us to invite to our borders and give generous welcome to men and money to aid in awakening these dormant resources."

"Our pig iron should be melted and our cotton spun and woven at home, thus giving greater employment to labor and establishing home markets for our agricultural products."

"The smoke of our factories should be found rising in every county, and the furnaces like pillars of fire, should light the night."

"The production of grasses and the raising of cattle should be stimulated until we become one of the great beef raising states of the union."

"There seems to be no good reason why our productive lands should not become a great center for the manufacture of beet sugar, and by its exportation to sister states and further store to an increasing income; canning establishments should utilize fruits and vegetables that now too often rot on our farms."

"Behind these splendid resources we have a patriotic and hospitable people, equal laws and an incorruptible judiciary securing to those who may come amongst us generous welcome and ample protection to life, liberty and property."

Why He Lost.

"Speaking of getting lost in the streets," said a man with the double chin, "I had an experience of that kind, and it defeated me in a political race."

"The opposition said you were drunk?"

"No. I was only two years old when it happened."

"Will you please explain?"

"I will. I was two years old; I got lost; a policeman took me to the station. Thirty years afterward the story was brought out that I had once been arrested as a vagrant right in my own town."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

NEWS OF THE WHEEL.

In Spain bull fighting on bicycles is becoming popular. Not long ago Carlos Rodriguez, a famous cyclist, and Senor Badilla, a famous pleanor, mounted on bicycles, tackled a bull in the arena in Madrid. The bull won—in a canter.

It is said that one well-known English wheeler has earned $10,000 in prizes alone during the past seven months apart from the heavy retainer which he receives from the tire and bicycle manufacturers whose properties he uses.

It is claimed for the Boston Bicycle club that it is the oldest in the country. It was founded February 11, 1878, and is still in vigorous existence, with a membership of about 100 riders, despite its rule that none but riders of at least ten years' standing are eligible for election.

In order to give the 1897 models a thorough road test, one company has had 15 bicycles of next year's pattern on the road daily since August 3. They have been ridden each day, and the company reports that it is fully satisfied with the tests. During that time wherever minor defects were discovered they were corrected in a second lot of 15 bicycles, which were subjected to the same kind of testing.

Eternal Vigilance.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty." It is the price of everything worth having.

It is the price of life itself. A man needn't be always looking for danger, afraid that something will happen to him; but a wise man will form a habit of care about the important things of life.

It isn't half so much trouble to take care of yourself as it is not to. A man who follows regular, healthy habits, feels good all the time. Life is worth living to him. But a man who "don't want to bother" with taking care of himself has more pain and misery crowded into one day than a good healthy, hearty man who lives right would ever know of in a whole year.

When a man's stomach is out of order, and his digestion don't work; when his liver gets to be sluggish and won't clear the bile out of his blood, it is time for him to look out for himself. He gets no nourishment out of his food. His blood gets thicker and thicker with impurities. His nerves get irritated. He loses energy and fighting force.

He may say, "I can stand it. I will feel better to-morrow," but the chances are he will feel worse to-morrow and worse still next day. He ought to put himself right at once. He needs Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is made for just this condition. It rouses up the digestive and nutritive organs, and gives them power to extract from the food all the nutritious elements and transform them into rich, nourishing blood. It enables the liver to cleanse out all bilious impurities and put into the circulation an abundance of highly vitalized blood, full of life-giving red corpuscles which build up healthy flesh, muscular strength, and nerve-energy. It does not make flabby flesh. It is the only suitable tonic and strength-builder for corpulent people.

COLUMBIANA, DEC. 17, 1896.

The poetising of springtime and the joys that then are ours.

THE CHRONICLE will wish its readers a merry Christmas and a happy New Year next week.

You have eight days now in which to think up something pleasant to do for somebody Christmas.

WHEN you are making up a list of Christmas presents try to crowd something substantial and unusual in it for somebody who is too poor to buy it for themselves.

LET the yule log shine on bright faces. Something done for the poor will make your old bald head glow cheerfully, and your heart will expand like an inflated cracker bag.

A PLANTER in Lowndes had a tenant on his place who made forty bales of cotton with two mules. That is pretty good cropping. Another man out in west Dallas made sixteen bales with a $30 mustang pony.

The growth of this country's products in iron during the last decade has been enormous, Tennessee and Alabama leading in the South. In 1895 the production was over 9,000,000 tons and of those the South produced over 500,000.

A GOOD deed is always a source of pleasure to the doer, but Christmas is a mighty auspicious time for that sort of thing. Try to make some poor child happy on that day. Jesus loved the "little children" and we are Christians. Shall we forget that?

JOHN SHERMAN has served thirty-two years in the senate, longer than any other senator. Thomas H. Benton, of Missouri, and William R. King, of Alabama, were each members of the upper house thirty years. Justin S. Merrill, of Vermont, has been there three decades, too, and has just been re-elected for six more years. Mr. Sherman has two more years to serve.

ALABAMA should not be behind in the matter of a constitutional convention. With the progress and changed conditions of a state it is necessary to adapt our laws and customs to the new conditions. Alabama is fast emerging from any second place, and is forging to the front as a state of progress and push. She needs a new constitution, and the sooner she gets it the better it will be for her varied interests.

A NEGRO, claiming to be from Washington, D. C., and an agent of the pension bureau, is producing a stir among the negroes of Clarke county, Mississippi. He claims that all the negroes born in slavery are entitled to pensions, and that by paying him a small fee he will collect for them. The poor, ignorant negroes are being defrauded, yet they won't allow their deceiver to be arrested. He is holding meetings every night and all that can possibly raise the fee are having their names enrolled on his pension list.

THE DAILY LEDGER of Birmingham is on our table, and it is a genuine pleasure to peruse its pages. By the adoption of the type-setting machines by the daily papers of Birmingham a number of old printers and good newspaper men were thrown out of employment, and having families there to take care of, they joined forces and started the Ledger. It is a clean paper all through, and its matter is dished up to the public in a crisp, breezy style that is refreshing. Its editorials teem with good things. The Ledger deserves the support of the people and will undoubtedly receive it. Although only a few weeks old it has taken a lasting place in the Birmingham newspaper field, and it is still growing. We wish the Ledger all sorts of success.

WE have all read that beautiful poem of Byron's that tells of the rude awakening from the delights of the dance to the hard fact of sudden warfare. We are reminded of this poem when we read of the brilliant social functions that marked Weyler's return to Havana from the front. According to the dispatches he was accorded a grand ovation on his entrance into the city. People cheered and Weyler made a speech from the front steps of the palace. After that there was a reception at the palace. No doubt the Spanish sympathizers are having royal old sport in Havana, but one of these nights when the fiddler is yelling: "On with the dance; let joy be unconfined," there is going to come to the ears of the revelers a sudden sound as of distant thunder, growing deeper and stronger, and the men whose gallant leader went down before the leaden hail of Spanish oppression will be upon them with all the fury of righteous revenge. There will be hurrying and scurrying, hasty farewells, and a vision of legs disappearing over the back fence. There will be the sound of booming cannon to take the place of the palace string band; there will be the sound of musketry to succeed the rhythm of waltzing feet; there will be cries of anguish where a little while before were smiles of joy. Cubans, remember that stricken form of your brave Maceo. Remember how he fell—fighting with you and for you. He is dead. Gather in the shattered tents and join the march. You are going to Havana. Weyler is there. "Cuba, libre."

THE CHAIR IS HIS'N.

Now that Governor Johnston has been inducted into office, and his long-cherished ambition has been satiated, a brief history of his manly struggle to that end will not be amiss.

Joe Johnston has yearned for the governor's chair for a long time. He frequented all the furniture stores in the state so persistently that the proprietors have more than once put detectives to watching him, thinking that he was a bold, bad burglar or a newly married man on the lookout for a nice little trundle bed or a baby carriage. They both act in the same suspicious manner, and we cannot blame the furniture dealers. But our Joe was not contemplating breaking in and running away with a suit of walnut furniture; neither was he standing around whistling up the necessary courage to go boldly in and ask to see the trundle bed or baby buggy. His whole mind and heart was set on finding a governor's chair. At many places he made inquiries with the utmost recklessness right in the teeth of the dealers as to whether they could accommodate him with that chair. Some of them told him scornfully that they were not dealing in second-hand, cast-off furniture, and asked him to go away. Some men would have been discouraged at these set-backs. But Joe Johnston never felt that way. He had his heart set on that chair, and he resolved that he would set other sections of his anatomy on it if it took all summer. He went about his task with a determination that was rock-ribbed and imperturbable. His ambition vaulted like a young steer. He was not the man to "flee away ambition" simply because by it the angels fell. He did not care particularly about the example of the angels. He wanted that chair, and he wanted it bad.

He was getting tired, O so tired, of roaming about the world with no governor's chair on which to sit and beat rest. His whole being seemed to yearn and stretch and reach out after it; for he had for long and dreary years been obliged to content himself with ordinary swag-back, merry-go-round bank chairs with cushions only two inches thick, and it was hard upon his gentle nature. There was always before him the vision of the governor's chair, and it never left him, even when excursion trains were run at reduced rates. That vision was as faithful as a dog. It stayed with him when all else seemed to have forsaken him. It constituted his sole delight, and he was never known to travel without it. It was as necessary to his happiness as a full house is to a man when his opponent has three of a kind.

That vision has become a stern reality—the chair is his'n.

THE JAYVILLE JOSHER.

A Weekly Paper, Published Just for Fun and Other Collateral.

There is going to be the smoothest little orator in the world right here in Jayville pretty soon. Bloomfield is going to be he. The sensation he created on the bored well question had hardly died out before he came into prominence in this town again. Bloomfield is getting to be one of the swiftest off-hand public speakers on the stump today. The people used to tell him when he was in the newspaper business that he was on the fence. He wishes us to state to the public now that he has crawled down from the fence and is now adorning the stump. Last night his matchless forensic powers were again called into movement, and he startled the citizens considerably. The event was the grand opening of the new Jayville hotel. Bloomfield was on hand early and left next day. After he had imbibed champagne and raw oysters for about three hours the crowd called on him for speech. He arose slowly and addressed the assemblage as follows:

Ladies and gentlemen: On occasions of this variety a man ought to be excused from making a speech, because he cannot be expected to do as well as he could if he had not entwined himself about the affections of three or four kegs of champagne and did not feel real live, frisky little oysters wandering lonesomely around in the different avenues of his system. He should be excused when it can be seen with the nude eye that he is very busily occupied looking after a cute little menagerie in full sway all right in his own person. But I never was a man to kick on the demands of the public. I think my record as a newspaper man will show that I was always ready to respond to the call of duty to the party.

I have attended many social functions in bigger and sweller towns than Jayville. I have sat at feasts on the right hand of many eminent men at different times. I have conversed freely at such times with circuit judges. I have listened to the sparkling wit of deputy sheriffs, jailers and constables who had risen high in their chosen profession. At bounteous boards where effervescent beverages foamed amid brilliant men and women I have often had the pleasure of gracefully tendering my napkin to famous poets and authors who had absent-blowed their nose on their own. In the drawing rooms of great houses whose hospitality I have enjoyed, I have often borrowed a chew of tobacco of the host, and spit on the great brass fire dogs with perfect freedom and abandon, while the band behind the bushes played delicious music and all my soul was lifted within me. I have basked in the smiles of the great ladies of the land—daughters and wives of wholesale grocers and commission merchants, head hoppers in great breweries, assistant train masters of railroads forty miles long, and others of equal eminence in the social swim. I have stood by silver fountains as the band played on and listened to the soft swish-splash of the sparkling water, while the moon shone clear and high and the voice of love came low and sweet to my ear. I have wandered through aviaries where the birds sang the plaintive songs of their native wood, and through conservatories filled with the rarest flowers. All this I have done, as the band still played on and on. That was probably the only tune the band knew at the time.

But I will take this occasion to state that never before have I drank as good booze and wobbled around under a greater pressure of joy than on the present occasion. Never in my eventful and chequered career have I sat down to a board at whose bounty lushed more eminent men, grander citizens or lovelier women than right here on this board. Never have I been accorded a more magnificent hospitality. Our host is a prince; and I don't mind letting him know now that I have entirely forgotten that little controversy we had last week with a couple of guns. Instead of one or the other of our noble forms being laid in the silent tomb, we have decided to simply bury the hatchet, with appropriate ceremonies, and let ourselves remain. I am glad tonight that I remained. I would have missed the most pleasant event of my life had the load of slugs that bulged out the barrel of my friend's gun penetrated my system at that time. I feel a great gratitude rising in my breast when I reflect that the half bushel of pot metal and soft solder that hung over the precipice of my own weapon at that time, from some unknown cause went wide of its mark and did no more serious harm than breaking two or three legs of an orphan boy who was passing. For the inaccuracy of our respective aim and the plenteousness of tonight's delights he has my sincere and unmitigated gratitude. This was considered a masterly effort on the part of Bloomfield, and he is now being mentioned for a position as justice of the peace in beat three.

There is a pretty mess down at Sam Gilmore's as we go to press. We dropped in there a few minutes ago and found Sam lying in one corner of the room too drunk to be interviewed. The kitchen stove was piled up where Sam had playfully kicked it over; the three chairs were tangled up in a lot of bedclothes on the floor, with the pet goat on top of them with one horn broken off and his front teeth falling out. Tin plates, coffee pots and sardine cans were sprinkled about over the place quite recklessly, and the cat was perched up on a rafters with her back up about something. Sam's wife was not there; neither were the children. We noticed some back hair and a set of false teeth clinging to an overturned and broken molasses jug, and judge that the poor woman left in rather a hurry without waiting to pack the band box. We suppose she has gone to maw. Gilmore ought to be ashamed of himself. No self-respecting man would act like that.

Felix Carter's joke of young steers ran away last Saturday and smashed the wagon up unmercifully. The load of cross-ties were distributed impartially along the street. That part of the population who did not witness the runaway came out later and thought that a new railroad was about to be built right through town. That old antiquated, broken down fossil, Josh Pegram, had a petition up before the mayor in less than an hour, praying that further work of building the road be stopped till he could find out whether or not it would increase the value of his little 3x2 lot over the creek, on which his wife has been paying the taxes for three years by taking in washing. Carter's steers when last seen were still clearing off a right-of-way and headed straight for the frozen north.

A strolling phonograph came to town Saturday. Old lady Simmons, the noted revival shouter and man tamer, walked up in front of it and began to talk. The phonograph gave a gasp and fell all to pieces in less than a minute.

I DREAMED OF YOU LAST NIGHT.
I dreamed of you last night;
I dreamed that you came to me
With the smile that I love to see,
And your eyes so dark and bright.
'Twas a wonderful dream, that dream,
And its memory haunts me still,
And I feel the same sweet thrill,
And the same eyes fondly gleam.
I thought that I lightly slept
On the shore of a placid stream,
And I dreamed that I had a dream
Of a face that o'er me wept.
I thought I awoke in pain,
And found on my cheek a tear;
'Twas an angel dropped it there—
Would the angel come again?
I sat in the dusk and gloom,
And dared not sleep again,
Lest the sweet face full of pain
Return when I could not see.
I dreamed that I waited there,
And my heart beat high and fast,
But the face came not, alas!
The face that was sad and fair.
But I sat there till the sky
Was ablaze with a million stars,
And then I saw Aurora's cars
Laden with morn came by.
A soft hand touched my brow,
And I heard a sweet voice say:
'My dear, get up and sleep all day;
Your breakfast is waiting now.'

RICHES IN AN ENGINE.
An Inventor Perfects a Machine That Obviates the Crank Motion.
Hundreds of men have made steam and steam engineering a life study, but it has remained for a Sleepy Eye man to put into a practical working machine an idea that, although old, is yet so new that none of the thousands who have experimented with it have been able to work it.
Grant Bramble has recently received letters patent on a rotary engine which does away entirely with the crank motion of the steam engine. In the ordinary type of cylinder engines the steam enters at the end of the cylinder is cut off and used as expansion from the cut-off to the end of the stroke.
The Bramble rotary engine does away with the crank motion and uses its own plunger for a cut-off. The engine is steam tight and requires no packing. It can be either simple or compound. It weighs less and oc-

Hope Hood's Sarsaparilla

With careful rotation of crops and liberal fertilizations, cotton lands will improve. The application of a proper fertilizer containing sufficient Potash often makes the difference between a profitable crop and failure. Use fertilizers containing not less than 3 to 4% Actual Potash.

OPHIUM HABIT DRUNKENNESS AND ALL ITS EVILS CURED. DR. J. L. STEPHENS, LEANON, OHIO.

YUGATAN, KING OF GUMS.

The Same Old Sarsaparilla.

That's Ayer's. The same old sarsaparilla as it was made and sold 50 years ago. In the laboratory it is different. There modern appliances lend speed to skill and experience. But the sarsaparilla is the same old sarsaparilla that made the record—50 years of cures. Why don't we better it? Well, much in the condition of the Bishop and the raspberry. "Doubtless," he said, "God might have made a better berry. But doubtless, also, He never did." Why don't we better the sarsaparilla? We can't. We are using the same old plant that cured the Indians and the Spaniards. It has not been bettered. And once we make sarsaparilla compound out of sarsaparilla plant we see no way of improvement. Of course, if we were making some secret chemical compound, we might. But we're not. We're making the same old sarsaparilla to cure the same old diseases. You can tell it's the same old sarsaparilla because it works the same old cures. It's the sovereign blood purifier, and—it's Ayer's.

Thousands of women are nervous, tired, have headache, sick stomach, fainting spells, dizziness, scanty or profuse menses, weak back, constipation, their sides, shoulders and limbs ache constantly—in fact, they suffer from general debility of the whole system. The superior tonic qualities of McFEE'S WINE OF CARDUI make it the leading remedy for this class of troubles.

L. D. Pangburn, New Virginia, Iowa, says: "My wife has suffered for years from general weakness, pain in top of head, back and neck—at times could not do her work. One bottle of McFEE'S WINE OF CARDUI has given her instant relief. The effect is wonderful."

THE TARIFF QUESTION.

I desire to recur to the statements elsewhere made concerning the government's receipts from the tariff. The tariff is the main source of revenue to the government, and upon some suggestions touching our present tariff law and its operation.

It is a matter of supreme importance. Considered as to its sufficiency in this aspect, the tariff is the main source of revenue to the government, and upon some suggestions touching our present tariff law and its operation.

Need Not Excite or Disturb Us. In the meantime no deficit has occurred or may occur need excite or disturb us.

Weakness and Vices of Our Present Method. This reference to the conditions and prospects of our revenue naturally suggests an allusion to the weakness and vices of our financial method.

Because we are enjoying a temporary relief from its depressing influence, this should not lead us to forget the suddenness of past visitations. I am more convinced than ever that we can have no security for our future unless we have government currency obligations upon which gold may be demanded from the treasury.

National Bank Notes. They should be allowed to issue circulation of the national bank notes, and the tax on their circulation should be reduced to one-fourth of one percent.

Trusts and Other Aggregations of Capital. Another topic to which our people rightly give a deep interest may be here briefly alluded. I refer to trusts and other large aggregations of capital, the object of which is to secure the monopoly of certain branches of trade, industry or commerce, and to stifle wholesome competition.

Exports of Farm Products. The secretary reports that the value of our exports of farm products during the last fiscal year amounted to $70,000,000, an increase of $17,000,000 over those of the year immediately preceding.

Gratuities Distribution of Seeds. In my opinion the gratuitous distribution of seeds by the department, as at present conducted, ought to be discontinued. No one can doubt the extravagance and questionable results of this practice.

THE WEATHER BUREAU.

The weather bureau, now attached to the department of agriculture, has continued to expand its usefulness and to improve its methods of forecasting the weather.

CIVIL-SERVICE REFORM.

A Cause for Congratulation. The progress made in civil-service reform has been a cause for congratulation.

There are now in the competitive classified service upward of 84,000 persons.

Inter-State Commerce. The interstate commerce commission has, during the last year, supplied abundant evidence of its usefulness and of the importance of the work committed to its charge.

CURRENT TOPICS.

THE NEWS IN BRIEF.
FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.
In the senate, on the 15th, Mr. Morgan (Ala.) spoke for more than an hour advocating immediate intervention in behalf of Cuba, using very strong language in urging his point. The resolution previously offered by him requesting the president to communicate papers relating to the condition of affairs in Cuba was adopted. The pension bill of Nancy G. Alabach was passed over the president's veto, and the house joint holiday resolution was concurred in. In the house, consideration of the bill to amend the postal law relating to second class matter was begun. The bill to authorize purchasers of the Atlantic & Pacific railroad to form a new corporation, with the rights, privileges and obligations of the old, was passed.

In the senate, on the 16th, the resolution to take up the Dingley bill for consideration was the subject of a very warm discussion between several senators, which resulted in a complete acquiescence on both sides of the chamber in the fact that the Dingley bill could not possibly be passed at the present session. In the house nearly all of a four hours session was devoted to consideration in committee of the whole, of the army appropriation bill for the year ending June 30, 1898, and an amendment cutting off the Hot Springs (Ark.) hospital was agreed to. When the committee rose the point of no quorum was made and sustained and the house adjourned.

In the senate, on the 17th, the bill to amend the immigration laws occupied the attention of the senate during nearly the whole of the session. Among the amendments passed was one providing that the act shall not apply to Cuban refugees which occupied the subject of Cuba. The bill was passed and a conference asked. In the house the usual bills in furtherance of the inaugural were passed, as was an amendment cutting off the appropriation for the maintenance of the Hot Springs (Ark.) hospital. Half a dozen District of Columbia bills were passed, and the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was taken up in committee of the whole.

The senate was not in session on the 18th. In the house, it being private bill day, 37 private pension bills were passed, and the remainder of the afternoon was occupied in discussing war claim bills, one of which was passed. The report of the conferees extending the limit within which the joint congressional committee on regulations for the free use of alcohol in the arts and manufactures might report, was passed. In the evening session for the consideration of private pension bills, was held.

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

The Washington Times was purchased, on the 15th, from C. G. Conn by Stilson Hutchins. Hon. John H. Oterly, formerly Indian commissioner, was placed in charge.

The steam schooner Edith, Capt. Edwards, with a crew of 30 men aboard, was, on the 15th, nine days overdue at Tacoma, Wash., from the Halibut banks off Hecate sound, and fears were entertained that some mishap had befallen her owing to the severe storms.

The French coasting steamer Marie Fanny was lost off the island of Alderney, in the British channel, on the 15th, and her crew of 14 men were drowned.

The lumbermen of the United States met in convention in Cincinnati on the 15th.

FIGHTING is reported west of the trocha in Pinar del Rio, Cuba, where the insurgents, under Maceo's successor, Gen. Luis Rivera, have taken the field against the Spanish forces left there by Gen. Weyler. No details have been received yet, but 50 wounded soldiers arrived at Havana, on the 15th, from the neighborhood of Artemisa.

It was stated in Havana, on the 15th, that Gen. Weyler had called in some of the troops stationed outside of the city, fearing an attack by Gen. Gomez, who was reported to be moving eastward with a large force, well armed and provisioned. The insurgents had already occupied several small towns held by the Spaniards in the eastern part of the province of Havana.

ALEX SALVINI, the well-known actor, son of the celebrated Italian tragedian, Tommaso Salvini, died at Florence, Italy, on the 15th.

FIRE in the Western Union Telegraph Co.'s building at Evansville, Ind., on the 15th, damaged Frondrich Bros., cigar manufacturers, whose factory occupies the top floor of the building, $5,000. The Western Union office was not injured to any extent.

The London Gleaner of the 15th said that important negotiations were proceeding, if not completed, whereby Great Britain would derive considerable benefits in the opening up of China, adding that an English syndicate had obtained a concession to construct and maintain a long railroad, which would be a powerful counter check to Russian designs.

It is reported that an expedition from Honduras landed on the south side of the island of Cuba, recently, with large supplies of ammunition and arms, and that the cargo was safely delivered into the possession of Gen. Rivera.

A HEAVY wind and rain storm raged along the Atlantic coast on the 15th. At Atlantic City, N. J., the large Casino building, where the Elks' disaster happened two years ago, collapsed with a crash, carrying with it an untenanted cottage next door.

A DISPATCH from Cape Town says that Col. Cecil Rhodes' country house was destroyed by fire on the 15th. It may be presumed that the "country house" referred to in the dispatch is the South African palace of the ex-premier of Cape Colony.

ELINATH HALL, one of the largest buildings in connection with the Knoxville (Tenn.) college for colored students, was burned, on the 15th. The building was occupied by female students, all of whom escaped. The loss will reach $25,000, and is said to be insured.

GEORGE WILSON and John Palmer were arrested in New York city on the 15th, charged with swindling pawnbrokers of that city and Brooklyn to the extent of thousands by means of alleged gold watches and chains presented as pledges.

On the 17th the federal assembly at Berne, Switzerland, elected Dr. Adolph Deucher president of the Swiss confederation for 1897, and Mr. Frauffy, the present minister of the interior, vice-president. Mr. Deucher was vice-president for 1895 and for 1896.

THE FIRST STEP

Towards Recognizing Cuba as an Independent Republic.

Senator Cameron's Resolution to That End Ordered Favorably Reported by the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—The senate committee on foreign relations, by a practically unanimous vote, ordered a favorable report to be made to the senate, Monday, on the Cameron resolution recognizing the independence of the republic of Cuba. A verbal change was made in the text of the resolution so that, as finally agreed to, it reads as follows:

Resolved, By the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled, that the independence of the republic of Cuba be and the same is hereby acknowledged by the United States of America.

Section 2. That the United States will use its friendly offices with the government of Spain to bring to a close the war between Spain and Cuba.

Secretary Olney, who had been requested to appear before the committee by Senator Sherman, was present for one hour and laid before the committee all of the information in the possession of the state department. He stated to the committee very fully the policy of the administration and the reasons that actuated it in its present attitude towards the insurrection in Cuba. No member of the committee is willing to make any statement as to what Mr. Olney said, except one looking upon his statement as a confidential matter between the secretary and the committee.

Sufficient is known, however, to show that Mr. Olney admitted before the committee the information received from Consul-General Lee and other sources that has been steadfastly kept from the general public.

The secretary was accorded the greatest respect throughout, and the dialogue was friendly.

Mr. Olney's argument did not appear to have much weight with the committee, if it was against the passage of the resolution, for immediately upon his withdrawal, the resolution was laid before the committee for action. There was no yea and nay vote, but the resolution was agreed to without a dissenting voice. The only point of difference was as to whether the action of the committee should be made public at once or withheld until Monday.

One senator thought action of any sort should be postponed until after the holidays, but the will of the majority prevailed and there was practical unanimity in the vote. Senators Gray and Daniel were both absent, but it is said that both of them are favorable to the action taken by the committee.

Senator Cameron was instructed to prepare the report that will be submitted to the senate. As a matter of fact the report was written and was submitted to the committee. It is looked upon as an exceedingly strong document, and goes into the diplomatic history of the United States very fully to show our policy in the matter of recognizing new states. Some few additions and alterations were suggested by other members of the committee, but the report as drawn by the senator is practically complete.

This report will be made to the senate Monday, but, as stated before in these dispatches, there is no prospect of decisive action in either house of congress before the holidays. Meanwhile the situation in Cuba, as it develops during the holidays, will undoubtedly affect the final action of congress on the resolution. Only two adverse suggestions were made in the committee on the Cameron resolution. Both of these counseled delay until after the holidays. These suggestions came, it is understood, from Senators Hale and Sherman.

News of the action of the committee spread abroad rapidly. The house was in session and the Cuban sympathizers crowded to the front. The parliamentary programme for the Cameron resolution is to pass the senate and the house, not until after the holidays, however, and then go to the president, where it is a foregone conclusion a veto awaits it. In the committee on foreign relations the sentiment was quite general that the president would veto the resolution. It is believed the senate and house will both pass it over the veto, if the Cuban cause does not receive a serious setback during the holidays. But it is expected that a long debate will be held on the resolution in both house and senate, and the day when the resolution will reach the president for his action is several weeks ahead.

In the present temper of congress, with public sentiment growing rapidly in favor of Cuba, there seems to be no doubt in the minds of the friends of Cuba of their ability to pass the joint resolution over the veto of Mr. Cleveland.

ONLY URGED DELAY.

Cautioned the Foreign Relations Committee to Go Slowly.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The Post says: "The secretary of state has cautioned the members of the committee on foreign relations to go very slowly in regard to the Cuban question, and that all action be postponed in congress until the end of the present campaign, when, if the Spaniards are not successful, he believes, as recommended in the president's message, that some form of practical intervention should be applied by the United States."

THE UNITED STATES SENATE, NEWARK AND KALEIGH ARRIVED AT KEY WEST, FLA., on the 16th, after an unsuccessful chase after the alleged filibuster Three Friends.

MARION HATFIELD, a relative of the notorious Hatfields of Kentucky and West Virginia, was hanged in Sneedville, Tenn., on the 16th.

On the 16th there were 19 steamers due at New York from European ports, nine of which were from two to six days overdue.

MAJ. MCKINLEY went to Chicago, on the 16th, for a week's visit with friends. The beautiful and costly Casino building, together with the bridge which spanned Four-Mile run, at the main entrance to Schenly park, Oakland station, Pittsburgh, Pa., were destroyed by fire, on the 17th, at 1:55 a. m. The casino building and contents represented an investment of about $540,000.

Mrs. J. COLEMAN DRAYTON, daughter of Mrs. William Astor, was married in St. Columbia's church, London, on the 17th, to Mr. George Haig, a member of the firm of Haig & Haig, whisky merchants.

HERMANN, the magician, who gave a performance at Rochester, N. Y., on the night of the 16th, at the Lyceum theater, died in his private car at Great Valley, N. Y., on the 17th, while en route to Bradford, Pa.

The contraband of the anarchists arrested for complicity in the recent disturbances at Barcelona was concluded on the 17th. The sentences imposed are kept secret, and anyone divulging them is to be severely punished. It is believed, however, that 28 of the anarchists have been sentenced to death and 59 others to penal servitude.

WHILE repairing the timbering in the shaft of the Virginian mine, near O'Leary, Col., on the 18th, the cage containing the five workmen became detached from the cable and dashed to the bottom of the 1,400 foot shaft, crushing the men into shapeless masses and breaking the cage into thousands of pieces. Each of the victims leaves a family.

The Virginia court of appeals, on the 18th, issued an order commanding the state election canvassers to award to J. Yost, republican candidate, the certificate of election to congress in the Tenth congressional district.

MAIL advices from South America bring details of a serious uprising of Indians in Peru. A terrible battle was fought between the Indians and government troops, on November 11, which proved a veritable slaughter, 500 Indians and 50 soldiers being killed.

INFORMATION has been received in Madrid of the intention of Gen. Polavieja, the new governor of the Philippines, to ask the government to send ten additional battalions of troops to the islands.

The Madrid La Pas asserts that it has been definitely proved that Japan has landed men and munitions of war upon the Philippine islands, and that the Philippine rebels are commanded by Japanese officers.

It is understood that the Spanish government has abandoned its intention to address a note to the government at Washington concerning that part of President Cleveland's message which refers to Spain and Cuba and will ignore the document altogether.

CONDENSED TELEGRAMS.

THE Illinois Central freight depot at Jackson, Miss., was gutted by fire on the 20th. The loss is $75,000 or more on building and freight.

In the neighborhood of Lamar, Col., on the 19th one hundred hunters killed 4,397 rabbits. The hunt was organized by Rob. Thomas Uzzell of Denver, to whom the game was given for distribution among the poor of that city.

THE latest attack upon American meat products comes from the canton of Zurich, Switzerland, where the meats have been about practically by the application of a regulation forbidding the use of borax to preserve them.

A CALL has been issued for a meeting of representatives of all wool growers and sheep breeders' associations in the United States at Washington on Jan. 4.

Mrs. MAHAR THOMPSON DAVIES died at Louisville, Ky., on the 19th in a coughing fit. She was a woman of literary attainments, a sister of the late United States Senator John B. Thompson, and ex-congressman Phil B. Thompson.

ALLEN C. ANDY, of Columbus, Ohio, who failed for half a million dollars in real estate, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for sixteen months for borrowing money in a way which seemed to be secured by first mortgage, when it was not.

OFFICERS are in pursuit of Mat Sanders, a notorious kidnapper, who is supposed to have kidnapped two children in South Florence, Ala.

SAUEL GOMPERS, the great labor leader, has been re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor. The next convention of that body will be held in Nashville, Tenn., during the centennial.

THE steamer American cleared from New Orleans for Liverpool on the 18th with 23,570 bales of cotton, the largest cargo of cotton ever floated. She also carried 54,800 pieces of oak staves and 4,483 sacks of cotton seed.

MARION HATFIELD has hanged at Sneedville, Ky., on the 16th for the murder of Jones Trail. Five thousand people were present. Hatfield confessed, implicating his wife and a woman named Haney Jordan.

A PASSENGER train on the Southern Railroad was held up near Berry, Ala., on the 15th. Several jugs of liquor were the only booty.

DUN'S COMMERCIAL REVIEW.

The Balance of Trade, Largely in Our Favor, Will Prevent the Export of Gold—Receipts of Cotton Heavy and Prices—Shade Lower—Light Receipts and Exports of Wheat—The Iron and Steel Trade—Stocks Weak.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—R. G. Dun & Co. say to-day in their review of trade: Cuban reports, unusual closeness of money in Germany and the decision that there will be no action on the tariff at this session have not really changed the situation, but have been talked about as if they might change.

The holiday trade is generally large, though at some points more confined to cheap goods than usual, and the influence of an increase in the working force is felt in other ways. But until the new year the only material changes expected are such as prepare for a large business next year. In the iron and steel industry these appear of the utmost importance.

Since events for some months to come will turn largely on the state of foreign trade, it is cheering that produce exports in November were $109,009,937 in value, amounting for three months to $307,749,577, more than double the value of imports, which were $151,301,351.

The four months' excess, which has brought hither in three months net imports of gold amounting to $68,640,143, besides establishing credits of many millions in London, which virtually pay in advance for future imports, has not prevented, it is believed, a special shipping of gold to Germany next week, for which the German bank pays a premium to meet demands January 1, supposed to be on Russian account. London affects the shipment by borrowing more millions here, so that the amount of such sterling advances is now reckoned at $55,000,000.

More such borrowing must come advance in the rate of interest, realizing on exchange drafts, of which many become due before or shortly after January 1, and a sharper demand on London than will be convenient. But with two dollars' worth of produce going out for every one dollar's worth of goods brought in, nothing of an ordinary nature can cause gold exports of consequence. In two weeks of December exports from New York have been six per cent. larger, and imports here 12 per cent. smaller than last year.

Exports of cotton are naturally stimulated by lower prices and on forced liquidation of inventories and speculative operations cotton has declined to 7.12, recovering to 7.10 cents; July 15 the price was 7.08. Short crop stories raised it to 8.9 September 10, and it has now gone back about to the starting point. Receipts from plantations continue heavy, while commercial stocks here and abroad are only about as large as a year ago, and the movement had been 1,100,000 bales less.

The demand for goods in this country falls below the increased production, and the market is weak in tone, with prices of some jobbers' bleached goods sharply reduced.

Speculation in wool has halted, sales for the week being 4,721,200 pounds, against 5,180,000 last year. The control of the Messaba mountain iron mine has been leased for 50 years or purchased by the Carnegie interest from Mr. J. D. Rockefeller, the ore to be shipped by his new steamship line on the lakes and by the new railway which the Carnegie company is building to Lake Erie. This, with the erection of 16 new open hearth furnaces, making 36, insures enormous increase of product at extremely low cost, and will affect all combinations in steel products or in ore.

The billet pool has practically dissolved, and sales are reported at $16 to $17, the contracts to supply consumers through most of the whole of next year. The beam pool has revived and restored the price to $1.55, but nails and steel bars are a shade lower. The rail association has been in session, and our Philadelphia dispatch states that rails were sold at $25, against $28, so long maintained.

Bessener pig and gray forge are a shade lower at Pittsburgh, Virginia. The Alabamians are offered 25 cents lower at the east, and with so much uncertainty regarding great changes in progress, very little is done in finished products and generally at concessions. A sale of 3,000,000 pounds lake copper is reported at 11 1/2 cents. Coke production is increasing with contracts reported at $1.50.

Wheat rose about two cents Monday, but declined still further, and closed one-half lower for the week. The receipts in two weeks have been 6,625,382 bushels, against 11,609,387 last year, and Atlantic exports for two weeks have been, flour included, 6,231,144 bushels, against 5,907,824 last year.

Stocks have been weak. Almost a panic occurred on Friday, when the Cameron joint resolution was adopted by the senate committee. Speculators immediately felt the war with Spain beginning, and St. Paul, Burlington and Rock Island broke five points, while the whole list lost over a point. Failures for the week have been 387 in the United States, against 377 last year, and 41 in Canada, against 32 last year.

A Maryland Execution.

UPPER MARYLBOROUGH, Md., Dec. 19.—James Smith, a mulatto, was hanged here for the murder of Miss Margaret Drowns a white girl, with whom he claimed to be in love. He cut the girl's throat because she repulsed him.

Charges to be Investigated.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 19.—The house of representatives has ordered an investigation of the charges against Judges Rosen and Joel Sweet, accused by Senator Carter of being unfit to hold office. An extra session of the assembly will be held in February to investigate the charges.

Post Office Robbed.

ELMHURST, N. Y., Dec. 19.—The post office at Horseheads, six miles from here, was robbed of $900 in postage stamps and $74 in money. The thieves escaped.

PHILIPPINE REBELS.

Said to be Led by Japanese Officers—More Troops Called For.

MADRID, Dec. 19.—La Pas asserts that it has been definitely proved that Japan has landed men and munitions of war upon the Philippine islands, and that the Philippine rebels are commanded by Japanese officers.

Information has been received here of the intention of Gen. Polavieja, the new governor of the Philippines, to ask the government to send ten additional battalions of troops to the Philippines.

TRIPLE LYNCHING.

Three Kentucky Prisoners Blindly Murdered by a Mob.

One of Them Shot Down in His Cell, the Others Taken to a Tree and Hanged—The Mob General That One of the Men was Not Deserving of Death.

RUSSELLVILLE, Ky., Dec. 19.—A bloodthirsty, armed mob of men from Logan county, half of whom came from Adairville, came to this town from Adairville yesterday morning and killed three prisoners who were in jail waiting for trial on the charges of murder and conspiracy. Arch Proctor, who murdered Aaron and "Doc" Crafton at Adairville, October 24, was taken from the jail with his father, Dink Proctor, charged with conspiracy in the Crafton case, and both men were hanged to the same tree just outside the town. Bill Proctor, a half-brother of Dink, and credited with being a real desperado, who had terrorized the Adairville district for a score of years, was riddled with bullets in his cell, defying the mob to take him out alive and cursing them with his last breath.

The man hunters were pitiless and well organized. They refused to allow Arch Proctor to see his mother, who was sleeping in a neighboring hotel, before being deprived of life. The jailer pleaded with the mob not to lynch the men and then made a special plea for Dink Proctor, who had always been a quiet citizen, the Crafton murderers being the first trouble he had been mixed up in. But the only answer of the leaders was "Deal men out tales."

The Adairville mob came into town about a hundred strong and attacked the jail at 1:30 o'clock. The door of the main entrance soon gave way under their onslaught. The keeper of the jail was forced, on the peril of his life, to deliver the keys to the Proctor cells to the mob's leaders. The victims had been apprised of the coming of the lynchers and their intentions, none of the three being in bed at the time their cells were opened. They faced an excited, cursing mass of armed men, each one of whom was eager to lend a hand in giving the prisoners short shrift.

Bill Proctor, who was a powerful man, showed his desperate character when brought to bay. He swore no one should take him from his cell alive and no one cared to engage him in a test of physical strength, so one of the mob gave the signal for the murderer to be killed where he stood by shooting him with a pistol. A charge of buckshot entered the desperado's body the next second and he fell. As he lay on the floor writhing in pain a volley of lead from pistols was fired into the wretched man.

When he seemed to be dead a man entered the cell and placed a pistol barrel at Proctor's head, pulling the trigger to make sure that the most feared and murderous man of Logan county was no more.

Then the mob turned their faces and weapons toward the cells of Dink Proctor and his son Arch. They were taken from their cells without resistance, the jailer's pleas were unheeded and the hands of the victims bound. By this time there were fully 200 men in the mob, and no attempt was made to interfere with their lynchings plans. The prisoners were taken to a three-lined cedar tree on the Nashville road. The extra limb was intended for Bill Proctor, and on the other two limbs were strung father and son, without giving either any time for speeches, confessions or prayers.

A FRIGHTFUL DEATH

Overtakes Five Men Working in a Colorado Mine.

OURAY, Col., Dec. 19.—A frightful accident occurred in the Virginian mine, near here, yesterday morning, by which five men were instantly killed. The unfortunate men were at work repairing the timbering. They were working from the cage, having it raised and lowered as they progressed with their work. Just what caused the accident is not positively known. The men were several hundred feet below the shaft house at the time their last signal was given for the movement of the cage. The engineer, in answering the signal, was horrified to find the cable had become slack.

There was nothing to obstruct the descent of the cage, and it fell with lightning rapidity to the bottom of the shaft, which is 1,400 feet deep, and was broken into thousands of pieces, the men being crushed into shapeless masses in the wrecked cage, their bones being terribly mangled.

The dead men were well known in Ouray and all leave families.

WRECKING TRAIN WRECKED

While on the Way to Clear Another Wreck—A Tramp Killed and Three Men Hurt.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 19.—At 6:30 a. m. a wreck occurred at the crossing of the Wabash and Monon roads at Delphi, Ind. A wrecking train was hurried out over the latter road from Monon, and while running at a high rate of speed near Gurnsey, five miles south of Monon, a flat car of the wrecking train jumped the track and the entire train went into a ditch. One man was instantly killed and several were injured. Among the injured is Trainmaster McCannon, of the Monon road.

No Baggage to Speak Of.

That makes me think of something rare funny which I saw come to pass once upon a time out there in Texas. Me and one of these traveling preachers hit the same town on the same Sunday and took out and fed at the same hotel. I didn't know anything for certain about the preacher except what he up and told me with his own mouth free gratis for nothing—that he use to go all the gaits and cover all the ground, but he quit and was now preaching forth the doctrines to a lost and ruined world.

Now it likewise came to pass in them

"BIG TWISTIFICATION."

Life as They Live It in the Woods and Hills.

Santa Claus Is Coming in the Rocky Creek Settlement—A Preacher Troubled with a Bad Case of "Breakin' Out at the Mouth."

Right here lately I do reckon we have had some of the daddlamest, all-over-the-day-and-hour when you was borned into this valley of dry bones. The last big twistification we got into was all on account of a traveling preacher of some peccious faith and order, and them that didn't get killed or crippled got skered and moved their washin'. But anyhow, truth is mighty and bound to win, and old Santa Claus is comin' Christmas in his regular order.

Then the War "Bust Loose."

The preacher was holdin' forth day and night in the schoolhouse over at the Cross Roads. As for me, I was too tremendous busy with first one thing and then another to turn out and tend the meetins to any serious extent. But the next news I got it would seem like the preacher talked too free and plentiful with his mouth and the war had bust loose.

It was on a Tuesday night—which the weather was clear and pleasant and the moon shinin' bright like day—that the preacher had give it out that he would preach a sermon for the good of everybody, but the children in particular, and from that a pushin' big crowd was out to hear the news. Well, from what they tell me, the preacher did have a scandalous bad case of breakin' out at the mouth that night. And in the general run of his scatterin' remarks he pitched in he did and told the children a whole long rigamarole in regard to old Santa Claus. He lowed there never was and never would be such a man as Santa Claus. He went on and told the little folks that their fathers and mothers had been foolin' them every Christmas for lo these many years—which accordin' to proofs of holy writ he held that it was a sin and a shame. He didn't want to hear nobody talkin' about Santa Claus henceforth, when everybody knowed there want no sich a livin' human being in the round discovered world.

But the preacher didn't much more than git the word out his mouth before old man Bunk Weatherford riz up right there in open meetin' and give it the daddlam lie. Then old man Bunk and the preacher they had it in a red hot, rough-and-tumble argyfication—up-and-down and over and under. Sometimes the preacher was in the majority and sometimes old man Bunk had all the delegates.

But in the main time Andy Lucas had left the meetin' and rid off on his horse, and when he returned back to the schoolhouse me and Blev Scroggins we rid with him—three abreast and in a swingin' gallop. Old man Bunk had held the fort whilst Andy went out after recruits. When we got there the meetin' was in a uproar of confusion, but soon as Blev could put his hand into the game he sent up a resolution as follows here below:

Resolved, That the preacher who says there aint no sich a man as Santa Claus is a box-ankled, slew-footed, double-breasted liar, and all sorts of a liar.

The resolution was anonymously adopted with a standin' vote.

Then Andy he put the followin' resolution in nomination:

Resolved, That it is the general opinion amongst the people around Rocky Creek that in regards to Christmas and Santa Claus the new preacher couldn't tell the truth with a dead reed. Passed.

After that they sung a song, the meetin' broke up and we went out. Then presently a crowd of us boys chipped in together and we didn't do a blame, blessed thing but rub three quarts of cackle burrs into that preacher's hair, and ride him on a three-cornered rail to little Wolf creek bridge, where we cut him a fast walkin' stick and told him to burn the wind for parts unknown. And as he went a scorchin' off down the big road toards the Mississippi river with every foot up and coat tails flyin' the boys bid him a long farewell and went on their way rejoicin'.

It don't make a continental bit of difference with us, long-sufferin' readers, what you think about the general criticism of the calamity. We think it was perfectly all right. Everybody in this country loves a good preacher, but any man that would stand up and tell a big crowd of children that there is no such thing as Santa Claus, would not be a pleasant place to lay his head or rest his weary feet in the regions of old Rocky.

Next to the women folks we love the children, and when a man stands up and talks to them he must preach forth the unwashed truth and nothin' but the truth.

The Pines of Florida.

There are in Florida seven species of pine, which are most generally recognized by the names upland spruce, lowland spruce, pond, loblolly, shortleaf, longleaf and pitch. Of these, all but the last two are too worthless or too scarce to count for anything in the forest wealth of the state. But when we consider the timber resources of the entire south, the shortleaf is found to be only second in importance to the longleaf. As to the loblolly, its value will be appreciated better when better pine timber becomes scarce, and as it takes the lead in the reforesting of lands, it is likely to become quite abundant by the time that people will be glad to find such timber in the absence of better. That the supply of longleaf, or yellow pine, can meet the demand for more than two or three more decades seems out of the question. It is bound to go the way of the black walnut, and cease to be counted among the world's lumber resources.—Jacksonville Times-Union.

To save coal and also to avoid any killing draft, double doors should be put in the conservatory during winter.

Some of the boys went out after Doc Mulligan one night last week, and from all I can hear they ran him through a night sweat and knocked him out of seven years' growth.

Doc was born and brung up right around here in the settlement, and he use to be one of the Rocky Creek boys. But he calls himself a doctor. In the main time it would seem like Doc has took up with the whole passel of fool notions. He is smarter now than anybody in the settlement—smarter than his old mother and father and smarter than all the preachers put together. To hear him tell it, he don't believe in the church, nor the Bible, nor religion, nor spirits, and as for prayin', he lowed that man was a natural born fool to pray for somethin' he never saw and didn't know what he was after.

And so consequently the boys they went out after Doc that night. It might not be right for me to tell names, but I got the news from Handy Stribblin' and I can give it to you as it was give unto me.

There was four of us in the crowd, and when we rid off every man had a clean sheet tied up in a bundle and tucked under his arm. When we got down there to old Ebenezer church on yonder side of Panther creek we all dismounted and dressed out in white.

You see, Doc Mulligan had went over the creek late that evenin' to tend some of his sick, and we made our arrangements for him to fall in with four ghosts right there at the graveyard. We had a notion that Doc might maybe be changed in his mind and offer up a prayer in case of a pushoney, and we wanted to see if he had forgot how to approach the Throne of Grace.

COLUMBIANA, DEC. 24, 1896.

The editor sat in his chair one day.
And wrote as a man who writes for pay.
For a smile that was bright shone over his face.

A smile that accompanied the goose quill's pace.

What the editor wrote wasn't wrote for the press:

No silver nor gold broke into his rest.
And he to never entered his mind.

And he wielded the pen with the speed of the wind.

No social enigmas were being solved.
No meeting proceedings where all was "resolved."

No wedding receptions, no funeral rites.
No was and no pence, as the editor writes:

For his pen is proclaiming to good farmer
Brown.

The receipt of his letter just axin' him down
Next Sunday to dinner, and the old goosequill

Is saying in substance: "God bless you, I will."

CHRISTMAS.

By consulting the almanac and taking a hasty, useful glance at our worldly possessions, we learn that tomorrow is Christmas. The readers of The Chronicle will excuse us, we hope, if we depart from the usual custom at this time, and refrain from writing a lengthy treatise on the uses and abuses of Christmas. All over the civilized world will appear the annual observations of the papers on this auspicious day. The great big dailies will come out in glaring colors and tell that Christmas is here, with all the seriousness due to the time. The day will look in upon you from all the points of the literary compass, and you must be either asleep or dead to keep from having it brought to your notice.

But that is all right. We want all to know when Christmas comes. We would feel slighted if it went by without our knowing it. Christmas is full of joy for the great world. The little tots who go barefooted up to that period of the winter are nearly all supplied with shoes. The man who has been living on saltless corn bread for the past year generally has at least a slice of bacon when Christmas comes. The sober, industrious man who hates the fumes of whiskey all the year round, suddenly finds a glorious hilarity in its spell. The dispeptic who won't let his little boy roll a marble across the floor at any other season of the year, gets out and pops fire crackers and yells like mad, in tune with the rejoicing world. The boys and girls are happy on Christmas, whether they have anything to be happy about at any other time or not. They love old Santa Claus (how do you spell that anyhow—it's been so long since we saw the old gentleman we've forgotten) with all the devotion of perfect trust and confidence. The old, old lady sitting in the corner by the fire place, looking dreamily into the glowing coals, wears a smile and a brightness on her wrinkled face that is lovely to see. She is thinking of other Christmases long ago, when she was a little girl. She looks up into the innocent faces of young and tender youths about her, and her old heart is warm with love. Who can solve the mystery of the old lady's thoughts, wandering far, far away into her own youth? A great poet might try, but we would fail.

In connection with the Christmas time is always a scene that passes in imagination before us. We would like to stand on this day at the tomb of Dickens, and see what happens there. The man who best tells us of this day is not forgotten. The children go there—the poor little ones whose friend he was always—and the sacred place is strewn with lovely flowers, winter though it be, and flowers very dear, and anointed with a holy tribute of tears. Who would ask a greatness better than this? The kindest heart that ever beat in sympathy with stricken childhood is remembered today, and will be remembered when the names of kings and queens are lost.

We wish all our readers a joyful Christmas.

Every intelligent American citizen who went to the polls November 3rd, squared his political views by his conscience and the will of the American people, which in the last analysis, is the law of the land. Now let us work as hard for the restoration of business, as we did for the success of our candidate, and the most gratifying results will surely follow. Bury the political hatchet and resurrect business. We take off our hat to the president elect, and will do our best to help make his administration a great success. We do not surrender our honest convictions in doing this, neither do we ask any man to do so, but that does not prevent us from honoring the chief magistrate of the greatest republic on earth.

The lower house of the fifty-fifth congress will be composed of 205 republicans, 137 democrats, 15 populists. The present congress stands 232 republicans, 92 democrats, 10 populists, and 3 vacancies.

THE JAYVILLE JOSHER.

A Weekly Paper Published Just for Fun and Other Collateral.

Mr. Johnnie Bloomfield, the noted orator, called at the Josher office one day last week to pay us his respects and to have his name written on our subscription book, so we could Josher him for the next year. After taking a large crescent-shaped bite off of our plug of tobacco, he took a seat on a pile of exchanges and began to talk in his own inimitable manner about his success as an orator. We asked him to what circumstances, if any, he owed the great success he has achieved.

"Well," said Mr. Bloomfield, as he squirted a streak of amber across the room, "I began in a small way. I have always had the idea that I ought to be an orator. I had that idea when I used to go fishing in the glorious old days of boyhood. I would take my fishing pole, my dog and my stone bruise out to the creek, and there I would begin to think of what I would say on certain occasions should I be called on to make a speech. Then I would get up on a stump and make the speech to the dog and the trees and the birds. In this way I acquired a sort of style that was entirely natural. No school-boy heroics about my speeches. They bubbled up as naturally as terrapin-bubbles in the creek. I will never forget the time that my father caught me making a speech in the woods. He happened one morning to be prowling about the woods looking for a stray cow, and he found me just about at the starting point in my speech. He hid himself behind some bushes and listened. I made an unusually brilliant effort at that time, and all unconscious of the nearness of the old gentleman, I spouted out my piece to the audience of young trees with all the ardor of genius. I think I made a very fine speech at that time. The passion was all there, the fire was like a furnace, the vehemence was all that I could wish; the gestures were far-reaching and grand. The trouble with that speech was only in the subject. Everything but the subject was right up to the limit. But I will repeat to you the speech as near as I can remember it now. I said:

"Friends, senators and congressmen: I come not here today to talk of laws for men. I come here to demand that you make some laws for boys. I was once a boy, but I have outgrown that. I said when I was a little boy and had to spend all the long days in school or toting wood at home, or running down town for something I had forgot, I said that when I got to be a man I would come up here to this house of representatives and make some laws for boys. I remember how an inhuman father sent me to school when I saw other boys going fishing. I remember how he used to make me saw wood when other boys were digging bait and chasing grasshoppers across the meadow. I remember how this cruel parent used to take me by the collar and lead me to the woodshed where I would shed bitter tears as he laid me across a barrel and spanked me with a leather strap. All his cruelty and harshness comes back to me now as I look back over the short, hard years of my youth, and I long to see the boys who are boys now be treated right. I am going to introduce a bill to send all fathers to jail when they won't let their boys go rabbit hunting. I want a bill passed that will punish the boy's father who licks him for staying away from school. I want boys to have some rights. They should not be jerked up and yanked across a barrel every time they try to have a little fun. I want the boys to put dead cats in the cellar for fun, to be given the power by law to send their fathers to the penitentiary if they get mad and whip them for such little things as that. My father used to lick me for nothing almost. I never could have any fun just on his account. He licked me for tying two cats together and hanging them over the clothes line to dry; he licked me for throwing a rock at a stray dog and accidentally breaking a window pane; he licked me for slapping my little sister when she took my new fishing line and sewed dead clothes with it; he licked me for letting the baby down in the well in the bucket, which was great fun; he licked me for playing policeman and using my club on my little brothers because they wouldn't come along to jail when I arrested them. I know you other senators and congressmen will think that I had a mean father, and you are right. The half has not been told. He was the meanest father I ever had. He run over me all the time, and never wanted me to have any fun. He wanted me to work and go to school all the time. I have heard him swear at my mother when she tried to take my part. I have seen him come home paralyzed drunk and—

"I never quite finished that speech. The old man had sneaked up behind me, and the first thing I knew I was revolving in the air at the rate of about sixty revolves to the second. I think a fence rail must have figured in the performance too. I felt greatly hurt. But I did not abandon my speech-making. I went as often as possible to the woods, being careful to select an open place where I could have a view of the surrounding country for several rods, and kept up my study of oratory."

Mr. Bloomfield reached out his hand for our plug and continued:

"An orator should be impervious to all external influences when he is making his speech. Internal influences will be all that he can take care of if it is of the right brand. An orator should not become discouraged at the playful attempts at humor practiced by grocers and truck-farm proprietors. They are bad eggs, anyway. His oratory should appeal, not to the rude intellect of the cowboy, but to the enlightened understanding of the incomparable dude; not to the prejudices of ignorance, but to the broad, sweeping, overwhelming intellectuality of a picked jury. He should win his way into the hearts of his audience by an unshaken patience amid the storm of applause. When the over-wrought audience at last bursts forth in all the fury of frenzied admiration, and begin to ply your proud form with tokens of their everlasting, undying, unreasonable regard, see that thou standest like an oak amid the storm, and if there is any of you left when the last egg has smashed and the last shriek of the tortured has died away on the putrid air, then, O ye seekers after glory, walk proudly away from there and take a bath."

Bloomfield left the office in a fine frenzy, and the devil began to scour the floor.

We received a letter last week from Queen Victoria, asking that we send her a sample copy of the Josher. We take pleasure in doing so. It goes by next mail with a special delivery stamp on it. This ready compliance with the request of royalty may appear to some of our readers as a servile concession to England that should not mark the conduct of a citizen of this great republic of ours. To those we will say that our action in this matter is one of pure sympathy for the queen herself. After reigning for more than half a century without taking a vacation, or looking up the palace and going away somewhere where she could take off her reign cloak and be happy and free from care a little while, she must now in her old age feel the need of recreation and exercise. To reign without intermission, or layovers, or washouts on the road, or 29-minute stops for breakfast, is enough to flood anybody with weariness, and make them long for the day to come when all the reigning will be done and hung out on the back fence to dry. It is a solemn and awful thing to reign fifty years. As the queen says in her letter (which we refrain from publishing in full, as most of it is devoted to purely domestic details about the garden and the poultry.) "I am plum tired of it all. When I take off my crown and hide it under the center table at night I almost wish that death would release me before day. But even then I would not escape a crown, as I am told that one awaits me in another world. If that is true, I think it is very hard, don't you? I am dreadfully curious to see a copy of the Josher. Wales tells me that it is a rum sort of paper, but he lost his copy in a game of seven-up with the Czar of Russia the other night, and I did not get to see it. I have read 'Punch' and the other religious papers so long that I am sick and tired of them. They are too dense for me, queen or no queen. If I like the Josher you may put me down for six months anyhow, and I may renew after that if the taxes come in more freely. Wales has mightily near depleted my exchequer. He had better begin to settle down because if he doesn't he won't have enough money coming to him to buy him a clean shirt to reign in when he gets to be king."

The editor of the Josher has been mentioned for a position in McKinley's cabinet. Will we never get out of obscurity?

The monster demonstration by the citizens of Jayville in favor of free Cuba is crowded out of this issue. It was unanimously resolved, however, that the Jayville Military Company be sent down immediately to run the Spaniards out. We may now confidently expect an end to the war.

Squash Jones, the most successful farmer in this section, sent us a turnip weighing thirteen pounds last week. We thought it was a balloon till we tried to lift it.

Henry Munk, the grocer, has a full page ad in this issue. The statement contained in the Josher last week to the effect that Munk was a falsifier of weights and a liar in measure was inaccurate. We called at his store yesterday and found everything fresh and clean and saw him tip the scales a little in favor of his customers. Give him a trial.

HENRY CARR HORNADY.

TOOK EVERYTHING IN SIGHT.

Ed. Frier, a Wilsonville negro, was arrested in South Anniston last night by Policemen Bryan and Hamilton on a charge of bringing into Anniston a lot of goods stolen in Wilsonville about a week ago.

Henry Sanford, col., who suffered from Frier's theft, was with the officers and assisted in locating Frier.

The goods, which consisted of one woman, six quilts, two smoothing irons, one testament and one song book, were all recovered.

The woman, who is Sanford's wife, was arrested and locked up, too, but Sanford finally succeeded in having her released.

The only charge which can be brought against Frier is bringing stolen goods into the city and he is being held on that—Anniston Hot Blast.

Old People.

Old people who require medicine to regulate the bowels and kidneys will find the cure ready in Electric Bitters. This medicine does not stimulate and contains no whiskey nor other intoxicant, but acts as a tonic and alterative. It acts mildly on the stomach and bowels, adding strength and giving tone to the organs, thereby aiding nature in the performance of the functions.

Electric Bitters is an excellent appetizer and aids digestion. Old people find it just exactly what they need. Price fifty cents per bottle at Parker & Armstrong's drug store.

McKINLEY IS ELECTED
And "They Say" Good Times Are Ahead!

Good enough. I've no objection to that—I refer to the good times; but if they come I am ready, yes more than ready. This is no joke, but is a cold, solid fact. I have a very large stock of goods this fall, the largest and most complete ever seen in Shelby county, and I can

We see no earthly necessity for organizing the party at this time. The tone of the democratic press on both sides shows that the baleful fires of strife and hate which burned so fiercely during the late campaign are still red-hot. Let us wait. Let us preach true Jefferson-Jacksonian democracy, keep our swords sharp and bright and strike the republican party big and thigh at every turn. In a year or two, the bad passions will have cooled down: the free silver men will cease to denounce the sound money men as tools of Wall street and members of the McKinley aid society, and the sound money democrats will cease to reproach their brethren bearing the silver ensign as repudiators, anarchists and lunatics; and then when the democratic bugles ring out upon the air and the roll of the drums sound through the land, the old democratic banner will be displayed in all its original splendor on every hill and in every valley, and the country will tremble from ocean to ocean under the marching feet of millions of democrats, all once more united in defence of the constitution and the liberties of the country, and to crush out of existence robber tariffs, trusts and monopolies.

A Generous Physician.

Mrs. Binkers—Well, did you go to the doctor to see about that bee-sting on little Johnny?

Mr. Binkers—Yes. He said we should put mud on it. He charged me two dollars for the prescription, but he gave me the mud for nothing.

Nothing was saved from the recent fire at Randolph court house. All records were destroyed and lawyers see a harvest of fees in prospect.

Two Lives Saved.

Mrs. Phoebe Thomas, of Junction City, Ill., was told by her doctors she had consumption and that there was no hope for her, but two bottles Dr. King's New Discovery completely cured her and she says it saved her life. Mr. Thos. Eggers, 130 Florida St., San Francisco, suffered from a dreadful cold, approaching consumption, tried without result everything else then bought one bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery and in two weeks was cured. He is naturally thankful. It is such results, of which these are samples, that prove the wonderful efficacy of this medicine in coughs and colds. Free trial bottles at Parker & Armstrong's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

Miss Nellie Parker is at home for the holidays.

James Harris, of beat 4, spent Monday in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Reynolds, of Shelby, spent Sunday here.

Maj. John B. Randall, of Calera, was a visitor in town Monday.

The Chronicle bids its readers adieu until the first week in January.

W. B. Brinkerhoff, of Newala, transacted business here Monday.

Dr. Neill McMillan left yesterday to visit relatives in South Alabama.

Joe Cronwell spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Selma visiting friends.

Miss Ethel McMath, of Montevallo, is a guest of friends in town this week.

Miss Sue McGee, of Thomas, Ala., is on a visit to her mother, Mrs. W. G. Parker.

James Reynolds, Esq., of Montevallo, paid our town a professional call Monday.

Miss Naldo Christian, of Shelby, will spend the holidays with Columbiana friends.

Last week J. T. Barnett purchased the home of E. T. Hunter, and will move into it soon.

Miss Mamie Seabrook, of Childersburg, is expected down tomorrow to spend the holidays.

Misses Kilpatrick and Densler, of Wilsonville, visited Misses T. and Oza Hammond last week.

Let's all forget that times are hard, for a few days at least and we'll have a jolly, merry Christmas.

Miss Anna Duran, a pupil of the Industrial school, will spend the week with relatives and friends here.

Miss Ola Parker, of Harpersville, spent three days of this week here with her cousin, Miss Leila Parker.

The Christmas tree will be tonight at the Academy. The indications are that it will be decorated with a bountiful supply of presents.

Miss Kate Huyett will arrive today from Stanton to spend the holidays at home. She will be accompanied by Miss Isla Reed, of Plantersville.

School closed yesterday for the holidays. It will reopen the first Monday in January. The scholars can, and we hope will, have a glorious time in the interim.

Col. E. T. Hunter, president of the Shelby County Horse, Mule, Ox and Yearling Association will move next week into the residence now occupied by J. O. Farmer, who intends moving to Chilton county.

There are fifty-two penitentiaries and over 17,000 jails in the United States. They cost $50,000,000 to build. Over 950,000 persons were incarcerated in the year 1892. The criminal expense to the country is not less than $100,000,000 annually.

Wilsonville Waifs.

Coward Gooden went to his home at Alpine, last Sunday, to spend the holidays.

A. L. and J. C. Jackson made a hasty trip to Tallapoosa, Ga., last week to visit sick relatives. A. L. Jackson will probably remain until after the holidays.

Misses Blossom and Olive Densler spent part of last week in Columbiana.

W. R. Smith went south on the train Sunday afternoon.

For various reasons the S. P. L. League will not give an entertainment this year, the absence of the program committee and by reason of the very short time in which we had to practice, we decided it best to surrender rather than make our first attempt a failure. We will have no entertainments other than the "Santa Claus mansion," or Christmas house, this week.

We were very much surprised by the non-arrival of the pastor of the Methodist church Sunday night. Quite a crowd was present and the services were turned into a prayer meeting conducted by Dr. Boyer.

Capt. J. W. Dolin went to Atlanta Sunday on business.

THE LAST DAYS OF '96.

The year has just and gone, With all its heat and cold. The things that in it have been done Will never all be told.

Thank God for all its bliss; Lord pardon all our sins, For many things we've done amiss Since ninety-six began.

Good-bye, good-bye, old year, We'll never see you more; Your last day's sun will soon go down, You'll see it rise no more.

When you have passed away And other years have come, We'll still remember many things You gave us all along.

You gave us many joys, And some things very sad; You filled our hearts with plenty For which our hearts are glad.

Again we say good-bye, And bless the year you've done, Ten thousand watchful eyes will view Your last day's setting sun.

—BOURGEOIS.

The Falstaffian Element in the Cuban War.

From The Chicago Chronicle.

What a roaring opera bouffe could be based upon the situation in Cuba! Everyone admits that Cuba should be free, and that the island has been treated outrageously by Spain, but the ridiculousness of the movements of both armies cannot but force itself upon any who read the dispatches. The most active men in Cuba are those who send out the "war" news. We never hear of skirmishes. Every meeting of opposing troops is a "battle" or an "engagement." The high-sounding titles and the higher-sounding names to which the titles are attached are incongruous considering what these Quixotic personages really accomplish.

"Lieut.-Col. Rodriguez de la Casino yesterday executed a brilliant flank movement upon the Las Pinas plantation and escaped without the loss of a man. He captured seven soap boilers. This will cripple the insurgents." "Gen. Antonio Maceo, the intrepid leader of the patriots, again displayed his brilliant strategy by crossing the trocha at the head of eighteen men and returned laden with spoils wrested from Weyer. Among the supplies secured were a live goat and four cans of tomato soup." "The most sanguinary battle of the war took place today, when Generalissimo Calixta Garcia with twenty-one men boldly attacked a Spanish force of nearly thirty under Col. Bobadilla. Each commander directed his men from a convenient tree. The Spaniards were completely routed, retreating to Havana. One was wounded by the discharge of his own weapon. A Cuban lieutenant sprained his ankle and Garcia was nearly wounded, the bullet lodging in the tree in which he sat. It is reported that Weyer has given up the struggle." Why, one good election scrap in the eighteenth ward contains more fatalities than a whole Cuban campaign.

The Aim of Christ's Work.

"Peace on earth" was the aim of Christ's work in this world, writes Edward Bellamy in The Ladies Home Journal. The whole gist of his doctrine and the burden of his teaching consisted in counsels to men how to put an end to strife with their fellow men and live together with them in mutual helpfulness. All this teaching, which was the whole content of his gospel, was grouped about and crystallized in the golden rule, whereon our modern world is founded as on an everlasting foundation. To believe in Christ and not to believe in the golden rule as the only plan for social organization seems to us a moral and rational impossibility—and an unthinkable proposition. Just this, however, our ancestors undertook to do, and it is fair to admit that they were very frank about it. They made no pretenses.

How Fashions Originate.

From Puck.

Mrs. Newrich—I never can remember how many cards to leave when calling.

Old Gentleman—The rules are very simple, madam. You hand one to the servant, and then on departing leave as many cards on the plate as there are adult members of the family, adding two of your husband's cards, and occasionally dumping in a few for good measure. Do not be signally in dealing out cards, as that suggests vulgar poverty.

"I am ever so much obliged. Are you Mr. McAllister?"

"No, madam. I am Mr. Bristol, the card manufacturer."

THE OLD ROCK SPRING.

There is many a well of water that is lauded by the poet.

There are fountains cool and shady that are lauded by the poet.

I have wandered in the woeland where I heard the brooklet sing.

But the best and coolest water is the Old Rock Spring.

O, it is like a diamond at the bottom of the hill.

And down into the valley spouts its messenger, the rill.

But the still, though quite delicious, to the thirsty cannot bring.

Half the joy and satisfaction of the Old Rock Spring.

Its waters are the clearest and its flavor is the best—

No place that's so delightful for the traveler to rest;

No water that's worth drinking though you've tasted everything.

When once you've wet your whistle at the Old Rock Spring.

NEW FIRM. NEW PRICES!

Of course a few people know that we have gone into the drug business, but we want everybody to know it, and we also want them to know that

Our Prices Are 20 Per Cent Cheaper

than drugs were ever sold for before in Shelby county. We propose to put our prices down within the reach of all, and we are going to do the drug business if reason-charges cut any figure.

Lots of New, Fresh Goods.

We have added largely to our stock recently, and it is our intention to keep every article likely to be called for. Our motto is "Live and Let Live." We don't want the earth, nor do we want all the land that "jines ourn." All we want is a living profit. A purchase of us will prove our claims.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

J. G. Parker spent Sunday in Calera.

Mrs. T. L. Seale visited Calera Thursday.

Dolls, dolls, and dolls, at
JOHNSTON & WHITE'S

P. B. Harrell, of Shelby, spent Thursday in town.

J. P. Spencer paid Birmingham a flying visit yesterday.

I. W. Bailey, of Calera, was a visitor in town Monday.

J. S. Walton, of Weldon, paid us an appreciated call Tuesday.

W. W. Walls, of Birmingham, spent Sunday with his family here.

W. R. Weaver, of Aldrich, paid our office a pleasant call Monday.

Air guns and wagons, for the boys, at
JOHNSTON & WHITE'S.

Miss Grace Walker, of Anniston, is visiting her sister, Mrs. T. J. Weaver.

We learn that Judge McMillan is quite ill, but we hope he may soon be at his office again.

Johnston & White have just received a new line of men's and boys' hats. Don't fail to see them.

E. D. Hall, mine host of the Colonial, was quite sick for several days, but has recovered.

Pure wines and whiskies for medicinal purposes can be found at Geo. W. Chambers', Talladega, Ala.

Miss Emma Looney will leave tomorrow for Fayetteville, her home, to spend the holidays.

For fruits, candies, currants, cocoanuts and holiday goods go to JOHNSTON & WHITE'S.

Senator McEldery, of Talladega, was in town two or three days this week attending court.

J. W. Moore, of Weldon, we learn, has moved to our city. We congratulate him on his selection.

Isaac Cronwell, who moved from this place to Indian Territory about a year ago, is here on a visit.

Sam Strickland has moved into town, in order to take advantage of our superior school facilities.

Authors, dominoes, yacht races, steeple chase and other games.
JOHNSTON & WHITE.

Mrs. I. W. Bailey, of Calera, who has been on a week's visit to relatives in this place, returned home Sunday.

Johnston & White have just received a pretty line of Christmas goods. Don't fail to visit their store when in town.

We have just received a new stock of ladies' and children's shoes. Let us give you prices on them.
JOHNSTON & WHITE.

Look out for the Christmas tree and a real Santa Clause. Go, and take the children; but by all means make the little ones happy by putting a present on the tree for them on Christmas Eve.

Our genial tax assessor, J. H. Hammond, having sold his property in Wilsonville, has moved to this place and is occupying the residence of the late J. S. Leeper. Here's our hand, Brother Hammond.

H. W. O'Brien and family, of Orrville, Ala., are now citizens of our county. He has purchased the farm of J. W. Johnston, one mile south of town, and last week moved there. We extend them a hearty welcome.

Hon. R. W. Cobb has been quite sick the past two or three days, but is now improving.

J. H. Duran died this morning in Calera, after a long illness, and will be buried here tomorrow morning. For a number of years he was a resident of this place, but has lived in Calera for about ten years.

With this issue, we bid our friends adieu until 1896. There will be no paper Christmas week. We believe we have earned one week of rest, and we propose, as is our custom, to take it. A merry Christmas to all.

Joe M. Spencer has purchased E. D. Hall's stock of merchandise, and has moved into the brick store adjoining, owned by W. B. Browne. His stock is about straightened out and he is now ready for business.

Geo. W. Chambers, of Talladega, sells the best whisky for the money to be found anywhere. He buys in large quantities direct from the manufacturers, and therefore his goods are pure. Orders filled promptly by return train.

Do not spend your money for low proof high wines which are flavored with chemicals and called corn and rye, but let mesell you the pure juice, regular distilled from the grain, at $2 to $4 per gallon. Geo. W. Chambers, Talladega, Alabama.

We learn today on good authority that it is the intention of the Shelby Iron company to reopen their store in a short time. The date has not yet been settled upon, but it is not likely to be longer than six or eight weeks.

For your Xmas 'nog or for the holiday reunion, let me sell you your whiskies—something that will give satisfaction—as I buy all my liquors direct from the distillery, paying cash for same, I can sell you the pure juice.
Geo. W. Chambers,
Talladega, Ala.

Our Sunday Schools propose to unite and have a Christmas tree on the evening of the 21th. We have not been furnished with any further particulars, but this announcement will be sufficient to insure a large crowd of little ones. They will go to see the tree and get the presents, and not to hear speeches.

If you are in need of pure, unadulterated whiskies for medicinal purposes you can find ten-year-old Gibson rye whisky, oily and smooth as velvet; also Kentucky Yellow Stone, D. W. Harpers, McBrier, Rose Bud, Cognac, Apple and Peach brandies, imported Canadian Club, as well as brandies and gin, at Geo. W. Chambers', Talladega, Ala.

We have been requested by an active member of our city council and an earnest friend of our free school to urge our people to pay their city taxes at once. Quite a large number of our citizens agreed voluntarily to pay half in November, and the balance in January. Very few have paid a cent. The need of this money is urgent and all are requested to call now on the city treasurer and pay these taxes. The school must run, and it takes money to pay the teachers. They have been faithful in the discharge of their duties relying on the promises made. Now they must be paid. Every man in Columbiana should do all he agreed to do towards maintaining the school, and should do it promptly.

Card of Thanks.

Kindness has been compared to the light of a lamp or candle shining far out into the night, guiding and cheering the lonely traveler struggling through the darkness. So in affliction's trying hour a gentle word, a sympathetic glance, a friendly act, inspires courage and hope in the sinking heart, a strong faith in God, reminding us that there still lives in man something divine, a fragment of the great love that sees and pities all. In our recent affliction, and many times in the past, the same thoughtful, sympathetic friends have stood with us around the death bed of our loved ones, ministering so patiently and gently to every want; and although words can but feebly express our gratitude and appreciation, yet we would offer this small tribute to all who have contributed in any way to our comfort or assistance in our times of trouble. May He who comes not to be ministered unto but to minister, reward you; may the healing of His seamless robe be by your bed of pain and His rod and staff be your comfort and stay through the dark valley and shadow of death.

Wilsonville Warblers.

Mr. Bolin's sawmill has been running under full headway.

The Methodists are talking of erecting a parsonage at this place.

Mr. James Ray is building a new cottage for Mr. Ed Niven at West End.

Mr. Wm. Kidd and Mr. Jas. Wilder, of Vincent, ran over Sunday on a visit to relatives.

Mr. Clem Butler is over at Birmingham for a few days looking after his sawmill interests.

Our young people are anticipating pleasant visits from various friends during the holidays.

Mr. J. H. Hammond has sold out his interests here and will leave us, with his interesting family, in a few days.

Miss Maude Williamson and Miss Lula Densler spent Saturday and Sunday at Mr. J. W. Bolin's, and report a large time.

All are enthusiastic upon the subject of our own Institute and the Girls' Industrial School. We must educate, we must educate.

Mr. George Smith's bright face and jolly good cheer will be missed from our midst, as he has returned to his enviable railroad position.

Mr. Bob Fowler is anxiously looked for, that he may tell us of his shipwreck and other marine experiences on his recent trip to Central America.

Mr. Charlie Adkins, of Calera, is visiting in Wilsonville. The great question among us girls is, Will he continue to visit here now or will his visits change other changes?

Mr. Brooks De Arman, the dear man unbluffable, will be missed one week from school and by our town; but grieve not, dear girls, for he will return all our own, as before, with the new year.

You should see the S. P. L. L.'s in their badges e're long. They are a fine looking company when on parade. The only question about their future success is that we now crowd any room about town.

Our late trio from the Exposition report a treat well worth any young man's time and money spent on such a trip. Mrs. Densler and daughter, Olive, have not returned.

The architecture of Mr. Pope's handsome new brick store is fully up with the most modern of our city stores. We learn that he will in a few days open up in his new house, just in time for the holiday trade.

As the new Methodist minister had not arrived, we had no preaching on Sunday, but instead, had an interesting prayer meeting at the Presbyterian church morning and evening.

Mr. Robert O'Hara will be a citizen of our town by January 1. He settles permanently among us for the purpose of educating his children, and will enter five at the Institute at our new year's opening.

Since witnessing the marvelous growth of our school since September 1, and in view of the fact that we are to be stormed with new pupils on the 1st of January, our entire people are stirred as never before upon the subject of adding an ample room to the Institute building. The Masonic lodge of this place has pledged itself to donate $60 and a splendid heater; and, though all outsiders have not been seen as yet, we feel safe in assuming that when the field has been canvassed we will have a splendid house of seating capacity for 150 pupils. This is to be finished the first or second week in January.

Finally, Mr. Editor, look out for Santa Clause, and our wish for you and yours is that he may come to you in great shape. We hear it whispered that he's getting his "fixes" ready for our neighbors and our neighbors' children. A merry Christmas to you and to all.

Harpersville Echoes.

There is a drove of mules in town. Mr. Giles filled his appointment here Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. R. L. Flippin, of Birmingham, is spending this week at Harpersville.

Dr. Corley, a prominent dentist of Talladega, was here Saturday and Sunday last.

Webb Martin, after spending several months in the far west, returned home last Sunday.

Tax Assessor Hammond and Collector Smith were here last Thursday looking after taxes.

Alvin Hitchcock has moved from the country to town and is occupying the Davis building, on North Highlands.

W. A. Gorman came over from East Lake last week and spent a few days here looking after his mother's business.

Who will be the first to try to have this whisky business stopped? It can be done, and why don't some one start the ball to rolling?

The great Henry Watterson struck the key-note a few days ago when he said that the democratic party would die unless new leaders took hold of it, and he might have added that churches, schools, societies, etc., would go the same way. The time has come for a change. The country needs it, and the people want it. Whenever this is done, the grand old democratic party will bloom again as a rose, all the churches will put on new life, the school-room will be overflowing, and societies will do much and lasting good. Let us have a change and let us have it now.

We notice that a great many newspapers of the state and, in fact, nearly all of them, are against Captain Joe Johnston for governor, and even our own much beloved CHRONICLE, is among the number. Why is all this fight against Mr. Johnston? Is it because he don't agree with Mr. Cleveland on the money question? Is he to be rid out of the democratic party simply because he don't agree with the president on that matter? Are Morgan and Pugh, the grand old war heroes of democracy, to be driven out of the party simply because their views and Mr. Cleveland's are not the same on the money issue? Surely not. I believe that we have just as good democrats that would make just as good presidents, if not better, than Mr. Cleveland. And now as the good-looking editor of THE CHRONICLE has declared himself on the situation, your humble servant will declare himself. I am for Joe Johnston for governor until the democratic convention speaks, and then if he is defeated fairly I am for the nominee, let him be who he may.

Wishing you and the many readers of THE CHRONICLE a merry Christmas and a happy New Year, I will make my bow and step aside until January, when I will take up my pen and in my feeble way continue to give you the news from this part of the moral vineyard.

Vandiver Locals.

Abb Waldrop has left this place and gone south.

Boys, let's have a Christmas tree at Chestnut Grove.

Jimmie Whitfield has got a severe attack of the fever.

Dr. Lawley's sawmill is cutting a great deal of lumber at Vandiver.

The farmers have planted more wheat in this country than they ever did before.

We agree with the writer from Harpersville on the whisky business, and hope the guilty parties will be punished to the extent of the law.

Christmas is coming and the parties have commenced, but we hope that the teachers and leaders of this community will not take a part in such things.
SMALL BOY.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS, ETC.

From the Richmond Dispatch.

In the United States senate Mr. Quay, of Pennsylvania, has introduced a bill to establish postal savings banks. It provides for deposits of from ten cents to ten dollars at all money order postoffices, and for allowing interest on deposits which do not exceed $500. This measure the founder of the Dispatch in his lifetime always supported when he had the opportunity to do so. The result of the passage of such a law as Mr. Quay proposes would be the transfer of the money now lying idle in old stockings and in safety-boxes to the custody of Uncle Sam. If such a law were now in force Mr. Carlisle would have no trouble in using these deposits in carrying on the government's financial operations. Such a law would encourage economy and tend to promote thrift amongst the small depositors, though $500 is not a small sum looked at from Mr. Quay's point of view. It would cause many a dollar to be deposited in the postal savings banks which now goes into the drawer of the saloon keepers. The people have unbounded confidence in the national government; yes, all the people, whether they be plutocrats, laying up millions of dollars of bonds, or the masses of the people, possessing the means of depositing only a few dollars at a time. The money which would be deposited in postal banks under the proposed law would not have to remain idle. On the contrary, it might be and ought to be and would be employed by the government, and, as the rate of interest would probably be not over 2 per cent., the government would make or save money by the establishment of places of deposit which would always have on hand an abundance of money. The government would, of course, use this money, but Uncle Sam, as we have said, would nevertheless be always ready to pay his depositors.

Akin to Mr. Quay's proposition is the proposition to make the telegraph a part of the postal system of the country. We have heretofore called attention to the article of Justice Walter Clark, of North Carolina, in the American Law Review, in which he discusses the constitutionality of the proposition in question. One single point ought to suffice to satisfy the doubter. Judge Clark says that the same section of the constitution of the United States which empowers congress to declare war, raise and support armies and navy, coin money, regulate commerce, and borrow money on the credit of the United States includes the permission to establish postoffices and postroads, and if the power of the government is exclusive as to these other provisions, it is also exclusive as to the postoffice, for all these powers are conferred by the same section and by the same words. "Numerous decisions of the supreme court of the United States," says Justice Clark, "holding the power of congress over the postoffice and the carrying of mails to be exclusive render necessary any discussion of an undisputed point."

By all means let the thrifty people have postal savings banks. Rich and poor, the government and the people, will profit by them.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Shelby County.

Savannah Higgins, complainant, vs. Ed Higgins, defendant in Chancery. Sixth District, Northeastern Chancery Division.

In this cause, it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of J. N. Cook that the defendant, Ed Higgins, is a non-resident and that his place of residence is unknown, and further, that, in the belief of said affiant, the defendant is over the age of twenty-one years. It is therefore ordered, by the Register, that publication be made in the Shelby Chronicle, a newspaper published in the County of Shelby, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said Ed Higgins, to plead, answer or demur to the bill of complaint in this cause by the third day of January A. D. 1896, or in thirty days thereafter, a decree pro confesso may be taken against him.

Done at office, in Columbiana, this 30th day of November A. D. 1895.

Probate Notice.

State of Alabama, Shelby County.

Probate Court, December 10th, 1895.

Estate of James M. Johnson, deceased.

This day came C. W. O'Hara, administrator of said estate, and filed his application in due form and under oath, praying for an order of sale of certain lands and personal property described therein, and belonging to said estate, for the purpose of division among the heirs, upon the ground that said property cannot be equitably divided among said heirs without a sale. It is ordered that the 20th day of January, 1896, be appointed a day for hearing such application, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same, if they think proper.

Judge of Probate.

The January Number of "The Delineator."

Is called the Winter Holiday Number. The Fashion articles for the month are timely and complete, covering the entire field of styles for ladies, misses and children, millinery, lingerie, dress goods and trimmings. The rich holiday display in the shops is interestingly described. Mrs. Roger A. Pryor's article on The Social Code relates to society balls and to balls and parties for children. The space devoted to Woman's Work and Advancement includes a thoughtful conversation between Edith M. Thomas and Dr. S. R. Elliott on Woman in Business, an interesting paper by Miss Margaret McNaughton discussing Architecture as a profession for women, a graphic description by Lucia M. Robbins of Woman's Work at the Atlanta Exposition, Harriet Keith Forbes' directions for burnt decorations upon cardboard, and the continuation of Sara Miller Kirby's Kindergarten articles. The first of a brief series of papers on the Care of the Teeth, by a well known New York dentist, will be found exceptionally valuable. Mrs. A. B. Longstreet describes the carving of meats, and in seasonable cookery impromptu luncheon menus receive attention. In Mrs. Witherspoon's Tea-Table Gossip are noted some new home made holiday gifts. The review of holiday publications includes mention of many particularly intended for young readers. The novelties in knitting, tatting, crocheting and lace-making are illustrated and described.

THE CHRONICLE

C. C. DuBOISE, Editor and Proprietor.

COLUMBIANA, DEC. 26, 1895.

The republican national convention will be held at St. Louis June 10.

The Greenville Living Truth says that it is "a foregone conclusion" that Philander Morgan will be the populist nominee for governor next year.

Of the republican national committee 11 favor Reed for president, 10 favor McKinley, 9 favor Allison, 4 Cameron, 3 Morton and the rest, 9, scattering.

The Hartford Courant summarizes the opinions of the southern democratic newspapers upon the president's message and draws the conclusion that might have been drawn in advance, namely: "It comes to this, then, that Mr. Cleveland's revised financial programme commends itself to the southern democratic journals believing in a sound currency, and is angrily rejected by the southern democratic journals suffering from the free silver hallucination—which was to be looked for."

Within a short time the old home of Jefferson Davis in Richmond, Va., will be thrown open to the public as a Confederate museum. The "White House of the Confederacy," as it has been called, has been the property of the city for many years, and has recently been used as a school house. A room in the house will be assigned to each of the states that succeeded for a collection of relics, and the first response is from Georgia, which sends the cape, gauntlets and sword of General Lee, among other things.

A LAND GRANT ASKED FOR THE GIRLS' INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

A special to the State-Herald from Montgomery dated December 16, says: Governor Oates has, at the suggestion of the board of trustees of the White Girls' Industrial school, directed a letter to each of the Alabama senators and to all of the congressmen from this state, asking that they use their efforts to secure from congress a land grant as an endowment for the institution. The governor reminds them that the state appropriation is only $15,000, which is not near sufficient to sustain the school, and he begs them to do all in their power to urge congress to act in the matter. The governor also calls their attention to the fact that the negroes have three flourishing industrial schools in the state, and the white people have, excepting the institution in question, not one. It is earnestly hoped here that the school will be handsomely endowed by congress, and that it will be made one of the foremost educational institutions of the state.

SIMPLE BUT WEIGHTY.

From the Union Springs Herald.

Two of our prominent citizens met near the postoffice one day last week, and were soon engaged in a discussion of the silver and gold questions, one favoring free silver and the other wanting nothing but sound money. The former seemed not to understand how the free silver and unlimited coinage of silver would depreciate the silver dollars at the 16 to 1 ratio, whereupon the other presented the simplest yet most forcible argument against free silver.

Taking the premises that a little scrap of paper has but little intrinsic value and that the amount of silver in a dollar is not worth its face value only by the indorsement of the government, the latter person asked the other to name the "meanest nigger" on his place.

"Now," said he, "if you endorse that negro's note for ten dollars, I'll cash it. If you endorse it for one hundred dollars, I'll cash it. You might go on endoring it, I might cash it, but when you endorse that negro's note for fifteen thousand, or more, I wouldn't touch it, because you would simply endorse yourself beyond your means. It's the same with the government endorsing silver to a face value above its worth, and under present conditions the government is not proof against endorsing itself out."

Of course, you have all heard this argument before, but it will bear repetition, and is well worth anyone's time to consider it thoroughly. Consider, also, what the condition of the government would be when it endorsed itself beyond its means, and also consider what the dollars would be under such an event.

WHAT IT COSTS TO BE GOVERNED.

W. E. Earle's Washington Letter in Chicago Record.

According to Secretary Carlisle's calculations it will cost $418,091,073.17 to run this government during the next fiscal year. The appropriations for the present year made by the last congress amount to $412,752,264.81.

The president of the United States and his staff cost $93,200 a year; congress is a luxury for which we pay $7,958,817; our consular and diplomatic service, including the support of the state department, will require $1,888,278; it costs $24,526,968 to support the army and $25,583,675 the navy; we pay $8,750,453 to the Indians; the postal service costs $150,000 less; the federal courts last year cost $3,549,000, but the largest item of expense is the pensions we pay our old soldiers. They amounted last year to $141,381,570, and $3,000 more is asked for the next fiscal year. This money is distributed through a number of agencies and divided pretty evenly among the Northern states. Although the older states send larger quotas to the war, the general movement of immigration to the West has carried the old soldiers and their widows with it, so that they have become distributed over the North and West. Massachusetts has a smaller pension roll than Kansas, although she furnished more than 150,000 soldiers for the union army and Kansas less than 20,000; 20 per cent. of the population of Kansas enlisted and less than 10 per cent. of the population of Massachusetts.

Ohio gets the largest share of pension money, although Pennsylvania furnished more troops to the union army. There was distributed last year at the Columbus agency $15,496,856. Pennsylvania got the next largest amount. There was disbursed at the agencies in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh last year $14,594,624. A larger amount was disbursed at Topeka, Kan., but it was distributed among the veterans living in Missouri, Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Indian Territory—$14,948,887. The old soldiers in New York got $13,799,710.

A larger amount of pensions is paid in Indiana than in Illinois, although the Illinois agency pays all the navy pensioners in the northwest. The total paid out in Chicago last year was $10,792,514, while the Indianapolis agency disbursed $10,922,860. Washington comes next, disbursing $9,207,200 in New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and the south Atlantic states. All pensioners residing abroad are also paid from the Washington agency. Iowa and Nebraska got $8,362,895, while the Milwaukee agency divided $7,647,587 among the pensioners of Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas. The old soldiers of the union army living south of the Ohio river and west of the Blue Ridge mountains are paid at Knoxville, Tenn., where $7,374,226 was disbursed. The Boston agency paid out $7,437,835 in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut. Michigan soldiers got $7,022,796. In Maine alone $3,009,545 was disbursed and $3,053,708 was divided between New Hampshire and Vermont. On the Pacific coast $3,065,686 was paid through the San Francisco agency.

There are now 970,524 persons on the pension rolls. Of these 3,826 are widows and twenty-one surviving soldiers of the war of 1812, 3,911 are widows and 3,012 are survivors of the Indian wars, 7,868 are widows and 12,536 are survivors of the Mexican war.

During the last year 39,186 names were added to the pension rolls and 42,411 were dropped.

The average annual value of each pension last year was $133.99. Of the total amount appropriated for pensions $601,304 was given as fees to examining surgeons, $71,866 as salaries to pension agents, $466,923 as clerk hire, $22,402 for rent of pension agencies, $177 for fuel, $395 for lights and $22,818 for contingent expenses. The amount paid in actual pensions on account of the army was $136,093,263 and the navy $3,650,980. Under the general law $58,906,628 was paid to dependent invalids, $18,111,504 to dependent widows, parents and children and $79,220 to army nurses.

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

What the Papers Have to Say About It.

Captain Joe Johnston is already in the field as a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor, and challenges all comers to the contest. There is more involved than the mere election of a governor. It is a matter of principle, and they have made it a national issue. They have made war upon the national administration of their own party and base their claims for support upon the abuse and sneering criticism of President Grover Cleveland and those who endorse him. Captain Joe says that "all who agree with Cleveland should receive scourges upon their backs," etc. His success carries with it the election of a legislature who would choose Senator Pugh's successor. We wish it distinctly understood that we wish him remanded to private life. He has outlived his usefulness. It also involves the election of delegates to the national democratic convention. We want a delegation of sound money, Grover Cleveland democrats, who are in line with the great majority of their party on the money question. For these and other reasons, we accept the challenge of these disorganizers and malcontents, who seek to divide and betray their party, and will place in the field very soon a man who will represent us, and call upon the true democrats of the state to rally to his standard. Who shall it be?—Tuskegee Reporter.

PUT ASIDE THE EXTREMIST. Party harmony seems to be the desire of the great majority of democrats these days, and they are casting about to find a man who will best unite the factions of the party. When he is found he will be nominated and elected by an old-time majority. At the present writing, Capt. Joseph F. Johnston seems to be the most available man for the position. Notwithstanding the bitter fight, even now made against him, he has no words of censure for any one. He is minding his own affairs, abusing no one, censuring no one, but on the contrary acting in every way as becomes a man who desires party peace and harmony. Contrasted with this attitude we find the press opposed to him wildly beating the air, in a vain attempt to prove him unfit for the nomination, and also they are wildly beating the bushes, trying to scare up an opposition candidate, and, in short, doing many things to stir up strife and discord, and bring a bitter fight to light within the ranks of the party. Such actions alone show that the opposition is not properly a faction which will promote harmony. By all means let this factional strife be ended. Put aside the extremist and let the people get together upon a platform, broad and liberal, and without duplicity.—Uniontown Herald.

THE CAPTAIN CALLED. Some days ago we asked Captain Johnston to disclaim responsibility for the repudiation doctrines enunciated by his organ, the Birmingham State-Herald. The captain remained silent, perhaps through the mistaken notion that he should not turn his back upon a faithful, even though fatally indiscreet friend. The organ, however, has done the proper thing, for it now declares that it is no organ, but a plain, every-day newspaper that is able to differ with Captain Johnston, if need be, and is not to be considered the captain's mouthpiece. This must be a relief to the captain. No feeling of delicacy can longer be urged as excuse for his failure to answer our question. Does he or does he not support the doctrines that the State-Herald enunciated when it was his organ.—Mobile Register.

ANOTHER VIEW. Of course, if the anybody-to-beat Johnston clique can have their obdurate and reckless way, they will get some one to serve their purpose. Indications are now adverse to the candidacy of Hon. Richard H. Clarke; but they are cunning and full of that variety of blandishment that often times misleads the ambitious. Mr. Clarke's reputation as an astute politician, as well as a patriotic citizen, raises strong presumption against his victimization. But they are bent and determined upon a wrangle, and the question of who will lead their little faction is altogether secondary. They could not possibly win the nomination, but they could sow seeds of discord such as would multiply with great rapidity before next August shall have rolled around.—Huntsville Argus.

ONE-SIDED HARMONY. The free silver or Johnston organs are shouting themselves hoarse, says the Florence Gazette, for harmony in the democratic party, but somehow, they want it all their own way. They seem to think the sound money men have no rights that they should respect only on a Johnston platform. But they should remember that there are a whole lot of fellows that don't want to swallow Johnston and all free silver vagaries, and "dog-goned" if they are going to do it, that's all, until he is nominated by the convention. The sound money men propose to have their say when the time comes. This thing called "harmony" is all very well when mutual, but when it's all one-sided, like the Johnston platform, it don't go down very well.—Scottsboro Citizen.

WILL HE ALLOW IT? The captain, if we can comprehend at all his mouthpiece's latest utterance, is opposed to a platform setting our people by the ears. If this is so he can be nominated and elected and the party saved. The captain is a patriot and this is his duty. But the Times can fly no free silver flag. The democratic party in this state cannot do it. Besides, in the face of the coming national platform, such a flag would be comical in the extreme and would subject us to all manner of ridicule. We don't care to be ridiculed and we don't care to follow a flag that would attract the attention of a lot of humorists all over the country. It ought to be Johnston and harmony, if the captain will allow it to be so.—Eufaula Times.

CLARKE MAY BE COMPELLED. The sound money papers of the state have, almost as a unit, appealed to Hon. R. H. Clarke to enter the race for the gubernatorial nomination, and it looks as if circumstances will compel Mr. Clarke to relinquish for the time his senatorial aspirations. He, like the true democrat that he is, has announced that, while he hopes the change will not be forced upon him, yet he holds himself subject to the orders of his party.—Daphne Breeze.

STRICTLY A SILVER VIEW. The duty of the party in Alabama next year is very plain. It is to nominate Johnston and adopt a free silver platform. Then there will be a reasonable hope of success. Let the party in Alabama follow the example of the democracy of Mississippi, the only state carried by the democrats in the November elections and win. Let the party follow the example of the party in Kentucky, Maryland, Ohio and other states and it will lose.—Montgomery Journal.

A NERVE SPECIMEN. The greatest specimen of nerve exhibited of late is the request of Johnston men for harmony. They madly assert that the majority of the party should accede to their wishes for the sake of peace. We had plenty of harmony before they started their crusade against the administration, and we will have it after they are buried under the avalanche of public opinion.—Clanton View.

IT'S ALL OVER. The democracy has decided that Captain Johnston should have the nomination, and that same democracy is going to give it to him.—Russell Register. If this is true, we move that the party pass a vote of thanks to the Russell Register, editors to 1895 and save campaign expenses.—Mobile Register.

OF SILVER PROCLIVITIES. Captain Joe Johnston is solid with the people and grows in favor daily. He has the advantage of any man who has gubernatorial aspirations from the fact that he stands on a platform broad enough and liberal enough to accommodate all the people.—Tusculum North Alabamian.

VERY TOUCHING. The efforts of the State Herald to keep everybody off the gubernatorial track but Johnston are decidedly amusing, and its solicitude lest some good man should enter into the race and be sorry for it is very touching indeed.—Montgomery News.

ONE OF EACH KIND. Joe Johnston for governor, W. C. Oates for United States senator would be a team no one need dread but the ward politicians. It would most certainly please the people at large.—Prattville Progress.

BUT WILL HE DO IT? Mr. Johnston has it within his power to allay dissension and combine the party on healthy state issues—but will he do it?—Daphne Gulf Breeze.

Whisky and Pistols. From the Clarke County Democrat. If every man in Alabama would keep sober and carry no deadly weapons during the next three weeks there would be a great improvement in the moral record of murders and many less serious crimes prevented. If a man knew that a bottle of whisky and a pistol would make him a murderer, and probably without provocation, he would shudder at the sight of either, but lives will be taken during these weeks and pistols and whisky will be the cause. Either is bad, but the two taken together may well be compared with the pestilence that walketh in darkness and the destruction that wasteth at noonday. How glad and how thankful would be the editor of this paper to believe that he had influenced some one to discontinue the use of intoxicating liquors and the carrying of deadly weapons, and in this way had probably prevented the shedding of innocent blood and saved the tears and anguish of mothers and wives and daughters and sisters.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know

that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Fitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Fitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fitcher is on every wrapper.

HAVE YOU READ THE * TIMES

PHILADELPHIA

THIS MORNING?

THE TIMES is the most extensively circulated and widely read newspaper published in Pennsylvania. Its discussion of public men and public measures is in the interest of public integrity, honest government and the prosperity of the country. It knows no party or personal allegiance in treating public issues. In the broadest and best sense a family newspaper.

THE TIMES aims to have the largest circulation by deserving it, and claims that it is unsurpassed in all the essentials of a great metropolitan newspaper. Specimen copies of any edition will be sent to any one sending their address.

TERMS: DAILY, $3.00 per annum; $1.00 for four months; 50 cents per month. SUNDAY EDITION, twenty-four large, handsome pages—108 columns, elegantly illustrated, 12.00 per annum; 5 cents per copy. Daily and Sunday, $5.00 per annum; 50 cents per month. WEEKLY EDITION, 50 cents per copy.
